The front office of the Lodge room presents a very neat and up-to-date appearance, having been completely remodelled and redone in latest design and color.

Mr. Bill Fleming, former Sask stockman big potato farmer brought in a spud the other day with a nine five feet long. The catch is to grow it in the basement and started production last fall.

The Board of Trade has the trees in town looking pretty good now, and asks the co-operation of village residents to keep them that way. The Board will be starting soon on this year's removal walk generation.

A large and jolly crowd of country and town folks attended the five 25th anniversary dance at the north hall last week, put on by Mr. and Mrs R Williamson. The couple was presented with a purse of silver by S. Umryhi Both replied. Dancing and musical numbers was the order of the evening.

W. Townsend, Ralph and Bill Cooper and Mr. Lashley were the Club members who attended the Hardisty Golf Tourney. All four moved to the top brackets with Townsend playing first with a low qualifying round of 74 (par 34); Lashley, Ralph Cooper and Bill Cooper followed in that order.

Mr. Peter Schmits of Bellis, Alta has been visiting his brother Geo and wife at the Dormitory.

DOWN TO EARTH IN RAISING PIGS

PETER WHITEHALL (B. Prairie Farm Broadcast commentator and intrepid interviewer, took the title of his next veterinary interview seriously for in addition to interviewing Dr. Anne Laidlaw, Whitlaw's only woman veterinary surgeon on "Presenting Bisson in baby pigs" he underwent the interview some of the pigs too. Peter's interviewing equipment on this occasion included a portable tape recorder, and he was able to record some very healthy pig squeals for use on a daily Farm Broadcast, heard Monday to Friday in the prairie provinces from 12:45 to 12:55 p.m. local standard time (11:15 p.m. Mountain Standard time). Dr. Laidlaw will be heard Tuesday, June 8th, as one of a series of veterinary interviews, Tuesday, every Farm Broadcast features heard by this time, is Livestock Day on the Farm Broadcast

PERSONAL STUFF
— By A. W. E. —

I received my third notice this week concerning a Census of Industry Questionaire which I am required to fill out and return by the 21st of May. I always wait until I have received my third notice before sending in the request for all the information they desire. Why I do this, I cannot explain unless it be that I like hundreds of others feel that a good deal of the questions asked are of somebody's business but my own — however, the government doesn't seem to feel that way. Your first request is answered with the necessary forms and in a weeks later along comes a letter with a polite request and in another week or ten days comes the third and not so polite request. Here is where I comply because by the time they get the idea somehow that you have no desire to co-operate.

Three people and you everything in the bush except how and your wife in. This they dare not do. For of a feminine nature is Mrs. Whan.

* * * *

There are three big local events coming up this week end. First is the annual Farmer's Day being held at Lougheed on Monday June 21st which will start off with a 10 o'clock parade. Two days later Killam will entertain the people from far and near at their second Stampede and Ball Tourney. Then a week later the big Sports Day at Sedgewick will be held on the first of July. It looks like a very busy ten days ahead, so I must fade

* * * *

While we are talking about Sports Days, we may as well inform you that the printing of the latter two color posters for all those events was handled by the Community Press, besides the advertising and color job for the Hardisty Club's day on the 10th instant. It kept us busy but we like your patronage and will do everything in give you what you want when you want it.

When you want a real attractive sport poster, give your order to the Community Press. We do not only our specialty, the two-color job. Phone us reverse and about the info over and we'll be glad to call and take it down and we'll do the printing

STATE CONTROL AND STABLE PRICES

Judging by letters written to the newspapers it seems that many people in the state that prices are going to be more like they were before the war. Such a statement is absurd and contemptible.

Personally I fear there will be quite a rise for all kinds of goods in the near future. I have made a careful study of the situation and believe that the buying and consumption has been at such a high level over the past few years that the government doesn't now what to do to keep it there. Efforts are being made by the world's leaders to end the war and establish peace, which each and everybody desires, but the fact remains that the longer the war lasts the higher prices will go. # Education And The Future

THE THEORY THAT THE TRAINING of its youth is of the greatest importance to the future of any country has long been an accepted fact, and education holds an important place in the public interest almost everywhere. This is true in Canada, where in most communities much attention is directed to the operations of the schools. Under the chairmanship of Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, and an outstanding educationalist, the Canadian Youth Commission has been carrying on studies in connection with education in this country, and many interesting and challenging facts have been brought forth in reports made on the results of these studies.

* * * * *

Attract Ablest To Profession

The Commission, which "probed the mind of Canadian youth in regard to education," has found that there is agreement among Canadian young people that the best conditions which we now have for education in the most favored communities should be extended to all Canadian children everywhere, that teaching must be made so attractive that the ablest of our youth will be attracted to it as a profession, and that more attention should be paid to the health of children in the schools. It also recommends that curricula should be developed to meet the needs of the children in the fullest extent, with the object of fitting each child to make its maximum contribution to society.

* * * * *

The Need For New Schools

The need for new schools has also been discussed and it was agreed that better school buildings should be provided and that the school should play a more important part in the life of the community. The necessity of Federal financial aid for educational improvement, along the lines of those suggested are to be made, was stressed in the findings of the Commission. Other educational bodies have made similar recommendations from time to time regarding the need for improving conditions in Canadian schools. It is apparent that lack of funds is responsible for many of the shortcomings in our present system, and that large sums of public money will have to be earmarked for education before there can be any great improvement. The Canadian Youth Commission and other educational bodies who offer constructive criticism on the subject are to be commended for their efforts.

SOUVENIR OF PARIS VISIT—Princess Elizabeth and her consort, the Duke of Edinburgh, are shown as they paused for their portrait at the British Embassy in Paris on the occasion of their state visit to the French capital. Both are wearing decorations they received from President Auriol of France. The prince is wearing the Grand Cordon of Legion of Honor and the princess the Croix de Guerre. The ring he is wearing is one that Britain's future queen set her foot on any soil but that of the empire.

TO RUN FOR SENATE — President Truman formally accepted the resignation of Clinton P. Anderson, (above), as secretary of agriculture. Anderson announced that he was leaving the cabinet post to run for the U.S. Senate in New Mexico. Anderson, whose resignation is effective now, is shown packing his personal papers as he prepared to leave his office at Washington, D.C.

Canada Improving Trade Position

OTTAWA — Canada continues to make progress in correcting her unfavorable trade position with the United States and consequently in her American dollar situation.

However, she still buys much more from that country than she sells there and continues to have a dollar problem which she must try to make up by getting payment in dollars for what she sells to other countries.

Assistance to European countries through the European recovery program helps in this, though the course of American policy is not clear in all respects as yet. Canada is suffering somewhat in her trade with dollar-short countries which do not get E.R.P. aid and which have put restrictions on what they will buy from dollar areas.

Total Canadian sales to the United States in the first four months of this year were $431,433,000 compared with $320,237,000 in the similar period of 1947, an advance of more than 21 per cent. For the first three months of this year the unfavorable trade balance with the United States was $107,806,000 compared with $202,300,000 in the same period of 1947.

Expect Record In Forest Production In British Columbia

VICTORIA — British Columbia's forest production is headed for another record-breaking year. This is apparent from statistics now available.

B.C. forest service figures for production during the first three months of this year showed the log scale at 762,484,174 fbm. During the corresponding period of 1947 production was 721,002,357 fbm.

Also produced during the first three months of this year were 5,794,000 lineal feet of poles, 39,362 cords of fuel wood and 167,378 railroad ties. Pole production for the corresponding 1947 period was 13,745,437 lineal feet, while fuel production was 38,811 cords and hewn ties production 100,727.

Record Established In Births During 1947

OTTAWA. — Canadians kept the stork busy last year.

The increase of statistics reported there were more babies born in Canada in 1947 than in any other year.

Preliminary figures showed 336,709 live births were registered in 1947 throughout the Dominion, compared with 330,723 in 1946, the previous record year.

BABY TALK REVIVES ABOUT SPEECH DEFECTS

VANCOUVER, Baby talk among seven and eight-year-old children is not cute. Along with lisping and other speech defects, it should be corrected as early as possible.

This advice was given by Mrs. Estrida Welsh, supervisor of speech correction in Vancouver public schools, in a talk to Vancouver Kindergarten Teachers' Association.

British Farmers Grow More Grain

LONDON — British farmers have hit the first target in their five-year plan to guarantee more home-grown wheat and potatoes in 1948. The ministry of agriculture says reports from England and Wales show that 2,760,000 acres of wheat have been sown, an increase of 363,000 over last year. More than 73,000 additional acres have been found for potatoes, bringing the total to 1,016,000.

One-Ounce Letters Go By Air Mail

OTTAWA.—Beginning July 1, ordinary one-ounce letters will be carried by air mail to the major centres of Canada, under a new postal scheme, announced in the Commons by Postmaster-General Bertrand.

Canada thus becomes the first country to introduce what is known as "all-up" mail service on a national basis.

The new service, which will operate at first on the Trans-Canada Air Lines main network and later may be extended to secondary feeder lines, means that letters weighing up to an ounce will receive air mail treatment whether or not they carry air mail postage.

They will thus go by air even with the ordinary four-cent postage now confined to surface mail.

The seven-cent air mail stamp will continue to be used on letters weighing more than an ounce.

Mr. Bertrand said the new routine, to be used wherever the mails can be speeded up, will be on an "experimental basis" until it is proved financially sound.

The ordinary postal rate for out-of-town mail is four cents for the first ounce and two cents for each additional ounce or fraction. The air mail rate is seven cents for the first ounce and five cents for each additional ounce or fraction. Thus, a two-ounce letter still will cost 12 cents postage if it is to be sent by air and six cents for normal surface delivery.

Mr. Bertrand announced also that the department plans to make "significant improvements and extensions" of an undisclosed nature in the rural mail service.

A Tribute To Agriculture

In the last reckoning all things are bought with food. Our civilization is bought with food; our industrial achievements as a province and a nation; our cultural attainments; our recreation. Food—mind and soul alike—is necessary to support our civilization.

The food produced on Alberta farms is the main source of the annual wealth production of this province.

The total new wealth produced from Alberta's field crops in the past eight years was $1,370,000,000 an annual average of $217,000,000.

The gross Alberta farm cash income in the past eight years was over two billion dollars, an annual average of $325 millions.

The Alberta Wheat Pool publishes these figures to show to Alberta people the value of the agriculture industry.

The Wheat Pool is a farmer-owned co-operative operating 476 country elevators and two terminals.

Pool elevators have provided exceptional service to Alberta grain producers over the years.

The W. I. Girls Club have taken over the M. Shobers farm on Friday for a wiener roast. Between baskin mosquitoes and rain it was a very miserable evening was had by all.

Don't forget folks that all roads lead to Lougheed on the 21st of this month for the big Farmer's Day. Fun for all in an assured fact. So mark it down early enough to see the big parade at 1:00 p m.

The Lougheed Wildcats journeys over to Forestburg last Wednesday and came home with second place. Nice going boys.

The Lougheed Juniors defeated the Sedgewick team last Tuesday at Lougheed, the score being 7 to 5. Whom we say pounces we mean it to even little Cliff Smith who plays his part in the out field.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilmer on June 11th at Hardisty, a girl. Congratulations.

CROP REPORT

(No. 2 — By Bank Of Montreal)

In the Prairie Provinces weather conditions in June have, on the whole, been very favorable and wheat seeding in a number of districts is now completed. In other areas, except in part of Western Alberta where the progress has been slow, it is well advanced. Seeding of coarse grain is in full swing in most regions. Early sown grains are showing moderate ground and growth in most districts weather has recently favored planting and operations in some districts are one to three weeks behind normal. In B.C., tree fruits are progressing but cool, wet weather has retarded growth of crops. Hay crops have been planted, seeding and planting are now well under way in most areas. Fruit trees are making good way. In Ontario, two weeks of cold, wet weather in May to early June has delayed in a standstill, but favourable conditions have prevailed during the past ten days enabling most farmers to complete seeding of spring grains. Prospects for most crops are promising and the season is now considered above average. In the Maritime Provinces unusually cold weather has retarded planting and operations in some districts are one to three weeks behind normal. In Quebec Province although cold, wet weather is delaying farming and retarded the growth of crops,

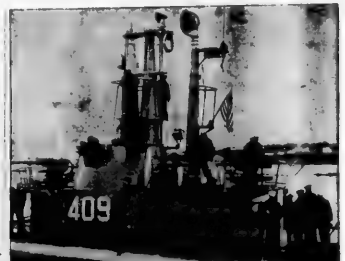
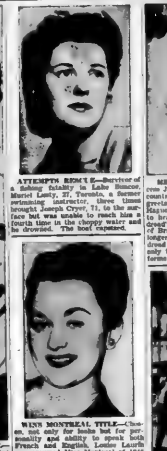
THE CHURCHILLS CALL ON DUTCH ROYAL FAMILY—In this picture, the former premier manner hardly resembles the tough tenacious statesman who led his country to victories, shortly before the outbreak of war. Here he is holding the hand of his friend Princess Marijke, youngest daughter of Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland. Princess Marijke, youngest daughter of Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland, while Mrs. Churchill weighs her fingers in the familiar V-sign. This photo was made during a recent visit of the Prime Minister and his wife to the royal family at Soestdijk palace, at Amsterdam, Holland. Left to right are: Mrs. Churchill, Prince Bernhard, Princess Juliana with Princess Marijke, Princess Beatrix and Princess Irene.

CAT A "CENTENARIAN"—Tookie, cherished cat owned by Mrs. Bert Coleman of Toronto, is quite spry at an age equal to that of 120 years for a human. The cat, seen with a young admirer, Warren Whale, four, will be 20 this summer.



U.S. NAVY SUBMARINE VISITS CANADA—On a three-day informal visit to Canada, the U.S. navy submarine Piper is shown as she moved up the Halifax, N.S., harbor to her berth. One of the latest built by the U.S. during the war, the 1,500-ton submarine is commanded by Cmdr. A. K. Tyree.

CLAIMS SON WITH BROKEN FINGER STRAPPED AT SCHOOL—Charge that her son, Ed, was strapped in a Toronto school while suffering from a fractured hand is made by Mrs. Sidney Robinson. Ed is said to have broken a finger in a school fight. He is the nephew of a former boxing champion.



ATTEMPTS RESCUE—Survivor of a fishing fatality in Lake Simcoe, Muriel Leecy, 37, Toronto, a former swimming instructor, is shown being brought Joseph Cryer, 71, to the shore face but was unable to reach him a fourth time in the choppy water and he drowned. The boat capsized.

Notice the recorder and player in the rear that gave out with the latest jazz records during the interludes of her talks. She faces treason trial at Tokyo, Japan.

BOY, 4, TRAPPED UNDER TOMBSTONE—Trapped under a tombstone in the old church cemetery at the village of Harrisburg, near Brantford, Ont., for more than an hour, four-year-old Clifford Jensen declared "the old thing" fell on him. He was rescued by his mother. The tombstone was erected in 1903 and was loose on its base. As the lad started to climb it, it toppled. Clifford was pinned from just below the shoulders. When his mother lifted the 300-pound stone and dragged him out he had difficulty walking. Above Clifford shows his mother how he was trapped.

HANDICAPPED MOTHER BEARS NORMAL CHILD—Mrs. Betty Lampe Haggland, gazes with pride and thankfulness at her newborn baby daughter, Valerie, in a Springfield, Ill., hospital. Valerie is a normal baby in every respect although her mother was born without feet, and overcame that handicap to live a normal life and become a happily married housewife. Mrs. Haggland graduated through high school and college and was working to help her widowed mother when her case was called to the attention of the nation by newspaper stories. Contributions from sympathetic readers later enabled her to be fitted with artificial feet so that she could walk normally and even dance. She married William Haggland of Chicago shortly afterwards.

ARREST MAN WHO SET FIRE TO 18 HOMES—Charged with arson, D'Amie Menard, who, police say, has confessed to setting fire to 18 Jewish-owned homes in Val Morin, Quebec, is shown with police. He was carrying 675 matches when caught.

Modern Weekly Newspaper Plays Important Role In Its Community

The man who edits and publishes the modern Canadian weekly is keenly aware that his newspaper, no longer a little sheet of personal items and scraps of advertising, is a vital force in his community with both responsibilities and a position to maintain. In striking contrast to the old conception of the average weekly editor, given-universal, cynical with bitter pen and ingrown disposition—he is an important citizen, well versed in civic affairs, who knows practically everybody in town by first name and family tree. His age may be anywhere from 25 to 80 years, his staff may be himself alone or 40 people, the average is five or six. He is probably a member of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

All this was quite evident to anyone attending the recent national convention of the C.W.N.A. Listening to more than 100 editors in conference in casual conversational chop-talk or relaxing at a dance or a singsong, the tremendous potential of the weekly newspaper was most definitely felt. These were men, it was audibly shown, who knew that on their shoulders rested the monumental work of educating in local type the heartbreaks of their communities.

At this convention, the editors heard filmmakers in the massive National Film Board camouflage and lights were trained on them for convention newspaper reporting in the Canada Carries On Production, "The Home Town Paper". Of this motion picture the editors went home and talked—and wrote—about it. It was something new in films about newspapers. It touched only lightly the mechanical side of publishing. It emphasized the vital, intimate relationship between a community and its newspaper and, in doing that, became as much a screen coverage of an average small town as a film on a paper.

Many of these editors saw "The Home Town Paper" and whether they were from the West, the Province, Ontario, Quebec or the Maritimes, they recognized themselves in the editor on the screen, and the people they knew in the Home Town citizens.

"The Home Town Paper" was filmed by the National Film Board in Vernon, B.C., and stars the Vernon News, selected by NFB in co-operation with the C.W.N.A. as a representative Canadian weekly

R.C.M.P. Not Interested In Attracting Tourists

OTTAWA—One big part of Canada isn't interested in attracting tourists this year or any other year—the Northwest Territories, vast areas of ravine and forests, lakes and rivers north of the 60th parallel.

Deputy Commissioner Roy A. Gibson told the Northwest Territories Council that he is "disturbed by the large number of inquiries by people who wish to travel in the Territories with little conception of the difficulties they face."

Commissioner S. T. Wood of the R.C.M.P., a member of the Council, said persons who visit the Territories without proper "know-how" and equipment usually have to be looked after by the R.C.M.P.

"I don't suppose there is any way we can recover expenses for this," he said.

Mercy flights are another problem Commissioner Wood said. When an inexperienced person got lost he reported aircraft to be sent in search for him. That cost money and endangered lives of the aircrew.

The Council decided it will see what can be done to discourage persons entering the Territories except on actual business.

[illegible]

Sift together salt and flour. Cut in shortening as for biscuits. Sprinkle on this like using a large kitchen spatula. The amount of water will vary with the flour as the proper consistency of dough is not to be wetter than to place dependence on the pressure of the hand. It will be wet enough to hold together when pressed into a ball and must be easily lifted from the bowl in one piece. If chilled before rolling it will be more easily handled. Toss on a floured board and roll lightly, keeping in a circular shape. Roll very thin. This recipe will make one small double crust pie.

SINGLE CRUST PIE

Roll dough larger than the tin. Place carefully over outside of the tin so crust overhangs in baking. Flatten crust to tin to prevent cut-out. If it is to be filled after baking, prick with fork. If for single crust pie, build-up edge to make greater depth and groove or flute the ridge in order that meat may stiffen more quickly.

WHALING FACTORY AT CHURCHILL

DAUPHIN, Man. — An industrial development at Churchill is in the making with installation of a whaling factory. According to present plans from the north, machinery and building materials are to be moved to Churchill for the new plant within the next month.

Canada's first Arctic whaling factory is to go into operation next summer, working on a season's schedule of 600 Arctic whales.

The site of the plant will be on the outskirts of the town between Churchill river and the terminus of the Hudson Bay railway. Mr. Ward has estimated the initial expenditure at $12,000 for the erection of a whaling scow, approximately 30 by 80 feet for housing rails and rendering equipment and a covered platform just inside the water, to where the whales would be towed for cutting.

Trust, Friendship Ideal Weapons In Combating Juvenile Delinquency

PALS.—Fellow Lions Al Gemal and Bruce young let-ads study the fine points of bee hive construction.

By CHARLES W. WHITE
Central Press Canadian

MUNCIE, Ind. — Juvenile delinquency, the plague of modern urban life is being controlled here mainly through the work of an ex-Gi who has dedicated his life to kids.

He is Albert L. Gumz a police lieutenant, who has been in charge of juvenile work on the city of Muncie since Jan. 1 1940 during both Republican and Democratic administrations.

That, incidentally, is one of the secrets.

So far as the kids are concerned, politics is out in Muncie." said Mayor Leslie Holloway, a Democrat, on talking with this year. He kept Gumz as Al Gumz on the job.

You won't be in Muncie long before you hear about Al Gumz, a big dark-complexioned, good natured fellow of who he got his start in life wearing a Charlezel Pa., steel mill. Having served marriage, he is of his own.

Gumz has a small frat floor office there at city hall, and a desk that isn't used much. Baseball equipment, basketball equipment, a ping pong table, air spit to be scattered on chairs and tables.

There is a side entrance from the street, and any moment some breathless snipper may burst in without knocking. Gumz is for that. He doesn't permit to sit out anyone just a while.

There even wheel bicycles in there, more than in the centre for bike matters. Gumz conducts a "bicycle court" for safety violators, with kids serving as judges, prosecutors and jurymen.

This is another reason why the Muncie system works. All juvenile activities including safety, sports and entertainment—instead of only law violations—center around the juvenile office, which works in close contact with schools, Y.M.C.A. and the Boys' club.

Three citizens appointed by the mayor work voluntarily with Lieutenant Gumz, keeping available day and night to help where needed. They are H. A. Pettijohn, Y.M.C.A. secretary, whose boys' clubs classes take national honors yearly; the Rev. Richard Pantz, a Catholic priest, who is an ardent youth advocate, and A. D. Johnson, elementary school principal. Legal supervision is provided by Judge Clayton Wilson of the county circuit court, and his probation officer, Mrs. Mary Olsen.

House System

Everybody in Muncie for that matter, seems to be "hepped" on the subject of kids. Civic clubs send Gumz's boys on safety patrol boys to Y camp every year, and provide equipment for two baseball leagues. Whenever Gumz wants something, like a wrestling mat recently, he just asks.

"Three people have never failed me yet," he said.

Last year Gumz took on an assistant, Tommy New, when business got too much for one man. Mrs. Ellen Hive handles special cases dealing with women and girls. All three salaries total $7,200 a year—less than $150 a week.

A tour around Muncie with Al Gumz is an experience not soon to be forgotten.

"Hi, Gumz!" . . . "Hi, Fleabag!" . . . "Hi, Copper!" . . . all in one block recently from boys and girls going home from a hunt.

"Hey, Jammy," he yelled out the police car window to one of them, "you'd better get down to the ma-

World Supply Oils, Fats, Still Short

Serious shortage of oils and fats to meet world requirements are likely to continue through 1948, and indeed for some years to come. In the United States, the latter has not only about 5 million metric tons available for export—exports of 3 million metric tons. Exports from all principal producing countries, with the exception of North America and the Philippines, were less than pre-war, the latter two areas having been overrun by Japan.

JUDGE HAS HIS OWN IDEA ABOUT IGNORANCE

LIVERPOOL, England.—Because a man cannot read or write, he is not necessarily ignorant, says Justice Cassels.

"Many would say they managed things a little better than we do now, and we can all read and write."

Helpful Hints

For tossed green salads, how about rubbing the bowl first with a garlic clove, or soak a garlic clove in your vinegar? Gives things to the flavor.

One method of cleaning a Panama hat is to make a paste of gluey starch and cover the hat with it. Then place the hat in the sun until it is dry, brush it, and dust and soil will disappear.

Wash your lingerie frequently. Perspiration tends to tender all fabrics. Garments washed often need only very mild treatment which prolongs the life of the fabric. Garments trimmed with lace or embroidery should always be handled carefully, especially in extracting water. Squeeze, don't wring. Wash knitted lingerie by hand as carefully as you do your hosiery.

Smile of the Week—

OBJECTIVE

The manufacturer of a certain well known brand of patent medicine recently received a letter from a grateful woman:

Record Acreage In Alberta Sugar Beets—New Factory Construction

(By C. Frank Steele in Canadian Finance)

A record acreage of sugar beets will be planted this season in Southern Alberta. The area sown to beets will probably be 32,000 acres, this is roughly 7,000 acres over last year's seeded acreage, which was the previous all-time high.

The first planting was done in the Barnwell and Coaldale districts, east of Lethbridge, but wet weather in April destroyed a general start on the land. This has applied to other crops as well as sugar beets.

Officials of Canadian Sugar Factories Ltd., are not worried about the delay in planting. "This ought to be an excellent year for sugar beets," Manager Frank Taylor said recently. Beets can be planted up to the second week in June with good prospects of a crop, but the most desirable dates are between May 1 and May 15. Beets will be treated with commercial fertilizer as they are needed.

Moisture Good

The good surface moisture conditions prevailing this year should give the beets quick and uniform germination and the new plants a strong start. It is unlikely that beets will have to be "irrigated up" this season. Thinning should be general early in June and there appears to be a good supply of labor available as Polish soldier immigrants will be back in the fields as well as new arrivals from Europe including numbers of Dutch settlers. These are an ideal type for farm work and it is being freely predicted they will have mixed farms of their own in a few years.

Monarch and Nobleford, west and north of Lethbridge are getting most of the Dutch immigrants as there is already a large and well established Dutch population in both areas. Local committees have been set up to get the new families from the Old Country re-established in their new Canadian homes. Augmenting these other sources of labor will be members of Japanese families who fit splendidly into the sugar beet industry.

New Factories

Overhauling of the Raymond and Picture Butte factories has started in preparation for the full run within a few years on the new Taber factory, scheduled to go into production in the fall of 1949, is being pushed despite the short supply of structural steel. Taber is the centre of a rich dry-farmed farming area, served by irrigation, 30 miles east of Lethbridge on the Canadian Pacific Railway. Canadian Sugar Factories, Ltd., wholly-owned Alberta subsidiary of the Rogers sugar interests of Vancouver, B.C., is spending over $3,000,000 in the Taber plant, designed to be the last word in beet sugar mills.

As fast as material arrives on the ground, workmen are put to work. The huge concrete sugar silos are completed, as well as the machine shop and warehouse. Foundations work for other items of the plant is also completed. In addition to the plant itself the Taber unit will include a modern sugar research laboratory and equipment for the manufacture of dry pulp, a useful livestock feed. Bill Price was named superintendent of the new Taber factory some time ago. Formerly with the Picture Butte plant, he is now directing operations at Taber.

The sugar beets in the general economy of the irrigated areas of Alberta are very much underlined. Beets have proven to be the most profitable irrigated land product—and the only crop that the provincial growers over $14 a ton for 1947 contracts—in addition to economic defenses from factories or feeding stations. The crop tops in fattening weeds, maintains the fertility of the soil and provides large quantities of by-products that have led to the establishment around the mills of a profitable feeding industry.

With irrigation to make up for the vagaries of Alberta's climate, Southern Alberta's climate seems to be most favorable for beet culture and seed today the industry, in all its phases, is worth probably $13,000,000 to the region annually.

Further Mechanization

The year will see further mechanization of the sugar industry in Canada — the major trend in the beet sugar industry. The machine is gradually replacing hand labor, a revolutionary step in beet farming. Crew blocking of beets for the first time is expected to be undertaken in Ontario this season. Labor-saving mechanization methods in connection with spring work were tested last year and will be used on a broad scale this year. A twelve acre field in Chatham Township, Ont., crew blocked last year, produced a beet crop valued at $180.50 an acre. What little hand work necessary was done by youths about 14 years of age. A 74 acre field in Dover Township, Kent, was not only cross-blocked in the spring but also harvested mechanically, returned $149.70 per acre. These results were highly satisfactory.

THE SPORT WORLD

There were more than 500 horses at Calgary when the clang of the bell started the 1948 racing season recently.

Bobby Locke, the South African golfing sensation, and Stan Leonard, the long-hitting Canadian, have been invited to Regina on Sunday, Aug 15 to play in an exhibition match.

Percy Clegg of Vancouver, 1947 city amateur golf champion, recently added to his trophy collection by winning another championship, the Langley trophy. He defeated Walt McAlpine of Vancouver 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final.

Baltimore—The Liverpool touring soccer team provided a first-rate exhibition for United States fans recently by trouncing a select Baltimore team 9-2. It was 5-1 at halftime. The British team out-dribbled and outran Baltimore's highly touted spectators with their precise passing attack.

Los Angeles — Gerry Cole of St. Hyacinthe, Que., captured the marathon run of 26 miles, 385 yards, staged as a side feature of the Coliseum relays here, winner of the recent Boston marathon, negotiated the distance in two hours, 43 minutes, 30 seconds, starting and ending the grind in the Coliseum and touring the surrounding streets on the course.

Glen Mac — An indoor hockey rink will be built for next season, it was decided by the Cloth Memorial Recreation Centre committee recently. The rink will be made available as public sport here in regard to voluntary labor, the rink should be ready in time for next season's play. The old rink has already been torn down to make way for the new building.

The favorite topic of conversation among British ice hockey enthusiasts is whether the game in England is as good as it was before the war. Conrad Slater, one of the Wembley Lions, who played for Canada's Tigers' 54-year-old player-coach, believes he knows what that something is. He points out that there is a gap in the training of youngsters. Most players, he says, learn the fundamentals—skating and stick-handling—as juniors, but positional play, the real brain that places them in the top class, has not been developed since the beginning of the war.

BARBARA ANN SCOTT GOT BACK HER CAR—Barbara Ann Scott—curls—The gift car from the city of Ottawa, presented in March, 1947, to the "girl next door" was returned to her recently. The car, which has remained in the showroom for her car back." The yellow convertible, now painted powder blue, was Miss Scott and lost by her two months later, has remained in the showroom promoted to Canada's blonde sweetheart in Ottawa, Ont., by Mayor Stanley of the firm from which it was purchased. The original license number of Lewis. Miss Scott is going on a vacation and will finally earn the car sale—"47-U-1"—has been replaced by a similar tribute of "48-U-1." Above is a right, despite the temporarily successful efforts of Avery Brundage of the picture of Barbara Ann and the car after it was presented to her the first U.S. Olympic committee, and the Canadian Olympic committee, to keep her time.

"PIONEER'S" ADDITIONAL PAYMENT ON OATS AND BARLEY

Some months ago we made an interim payment of 12 cents on oats and 10 cents on barley, and advised all customers that final payment would be made later.

Cheques are now in the hands of all agents for this final distribution. It will be appreciated if you will call and pick up your cheque.

This payment plus the initial interim payment makes a total of 13½c per bushel on oats, and 18½c per bushel on barley.

We are happy to announce that "Pioneer" customers are receiving more per bushel than the distribution made by any other Pool or Line elevator operators in Saskatchewan or Alberta.

IT PAYS TO PULL TO THE "PIONEER"

The Federal Government promised to make a payment to the farmers on oats and barley, delivered at ceiling prices between August 1st and October 31st, 1947, after the Elevator Companies had completed their deliveries on collusement. To date we have done nothing, therefore trust the Federal Government will implement its promise in the near future.

"MONEY MAKES THE MARE GO"

...BUT HORSE SENSE HELPS

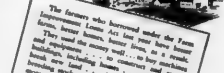
As a farmer, you're well aware of the truth of this old proverb . . . and you know it's not just how much money you have but how wisely you spend it. That's horse sense.

Last year, thousands of Canadian farmers showed they had plenty of it. Under The Farm Improvement Loans Act, they borrowed over $18,000,000 which — they used to make their farms better, more profitable farms.

Are you among those taking advantage of this opportunity to get ahead?

If you'd like to modernize your farm and home economically, you'll find, at the B of M, that farm improvement loans can't be bettered for low rates and freedom from other charges.

Ask at your local branch of the B of M for your copy of "Quiz for a Go-Ahead Farmer".



The farmer, who borrowed under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, put new life into his farm. He used the money well . . . on purchases and improvements . . . on buildings, machinery and equipment . . . on livestock and fencing . . . on seed and fertilizer . . . on breeding stock . . . and on many other worthwhile needs . . . and so made himself and his farm more productive. THIS YEAR, YOU CAN DO IT, TOO.

Queen Of Dauphin Winter Carnival

JOAN JOHANNESSON

Who... I entered the contest to almost win for the Winter Carnival at home that is in Dauphin, Man. I knew that the winner would get a flight to and from Toronto and five days of sightseeing there. But I didn't have any idea how hectic, or how wonderful a trip like that could be.

I still have to pinch myself a bit to make sure it has really happened. I've enjoyed every minute of it, even when so many new things rather overwhelmed me, but if it had not been for the good friends who planned my time, and looked after me through all the many different engagements I've filled, I know I would have been completely lost.

First of all I must say I like Toronto very much. This is the first time I've ever been there in fact it's the first time I've travelled very much outside Manitoba though the names of places to see and the variety of things to do would be very confusing if there wasn't someone to guide you around.

I landed at the airport outside Toronto on a Sunday night after the first plane flight I've ever made. Minutes after we reached a downtown hotel I went through what most people think is an ordeal: a press interview. The newspaper photographers took pictures and talked a lot about my visit and they were all very nice.

But that was nothing to the Monday morning episode when I met the Mayor of Toronto in his City Hall office, gave him greetings from Mayor Bullmore of Dauphin, signed the City of Toronto guest book which has hundreds of famous names in it, and the Mayor gave me an official welcome to Toronto. Mayor McCallum wasn't anything like I'd imagined. Instead of being stiff and formal he was warm and friendly. More newspaper reporters and photographers trooped in, asked a lot of questions about my trip and took more pictures.

I got to know a lot about photographers on that day. They seemed to pop up almost everywhere I went.

I saw a fashion show at one of Toronto's big department stores, and had a complete beauty treatment and conducted shopping tour at another. I was taken to dinner dances at Casino Casa Loma and toured the big castle and at hotels where some of the "name" bands play. Cars took me all around Toronto- and I couldn't help but be impressed with the size of the city, saw the Royal Ontario Museum, the University, the provincial Parliament Buildings, and ever had dinner at Toronto's newest and most ornate Chinese restaurant. One afternoon I bowled but though I rolled a fair game in leagues at home, my scores here just aren't worth recording. Maybe the hectic rush threw me off my game

One afternoon I went to Sunnybrook Hospital the largest and newest hospital for veterans in Canada. It is an enormous place and beautifully fitted out. Cpl Hollis who is in charge arranged for me to go all through Sunnybrook, which as still not completed, and I talked to Albert Carriere, a Winnipeg veteran whose home is now in Brandon, who is a patient there. I also met many of the other patients and couldn't help but be impressed by their cheerful ness.

The high spot of my trip though was when I made my first radio broadcast with Claire Wallace, on her program "They Tell Me". I'd never been in a radio broadcasting studio before but Miss Wallace helped me get over my nervousness about being on the air and Mayor Bullmore wired to tell me afterward that the program sounded very good at home. They took a photograph of me talking to the mike too!

It was a real thrill, doing so many things most people just dream about, but the biggest thrill of all was finding everyone so kind to me.

I'm going to have a lot of things to put into my scrapbook . . . but I don't think Toronto will mind too much if I say I'm glad to be home again. I guess it's a thrill being the centre of attention for a while but it's still nice to get back to the people you know and the town you live in.

Ed. Note— We had the personal pleasure of meeting Joan who we are proud to say, made a very fine impression on everybody she met. Claire Wallace and other radio folks say she has a good voice on the air. Dauphin, Man. should be happy that such a good representative of their locality came to the East and that 19-year-old young lady will long remember her various visits in Toronto.

Alaska Farming Season Short, Yields High

Experimental Plots Returned Maximum Yields Of 84 Bushels Of Wheat Per Acre—Potatoes Make Crop

EDMONTON — Any who wonder about the agricultural possibilities along the Alaska Highway will be interested in a report by Dr. Hazel Bryan, the agronomist at the Alaska Experimental Station, Fairbanks.

With proper preparation of soil and use of fertilizers, the experimental plots returned maximum yields of 60 bushels of wheat, 80 of barley and 100 bushels of oats per acre, he reports. Wheat matures in 90 to 110 days and oats in 80 to 85. Average length of the growing season is 80 days.

A barley that matures under all growing season conditions seems to be the most dependable grain crop for Alaska and may be considered basic for feeding livestock, says Dr. Bryan. He and the Fairbanks station obtained and developed many early varieties of barley which mature in Alaska in 65 to 70 days, even under unfavorable seasonal conditions.

Legumes and perennial vetch best adapted for hays in Alaska came from Siberia. The main sources of grains introduced into Alaska are eastern Siberia, Finland, Sweden and northern Canada, where climatic conditions are comparable, he said. A great contribution was made in 1944 by Henry A. Wallace, when he returned from a trip to China and Russia and brought samples of grain obtained from Yakutsk experimental station in Siberia said Dr. Bryan.

Of Alaska's total area of close to 600,000 square miles only a small percentage can be used for farming, generally estimated at 40,000 square miles. This means that only 11 per cent. can be developed into arable land, another six per cent. or about 35,000 square miles being suitable for grazing.

Mostly the prospective agricultural areas have not been surveyed, classified or evaluated. Most of the land suited to grain growing, essential to developing a livestock industry, lies along river valleys. Coastal regions are unsuitable.

Average precipitation at Fairbanks is 11 07 inches and mean July temperature 60 degrees.

Main staple crop in Alaska is not grain but potatoes and the cost of production about $200 an acre as from 100 to 700 lbs. of fertilizer is used. It is a hazardous crop dependent entirely on local demand. Other vegetable crops are successfully grown.

Pasteurized milk is the only safe milk.

Five Children Best Lawyers For Father

NEW YORK — A Brooklyn judge listened unmoved while defence lawyers pleaded for a suspended sentence for Richard K. Lubrano, 35.

Then the judge, Samuel Leibowitz, sentenced Lubrano to a year in prison for fraudulently collecting $17 000 in a summer-camp for children promotion. Lubrano asked to say goodbye to his children.

The five youngsters all under eight years of age trooped tearfully into the anteroom where their father waited. The judge watched wiped his own eyes, then called Lubrano and the children before him.

"These five children are your best lawyers," he said. "They can do for you what ornbury couldn't do."

He suspended the sentence.

RECIPES

RAISIN BREAD

5½ cups flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 tablespoon fat
1½ cups milk
1 cup chopped raisins
½ cup sugar (or less)

Sift the dry ingredients, reserving a little flour. Add milk, egg and melted fat beating mixture thoroughly. Sift flour over chopped raisins and stir into mixture. Place in greased bread pan and let stand for 20 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Chopped dates or figs may be substituted for raisins

SCRAMBLED EGGS

6 eggs
6 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt

The general rule is to use 1 tablespoon milk and ½ tablespoon butter for each egg. Beat eggs slightly to mix whites and yolks, add salt, pepper and milk. Put butter into hot frying pan. When melted, pour in the mixture. Cook slowly at a low temperature, until creamy consistency, lifting from bottom of pan with spatula, as it thickens. Do not stir, but leave in rather large masses. Serve on hot buttered toast.

Farming Two Acres Of Land Might Be Hobby To Some But It's A Living For Group Of British Columbia Farmers

A quiet evening at home is the suggestion you get when you look at this picture and that's just what it is for Ernest Neuman, farmer at Yarrow, B.C., settles down for the evening with a magazine. Mrs. Neuman and daughter of the stranger Canadian farmer lobby.

By PAUL ST PIERRE
Central Press Canadian

YARROW, B.C. — In a corner of the Lord Fraser Valley farmlands, hedged against the base of the eastern edge of mountains a group persons community has grown in the course of a patchwork of two-acre farms. This is Yarrow, settled and built by men of the stern Mennonite religion.

The Mennonite religious differences from their neighbors of English-Irish-Scotch-Dutch nationality are fading today. The sport of isolation which dominated the Mennonites in their travels from Holland to Russia and back to the continent is dwindling fast.

The Mennonites at this section of British Columbia are undergoing a rapid assimilation into the Canadian way of life but among the trade-marks of their race which remains is the ability to intensively cultivate the land. When they settled Yarrow in 1928 it was a flat plain of willows. A few years before it had been the bottom of a shallow swamp lake.

The board of trade members of nearby Chilliwack advised the provincial government not to allow the Mennonites to move on the bottom land. It was a support them, said the businessmen. But so far it has. With exercise of the thrift for which they are famous the Mennonites are expanding themselves and doing it comfortably.

The community of Yarrow a part of Chilliwack municipality, has eleven hours half a dozen neat, new stores and a modern consolidated school. Its population is growing toward 1000.

The town has been developed partly by thrift, partly by use of the co-operative system in marketing and supply and partly by the boom in the farm prices which has benefitted all the Fraser Valley farmers.

Typical Farmyard

It would be wrong to say the whole community is split into two-acre plots. Many of these farmers have a goodly large slices of lands along the side of the valley on which they have fine grains, hops and general vegetables. But many are still working farms which don't look like much more than a back yard. Let's take a look at a typical two-acre farm.

Ernest Neuman is 30 years old, married and as he says himself "an average sort of guy." His two-acre farm is just about half a mile from Yarrow's main street. On it he has about one acre of raspberry bushes which by page from 1947 prices, will bring him more than $1,000 income this summer.

The other half of his land was in chicken pens but now it is filled with the chickens were gone. He had sold them all for the winter and, with no farm work left to do in the rainy season, was spending his days in laboring work for construction crews of the area. The brings to mind the question: What does the income bring him?

"All Paid For"

Ernest has a $4 by 26 foot frame house, set back about 25 feet from the road. The 26 foot square is trim with flower beds patched in it and a couple of garden chairs. It is painted with its painted white siding and red roof, looks prosperous, as though it could be dropped into the suburban districts of most Canadian cities without being noticed.

It has a dining-room with hardwood veneer light chairs and table board. The living-room has a radio, a black woolly rug, a three piece chesterfield suite in dark maroon shade. There are two bedrooms on the ground floor on modern, matching furnishings and a bathroom with running water and toilet facilities that drain into a septic tank under the back yard. There are two good spacious upstairs, still unfinished. The house is lighted by electricity, heated by an enamelled oil range in the kitchen and an oil heater in the front room.

"All paid for", says Ernest proudly. He started building his home seven years ago, bought materials when he could afford them and did most of the work himself as he found the time. The farmland also is paid for. Today the Neumans are in debt on one item only—their 1941 car, for which they pay in monthly instalments.

There are four members in the family. Ernest's wife, Erna, is 27; then we have Ernest Junior, in arms, and daughter, Erna Junior is four. So far their home is big enough as a.

The first thing you notice on entering the Neuman home is its cleanliness. You feel you have arrived on the day after a spring cleaning. The second thing is the shyness of the young wife. Pretty, blond Erna, lets her husband do the talking, as do most Mennonite wives. They answer your questions, show you their needlework and beside about their kitchens making tea, or looking after the children. They do not, as a rule, intrude on the conversation of the men.

There are no cards in the house, no intoxicating drinks and no cigarettes, although there are ash trays in the living-room for guests who do use tobacco. The conversation is sometimes in German, sometimes in English.

An ordinary day for the Neumans begins at 6 30 a.m. when Ernest gets up and starts the fire for breakfast. At 7:30 the family have their morning meal after which Ernest leaves for his job. Then Erna must pack Ernest Junior off to school.

Junior attends a public school half a mile away and generally he rides there proudly on a shiny red bicycle. "He talks English better than he does German now", says his father. "About the only time he automatically talks in German is when his grandparents come to visit. He knows they don't speak English very well." Junior has dinner at the school. Erna and her daughter are home alone until the evening meal at 6 30—main meal of the day.

Evenings At Home

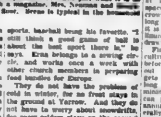
Their evenings are usually spent at home and sometimes visiting neighbors and friends. Very rarely do they attend a movie, a thing still frowned upon by elders of the church except for religious educational films shown in the church basement.

Ernest's main recreation is team sports, baseball being his favorite. "I still think a good game of ball is about the best sport there is," he says. Erna belongs to a sewing circle, and works once a week with other Mennonites in preparing food bundles for Europe.

They do not have the problem of cold in winter, for an frost stays in the ground at Yarrow. And they do not have to worry about snowdrifts for more inches stays on the ground for 24 hours.

Summer in the busy season. There's the raspberry crop, the canning, and a general tidying of the precious raspberry bushes. A chicken few days at harvesting time when the crop must be rushed to the cannery.

But it looks like a comfortable living.



WINTER CAMPAIGNERS VD SOCIAL AS WELL AS MORAL PROBLEM

Only by means of a social approach can the illicit contacts which cause venereal disease be prevented, it is stated by Dr. Gordon Bates in an article "Venereal Disease—A Social, Moral and Medical Problem" in the current issue of Health, official magazine of the Health League of Canada.

The writer is also the General Director of the Health League and head of the VD clinic at the Toronto General Hospital, says that clinics are still crowded despite the fact that means of VD control and the provision of treatment are known. He quotes a commonly statement, his income tax forms are made out and his records kept up to date.

The system also has a statement for those small firms which do credit business. They mail out monthly statements and post accounts are twice each week.

Mr. Olyan also conducts an aptitude test service. He conducts the tests and has a consultation service in addition.

He has designed a simple record book for the farmer to use in compiling income tax returns and his next venture will be forecasting business trends—he hopes shortly to supply customers with a monthly booklet with current forecasts.

GARDEN NOTES #4

Spend For Tenderness

Real secret of tender vegetables is quick, unchecked growth. To get this means planting at the proper time not too early with tender things that frost or cold weather may check and they must be harvested when just right. Old gardeners gauge growing quickly with plenty of cultivation, fertilizer, and water when necessary and if possible. They also spread evenings out over at least several weeks so that young stuff is coming along continuously. Another trick they use is to plant several different types—as a hedge against poor a medium and a late. In the seed catalogue usually will be listed the number of days to maturity. Those we can purchase will be ready to be ready for table in fifty days, some in sixty and some in seventy. By using some of all three there will be a succession of good crops instead of a regular feast followed by a famine. Most experts recommend continuous making sowings of carrots, beets, lettuce, turnips and spinach from the time the ground is first ready so to mid-July. Of course, to get top quality there must be no time lost between picking and cooking.

Big Ideas For Little Work

A really successful gardening can be made with a big bed of annuals and not surprisingly little cost. Where space is available one should not forget about these things. Planted in long borders along roadways or paths it is possible to get results of the pre-Humidity cultivation with a handful—or a packet—of seed and cultivator.

First the bed should be dug or cultivated deeply, at least inches before the annuals are sown or set out. Then rake it to the levels and sprin kle the soil in good shape. For a bed 4 feet wide by 10 feet long allow a minimum requirement. Into this one can sow a dozen different kinds of annuals, with the smaller things gen-erally at the front, the larger things at the bottom. For tiny things like pansies, phlox, and portulaca shred fine inches between and for the biggest things, zinnias, cosmos, tall ones marigolds, two and a half to three feet in height, allow a foot. There's one has only a small piece of ground available, every square inch of which is served in order to get more bloom.

The foundation of any garden is good seed. It is a small item so far as the total cost is concerned. Its rare and preparation goes for naught if the seed is poor. Of first importance is seed suitable for Canadian conditions. Many seedsmen grow vegetables that will give excellent results in the United States but which will not do well in Canada, and the above also applies to even more common flowers.

Scientist Aids Men In Business

EDMONTON.—J. M. Olyan started in business less than two years ago with a typewriter, a filing cabinet and an idea. He now has an office staff of 11, a series of routine and every machine from computers down to a printing outfit.

When a graduate from the University of Alberta with honors in science, he was graduated also a master of a life work and took some aptitude tests. These indicated he should get into accountancy—and that was the beginning of his idea.

He launched his "Send Me Accounting" system—a boon to the small business man and professional man.

He suggests that although there has been some talk of attacking the problem as a social problem, little has really been done about it. He suggests further that each survey should be a means adopted for giving public information in as many cities in Canada as possible. Such information should be used to discover any trends or factors involved in the increase of venereal disease in a community.

He says, however, that when all social factors have been studied there still remains the problem of conduct. Morality must be taught, not as a means of avoiding venereal disease but because only through moral conduct can one enjoy a normal life.

He suggests the health officer is proper to ignore the fact that there is a phrase in the problem other than those mentioned in the report. "In doing the issue on the plea that this phase of the question is somebody else's business is somebody's business for an inquiry."

Dr. Bates says it is an axiom in public health that to prevent the spread of infection it is necessary to prevent the contact of infected with non-infected persons. "And it is not primarily the business of the preacher or to prevent the spread of venereal diseases, but it is the business of the health officer and the physician."

The writer says those who desire to control venereal disease must plan to attack by one means or another all of the problems which result in the spread of these sinister maladies.

Missouri gets its name from the Indian name meaning "muddy".

Position Of Canadian Sheepmen Strengthened By World Shortage

TORONTO.—In spite of the fact that Canadian sheep flocks have been seriously reduced in recent years, the position of the best Canadian sheepman has been strengthened by the "new record number of sheep at present on the farms and ranches of this country."

In a report to the annual meeting of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Ltd., Chris Jensen, president of the organization said:

"Canadian sheepmen note, too, that there is a sharp reduction in sheep flocks throughout the world Further they look ahead to the possibilities that face them with less than 20 per cent of Canada's wool requirements produced at home. The whole present situation is a challenge to farmers and ranchers all across Canada to take advantage of what appears to be a real business opportunity."

One of the main reasons for the temporary decrease in the number of sheep in Canada was the increase in predatory animals and their raids on domestic flocks, the president explained.

Press reports and interviews across Canada, it is known, that consumers have had to contend with wolves, coyotes, bears, cougars and dogs. Some of the provinces are taking definite action to get rid of the damage done by these predatory animals, not only to sheep and lambs, but to poultry and young cattle as well.

Other reasons for lowered wool production in this country were probably also the same as those prevailing in the United States, where the falling off in production and sheep numbers appears to be due to many factors similar to that of Canada, Mr. Jensen went on to say.

Although wool prices in wool centres of London and New Zealand had been definitely lower than the present market established in February, months of 1947.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Mr. Rohan Sees The Light

By MYRON A. BRENSTOCK

ROD COOPER turned his empty right sleeve back into his pocket, and glanced apprehensively at the boss' number-one salesman. Twelve-new-four, the letter in an arrow in his application had said. This was it, the imposing residence at Jumpin Rohan, the almost legendary head of Inter-American Steel, one of the greatest steel mills in the country.

He squared his shoulders, crept an nearly strand of hair back into place, and pressed the bell. His tran-sensitive face was keen, a worried look in his dark eyes. The door opened, and a maid looked at you questioningly.

"Mr. Rohan is Cooper," he said "Mr R-han is expecting me."

Will you come in, please?" she re-plied, staring at his empty sleeve.

He flushed angrily, and stepped in-side.

"You may wait here, sir," she said. "I'll see if Mr. Rohan is home." She disappeared through a door at the opposite end of the hall. "Go right in, sir," she said quietly, when she returned. "Mr Rohan will see you now."

Rod stepped through the carved oak door, into a large, well-appointed study. The walls were panelled in dark oak with deep open rows of book shelves running half way to the high ceiling. A huge mahogany Persian rug muffled his steps. The partially drawn blinds reduced the study to semi-darkness.

"Step right over here, Mr. Cooper," came a voice from the depths of the room in a chair in the corner. "Sit down, and we'll talk business."

As Rod approached the deep leather chair, it swung around, revealing a large, handsome dog was sitr' hot out in front of him, eyeing him suspiciously. He started to rise, then sank into the chair.

"Don't mind Cyrus," Rohan said. "His suspicion of everybody. We're very attached to each other. He laughed good naturedly. "He never leaves my side for a minute. Why, he even goes to the office with me." He paused a moment.

"I guess you think it's strange to call you here for this interview, Mr. Cooper. But it's not as you think, I'm—he continued. "I'm recovering from a rather severe illness, and will be able to get back to the offices at the plant for another few days. You see," he added with a grim smile, "I'm a sick man."

Rod squirmed in his seat, but he was a spectacle, a wry man with a full, ruddy face, and thin grey hair. His naked blue eyes darted past Rod, and fastened on the desk.

"Tell me son, how was it were there?" he said. "I see from your letter of application you were in the Pacific. Pretty rough, I suppose?"

Rod laughed, a harsh, guttural sound to the quiet room. "Yes, Mr. Rohan, it was pretty rough. Nothing I would recommend for the kiddies."

"Oh yes, sorry. Rod Cooper accepted, after a moment, continued. "Hope you don't mind if I call you Rod?" He raised his eyebrows questioningly.

"No, sir. That's quite all right."

"Well, then, suppose we get down to business," the old man continued.

"I see you worked for the Grey Company for four years. Why didn't you go back to your old job?"

"They went out of business, sir. That lets me out, I'm afraid."

"How were you doing there, son?" Rohan asked, his eyes shifting back to Rod, and then down to the desk. "What position did you hold?"

"Well, sir, I started as a junior accountant," Rod answered, "and rose to assistant to the head of the department by the time I entered the service."

"Hmmm," murmured the old man. "that's travelling quite a distance in three—no, four years, wasn't it? Of course," he continued rapidly, "I don't think you'll advance as quickly in our organization. We're rather large, you know. But I think you know we don't hesitate to reward good work." He paused, and toyed with the letter on his desk.

"There's one thing that makes me hesitate, Rod," he continued, some-what hesitantly. "You say in your letter of application that you lost an arm in the service. Were you right or left handed, son?"

Rod stopped through the carved oak door, into a large, well-appointed study. The walls were panelled in dark oak with deep open rows of book shelves running half way to the high ceiling. A huge mahogany Persian rug muffled his steps. The partially drawn blinds reduced the study to semi-darkness.

"Well, then, suppose we get down to business," the old man continued.

"I was right handed, Mr. Rohan," he said in resignation. "I lost my right arm, so I suppose I'm left handed." He paused, then added pleading. "All I need is a chance to show that I am not perfect, but that I can keep accounts fairly tightly. Writing left handed is a bit awkward, but I'm getting the old man. Rohan's face remained impassive. He fumbled with the letter, and rubbed his hand over his chin.

The man sat on the rest, Rod thought. They won't even look at you for a job. Including me. Why, security at the present way th say it. He laughed bitterly to himself.

The old man looked up suddenly "Mr. Cooper," he stated, "suppose you report for work on Monday."

Rod leaned forward, his eyes wide, as the words crashed home to him. "You mean I'm . . . I'm hired?" His voice rated eagerly "I would love how to thank you."

"You don't have to thank me, son," the industrialist laughed. "Report you'll do well at the job." He smiled. "Remember me," he reminded coyly, "at the time I asked for a

RADVILLE

SASKATCHEWAN

A Beauty Spot Of The South Country

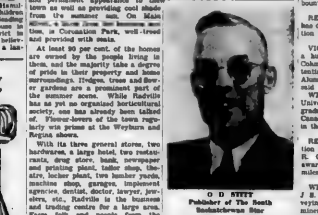
THE town of Radville, situated 84 miles south and east of Regina, is often referred to as "a friendly little town in the south country". It has nice wide streets and avenues, all graveled and maintained regularly; even the back lanes are graveled as well. Shade trees, most of them set out some 15 years ago, line all streets and avenues in the residential section, giving a home-like



O D NYTY
Publisher of The South Saskatchewan Star

Radville's newspaper, prominently known as The South Saskatchewan Star, was established in 1911, as The Radville News by the Comstock Brothers, Jack and Tom. After a period of years later it was taken over by Mr. Newberry who continued as owner and publisher until 1925. In that year W. H. Schierbrandt bought the business from Mr. Beasley, changed the building, improved the plant and changed the name of the paper to The South Saskatchewan Star. In 1928 Mr. Schierbrandt and the present owner, O. D. Scitt who has continued as publisher since that time. The Star is looked upon as the home paper for a large area in southern Saskatchewan serving the districts of Townsend, Kisbey, Forward, Hardy, Cryden, Bromhead, Minton, Lake Alma, extending from Highway 13 south to the international boundary.

ted hospital can be completed. Good progress has been made on the new building since last summer, and it is hoped to have the hospital opened within the next few months.

Town officials have been considering the installation of a water and sewer system, and a survey was made and plans drawn by government engineers for this purpose. However, the cost of the project was such a satisfactory water supply brought only negative results. However, any further consideration of the project

Reports Nail Production Up

OTTAWA—Production of nails has gone up "very rapidly", although they did not in short supply, Reconstruction Minister Howe said in the Commons.

Output now is 50 per cent. higher than at the end of the war. Much of the shortage resulted from distribution problems.

Mr Howe also reported that bolts and pipe for house building figure are in good supply

He was answering questions during study of construction estimates, when which will be continued for another year.

He said Canada's steel production totals 15,000,000 tons a year, all of which is allocated to industry. There was a "net" scrap balance in Canada, although this was not looking back production.

Canada had not been successful in efforts to obtain scrap from war-devastated areas in Europe, although Britain was obtaining some from Germany. This type of scrap was difficult to recover.

I. O. D. E. MEMBERS MEET

The Killam IODE ladies were entertained at the home of Mrs. M. Gibb for the June meeting. Mrs. A. E. Fee presided. The meeting opened in the usual manner with the reciting of the flag by the Standard Bearer, Mrs. R. Smith. Thirteen members and two visitors were in attendance.

Mrs. Baker gave her report on the Library. More new books are being purchased. Mrs. Hole gave a report on the Provincial Library School she attended. She is conducting a class in book mending.

Mrs. Chevrier gave a paper on "Food Agriculture Organization" and stressed the grave necessity of producing more food if the population of the world is to be properly fed.

Mrs. G. Barnett read a paper on Empire Study, by the first Provincial President, Mrs. R.C. Marshall, who urged women to "come out and take an interest in the affairs of provincial life, both municipal and federal as well, politically. Not in a party sense but in a sense of individual responsibility.

Lunch was served by Mesdames Edwards and Thornton Sr. assisted by the hostess.

FARMER'S DAY HELD AT LOUGHEED

As was to be expected the annual Farmer's Day at Lougheed sponsored by the Legion, was the usual hang-up affair. Things were started off with a grand parade at 1 p.m. under the able direction of Mr. A. McCoy. This, of course proved to be one of the main high-lights of the day, with entries of every kind. The winners of awards were:

School Entry—Dunham's Band.
Decorated Car — 1st Nora and Sargeath, 2nd Olsen; 3rd Shx.
Fusion — 1st Miss Waite; 2nd T Sinclair.
Decorated Cars — 1st Holman Bad and White Store; 2nd Logan; 3rd Red Cross.
Comedy Vehicles — 1st Shx and Burton; 2nd Herb Lamoreux; 3rd F. Hickman.
Comedians — 1 Stubbs and Son; 2nd Three, Tramps.
Fusion — 1st Gen. Riddoch; 2nd Frost and Whitehead; 3rd Farmer's Pals.
Best Dressed — 1st Uncle Sam, John Bull and Miss Canada; 2nd Mrs. F. Rogers and Mrs. McDonnell.
The much sought after with all hoss intact, caused no end of fun with everything being used during the game but the kitchen sink. F and his boxing gloves took a part in the merriment also.

The baseball tournament was won by Lougheed.

All in all it was a grand affair for everyone, especially those who remained for the grand dance at night.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

Freedom of the press, says President Truman, is one of the three main pillars on which future world peace depends.

A spirited debate took place in the United Nations Sub-Commission while drafting the agenda for a world conference on freedom of information and the press. It became so heated that the Russian delegate proposed that the purpose of the press was to tell the truth.

* * * *

A press which serves either interests than those of the read public has already lost its freedom If that freedom is to be regained two things are necessary

* * * *

First: A new acceptance of responsibility for without responsibility there is no such thing as freedom Newspapers can and must be protected by the United Nations Declaration of Rights but the ultimate responsibility will rest on the shoulders of the newspapers themselves.

* * * *

Second: Within the framework of this wider purpose the individual newspaper proprietor, editor and journalist will find for themselves a new professional code For if the press is to be used in the truth the men and women who run them and write them must have a clear vision born of moral courage and high personal standards. The means, quality now to freedom within the press itself, which is of as much interest and prejudice which distort and cloud the facts truly those who are morally free can single out the truth about contemporary events and the great ideological struggle which overshadows them.

* * * *

Newspaper men and women who demonstrate through their own conduct the value of responsible democracy they demand in their columns, can create a press that is free to play its proper part in the battle for a free world

NEW FARM CROP USES

The Prairie Regional Laboratory of the National Research Council was officially opened at Saskatoon on June 8th. Ten years ago Cecil Lamont, representing the Line Elevator Companies visited all the principal research laboratories of the United States to determine the feasibility of research into finding new edible and industrial uses for Canada's recurring wheat surplus At the initial meeting of the nation al Chemurgic Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce held in Toronto in November, 1938, the representatives of the Line Elevator Companies publicly put forward the first proposal for the establishment of a western laboratory of the National Research Council dedicated to finding new edible and industrial uses for grains and farm wastes This was followed with representations to the Dominion Government for the establishment of the laboratories coupled with an educational campaign which found wide support in the weekly newspapers of the western provinces. Culminating in these efforts was the erection of the $1,000,000 Prairie Regional Laboratory located on the University grounds at Saskatoon dedicated "to increasing knowledge of methods and processes for the utilization of farm surpluses and wastes in Western Canada."

Immediate research will be devoted to wheat, oats, barley, flax, rapeseed, sunflower seeds, sugar beets and straw, in order to determine what additional uses can be made of these farm products in production in the western provinces annually, eight million tons are wasted. Experiments will be made in creating building materials, insulating materials and paper from the waste straw. Research into developing new fats, oils and paints from oil bearing seeds will be carried on, and wheat will be subjected to experiments in the developing of fuel oils and antifreeze compounds

Members of the National Research Council, scientists from all all parts of Canada, representatives of the Line Elevator Companies and many others interested in the development of agriculture, attended the official opening ceremonies On this occasion the University of Saskatchewan held a special convocation when the degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Dr K. W Neatby former director of the Line Elevators Farm Service and now director of Science Service at Ottawa. Dr J F Booth, associate director Market

More Living Space

MANY OF THE INTERNATIONAL controversies of the past have been associated with the never-ending quest for more living space for the people in the congested countries of Europe and Asia. As long as conquest was viewed as the only means of obtaining such space, there was little hope that basic, dynamic and political unrest would flourish. The problem of finding new lands which are suitable for settling the excess population from the older countries is one which has been receiving attention for many years. There are still large areas in many parts of the world which are very sparsely populated because of poor climatic conditions, poor accessibility, lack of fertile soil or other adverse features, and it is unlikely that it would ever be considered desirable to move large sections of population to them.

Plan To Open Vast New Area

Recently the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, known as UNESCO, called a conference of representatives of seven American and three European nations, as well as observers from a number of organizations, to a conference in Peru, to discuss a plan to turn the vast natural resources of the Amazon River basin to the use of mankind. The area under consideration is made up of some 2,700,000 square miles of land which is at present almost totally unexhausted, and which is readily accessible to the Atlantic Ocean by way of the mighty Amazon River, in which sea-going ships may navigate for 2,500 miles, the entire length of the great river.

Called A Long Range Project

Delegates to the meeting came from six countries bordering on the Amazon, including Bolivia, Brazil, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela. The United States was also represented, as was France, Great Britain and the Netherlands, as owners of the Guianas, which border on the Amazon. There were observers from such bodies as the Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Labor Organization and the World Health Organization. While it will be a long-range project, and considerable time will be required to assemble the necessary information concerning the territory, it is envisioned as "a great new area of world development in the jungle land now inhabited by only a few Indians." In undertaking the project the United Nations may be helping to find a solution to one of the most serious problems of these times.

His Job Is Helping Farmers Solve Their Soil Problems

By T. R. MELVILLE-NESS
Central Press Canadian

REGINA — Thos. L. B. Thompson, the man who played a major part in the launching of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration, is now director of the big organization. Promotion from the ranks of PFRA's arena scene greeted the appointment with unqualified approval.

Mr. Thomson called the first meeting of P.F.R.A. in 1935, following the passing of a Dominion act setting up the body which was charged with the responsibility of saving a lot of prairie farm land threatened with extinction. About that time, he has been a member of the advisory council, and just as soon as the name of P.F.R.A. as his busy life as superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Swift Current allowed him to be. There have been many occasions, say those close to him, when he has not slept much over what would normally be sleeping time to make time for PFRA business.

More Scope

L. B. Thomson's main concern has always been soil conservation, and under his direction at Swift Current a lot of valuable work has been done along that line. Now, as director of P.F.R.A. he will have much wider scope, and it is not any secret that this energetic man with the big pipe and the ready grin plans to make things hum in Canada's big, great conservation and irrigation set-up.

Thomson was the man who, in the bleakest years of the big drouth that laid waste to millions of acres of crop, set out with his farm staff to hunt the withering weeds that blanketed every green thing in the fields, and found that plants there were not under foot of snarling dust.

Up has marched in the grim battle against drouth and soil erosion in the dry districts, members of "L. B's" staff say he did a "terrific job."

Of this, Thomson himself has little to say, except that his proudest day was when the farmers, the men he tried to help, stepped referring to the experimental farm staff as "whiteheaded farmers" — there's one thing I'm proud of," he says, "it's the way we won the confidence of the farmers. I discovered that we could work with them, and find the answers to their problems."

Proof of this is seen in the high regard in which L. B. Thomson is held by farmers and strategists all over the west. Having spent 22 of his 43 years in the study of soil conservation problems, he is regarded as an authority on the subject, and his widely diversified experience with soil and water conservation will stand him in good stead as director of P.F.R.A.

L. B. Thomson is a native of New Zealand, and left his birthplace, Blenheim, in 1909 to come to Canada. His first job was with Luther B. Sharp, at Bashaw, Alta., where he also shoved sheep. He admits he was not an accomplished shover, but manage ed 80 to 100 a day. After further farming and ranching experience, he enrolled at the Olds school of agriculture in the fall of 1921.

He was a member of the Olds course and the start of a degree course at the University of Alberta the following fall, he worked for the Crowfoot farming Co., planting with a steam outfit, and, on occasion, with a 16-horse team.

After graduation in 1925 he was appointed officer-in-charge of boys' and girls' work for the provincial government. The following year he joined the staff of the dominion field husbandry department, and did a job with which he will be completely familiar. Much of the early work of P.F.R.A. was carried out on the basis of the advice of such men as L. B. Thomson, and he has been a member of the advisory council ever since its inception in 1935.

Mr. Thompson claims, with a good deal of assurance, that working hand-in-hand with the farmers, and with a common good with the farmer in the dry districts created a new understanding between the scientist and the man on the land. Such an understanding, my western agriculturists, may well contribute in a big way toward success in "L. B's" new role.

Motorcade Postponed To September

REGINA — The Brandon-to-Nelson motorcade advocating a southern route for the proposed Trans-Canada highway has been postponed until September.

The second postponement of the caravanne was necessitated by flood conditions in British Columbia.

New dates for the Nelson convention are Sept. 3 and 4.

Sea On Jobs In B.C. To End

VANCOUVER — Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, labor minister, said wartime restrictions barring Japanese from "protected areas" west of the Cascades will end March 31, 1949.

He believed, however, the movement back to British Columbia would be small Medical psychology is less than a century old.

INCREASE SEEN IN WATERFOWL

REGINA — A "moderate increase" in the number of nesting waterfowl in Canada this spring as compared with 1947 has been found in most of the provinces, it was revealed at a meeting of organizations interested in migratory bird conditions held in the legislative building.

Reports stressed, however, that unexpected conditions in the fall might change which may occur more than the season, might easily and vastly influence these apparent gains.

Water levels are abnormally high in all provinces and in many areas flood conditions are unfavorable for waterfowl production.

To date aerial waterfowl surveys on which reports were based at the meeting have covered over 19,000 miles in the three prairie provinces. Ground surveys have covered nearly 5,000 miles. Many of the larger marshes are being surveyed from canoes and boats. Air surveys are conducted at altitudes averaging 100 feet above the ground, which permits accurate counts of bodies of water seen and their duck population as a rule a quarter of a mile wide.

In Manitoba aerial surveys completed by May 30 covered 6,500 miles; in Saskatchewan, 7,015 miles; in Alberta, 3,506 miles. Ground coverage in Manitoba to date has covered nearly 1,000 miles; in Saskatchewan 2,128 miles, in Alberta, 1,250 miles of permanent survey transects.

SUMMERFALLOW EARLY

(By H.G.L. Strange)

The prairie crop is now nearly needed and is likely to be a remarkable growth But the same elements that produce a fine growth of grain and weeds produce a fine growth with weeds, and weeds use up the same large reserves of moisture for their growth as the grain plants. The use of 2-4-D and other chemicals will kill many weeds but I feel myself a certain amount of heavy weeds on summerfallow will still be practised for long to come. The quicker weeds are killed by cultivation, the more moisture is preserved, and that is the prime purpose in most areas for summerfallowing.

There is another reason for early summerfallowing, which is to preserve in the soil the good rains which usually fall during June early.

Advance Made In Tuberculosis Fight

OTTAWA — A "remarkable" advance in the fight against tuberculosis in Canada was reported by Dr. G. J. Wherrett, executive secretary of the Canadian Tuberculosis association.

In a report prepared for presentation to the 43th annual meeting of the association, Dr. Wherrett said "the eradication of tuberculosis can, when measured in decades is most remarkable."

Causing a death rate of 300 per 100,000 in 1900, tuberculosis was responsible for only 43.2 deaths per 100,000 in 1946. The rate varied in the provinces from 17.5 in Saskatchewan to 70.4 in Quebec

For Canadian Indians, the tuberculosis death rate was "almost fantastic". In 1927 it was 693.1 per 100,000. It had dropped somewhat in 1946, when it was 564.4 for the same number of persons

FARMER MAKES OWN RAIN, COVERS 120 ACRES AT ONCE

ELSA, Yuk.—Making rain by seeding clouds with dry ice doesn't interest W. A. Harding, owner of the unique Evergreen Farms.

For the past 11 years he's been making two and a half inches of rainfall a day.

Harding does his rainmaking on his 1,600-acre farm, where he grows a variety of cash market grasses for dehydration and manufacture into chicken and horse feed and vitamin pills for humans.

His is the only farm in the world Harding believes, that operates full-blast 24-hours a day, seven days a week, year after year.

Continual sprinkling, harvesting and dehydration is going on at the T-shaped farm in the Lower Rio Blanco Valley.

Every 24 hours the sprinkling system lays down two and a half inches of rain on a 120-acre block. The next day another 120 acres are showered.

By providing plenty of rain, Harding is able to cut his alfalfa 10 times a year, his oat and other small grains three or four times

His oats are cut when eight inches tall, alfalfa at 16 inches. The harvesters barely clear the soil as they snip off the plants.

We cut while the plants are tender and have their greatest protein content," explained Harding, one of the real estate men who "opened up" the Lower Rio Grande Valley after World War I.

The alfalfa and oats are conveyed into trucks and hauled to the dehydrator, where they are fed into a telescopic drum furnace 24 feet in diameter.

Temperature of 1,700 degrees Fahrenheit bake out the moisture. Then a hammer mill, grinding at 3,600 revolutions per minute, chops the stalks before they're sucked through a fine screen.

The finished product is a pastel green flour, as fine as a housewife's baking flour. The entire dehydration and grinding process takes less than three minutes.

Most of the meals of green flour are shipped to Kansas City, where they are mixed either with poultry feed or processed into vitamin pills for human consumption.

"The best thing about this farm is that we contract for our production a year in advance," explained Harding, who last year turned out 3,000 tons of dehydrated cereal grasses and alfalfa.

"Our soil is getting richer, too, because of the alfalfa although we fertilize the oats and maize grasses."

The farm has its own power supply. Gas well provide power for the water pumps in the sprinkling system and for heat for the dehydration plant.

LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

HUMAN MILK BEST FOR BABIES

As a food, human milk still remains the best type of milk for young infants, according to a survey by a subcommittee of the Committee on Maternal and Child Feeding of the National Research Council published in The Journal of the American Medical Association. C. Anderson Aldrich, M.D., Rochester, Minn., is author of the published report.

"Breast milk is in an appreciable extent a prophylactic food, it prevents or decreases the severity of many gastrointestinal disturbances," Dr. Aldrich writes, adding that it is an absolute preventive against constipation because it cannot solidify in the intestinal tract. This preventive role of breast milk is much more noticeable when it operates among children in the less favored economic classes, among whom adequate health measures and drugs are not always available," he continues. In many of these gastrointestinal disturbances no other food seems adequate or assimilable. For this reason he suggests that breast-milk stations be made available in large city areas.

One of the chief objections to breast-feeding, Dr. Aldrich declares, is that it sometimes causes infections of the breast. With the advent of chemotherapeutic agents such as sulfa and penicillin, this danger has somewhat lessened. Another objection is that breast milk may be too small in quantity to nourish the baby adequately. "When this is true, even after a conscientious attempt has been made, complemental feedings should be given after the breast feeding," the writer states. "However, it is believed that the diagnosis of insufficient breast milk is made too often on scanty evidence."

It has been stated that in this country and Great Britain the practice of breast-feeding has declined steadily since the beginning of the century.

OUTDOORS TOO ROOMY FOR HORSE HUNTER

The other day a man, frantic to locate a place to live, asked a saltmaker if he knew where he could find a house.

The naturalist replied: "House? Boy, you're getting soft. Why don't you live out in the open air, let old Mother Nature cover you with a blanket of stars, and have the blue firmament above as a roof?"

"Frankly," said the man, "I had in mind something a bit smaller."

Lightened age forced feeding to unnecessary and is now known which the mother need not be expected to nurse. This may be true in the case of babies whose care is under the direction of skilled physicians, but it probably is not true for the great number of babies reared under conditions which competent medical advice is inadequate or unavailable."

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

CAPTIVES

By JANE DALE

I saw a cloud caught in the branches of a pine tree;
A fresh wind from the west hurried on to set it free.

A happy boy broke the dam and the stream raced with him.

I saw a crocus caught against the earth's warm breast;
I left it there to grow in beauty with the rest.

I saw a baby caught within a happy dream today;
I let it slumber and hoped that dream would stay.

I felt my heart caught by the ageless love of spring;
And good work refrain—I did marvel and sing.

Freda Smith spent the week end with relatives here.

Doris Reed spent the week end at her home at Camrose

Mr. and Mrs. Vandervoort and children spent the week end at the cabin at Sylvan Lake.

The local baseball fans enjoyed seeing the home town team get the Alliance boys quite a beating last Thursday. The Killam softball team also played Hardisty and lost by a score of 2 to 1. Tough luck.

Miss Jessie Van Hone is renewing acquaintances around town.

It has been suggested by a few of our citizens that this summer be used as a means of calling to special attention the condition of the boulevards and hedges in town. What about it? Is the boulevard in front of your home overgrown with weeds and is the hedge falling gracefully over the whole width of the walk? Remember that you are the one who has the last say. Don't wait for someone else to clean up for you. Visitors in town this summer will leave with a good or bad impression of the looks of our town. It is up to you what that impression is.

On Sunday night rain of super-heavy proportions fell and the basement of the Rebekah and Odd Fellows Lodges attended a Memorial Service in Alliance. Members of the Lodges of Alliance, Oakbank and Killam were in attendance.

Mrs. Hawkes and Norma of Bellshill have been spend the past week visiting and renewing acquaintances in the Killam district.

MR. J. R. HALLUM CHOSEN BY LIBERALS TO CONTEST ELECTION

Mr. James R. Hallum, a young and successful farmer of Sedgewick was chosen by the Liberal Convention held at Killam last week, as their candidate to contest the next Alberta election for the Constituency of Sedgewick.

Four names were proposed and balloting took place, the other three names were withdrawn, voluntarily in the favor of Mr. Hallum, making him the unanimous choice of the 60 delegate convention.

With Mr. Jack Galt acting as the Chairman and Mr. Shepard as the Recording Secretary, the convention was opened with the National Anthem. After the business of selecting a Credentials Committee and a Resolutions Committee, Mr. Gerald McShane of Hardisty was elected as Returning Officer.

Mr. J.W. Stambaugh of Bruce and President of the Alberta Liberal Assn., was present and addressed the meeting briefly.

After a five minute recess, the chairman called for nominations for candidates with the result that the following four names were proposed: J. R. Hallum, Sedgewick; L. J. Shepard, Alliance; J. Galt, Killam and J.L. Muirhead, Sedgewick. In the final vote Mr. Hallum led the field of four, each nominee speaking briefly.

Mr. Hallum, in his acceptance speech, pledged himself to study the needs of the constituency, and to at all times do his best to carry out the wishes of his constituents, should they see fit to elect him to the Alberta Legislature.

Liberal Leader Present

Mr. J. Harper Prowse, Provincial Liberal Leader, was introduced by President Stambaugh, as a man of high integrity and knowledge. Mr. Prowse spoke at length on the aims and objects of his party and informed the meeting that the platform for the Liberals would be made known in due time when the present government decided on a date for the election.

KILLAM STAMPEDE DRAWS LARGE CROWD

With fine weather prevailing during the entire day, a large and eager crowd of sport fans made Killam's Stampede Day a personal holiday.

With the varied attractions promised everyone found something to his individual liking, with plenty of facilities for food and drink.

An estimated crowd of 600 was in attendance, enjoying the horse races and machinery display. The picture there and there held during the evening drew full houses.

Baseball

In the baseball tournament the strong aggregation from Forestburg walked off with the purse by defeating Killam in the final game Killam had previously eliminated Lougheed and Wainwright and put Sedgewick out of the running.

The Vegreville Ranger ball team blew into town during the afternoon and challenged an all-star team from the four tourney contenders. The game was the last of the day and resulted in a win for the North ern Rangers by a score of 2 to 0.

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. H. —

The victory for the C. C. F. party in the Sask. election on Thursday of last week, calls to my mind a statement by the Prime Minister of Canada with regards to recent by-elections in which the CCF made a clean sweep. Said the Hon. Mr. King, 'The land which the CCF has gained in the recent by-elections reflects the inevitable dislike felt by persons, of all classes for high living costs and privations and restrictions of any kind.' On the face of it this explanation might prove fairly plausible. But will it stand up under close inspection? We have found that many other countries while have undergone much harder times than we have, with higher prices than we have ever known, during the years when Leftist groups and clinging closer to more moderate and conservative government and policy.

• • • •

The plain fact of the matter is that the government failed to properly analyse the most inevitable post-war inflation, with the result that today we are the entire time being attacked from all sides as the sole cause of our high prices.

• • • •

Free enterprise is not the sole cause of our high prices, although it does play its part. We had price control during the war, but we all realize that control of prices means only a postponement. I do not advocate the return of these controls for that reason but I do realize that there is something which can be done to at least halt the upward price trend. I believe that we can ask Labor to do a wage freeze and call a halt to their demands at that stage. This will we hail that ever present manipulation of costs and profits which is going on between labor and industry.

• • • •

So long as we keep on with our present blind blundering, we keep the political pot wide open along with an invitation for Socialism to enter So long as the powers that be allow and the true Canadian majority and fall all over themselves to oblige the wish of every minority, they make the path of socialism easier Canadians do not want Socialism at present. When they do they will make that fact known so plainly that ever Mr. King will have no doubt

• • • •

I never did like that little phrase 'I told you so' but the victory of Joe Lewis in his recent match gives me a deep of satisfaction because I was almost alone in my prediction some weeks ago that he would virtually 'knock the can off' from the dusky and powerful shoulder of one Mr. Walcott. Amid shout of 'we was robbed' I predicted that Joe (my Joe that is) would retire with a last fight knockout. I didn't win any money because I do not gamble, so my satisfaction must come by merely saying 'I told you so.'

Vindication Of Dieppe

WHILE THE INVASION OF DIEPPE, in which the Canadian army played a major part occurred in August, 1942, it has continued to be a subject of interest in this country, and there are many who have never fully satisfied as to whether the operation was worth the cost of the many lives which were lost in it. Recently, further light was thrown on the matter when the official story "The Canadian Army in the Second World War" was published by the Dominion Department of Defence. Two chapters of The Canadian Army, 1939-45" written by Col Charles Stacey, Director of the Historical Section of the General Staff, deal with the Dieppe operation. They give many facts which show that while the operation in itself was a failure inasmuch as the invasion was planned, which contributed materially to the success of the invasion of Europe on "D" Day.

• • • •

New Reasons For Failure

Not only was useful information gained, but the operation was of further value because, in view of their success in repelling it, the Germans believed that they could successfully beat back any invasion of the beaches. Farther following "D" Day demonstrated that the Germans had been misled by the attack at Dieppe into believing that the tactics they employed there would ensure their hold upon the continent. While most of the events of the operation have previously been published, some new information has been made public in the story published by the Defence Department, which shows more clearly why the attack failed. One of these was that it was decided not to provide heavy bomber support "The chief reason at this no bombardment removed from the plan the only element of really heavy support contained in it," the author states

• • • •

May Be Proud Of Undertaking

Another point of interest not hitherto emphasized was that Major General J. H. Roberts, Commander of the Second Canadian Division, was hampered by "limited and frequently inaccurate information" reaching him at his headquarters aboard a destroyer, concerning events on the shore. One extremely exaggerated report of successes on the main beaches decided him to land his floating reserve, which ran into withering fire. Later there was some error in planning the attack in suggested in the part of the report which says: "It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the planners underestimated the influence of topographical and of the defensive works known to be interwoven in the target area." In spite of these things, the value of the operation in planning the "D" Day invasion of 1944 has never been seriously questioned. In referring to that aspect of the event the Historian states: "That much criticized undertaking was made an essential contribution to the success of the subsequent operation of war ever attempted." For that reason, we may feel pride in the part played by the Canadian army in the attack, in spite of the fact that it was a costly failure

'Gully Erosion' Threatens Prairie Farm Lands

How to fix erosion results of "gully erosion" when threatening many thousands of acres of prairie farm lands. This field was bare summer fallow, with a loose topsoil, which resulted from many cultivations last year. These may be largely eliminated by the use of chemical weed control, which is believed to be an important development in the battle against soil erosion.

(Central Press Canadian)

REGINA (CPC) — A party of top-flight farm scientists met at Regina Friday to consider one of the gravest problems that has yet confronted western agriculture. In an area of good land, where bumper wheat crops have been the rule for the past several years, the land is sick and in danger of a slow, lingering death. Water erosion, the cause of the "sickness", created the problem which the scientists are trying to beat.

Up in the Birch Hills country, and countless other places where the prairie land rolls in great sweeps, broken here and there by space pocket and birch groves, the problem is acute. The rolling land, stripped of its protective cover of grass, shrubs and trees, then worked for years on end, becomes susceptible to running water, which rushes down into hillsides, gouging out deep gullies carrying down the precious thin covering of good soil, leaving the land a gravel shoal.

Nature saw to it that the prairie bush country was protected against water erosion, but when man removed the protective material, he brought into plenty of trouble. Nowadays, where rushing land has been cleared and cropped, the farmer is almost certain to face the problem in a year of heavy spring runoff, or during a heavy rainstorm in the summer when the land isn't soak up the water quickly as it falls. And if there is natural tendency to run to a low level.

The scientists at Birch Hills came to two important conclusions. One was that the land must be cleared so that it has a protective covering of stubble or grass at all times during which it is vulnerable to water erosion, and that a new radical reduction of fallowing is needed.

But a rich and productive grain crops in the words of the useful crops, and farmers have found it necessary in the past to put their summer-fallow area, seven and even more times during the summer to kill off fresh growths of persistent weeds, which sap the soil moisture, choke out crops.

New Theory

That was the old way; but this year will see a new theory tried in the prairie provinces, and a lot of cultivation eliminated. Great hopes of many a farmer who wants to save his good land for generations yet to come lies in the new chemical method of weed control, by means of selective herbicides, such as 2, 4-D. Where one spring sweep appears on summerfallow, it is possible to destroy them with a series of heavy applications of the "spraying chemical", eliminating the need for frequent cleaning or cultivating. After a crop has been taken off in the fall, it is thought that the protective stubble can be left, and the next season's weed growth dealt with largely with chemical sprays.

Probably the chemicals won't entirely eliminate the need for cultivation. But a few weeks which are fairly resistant for 2, 4-D can be dealt with otherwise, without too much interference of the soil surface and its protective cover.

FARMERS RECEIVE 700,000 TAX GUIDE BOOKS

OTTAWA. — Hon. J. J. McCann, revenue minister told the commons he was special income tax guide books have been printed in the Canadian Income.

Dr. McCann recalled his March announcement that farmers who report taxable income based on cash actual by record and cash expenses actually paid out during the calendar year would not be required to fill out the net worth statement on the new 1947 prairie farmers' or fishermen's statement. The would apply for any year for which sufficient information is not available.

The guide book had two purposes. It gave the farmer a simple book for the purpose of recording his income and expenses in such a way as to facilitate the accurate completion of his returns." It also answered questions.

Prairie farmers are heading into a year of large-scale use of chemical weed control. Many of them last year grew the cleanest crops in history by hoeing off weeds in the growing year, since cereals generally are not affected by 2, 4-D, and most of the common broad-leaf weeds are extremely susceptible. This year, many more are looking forward to trying out "chemical summerfallow", a method which may play an important part in driving the spectre of water erosion from the fertile prairie provinces.

Three Prairie Provinces Good Oil Prospects

EDMONTON. — In Manitoba, the southwestern corner of the province is thought to be a possible oil producing region in Saskatchewan, the entire southern half of the province is underlaid by sedimentary rock favorable for oil exploration but in Alberta virtually the entire province is considered by all men to consist of potential oil land.

The exploration programmes of major Canadian and United States oil companies this year reflect directly the oil potential qualities of the three prairie provinces. There is some exploration planned and underway in Manitoba, more interest in exploration in Saskatchewan but the great majority this year will take place in the Province of Alberta.

Estimates by individual oil men vary greatly on the amount of money that will be spent in Alberta this year. These estimates range from $30,000,000 upwards. Imperial Oil has announced that Harry H. Stewart, president of his company will spend $30,000,000 in Alberta in 1948.

KILLAM ACTIVITIES

Betty Sherwood is taking a three-week vacation from her duties at the Royal Alex Hospital and enjoying herself at the parental home.

Judging from the disappearance of the Saturday night crowd there must have been quite a number of local baseball fans at Camrose on [illegible] game.

Mrs. Hodgins of Edmonton has been visiting her son Bruce here during the past week. Bruce had the misfortune of having his little one room home and all his personal effects burned a short time ago. The fire was presumably due to [illegible] wiring.

Ray McPhee has been in Camrose [illegible] for the past two weeks at the Treasury Branch.

Arnold Erickson of Edmonton spent last week holidaying at his parental home here.

Elwood Glensborg of Edmonton spent Dominion Day here.

Mrs. H. Lackey spent a couple of days in Edmonton last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bateman were in Calgary last week, where Mr Bateman attended the convention of Gulf Insurance Co's.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith and family of Wetaskiwin were visitors of the latter's brother Mr. Alex Sorenson last week.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hopkin who were married in Edmonton last week. Mrs. McGowan is the former Mrs. Clara Iwaiw of Lacombe.

EDMONTON EXHIBITION TO BE BIGGER AND BETTER

Edmonton's 76th annual summer fair will be bigger and better than any fair in the long history of the Edmonton Exhibition Assn. Date of the fair are July 12 to 17th.

The nation's finest livestock will be on exhibition; there will be six days of horse racing with some of Canada's finest thoroughbreds competing for increased purses.

Special railway fare rates have been arranged for. It is expected similar rates will prevail on all bus routes.

A feature of this year's show, as in the past, will be Children's Day. This is held on the Friday of fair week, and special prizes will be donated at the grandstand show staged especially for the children.

Admission to this show will be free and tickets are being distribute through Alberta schools.

There will be a photography show the Royal American Midway. Bid. Cheri Bangs, with warning, dancer and renovvir; also Slumber King Spring and Mattress. 4-Pt. Size. — G.W. Probst, phone 8rd, Lougheed 211-

"PIONEER'S" ADDITIONAL PAYMENT ON OATS AND BARLEY

Some months ago we made an interim payment of 12 cents on oats and 10 cents on barley, and advised all customers that final payment would be made later.

Cheques are now in the hands of all agents for this final distribution. It will be appreciated if you will call and pick up your cheque.

This payment plus the initial interim payment makes a total of 13½c per bushel on oats, and 16½c per bushel on barley.

We are happy to announce that "Pioneer" customers are receiving more per bushel than the distribution made by any other Pool or Line elevator operators in Saskatchewan or Alberta.

IT PAYS TO PULL TO THE "PIONEER"

The Federal Government promised to make a payment to Producers on oats and barley, delivered at call-up prices between August 1st and October 31st, 1947, after the Elevator Companies had made an adjustment. This has now been done and we therefore trust the Federal Government will implement its promise in the near future.

SCENES OF BRITISH COLUMBIA'S WORST FLOOD

... scene south of the Fraser valley shows the main C.N.R. lines being undermined by flood waters boiling up on the left. Health officials endeavored to head off epidemics by adding chlorine to the flood waters and dosing all persons coming to and from the flood areas.

Flood-stranded citizens were hoisted upon improvised frame spools at Lansdale, B.C., while rescue men supplied only temporary relief from peril. Four sturdy horses await a chance to cross their cattle herds over to higher ground as the Fraser valley is almost covered

The vast farmland area ravaged by the flood waters is outlined at the base of the Rocky Mountain chain presented desolate scenes like this one near Agassiz, a ghost town after mass evacuation of residents by the navy. Rapid melting of snow in the mountains sent new cascades of water into swollen rivers.

They are having their first meal after being released from a hospital at Cheyenne, Wyo. Sharon, at right, is being fed by her mother, Mrs. Jack Sass. She was born April 20 and weighed six pounds, one ounce. Karen, left, with an aunt, was born May 5 and weighed four pounds, one ounce.

ONTARIO PILOT, 30, KILLED — Horace William "Jimmy" Westaway, 30, pilot for the Ontario Air Services for almost a quarter century, died in the cabin of his government plane when it crashed in the Severn river near Orillia, Ont., during a take-off. W. B. Taylor, a mechanic, received a shoulder injury and Henry Cromwell, a ranger, was not hurt. Officials said the plane was on a routine check-up flight when it crashed near the power plant. They believe it struck an object in the river and nosed over. A short, quiet man, Westaway, formerly of Simcoe, Ont., was a veteran of the First World War. He flew in the Middle East during the 1920's and was active service during the Second World War, having obtained leave of absence from the department of lands and forests. Above he is pictured flying ashes from the propeller of the plane which crashed.

HUNDREDS BATTLED BLAZE RACING THROUGH 100,000 ACRES OF FOREST—Weary and smoke-begrimed firefighters take time out for a quick bite in the Northern Ontario bush before returning to the losing battle against one of the worst forest fire attacks which swept nearly 100,000 acres of timber and forest. Blazes in the Mississagi and Chapleau areas raged uncontrolled in high wind, causing the largest fire in northern Ontario's history.

F.C. ROBERT EDMUNTON ERNEST CLARK HOPKINS

POLICE BULLET KILLS SUSPECT—Shot in a police chase, Ernest Clark Hopkins, 32, failed to survive an emergency operation to remove the slug from his abdomen. Hopkins, police said, was one of two men chased by Constable Robert Edgeworth after he surprised them at a Toronto restaurant. He was hit by the third shot fired by the constable who, police said, was losing the foot chase after he had run about three blocks. Police said they found almost $200 in cash and four cigarette lighters in Hopkins' possession. The money has been identified by the owner of the restaurant, Harry Lamb.

VETERAN DROWNED—Virgil Berry, of Point Anne, Ont., was one of two veterans drowned when their fish-bottomed fishing boat overturned off Point Anne in the Bay of Quinte. The boat and oars were found the morning after the tragedy. The other victim was Rodwell Parsons, 21. Both were left English war wives.

The British Post Office has agreed to give permanent jobs to Braille telephonists up to the age of 60.

Property lost in London's tubes, buses and trams in 1947 numbered 291,827. Among them were 36,611 umbrellas.

Britain exported 157,948 bicycles during March—an all-time record—and 418,327 in the first three months of this year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Harber, of Chester le Street, Durham, England, 108, said her ambition was to enjoy the thrill of an air trip.

German daily newspapers have increased their size from eight to 16 pages, the North Rhine-Westphalia press association said.

Australia is endeavoring to obtain specifications for Japanese wool-combing machinery to make yarn and manufacture goods from her wool.

Princess Elizabeth received an honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Oxford university and in a short speech she thanked the university officials for the honor.

Savings on deposit in Canada's chartered banks at April 30 last totalled $3,981,000,000 against $3,826,484,000 March 31 and $3,772,019,000 at April 30 last year.

INDUSTRIALIST TO LEAVE BRITAIN TO MAKE NEW START IN CANADA

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. — Neal August J. C. Neal Cordon will relinquish his managing directorships of 4 Midlands manufacturing company and sail for Canada with an automobile and trailer to "start all over again".

"Some folk think I'm crazy," 44-year-old Cordon said, "but I'll bet that in a year or two I'll be a managing director again, with my own plant and a large number of Canadians on my payroll.

"But to begin with I'm willing to do anything from selling ice cream to working at a bench. And I know how to work, too. I've been through the mill once and I'll do it again.

Starting as an employe engineer, Cordon built up a group of Midlands manufacturing companies devoted to turnpaths, canvas, leather and sports goods (the BT group incorporating Reynolds and Company Limited). He says he is pulling out because "no enterprising trader can make any headway in Britain under the present system."

"When private enterprise is bound up with red tape it means death to private enterprise. I am going to Canada because I believe the Canadian people still respect enterprise as the backbone of national life.

Negro Bachelor Helped Children For Many Years

MONTREAL — Fred Donnelly tells this story of an 80-year-old Montreal Negro who loved children and who translated his love into a milk bottle packed full of pennies and silver and the odd dollar bill to be used for their welfare.

Thomas Sample died in the Old People's Home, Notre Dame street east. At his bedside during his last illness was a pint milk bottle packed to the brim with coins.

"For the kids," he told S. R. Vernon, superintendent of the institution, before he died and the official promptly turned the bottle over to the Salvation Army for its children's fund.

Not much to this story, you think? Well, Thomas Sample had been filling that milk bottle with coppers from his scanty earnings for the past 42 years. Each time it was full the proceeds were sent to some children's welfare organization and the task of filling it began anew.

And the punch line? Thomas Sample could never love kids of his own for he loved and died a bachelor.

Be he loved them all!

Award Scholarships For Barley Study

WINNIPEG — Five scholarships are being awarded each year by the recently organized Barley Improvement Institute as a stimulus to research for new varieties of malting barley. The scholarships will be open to any Canadian university student undertaking barley research.

The Institute, which is being financed by the brewing and malting industries of Canada started operations here May 1. It is headed by Prof. T. J. Harrison, a widely known barley authority, who since 1939 has been assistant for Manitoba to the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada.

Greatest need in the barley industry, says Prof. Harrison, is for varieties with good malting qualities and better agronomic properties. To assist in developing them, the institute proposes to aid plant breeders at approved institutions.

The scholarships are being awarded to encourage university graduates to undertake advanced study in barley research.

Dedication Of Largest Telescope In World

PALOMAR MOUNTAIN, Calif.—Largest telescope on earth was dedicated recently "to the well-being of mankind."

In ceremonies attended by heads of some of the world's greatest scientific institutions, the 200-inch telescope was christened the Hale telescope, honoring Dr. George Ellery Hale, "father" of the giant instrument, who died in 1938.

The telescope, with a range of 1,400,000,000 light years (the distance light will travel in 1,000,000,000 years at a speed of 186,000 miles a second) will probe into secrets of the universe. Dr. Max Mason, chairman of the observatory council, has said it may even solve the mystery of life itself.

MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT FAULT OF PEDESTRIAN

LONDON — Insurance companies got a windfall of small-policy business in the wake of a court decision enabling a £2,000 ($10,800) damage bill on a pedestrian hit by a motorcycle.

London Sirens said they were getting a rush of enquiries about 10-shilling-a-year (2) policies insuring pedestrians against personal liability up to £5,000.

A judge at the Norfolk Assizes ruled that J. R. Cupps of Lowestoft must pay £2,500 to the widow of a man killed while riding a motorcycle which struck Cupps. The court said Cupps stepped off the sidewalk into the motorcycle's path while his mind was on something else.

Eskimo Girl Returns To Baffin Land Home

FELIXSTOWE, Suffolk, Rebecca, 15-year-old Eskimo girl who visited England last December with Mrs. Turner, wife of Canon John Turner who was killed in an Arctic shooting accident in 1947, has come home to Baffin land.

She sailed for New York aboard the Marine Jumper and from there she travelled through Toronto-Montreal, Goose Bay, Labrador, and Frobisher Bay N.W.T., en route to her home at Pangnirtung.

Accompanying Rebecca and Mrs. Turner on the journey to Baffin land is Eskimo Egerhauk, who has been in England for the past year studying ... methods.

SOME DON'TS FOR FOODHANDLERS

The promiscuous fingering of foods and containers is usually evident when food-poisoning outbreaks occur. Dr. A. R. M. Richmond, Toronto's Chief Food Inspector told a gathering of Leaside district foodhandlers at a recent Health League-sponsored event.

He who said that much depends on the personal hygiene habits of foodhandlers, and outlined a few "don'ts" for restaurant employes:

1—Don't go on duty with a severe head cold, sore throat or any acute illness.

2—Don't cough or sneeze in your hand, use a clean handkerchief.

3—Don't report for duty if you have any skin infection or sore—see a doctor.

4—Don't leave the toilet room without thoroughly washing your hands and then dry them on clean towel.

5—Don't pick at your nose, face or fingernails.

6—Don't work without haircuts caps or bands.

7—Don't lick your fingers while working with food.

8—Don't touch your face with soiled cloths used for serving or cooking spoons or forks.

9—Don't wipe your hands on aprons or apron—use a clean towel.

10—Don't work in street clothes while handling food.

11—Don't touch the rim or inside of cups and glasses. Handle only the handles.

Editor's Note—It is suggested many of Dr. Richmond's "don'ts" could well apply to those who prepare meals in private homes.

Spraying mechanically what the world needs to feed in a few more years is faster and fewer cranks.

Seeds Act Gives Policy On Seeds

Many people may be confused by the terms The Seeds Act and The Seed Regulations since both are part of the law respecting the sale, production and distribution of seed in Canada. ...

The Seeds Act as one of the statutes of Canada and was passed by the Dominion Parliament in 1927. It outlines the long term policy laid down by the government in regard to that seed must be labelled when it is offered for sale, that seed inspectors and seed analysts may be appointed, that new varieties must be licensed, that seed must be sold as represented, that registered seed may not be sold, that seed imported into Canada must meet Canadian standards. The Act provides for enforcement of the law. ...

In addition to these provisions there is a section which authorizes the Minister of Agriculture to make regulations. The Act itself, since it deals with general policies, is only changed at intervals of years, but the regulations under which seed is permitted to be sold and which change with the season. Varieties, production methods, processing methods and merchandising are continually changing and improving. Any changing conditions are met by changing the regulations but the changes in the regulations do not affect the basic principles of the Act. ...

As the years slide by, changes in the regulations which can be made, when they are signed by the Minister, they become just as much a part of the law as the Act itself. ...

Car Licence Must Remain In Original Owner's Possession

WINNIPEG — Manitoba car owners can no longer pass a used on the road. Premier Campbell announced that highly used license plate to seal the bargain. ...

From now on, a new provision in the province's motor traffic act declares that the license plate must remain with the original owner of the car as he possesses a motor vehicle, H. B. Baillie, registrar of motor vehicles, has announced. ...

The car's new owner, unless he already has a plate of his own, must purchase a new one from the motor vehicles department. ...

The original owner, if he does not wish to put his plate on another car, may surrender it to the registrar, and, to the department and receive a refund amounting to the balance of the unused portion of the license fee, Mr. Baillie said. ...

In order to get his refund the man must also bring his car most probably that the vehicle has been re-registered in the province of Manitoba, according to the new regulation. ...

If he is getting another car, however, he may transfer his registration to it. ...

From the standpoint of the public, the policy, and the motor vehicle license department, Mr. Baillie states," the policy of having the plate stay with the car registered in the province most satisfactory elsewhere

Suggests Measures Against Black Fly

BRANDON, Man — Black flies have appeared in Brandon district in large numbers according to Dr. H. Bird, Dominion entomologist, and are causing discomfort to livestock. These flies are closely related to the species which caused a huge epizootic of deaths among livestock in Saskatchewan last year but it is not believed that their bites will have fatal results. Darkening of the skin of the pests will have a detrimental effect on livestock. Bird suggests that some protective measures be taken. Soaking of stock during the day, the use of repellents and application of livestock sprays are recommended. It is a good time now to spray any available in any year during the fly season. Dr. Bird will issue full information on the use of sprays and other methods to combat the pests from the dominion entomological offices in Brandon. ...

BARBARA ANN SIGNS CONTRACT WITH M.C.A.—Canada's queen of the ice, Barbara Ann Scott has signed a professional contract with the Music Corporation of America, one of the world's greatest booking agencies, which becomes the sole agent for her services. The management of M.C.A. became necessary because of the great number of offers which continued to come from Hollywood. So far Miss Scott has been guaranteed no set amount of money by the Music Corporation, but many of the major movies have already offered her attractive figures. M.C.A. will take a cut of 10 per cent from Barbara's future earnings for the duration of the contract. Her talents have also been available to a charitable organization, which is to promote the welfare of crippled and underprivileged children. Aaron Cinada's sweetheart is now with the Lou E. Shaw's ice-review troupe, assisted annually to the country's outstanding athlete. She was it for the second time this year, making her the only two-time winner.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

By TED RUSSELL

LENNY stared into the washroom mirror. Behind him, the stranger also stared. They looked at each other for a long time, but neither spoke. Then Lenny turned slowly around. ...

I never saw anything like it," he said. ...

The stranger had come into the washroom breathless, worried, glancing apprehensively over his shoulder as he had control of himself again. He stepped forward and said change with the season. Varieties, production methods, processing methods and merchandising are continually changing and improving. Any changing conditions are met by changing the regulations but the changes in the regulations do not affect the basic principles of the Act. ...

As the years slide by, changes in the regulations which can be made, when they are signed by the Minister, they become just as much a part of the law as the Act itself. ...

"It's amazing," he admitted. ...

"We could be twins," Lenny said. The stranger nodded. "My own mother couldn't tell us apart." He reached into his pocket. "I guess we'd better have a cigarette on it." ...

Lenny accepted a cigarette and stepped the light. They stood smoking and regarding each other in astonishment. ...

"I wouldn't have believed it," Lenny said. "Just like I'm looking at myself. You got my own mother," the stranger said. "Lenny, you're in trouble." ...

He was still a little nervous. His fingers holding the cigarette trembled almost imperceptibly. ...

There didn't seem to be much more to say. Lenny glanced toward the door. The stranger held out his hand. ...

Just a minute. I was noticing that suit you have on. I like it. ...

Do you?" Lenny was surprised. He had bought the suit for fifteen dollars, second-hand. He was very proud of it. ...

I've been trying to get one just like mine," the stranger said. "My wife says I should get all my suits that color." ...

Lenny smiled. The stranger was a very pleasant man, not at all the obnoxious material Lenny guessed that at another time they might have gathered dollars. ...

"If you want to trade, I would you?" the stranger asked. ...

Lenny thought for a moment. He wouldn't be any more out in it wasn't a fair exchange, but he wasn't the one who was going to jail. ...

"If you want," he said. "I don't care." ...

The stranger was already peeling off his coat. Lenny began imitating him, finally transferring the contents of his wallet. He had published his new coat and looked at himself in the mirror. ...

"You do you like it " the stranger asked. ...

Lenny said. Fine. Fits like a glove. ...

He too Everybody's happy, then ... ...

Lenny said, "Sure" They shook hands. He nodded toward the door "Coming?" ...

The stranger said, "No. You go ahead. I want to wash my face." ...

Right." Lenny opened the door and walked out into the lobby. The lobby was dark man with shaky eyes sat close together in a worried face and was whispering agitatedly against a pillar When he saw Lenny he leaned along the lobby to the door and came forward. His blocked Lenny's path and whispered. How I ... ...

Okay, Weaver," he said in a flat, bored voice "I want my fifty bucks." ...

Lenny stood very still. ...

What fifty bucks" ...

You know what fifty bucks, Weaver. I been waiting you. I saw you go in that washroom. Now I want my dough." ...

Lenny had expected something like this to happen. He wasn't surprised ...

My name's not Weaver," he said The small man laughed a short, hard ...

Quit kidding," he sneered, "and quit stalling I want my dough and I mean to get it." He had his right hand in his pocket and there was something in the hand, something bulky. ...

Lenny shrugged. He reached into his own pocket and brought out a roll of bills. He stripped off five tens and handed them to the small man. ...

The man took the money. "Next time I don't want to have to come after it," he said. ...

Lenny nodded. "Okay." He watched the small man leave the hotel and then he resumed the lobby and stood behind a pillar. ...

After a while the stranger came out of the washroom and brushed the guy's fifteen-dollar suit. He looked carefully around the lobby and a wide grin came over his face. He lighted a cigarette and strolled jauntily toward the doors ...

Before he reached them, two men wearing derbies and smoking cigars —detectives—fell in beside him and grabbed his arms. ...

There was a brief struggle. The stranger protested in angry bewilderment ...

Lenny didn't wait to hear what he was saying. He could guess that instead he turned and left the hotel quickly by a side door. ...

Test Anti-Mud Slide Discovery At Calgary

CALGARY — First Canadian application of a system of electrosmose to prevent mud slides—a German wartime discovery—was carried out on a steep hill threatening more than a score of Calgary homes. ...

The experiment, which involved forcing of drainage by using an electric current started on a 60-foot rise on Sunnyside Hill here. ...

A mudslide on the hill situated on the north bank of the Bow River, forced 64 persons to flee from their homes recently. A number of dwellings suffered school damage and a garage was demolished. ...

Electrosmosis involves the drawing out of moisture from the hillside and forming a dry barrier across the brow of the hill. Direct current is forced into the ground through a number of electrodes. ...

Officials in charge of the experiment hope that the same effect along the face of the hill will prevent crumbling of the edge. The process was discovered by a German scientist now living in England. It was first used in entering the German submarine pens at Trondheim, Norway. ...

In the province this winter, from approximately 70 feet from the ground level, is planted with a number of four-inch pipes, test probes and other instruments. ...

The process requires a direct current to the electrodes which are placed in water pipes set vertically to the ground. The current draws the water in the vicinity through the ground to the pipes much as a magnet draws a needle. Once in the pipe, the water is pumped out either mechanically or automatically to a nearby sewer system. ...

When the current was first turned on, a considerable quantity collected in the pipes and was drawn off. ...

Prof. H. Hardy, Dean of Engineering at the University of Alberta, and Prof. J. A. Mavis of the mines department, say they are pleased with the initial results of the experiment which is under their direction. However they say that it will "be some time yet" before success, or failure of the experiment can be determined. ...

Dean Hardy said the process, if successful, will be more economical than conventional drainage systems. ...

STROME JOTTINGS

Mr. Bob Morgan was taken to the Killam hospital Sunday from a lung congestion. However it is reported that he is well on the way to complete recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rawe have relatives and friends visiting them from the U. S. A.

Born — To Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zimmel on Saturday, a daughter. It calls for cigars Harry.

Mr. J. Todd was a business visitor to Camrose on Saturday.

Lester Zimmel and David Clarke accompanied by Rita, boarded the train on Saturday they pockets bulging with wealth, and headed for Camrose to spend the day much the same as world travellers do.

Thursday morning two cars collided half a mile east of town doing much damage to both cars. Luckily nobody was hurt.

C. Short and family drove up to Camrose on Sat. afternoon.

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

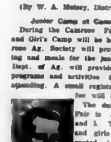
(By W. A. Money, District Ag.)

Junior Camps at Camrose

During the Camrose Fair, boys and Girls Camp will be held. Camrose Ag. Society will provide lodging and meals for the juniors. The Dept. of Ag. will provide suitable programs and activities for those attending. A small registration fee for will be charged.



W. A. Money

The date of the Fair is Aug. 3, 4 and 5. The boys and girls are expected to arrive on Aug. 2. Those who attended last year were enjoyed their stay in Camrose. Every boy or girl is invited to attend the camps. If interested send your letter to W. A. Money stating that you are interested in attending the camp.

This is haying time. I hope that every farmer will make every effort to get up enough hay to carry the cattle through the winter. We are in a country that is subject to extremes. Let us remind ourselves of the situation that South Africa and New is the time we can do something about it. Let's do it. Put up more hay.

This is a combine-harvester sale. We need more straw burners to conserve straw for feed reserves. Before and the second about it.

We live in a country of extremes. Once in a while we get a situation where the price of farm products is of no help. The condition is brought about by drought, frost and other hazards of nature. The big problem for farm families is to develop a way of living on the farm to be able to survive such hazards. The approach to this problem is through balanced farming. To me the above idea is a fundamental one.

LARGE CROWD ENJOYS SPORTS DAY AT SEDGEWICK

With fine warm weather prevailing, a crowd which exceeded that of a year ago, fully enjoyed the annual Dominion Day Sports at Sedgewick, sponsored by the Triple S in aid of the Memorial Hall Fund. President H.W. Smith has informed the Press that the crowd exceeded that of last year, and expressed his satisfaction with the net results of the day.

Baseball

There were six senior ball teams out to compete with the result that some fine games were witnessed.

In the first round, Killam took the decision from Lougheed; Wyrauna beat out to Strome and Sedgewick won out over Hardisty.

Killam trimmed Strome to qualify to meet Sedgewick in the finals. A bye draw was made in the presence of all team managers in which the Sedgewick team won the bye.

The final game between Killam and Sedgewick ended with a 7 to 2 triumph for Sedgewick in a five inning game. A feature of the ball journey was the pitching of Harold Cleaves who hurled two and a half games for the Killam aggregation.

Martin Family Phenom

The Martin Family of entertainers augmented with additional troupers pleased the large crowd with two half hour performed each during the afternoon and evening. Their acts consisted of Cowboy Songs, Various Jokes, skits, comedy and a number of tumbling acts. The Martins have become popular entertainers here and many people attend the Sports expressly to see them perform.

Ladies' Softball

With five teams entered in the division, Killam, Amisk and Sedgewick were eliminated in the first round. Hardisty and Strome mixed in the final game which was won by the strong Hardisty nine.

Men's Softball

Five teams were also entered here with the Red Busters, Killam, Park and Cambridge being eliminated. Vikings was the final game by trimming the team from Prairie Park.

OBITUARY

PETER ERICK WAHLUND

The Sedgewick district lost an old timer and respected old-time citizen on June 29th in the passing of Peter Erick Wahlund in the Killam hospital at the age of 56 years.

The late Mr. Wahlund was born in Harbkinn, Sweden on October 9th, 1891. He was married in Sweden in 1913 and seven years later he and his family migrated to the U.S. and filed on a homestead in Minnesota. He was predeceased by his wife in 1926, and the following year he and the children came to Canada and settled at Wetaskiwin. In 1927 Mr. Wahlund took up residence in Sedgewick where he built and operated the first Meat Market in town. He was married in 1932 to Jennie Johnson, the marriage taking place in Minnesota. Upon their return to Sedgewick they purchased the business of his Meat Market and took up farming just north of town, where his family resided until five or six years ago when they moved into the village of Sedgewick.

He leaves to mourn his loss besides his loving wife, five sons Roger of Westgrove, Alta; Maurice of Pibrch; George of Ft. McMurray Arkansas; Oscar at home and Raymond of Calmary; one daughter Ella of Los Angeles, Cal; three sons predeceased; 15 grand children and 12 great grand children.

Funeral services were conducted from the Sedgewick United Church on Friday, July 2nd, with the Rev. Mr. MacLean officiating, and her last wish was made in the Sedgewick cemetery in the family plot.

Pall Bearers were C. Simons, W. O. Simons, Ray Sawyers, Ray Davis, R. Flanigan and Jos. Murray. Honorary Pall Bearers were, Messrs J. Sawyers, Geo. Tasker, L. Nelson; Jim Newman, E. Danielson and Tom Bushnell.

Funeral arrangements were in the hands of Miss Violet Landers. Flower bearer of honor.

PERSONAL STUFF

— B. A. B. —

Either three or four years ago (I am not sure which) a farmer well known to me, stated that his district needed one more good crop to put the farmers on that area on a solid financial footing. This week I heard the same statement uttered again. We need one more good crop to really get us up. I wonder if there is ever a possibility of reaching that point where we have at last reaped enough of anything on this earth to make us feel largely satisfied with our efforts. It is a good omen when people are never quite content with gaining knowledge, experience and useful things, and on the other hand it seems to me that there is something sadly lacking in the human make-up when the material and financial gains are the only worthwhile gains we have to face. Realizing as I do that money is the root of all evil, we are living today, I deplore the conception of money that is entertained by so many people in the rising generation. By that I mean that today we find the adage 'by the sweat of your brow shall ye earn your bread' almost a forgotten and discarded legend. The past few years in our fast-moving and financially flush world have reared for us a rising generation of money con scious, half-intelligent, poorly equipped to face the hard and cold facts of a fastly deteriorating world.

* * * *

I subscribe to a paper from the U.S. which is printed exclusively for the printing trade. In it each week there appears upwards of 200 ads asking for help in the newspaper and printing fields Lately I have received four more and more of these ads contain the following words. "No drunkards and drifters." These words contain a great deal of significance. To me they would mean that the drunkard is not wanted, nor for the most obvious reason and the drifter is almost as undesirable because no means of stability can be placed in him. Yet today we find people drifting thither and yon with no fixed abode and with no definite purpose in life except to move about and locate temporarily where the pickings are easy. The kind of people generally have no trade, no bank account and little idea of responsibility to self, family or state.

* * * *

The responsibility for this state of affairs must rest partly in our present system of education and partly with the parents. Education today is the broad sense of the word. While it cannot be applied in the same way it was twenty years ago, has failed to keep pace with the changing trend of world conditions and world outlook. An apparently smart and bright young fellow may know who is Prime Minister of England and the year that the great Rom-n crossed the just as great river, but that knowledge man is no good to the average man who makes five out of two and two, and he is useless to the public here as a proof reader if he starts the word psychology with an 's'. Parents are part ly to blame in that they have not fed that 'citizens' spirit so active today. We are making things too easy for the kids

WEDDING

BOLDT — DRAGER

Miss Ruby Drager, only daughter of Mrs. Albert Drager of Mona and John Boldt, son of Mrs Boldt of the Sedford district were married at the United Church Manse at Sedgewick on Tuesday, June 22nd with Rev M MacLean officiating. The couple was supported by the groom's sister Mrs. Willard Kish and the bride's brother Norman Drager. After the ceremony the newly weds went on a honeymoon trip to Edmonton, Jasper and Banff and other points.

Preceding their marriage a shower was held in their honor at home of Mr and Mrs. Tommy Leslie Around 60 friends and neighbors gathered for a social evening After a very enjoyable program ably conducted by Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, little Terry and Shirley Leslie (twins) hauled in a pretty decorated wagon laden with gifts for Ruby. Lunch was served and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed

Then again on July 3rd after Mr and Mrs. Boldt arrived home from their honeymoon, as many friends gathered at a rather late hour to greet them. This time with a real bang, with friends arriving from Morra, Bodrord and Groton to chivaree them. After a time they were invited inside and enjoyed a pleasant evening playing games and having a real sing song led by Hal Tee

Money means very little. To them money is too cheap. Today the slogan is 'how time for how little'. The unfortunate reality of the situation is that if and when the work hard for little gain day returns, these young-ters will be seen who will be subjected to successful and most trying circumstances against which they will have no ready and effective defence.

* * * *

In view of my statements as above, it is indeed gratifying to learn that the central High School at Sedgewick is to include in its course of studies next fall; Sloop and Home Economics. This is a big forward step in modernizing our educational system. From next year onward parents may at least feel assured that their son can fix the old kitchen sink while the friend's wife bakes a cherry pie. This forward step should now be followed up with further and similar action until the time arrives when every student has the opportunity to leave school with at least a working knowledge of some useful and practical trade

A Welcome For New Citizens

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT in the three years since the war ended, some [illegible] people from other lands have come to make their homes in Canada. The majority of them have come from Europe and many have suffered years of hardship and suffering before coming here. Undoubtedly to all we deem the opportunity to come to Canada meant a chance to make a new life under better and happier conditions than those under which they had been living. Some through contacts with Canadian soldiers during the fighting in Europe or through other channels, had gained considerable knowledge of this country and were anxious because of what they had learned to establish themselves here. Others have come only because they were seeking a new home, and had less previous knowledge of conditions in Canada.

Relationship Of Mutual Benefit

In this connection the Canadian Citizenship Committee has suggested that more interest should be taken by the public in making these newcomers feel at home in Canada, and in helping them to become acquainted with our ways of life. It has been proposed that each [illegible] should be placed in contact with an older Canadian citizen [illegible] who will be welcoming our electoral laws, social customs and [illegible] matters and assist him to form connections with the religious denomination of his choice, as well as with other organizations in which he might be interested. Such a plan should prove of advantage to the new citizens who have many adjustments to make in coming to a strange country. Likewise, Canadians who might undertake to assist these people would undoubtedly gain much from the experience.

Become Familiar With Our Ways

In the past little interest was taken in quickly assimilating those who immigrated to this country into the Canadian way of life. Many of them remained in national groups in the communities in which they lived, and clung to their own language and customs. Their children and grandchildren have become Canadians in every sense of the word and have contributed a great deal to the progress of this country. However, there is no reason why the first generation of citizens of foreign origin should not enjoy their new citizenship to the utmost. In this and many other things it is possible to improve on the methods used in the past and it would be well if serious consideration were given to the matter in which newcomers from other lands might be helped to learn to enjoy the privileges and fulfil the responsibilities of Canadian citizenship.

Higher Priced Eggs For Britain

An increase of five cents per dozen in the price to be paid for Grade A eggs purchased under the British contract was announced by the Special Products Board. A further increase will become effective on October 1, 1948.

The present price during July and August has been made possible by a subsidy, effected in the agreement of the British egg contract by the Special Products Board over the heads of the trade and involves only the contract price of eggs for Britain.

The September increase will bring the contract price to the producer to equal to the regular fall period purchase price prevailing for eggs in the market.

DANGEROUS BLUFF

Mrs Georgie Booker, who lives in Georgia said she thought her rocking chair on the front porch was a little bumpy". The next morning she found that the rockers had crushed a six-foot rattlesnake to death.

BODY FOUND

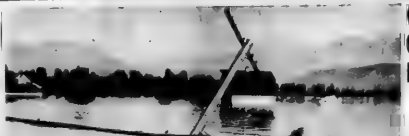
GRAND PRAIRIE, Alta.—Searchers found the body of Norman Henry Locke, 14 years old beside the boy's pony, who stood all night in a flooding creek at the spot where the boy fell off into the water.



RAGING FRASER RIVER—The above scene shows the Fraser River which has caused farm lands in the Chilliwack and other B.C. areas. Here a hull is forced to swim after rearing head through water in level deep.

Western Briefs

BANFF, Alta.—Present high price of sugar, furniture and household appliances will be brought down by buyers resistance at the heavy tax structure delegates attending the International Association of Chiefs of Police were told.

KELOWNA B.C.—Total shipment of the Okanagan apple crop produced last year left the Okanagan Valley recently, A. E. Loyd, general manager of B.C. Tree Fruits Association, said. Total shipments for the past season amounted to 13,734 cars, compared with 16,721 the previous year and 10,932 in 1944.

VANCOUVER, B.C.—City Council approved application of Pacific National Exhibition to place 1,000 more ticket booths and park three autos in front of the gates away from prizes on city streets.

EDMONTON—Alberta's $13,500,000 highway construction development program for 1948 is under way, the public works department announced, with work said to be 10 days early.

ENDEAVOUR, Sask.—A happy bridal couple stopped at P.C. 1 and en route by tractor for a honeymoon trip at Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson. The groom is the son of Rev. F. C. Wright at Shaunavon. After the ceremony they changed to tobogganing and set out by tractor for Medicine Lake. The tractor pulled a small trailer carrying their camping equipment.

KAMSACK, Sask.—W. H. Cass, postmaster of this town of 2,000 inhabitants town, began charging 15 cents each time he had to open postoffice boxes for people who had forgotten their keys. He recently turned over $16.50 in "fines" to the Canadian Appeal for Children.

EDMONTON—Ontario has asked for 2,500 western farm workers to help harvest her early crops, the Alberta government announced. Workers volunteering must undertake to return to Alberta between Aug. 23 to 31. Fares are $10 each way and the age limits are 16 to 50.

Conservation Of Soil Major Movement

With Plenty Of Data On Soil Prospects For The Farmer Is Good

JASPER, Alta.—The predicted future of agriculture on both sides of the Canadian Rockies was described to delegates attending the third annual convention of the Canadian Feed Manufacturers Association here.

Dr. R. D. Bentley, dean of agriculture at the University of Alberta, said soil conservation is of major importance to prairie farmers.

Professor H. M. King of the University of British Columbia's animal husbandry department, said his province's problem is to obtain more intensive production from the limited number of arable acres suitable for farming.

Prospects for today's farmers were described as good by Dr. Bentley, with plenty of data available for study on soil and climatic conditions.

British Columbia's need for increased production, Professor King said, is being met through intensive fertilization, irrigation and rotation of crops.

Huge Dyking System Foreseen For Fraser Valley

OTTAWA — High dykes for 140 miles costing $62,500,000 in Fraser Valley are envisioned here as plans are mapped out for Dominion-Provincial flood control program.

An unofficial estimate says the 1948 provincial government part up $50,000,000 and B.C. $12,500,000.

Proposed dykes would be built and strengthened to confine Fraser at peak flood levels.

According to one source, the dykes might be wide enough to carry 16-foot roads, similar to barriers in Holland and the lower Rhine along which Canadian soldiers fought in World War II.

LOTS FOR MONEY

The motorist probably gets more for his money when he buys tires than anyone else. The manufacturers extensive customers get about 1,700 miles per dollar spent on tires.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"I'm sorry, madam," said the passport official, "but there has been a mistake made in your application form."

"What is that?" she asked.

"The color of your hair has been put down as dark instead of fair."

"Oh, she said with an obliging smile, "will you alter it, or shall I?"

"Doctor," stammered the caller, "I . . . I . . . I'm going to marry Mary Smith, and . . ."

"Splendid, my boy," cheered the old family doctor. "Congratulations."

"But there's something I have to get off my chest."

"Don't let it trouble you, Son. Don't tell me all about it."

"Well, it's a red and blue heart with the name, 'Mabel, on it."

A teacher was lecturing on charity.

"Fred," he said, "if I save a boy beating a donkey and I made him stop, what virtue would I be showing?"

Fred promptly: "Brotherly love."

* * * *

"Do you really love me, Alfred?" asked the girl.

"Yes, I refer you to my last letter," replied the young man. "Strictly in an the first page, 'really' on page four and five, and 'till death do us part' in the postscript. I cannot be more explicit, Esther."

PLANE HURLS BOXCARS IS INJURED—Thirteen persons were injured when the C.N.R. passenger train from Toronto smashed into three boxcars in the C.N.R. yard, at Niagara Falls, Ont., and sent the wreckage of the boxcars hurtling against several parked automobiles. The majority of those most seriously hurt were said to have been sitting in the parked autos waiting for the train. Cause of the accident is believed to be an open switch in the railway yard. Three boxcars, on a siding, were hit by the locomotive of the train and all three were derailed, officials said. The boxcars landed on the parked automobiles. Here an aerial photo shows the wrecked boxcars against the Niagara Falls' station.

HOW OUR PRAIRIE TOWNS AND VILLAGES CAME INTO BEING

By JANE DALE

PEOPLE living all their lives in the cities and in the older parts of our country must often wonder just how the many little towns which dot the prairies came into being. There is a romance and an inspiration in the individual history of each of the prairie towns and villages and as we listen to the pioneers and the old-timers tell tales of the first days of these stepping off places along the long prairie trails we come to realise that each small settlement started much the same as the other. I have had occasion to delve into the background and history of the small village of Homiota, Manitoba, for material for a project which our Women's Institute is sponsoring. With all the material at hand I decided to write up a brief summary of this town's history and thereby answer the question as to how the small prairie villages and towns came into being.

During the latter part of the nineteenth century the government of Canada was making every effort to bring settlers into the prairie provinces by the means of cheap railway and agricultural land. Much misleading advertising in the British Isles and in the various countries of Europe by the Canadian government stressed the fact of cheap land, land opportunity and abundant wealth for those who were willing to settle the land and work. People flocked by the thousands across the seas and from the eastern provinces of Canada until between 1870 and 1900 the British Isles across the prairies were dotted with all sorts of villages on carts, lumber wagons and covered wagons on the Red River carts. Wringing out the virgin prairie sod and tilling farms and from these going as far as they could be cut the cost of what ever material transportation they could afford or obtain. Whenever a small group or family stopped to stake out a home and there a settlement immediately started.

A family would come, Hamlet's stopped along the trail ... cuts ... rude from Battle River homestead locators had to be content to the northwest thirty miles to Edmonton City the nearest post-office at that time. To the south was fifty miles from Pranden, the heart of the wheat growing area and southeast. That family of settlers gave their name to that township but not when they began to receive mail it was found that mail addressed for the care of Hamlet's farm was being received with that of the Manitoba Hamilton and it was necessary to drop the last syllable of the original name and the Indian word, meaning plenty, were changed the whole word then became Homiota. Homiota Post Office in was and Hamlet's home became the first settler.

The present village of Homiota is three and a half miles northwest of the original Hamilton homestead. The township was laid out in 1880 but the town was not incorporated until the year 1906. The year the township was laid out the Great Northwest Central Railway came to Chalet, a small settlement west of Brandon, and to Hamiota. The hope of having communication with the outside world was met with enthusiasm by the people who had already gathered in this small place. There was a period of waiting, however during which pressure was put on the government by petitions to get the train running. It was in December, 1903 that the train did finally come steaming and whistling along and the jubilation of steel. That was a happy time for the people of the village. Mr George Elliott had had a cellar for his store dug for two years but when the train never came he decided not to go no further with the construction. When in August 1901 a hand car came along the track he thought it was the forerunner of the train and set his men to work again. Once more he was disappointed and the work was held up. When on that cold dull December day the train did come through, Mr Elliott had his place cleared of snow and ice, laid a floor on the foundation which served as a roof and in the basement opened many years. One lady recalled that the first ice carnival held in Hamiota was a very pleasant affair. There were no electric lights and even gasoline lights were a rarity. On such a night, as each man took about a stable lantern, the light of which gave to the whole scene of the carnival a festive appearance and every one participating had a merry time.

Another special event often recalled by customers of the district and which afforded much pleasure to everyone was the first hockey game in the village. The took place on Dominion Day, 1902 when a special train ran from Brandon for the occasion. There was a great move to improve the appearance of the very young settlement for this great day. The citizens arranged to buy sidewalks each man having his own lumber and doing the labor. The walks were for the most part two boards set lengthways about a foot apart. Much labor as that after the town was now incorporated there were required by solid plank sidewalks. This work went on steadily all night in order to be ready for the celebration during the following day the local team won a victory over a team ... from Rapid City in a game of lacrosse.

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

(By W. A. Matsey, District Ag.)

We had several specimens of Red Tuesday Onions sent to this office for identification. These bunches are confused with Potato Bootles but do not attack potatoes. They feed on cabbages, turnips, radishes and the other similar plants. They can be controlled by the use of any of the insecticides suggested for potato Beetles in the insect control section of the Agricultural material for general use.

Now is the time to prepare that spare for vegetables. The soil verse growing conditions in the West will allow a bountiful supply of vegetables available for our demestic markets. For further information send for bulletins on how to raise vegetables.

R is a national emergency. All farmers put up all the hay possible. Have it in the mow or stack or something about it. Anyone having haying equipment available on custom basis, should do so at once as reduces not made use of let us know How about the stands of hay along the road allowances?

WYOMING BALL CLUB WINS THEIR OWN TOURNEY

The annual Sports Day and Ball Tourney was held by the Wyoming Ball Club at Simpson's Corner last Wed. with a large and enthusiastic crowd attending. The refreshment booth operated by the Club did a roaring business, and the Legion operating a small midway was kept busy throughout the afternoon.

A well patronized dance was held at night in the local Memorial Hall with snappy music provided by the Stone Crossaders.

BEE LOSS

Beekeepers will soon be compiling this season's product, for their own personal enjoyment, for commercial occasion or possibly for exhibition For the new beginner a few tin and don'ts may come in useful. Don't take out combs for extracting unless they are at least two-thirds capped. If you cannot do this job in a quiet orderly manner try and get assistance. Don't let bees become "robbers" the aptness' than blame the bees for protecting their their property If you cannot stop a way you are soaking trouble and almost never to find it. All operations should be carried out in the dusk or rear of the hive. No bees bits of wax must be left lying around or robbing will likely be the order. If you are in a hurry, slow down; the bee can get around faster than you. Don't leave bee you know it. Don't use too much smoke, if the bees become agitated on account of some sudden movement or jolt, wait awhile or ever postpone the operation for awhile

A bee keeper hasn't saves a lot work when used in conjunction with a queen excluder. If special protection doesn't rely on the dogs, don the standard beekeeper's bee.

MRS. FRANK WEBER FETED ON ARRIVAL

On Tuesday of last week a largely attended shower was held in the Anglican Church Hall in honor of Mrs Frank Weber, a war bride who recently arrived from England.

Bingo and other games were enjoyed, after which Mrs. A. Clemons presented the bride, who received her gifts before a background of pink and white peonies and a ship in full sail bearing good wishes. The bride graciously thanked those present, saying that she felt certain she would enjoy her new home.

A delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

LARGE CROWD APPLAUDS LOCAL AMATEUR SHOW

Something just a bit different to the normal trend of social entertainment was presented by the Legion Branch at Sedgewick last Saturday evening, in the form of an Amateur Program of local talent.

The hall was packed to the doors for the entertaining and talented show and the large crowd left with the feeling that the evening had been very well spent. The splendid promotion of the cash prizes for the most entertainment should take place.

The numbers so presented to the audience were: Vocal Solo, Roger Bjornson, (under 15); Song and Dance, Doreen Monk; Vocal Solo Little Baker (not in 5 or 8 class); Vocal Solo, Jimmie Braiden (2nd in 5 to 8 class); Tap Dance, Barbara Smith and Judith Simmes (1st in 9 to 11 class); Piano Solo by Lloyd Fletcher; Vocal Duet, Susie Smith and Jimmie Braiden; Song, Gertrude Fisher, Piano Solo, Joyce Lind (guest); Vocal Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Peterson; Vocal Solo, Rod McKinnon; Vocal Solo, Lorraine Ward (first in 12 to 16 class); Dance, Gertrude Fisher and Janet Beairsto; Vocal Solo, Susie Smith; Song, Bill Lloyd.

As an added attraction, the Master of Ceremonies, W. H. Hardisty favored us with his own version of "There Ain't Nobody Here But Us Chickens" in his inimitable manner, and very entertaining barnyard fowl. Mrs. Jim Baker sang two pleasing numbers to the strains of the guitar, the Pro Patria Boys Trio and Mrs. Jim Baker sang two very acceptable song numbers.

It was a very pleasing and well-balanced program, and we will await another presentation.

MR. AND MRS. H. TETLOCK HOLD 35TH ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday, July 11th about one hundred friends and neighbors of the Sedgewick and Killam districts gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tetlock to surprise and help them celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary.

On behalf of those present, Mr. D. V. York of Killam gave a congratulatory speech and presented the honored guests with a purse of silver, to which they both responded gratefully. Buffet supper was served.

The South Killam Service Club met at the home of Mrs Irvell Smith with all of the executive present. A motion was made to give the Hospital $10 for the X-Ray Fund and $5 to the Band if there was an aid of the Memorial Rink Motor is the better amount was made by the Club. Tue. is the last.

It was decided to hold their annual picnic at the Sedgewick Lake on July 21st.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

For the benefit of our readers who live many miles from here, I might say a little space this week to tell a short story about the weather and the crop conditions herebouts.

At the outset I may say well definitely any great hopes that our distant and western LAY have of reaping a profit of any size out of this year's plantings. Frankly speaking, the crop situation around here looks as bad as any we have seen for some years. On Sunday and Monday this week we received the first good rain of the crop season so far this year With hundreds of acres which failed to even germinate it is very difficult at this time to predict just what the final outcome will be But one thing is certain, and that is the season grain and feed situation and possibly raise the yield of other grains by a bushel or two, but not to all the year looks like a dud.

We are informed by the District Ag. at Camrose that the outlook for hay supply for next winter is the best since 1936, and that the Government are to publicize the fact that farmers would be more than well advised to cut all the hay and other feeds possible in view of the impending shortage. They certainly believe. Put up that hay.

It might be advisable to consider the strains of the guitar, the Pro Patria Boys Trio and Mrs. Jim Baker sang two pleasing numbers to the strains of the guitar, the Pro Patria Boys Trio and Mrs. Jim Baker sang two very acceptable song numbers.

It was a very pleasing and well-balanced program, and we will await another presentation.

I had a man in my office yesterday who stole a sneak look at one page of this week's issue, the first page I believe and wrote a letter to the editor by one Carl P. Colvin. After reading it he remarked that he was surprised that I should print a letter in which I was being raked over the coals. He thought it was my privilege to refuse such articles. Sorry but such is not my policy. The fact that Mr Colvin wrote the letter and took the time to do so presented to do so by several other readers indicates to me that my little weekly sheet is being read and that's what I survive on. I have no restrictions on what you write or who you write about so long as you stay within certain rules of journalism and certain laws of the land.

Things are beginning to warm up a bit as far as Alberta is concerned. The latest things to happen is the announcement that the Government of Alberta is making any argument to contain the position. The quotation shows as I read suggests that there may be other factors entering into the cost of living. It is true that in Premier Ernest Manning has been mild suggestions that there might be other factors than labor costs, but has never at any time to my knowledge considered those other reasons were sufficiently important to dismiss by defining or labeling them. It states in the July 1st issue that the so called free enterprise (by the way which is not free or even enterprising) does play its part. The Canadian Government is also a factor in the cost of living. Then there is the cost of transportation, the cost of materials and the cost of labor. Each of these factors is a part of the cost of living. Each of these factors is a part of the cost of living. Each of these factors is a part of the cost of living.

Food Production In Britain

THE CRITICAL WORLD FOOD SHORTAGE which began during the war has placed increasing demands on agriculture in those food-producing countries in which the growing of crops was not interrupted by the conflict. With the demand for grain and other crops far exceeding the amount which could be produced, there have been no surpluses in any country and in many places rationing has been in effect to ensure an equitable distribution of essential foods which were in short supply. Because of these conditions, extraordinary demands have been placed upon farmers, and agriculture which at all times is an important industry, has become an increasingly vital factor in world economy. Canada has contributed a great deal toward relieving the international food crisis and much credit has been given to the achievement of Canadian farmers in this important matter.

Great Progress Has Been Made

In Great Britain, where there has always been a heavy demand for Canadian farm products, great progress has been made in agriculture since 1939. At that time agriculture was Britain's largest industry occupying 70 per cent. of the land area of England and Wales and employing either directly or indirectly more than a million people. In spite of this, however, one third of the food consumed there was produced in other countries. The outbreak of war, and the cutting down of food shipments from this country by the German submarine menace in the Atlantic, made it necessary for production in Britain to be greatly increased, as well as for food to be strictly rationed. Various methods were used to increase production including the bringing of expert advice to the farmers, increasing the use of machinery, draining land, and improving poor farms. Minimum wages for farm work was established by fixing maximum wages for workers. Training farm workers to their jobs, and organizing the Women's Land Army and seasonal help from many sources

* * * *

Have Learned By Experience

The most impressive advance made during that period was in farm mechanization. Two-thirds of the machinery used was made in Britain, and over two years set up from which farmers could purchase it at reasonable rates. As a result of these efforts, Britain produced 70 per cent. of her own food requirements during the war. When it became clear after the war had ended, that it would be necessary to continue to produce as much as possible in view of the grave world food shortage, plans for maintaining during the war proved valuable in planning a policy for agriculture to meet the needs of the times. Assured markets and guaranteed prices, announced well in advance, are basic features of the new policy as are the guarantee of minimum wages for farm workers and the power for the government to ensure, when necessary, that land be properly farmed. An interesting article on this subject, published recently by the British Ministry of Information concludes "The British farmer faces the future with confidence, knowing that the best machine and technical aid in the world are at his disposal and that his rightful place in the life of the country is firmly established."

Industrial Development Through Water Power, Prairie Irrigation

SLANTING its technical programme primarily to two developments of foremost current interest in the region of meeting, the 61-year-old, 16,000-member Engineering Institute of Canada at Banff spotlighted Prairie water and oil.

A new Western Water Board, recently agreed upon by the governments of Canada, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Alberta should provide an excellent medium for co-ordination of engineering work relating to the mighty Saskatchewan and also to advance inter-regional studies, said Manitoba Mines & Resources Deputy Minister D. H. Stephens.

In planning for any development of those waters "we have reached the stage where planning within interprovincial regions isn't enough."

Manitoba, with no large known sources of coal, oil or natural gas, "looks to water power as an energy source and energy reserve, Mr. Stephens said.

"The people of Manitoba place much emphasis on water power in their thinking and planning. With only 16 per cent of the province agricultural, a large part of the remainder must look to forestry and mining to provide the main economic activities of the future. The forests will provide pulp, paper and cellulose products more readily than lumber and development of those as well as base metal industries needs cheap power."

Without Island Falls on the Churchill River or some other water power site which could be equivalent in terms of capacity and costs," Mr. Stephens said, "the Flin Flon mine which now supports a city of 10,000 people could never have developed. It takes almost 100,000 hp. to keep Flin Flon going and there are other large known deposits of ore in the immediate vicinity of Flin Flon for the treatment of which still more power is required. Without the water powers on the Winnipeg River there would be no paper industry at Trout Falls in Manitoba."

A "Saskatchewan River Authority" to deal with the use of water from that "most important stream serving the Prairies"?

Such an organization is foreseen as a possibility of the future by Major Gen. Howard Kennedy, consulting forestry engineer and chairman of the newly created federal-provincial Eastern Rockies Forest Conservation Board.

The Board was formed to administer that portion of the forest reserves on the eastern slopes, which includes streams feeding the Saskatchewan. It will act mainly as consultant, decide what fire protection measures are adequate, what engineering projects are necessary. It will use existing federal and provincial services rather than build any new.

One of the first major construction projects will be development of a north-south road system in the international, provincial and parks systems. The Board believes the multiple use of the Saskatchewan in a few decades will depend largely on the measures it will carry out over the next few years. He said present plans provide for "the most comprehensive forest management project ever attempted in Canada if not in North America."

Does Alberta need more hydro power now?

Calgary Power's Production Superintendent T. D. Stanley gives a definite "yes", reports the electrical load in that province up an average 18 per cent in the first four months. "Even with installation of 30,000 kw in the Edmonton steam plant now under way, additional hydro power or other development must go ahead at once."

There is at present developed in the Bow Basin 100,000 hp., with an ultimate development of at least 500,000 hp. possible. "Investigation of other rivers in Alberta isn't far enough advanced to give a detailed picture of possible power available. The Dominion Water & Power Bureau has estimated 1,250,000 hp. but Albertans consider this very conservative and that with combined irrigations and power schemes the total available will be even much higher."

What industrial development will grow from new Prairie irrigation?

The million acres of expected additional irrigation in Alberta could readily bring about a population increase of 150,000 and major growth in beet sugar and canning, according to Ing. E. F. Palmer, Experimental Station superintendent at Lethbridge.

The establishment of food processing industries in a natural accompaniment of irrigation development under conditions as they exist on the Canadian prairies. With the enough factor stimulated, uniform supplies of raw products are assured without long freight haul.

"Under irrigation a dry climate with long growing seasons becomes a valuable asset in those who make large investments in processing plants," he said. The regions with the best sugar and canning industries are growing in Southern Alberta.

Of the million acres of new irrigation projected perhaps three quarters would be potential sugar beet and canning area. Lethbridge area of its farms and 12 canneries.

The growth of these industries are, of course, on markets as well as on irrigation expansion. The market for canned goods is people material and may be greatly influenced by development in Canada's northland.

Less Milk Produced In Canada

OTTAWA — Less milk was produced in Canada April than in the corresponding month a year ago, the bureau of statistics reported.

Milk production in April totalled 1,266,872,000 pounds, a decline of almost eight per cent from April, 1941.

Total supply of butter, creamery, dairy and whey totalled 41,750,000 pounds, a drop of almost 6,500,000 pounds from the corresponding month a year ago.

Some Drownings Said Unnecessary

Hundreds of Canadians die every summer from drownings. The reason for most drownings is carelessness and, in some instances, is due to the fact that artificial respiration efforts are discontinued too soon.

It is the contention of the Health League of Canada that many deaths from drowning can be prevented this summer first by the running of no unnecessary risks by spectators and others who love by the water, and second, by prompt and long-continued use of artificial respiration methods when accidents do occur.

The possibilities of long-continued artificial respiration are not fully realized and this in the face of the fact that there are well-authenticated reports of artificial respiration being successful after as many as five hours.

Proper Methods Have Chances

Even if the victim has been in the water for as long as 20 minutes, there is a chance life is not extinct—that is a chance proper recommendation methods will bring back consciousness.

The Health League believes that if the possibilities of long-continued artificial respiration become universally recognized, the public press will not have to carry such reports as artificial respiration was applied for 15 minutes before death was pronounced.

Artificial respiration must be started as quickly as possible and continued for a long period six hours or more. Frequently the patient will begin to breathe spontaneously in the region of the 20th minute. If possible the patient should be kept warm with blankets and hot water bottles.

Measures should remember these points:

1—Clear the patient's mouth.
2—Start artificial respiration at once.
3—Keep the patient warm.
4—If the person is able to swallow, give hot drinks.

CEILING REMOVED OFF WINTER WHEAT

OTTAWA — Trade Minister Howe announced in the commons the removal of the price ceiling on Ontario winter wheat.

With the removal of the ceiling an eight-cent-a-bushel payment which has been made to producers will be discontinued.

Mr. Howe said he could not say whether it would be necessary to continue export controls on Ontario winter wheat. If the international wheat agreement goes into operation Aug. 1 as planned Ontario wheat will come under it and controls will be necessary.

To Tag Moose in Caribou District

WILLIAMS LAKE, BC — Tagging of bull moose in the Caribou is being undertaken by the Game Department in an effort to secure more information about the movements of the animals.

There is considerable controversy over the distances these animals travel, and little is known of the ages to which they grow. Robert Cleveland of Bridge Lake is tagging some for the department, and it is hoped to make arrangements in other areas for similar work.

TREES WELL NAMED

Eucalyptus trees are called "gum fever trees", because they are used in many countries for draining malarial swamp areas. They grow rapidly in marshy land and soon drink the soil dry.

Sclerosive Method Popular

The most popular method of artificial respiration in the Schaefer method in that the body is raised quickly by the waist to allow water to drain from the lungs and stomach. It is then placed in a prone position with the head and chest lower than the rest if possible. The head should be turned on one side and the arms. The rescuer kneels astride the patient and applies vigorous rhythmically in the region of the ribs. If possible the patient should be kept warm with blankets and hot water bottles.

1—Clear the patient's mouth.
2—Start artificial respiration at once.
3—Keep the patient warm.
4—If the person is able to swallow, give hot drinks.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

VANCOUVER — Vancouver General hospital has officially opened what is believed the first free chiropody clinic in Canada.

A suspected unexploded bomb burning on a field near the Airport at Gravesend, England, turned out to be a wasp's nest.

Mrs. Joan Wilkins left Dublin Airport for London with 24 eggs in a box. When she arrived she found 22 eggs and one chick.

Westminster War Memorial is also in the south transept of Westminster abbey will be unveiled by the Queen on Remembrance Day, Nov. 7.

Hon. Cole Gilmore, State Secretary, told the Commons 11,972 native Canadians had taken out citizenship certificates in the 1947-48 fiscal year the largest annual citizenship program.

The Duke of Edinburgh has been appointed personal aide de camp to his father-in-law, the King. The appointment was made at the King's request.

Twenty-four British air cadets will be flown to Canada in August for a 16-day visit as part of an exchange program of British and Canadian cadets, it was announced.

STOCKHOLM — Special receptions for tourists are planned by Sweden to welcome Swedish-Americans and Canadians who visit their mother country this summer and autumn.

KNOWLEDGE OF FIRST AID IMPORTANT IN PLANNING A CAMPING TRIP

The following article written by Harvey Dancy, the national director of First Aid of the Canadian Red Cross Society, appears exclusively in this issue and which appeared in Canada's national health magazine "Health."

"SUMMERS days are happy days" is a safety" and in most cases this is true. But often, much too often, people have had the happiness and pleasure of summer vacations almost shattered or at least marred by an accident which could possibly have been prevented had they been a bit more careful, or at least have been less severe had they known the proper first aid and given it immediately.

And as you plan a camping trip to take to the woods to go native to get away from it all. Very good and I hope you have a good time—returning with new fitness, vigour and health if you return. It is an ugly thought yet each year we are shocked by the accounts of accidental deaths that have occurred among motorists, campers, fishermen and others having no more serious thought in life at the time than that of having a good time resting up a bit and storing up a few vitamins for the winter season. When we plan our vacation these things do not seem to be considered. We don't like to think about it and so we don't think about it.

Only one person in ten in Canada is a competent swimmer but this doesn't prevent our holiday crowds from rushing to the lakes and rivers and jumping into canoes, shifty sailboats and into unseaworthy craft and for a few short minutes, break practically every safety rule pertaining to the water. It is estimated that not one person in fifty is a trained woodsman yet this does not prevent them from grasping an axe and cutting a tree unless they should be restrained.

Are we being a bit morbid and depressing trying to kick the fun out of vacation time? Far from it but there is a right and wrong way to do everything and camperaft is no exception. Injured First Aid to the injured is of vital importance and no campaign group should be without at least a trained First Aider, true first aid commences with accident prevention.

Good campers are safe campers and an excellent example of this is Mr. H. H. Peters who in writing for the R-d Cross Water Safety Manual, points out many valuable safety practices that should be learned by us all.

Canoe trips in camping, he says, are among the most experienced that anyone can enjoy, but should not be undertaken unless you are fairly qualified to meet all emergencies. Campers must learn to function as a competent unit, be prepared to face all situations.

If on a canoe trip you must know how to swim, paddle, carry a canoe, provide shelter be competent in First Aid knowledge and life saving among other things. Every camper, be he a leader or not, should be qualified in the safety essentials, such as swimming, paddling and First Aid.

Special problems arise depending on your type of camping. We have alluded to canoeing, but there is also hiking, cycling, horseback riding, and motoring, all of which have their special hazards and require special precautions, but in all of them common sense is most important.

The experienced camper uses certain skills unnecessarily and acquires outdoor sense and good judgment which keep him out of many difficulties. The inexperienced must learn the hard way and, until they have gained this experience in the rest many of those who know, must be more thoroughly trained in the basic skills and put certain rules.

First Aid for camping emergencies is little different from that given anywhere else, with the exception that they usually occur many miles from "civilization" and a doctor may not be able to be called in under some time. You are on your own, you must rely on your knowledge and materials available at the time of the accident. More than ever it is essential that campers be very thoroughly trained first aiders, which training is by no means complicated.

Simple things like sunburn, insect bites and the very common "cold sores" are the "rattler", which is located principally from the Okanagan Valley, B.C., Saskatchewan, the Niagara district and parts of Nova Scotia. A death from snake bite in Canada is rare.

Snake poisoning. Don't take a chance on eating mushrooms when in doubt. Mushrooms grown over experts have been fooled on occasions. Do not use foods kept overnight, particularly those with a milk base, unless you have adequate refrigeration facilities. Be sure your food is free of all garbage and cut down on fly menace.

Sunstroke may easily be the result, again, of carelessness and progress. Clothing and common sense regarding the length of time spent in the heat of the mid-day sun may often prevent it. However, if the victim gets a sunstroke, place him in the shade in a cool shady place, apply wet cold cloths to the head and loosen the clothing. Get a doctor as soon as possible and let him do the rest.

Every camper should be able to recognize the poison ivy plant. First Aid can thoroughly wash the area with strong soap and warm water and apply a paste of baking soda and water. Do not have contact with the plant until the full-blown rash appears a little later.

Severe hemorrhage give artificial respiration, splint fractures and transport the injured with the least rough ground or in small boats.

Cuts with accompanying hemorrhage seem to be about as important able to camping as the cut or bruise and bones, and no camp leader in charge of campers is worthy of the name if he or she is unable to promptly and efficiently give First Aid to control a hemorrhage or prevent infection.

The first step should be taken on the first day of camp by carefully instructing your new campers on the proper use of knives, hatchets and axes. These are essential pieces of equipment when camping, but can be dangerous

When using an axe, be sure no spectators are standing nearby, that there are no obstructions within the range and that the axe used for the swing against a solid bush log and away from the steward's hand. Never chop after dark if avoidable, don't take wild unpleasant swings at loose dry sticks. When not in use, keep the axe-blade covered. When carrying it, do so with the blade down or turned away from you so that should you fall you will not fall on it.

Similar precautions should be enforced regarding the use of knives. Always cut away from your body to prevent the blade from slipping when pulling your hand.

Fractures, sprains and strains occur very frequently when camping; sometimes from walking on uneven ground carrying heavy bags or canoes, falling from a horse or from a high rock or from diving into unknown waters.

It is important to be able to recognize that an injury as serious as a fracture has occurred, and this is usually indicated by pain under pulling and the part injured is very tender to look. There may be some deformity if the injury has existed for a time easily seen if the fracture is severe, and the part involved is usually useless. If any of these signs show themselves you must suspect a fracture to be present and splint the area very carefully as a doctor can take over. Often an X-ray is necessary to prove or to let the doctor that it is fracture exists, so it will frequently be impossible for you to decide if in doubt splint. When obtaining splints, the material must be carefully chosen and should be long enough but not too long or firm enough but not too heavy. They should be well padded and be long enough to immobilize the joints on either side of the suspected fracture.

The next step would be to transport the victim back to a doctor and this may present a major problem. If you are inexperienced and unable to move the victim with absolute safety to the injured part, it is much better to send someone for a doctor, or a nurse or an Advanced First Aider to supervise this important procedure. This is particularly so with broken backs or necks. Keep the victim lying flat on his back and quiet, until all arrangements have been made for moving.

With lower injuries, such as of the arm or leg, much depends again on the severity of the injury, the number of people assisting you and the facilities available as to how or when the victim will be moved.

There are many ways, depending on the above, that are taught in First Aid classes and the knowledge should be as essential to the camper on the very canoe in which he intends to travel.

There are many other injuries that occur in camping, such as sunburn, sunstroke, poison ivy, occasionally a snake bite and even food poisoning. The latter sometimes from improper storage of food or attempting to eat mushrooms found along the trail, that turn out to be the poisonous variety.

In most of these conditions, by observing a little common sense one can prevent them from occurring. Severe sunburn should never occur if you are careful against it. Don't fall out in the hot sun too long and always have exposed area covering added as oil, but if you should get unlucky, promptly apply a little calamine lotion or cover oil to the burned area.

Summer is the time of the year when we are more apt to take on new hobbies and one of the things that we do note and Wimpy had a pathetic observation of the big boat. He stared dejectedly when he roared, and when Mole lay like an immobile log in the pan thinking. Wimpy came timidly closer to the bars.

TORONTO MEDICAL SOCIETY WATCHING MALARIA CLOSELY

In a food selection tip to touring vacationists, Dr. D. L. MacLean of Toronto advises it always is important to investigate eating arrangements. Contamination can cause food poisoning.

"When selecting foods to eat, remember that certain foods are more likely to be safe than others," states Dr. MacLean in an article—"Instruction for the Summer Traveller"—in the current issue of Health, official magazine of the Health League of Canada. Dr. MacLean is secretary of the School of Hygiene, University of Toronto.

"The contamination of the food is usually by flies or the fingers of foodhandlers," he says in part. "Consequently if you have any doubts about the sanitary habits of the foodhandlers or the appearance of flies, be exceedingly careful of what you eat.

"The foods likely to be safe generally, are cooked meat and vegetables, eggs boiled, fried or poached and fruits and vegetables or bananas, the thick skins of which act as a protection.

"The foods most commonly connected with food poisonings, apart from meat and shellfish poisoning of course, are meats such as hashes, hamburgers, meat and chicken pastes, other foods which are mixed or warmed up and keeping for some time before being served, tinned fish improperly cooked salads and the like, milk products, cream or milk products, if pasteurized in a reputable dairy, are safe, providing that they have been stored in a safe manner until dispensed.

Dr. MacLean also warns against unsanitary toilet arrangements, impure drinking water and unclean sleeping accommodations. In regard to the use of pasteurized milk, he states further that if safe milk is not obtainable, vacationists should make arrangements to pasteurize their own supplies or rely on canned or powdered milk products.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE PATTERN

By ANNA E. WILSON

WIMPY stood looking at the great Pan-gauge track with big, bushy Ole Peters riding it, with a load of freight Wimpy shivered, then jumped as the voice of the President barked out.

Where are those stock reports, Wimpy? It does seem as if you could find some work to do around here instead of standing staring at the roof."

The stock reports, to their sorrow, knew a big deal was coming on, the President's desk, placed there by Zack, the red-headed office boy Zack had no fear whatever of the President, who tolerated his lack of respect for any kind of authority with restrained patience, but sometimes it seemed as if the President's usually hardly are Wimpy's small, underpaid figure and sullen frightened face without barking at him. The President was a big man and plump, while Wimpy stood a bare five feet two and weighed little over a hundred pounds.

Wimpy climbed up on his stool and started working at his ledgers. He was chief clerk and should have been head bookkeeper long ago for his work was accurate, but when it came to promotions Wimpy was always passed over in favor of more aggressive men.

The old man's on the ramp this morning, Wimpy" Zack had heard the President's name so many times in one day that he had learned to call him "Doctor's just reported that Ole's got to have the cream off his stomach and from now on he can have only cream of wheat gruel and eggnog for some time. Now Ole's nervous enough without him interfering unscientifically cooked meals and the like. Ole's a good patient, and articles likely to be attractive to him, such as apple pies, fried cooked cakes, candied apples, custards, cream puffs, etc."

"Yessir," Wimpy said, "Saturday night's my night off, and I'll get right on it in the Park."

Zack whistled cheerfully. "Bet the pigeons get most of it, Wimpy. It's a shame keeping you here all those years when you should be on the book." He jumped as the President's voice came at them.

"Wimpy, what's the time about it?"

Zack grabbed the time sheet and 6-1. At the President's query Wimpy rushed his head on his fifteen-year-old neck and walked in toddy.

Wimpy wished he could be more like Zack. To be sure the President barked at Zack, too, but he was very apt to give him a cigar quarter or a bottle of coke, just as he was apt to give the big cream but Wimpy was so insignificant that in the readjustment he was completely over-looked.

Wimpy put his desk tidy and put it up his lunch. He put his hat on carefully, and calling good-bye to Zack, went out on the street. He hurried a bus timidly, pushing in among the passengers, and got out at the Park. He passed through the Park, and entered at the big iron gates of the Zoo. The gateman smiled as he took his ticket. He a waiting for him, eating his heart out," he joked coldly, as Wimpy made his way to the cage of Mole, the big African lion.

Wimpy was a little man, shy and timid. Someone had told him once that we are very apt to take on the qualities of the things that we admire and Wimpy had a pathetic admiration for big lion. He often secretly dreamed when he roared, and when Mole lay like an immobile log in the pan thinking. Wimpy came timidly closer to the bars.

One rainy Saturday afternoon with the lion made Wimpy's life intolerable. Watching Mole, he could imagine himself walking right up to the President and asking for the job of chief bookkeeper. He imitated the dignified walk of the great beast, one foot ahead of the other, slow and sure, or he just sat jungle on the iron bench and studied him. Sitting thus, Wimpy's heart swelled and his dreamed happily of doing some fine deed that would bring him into the limelight of the office. He could imagine the President leaning over and maybe shaking him by the hand.

But Monday morning found Wimpy back at his desk, and the dream receded as ever. There wasn't much opportunity for doing daring deeds at Zimmerman's, and if there was, it didn't come in the way of lion tidbits, as no matter how willing.

"Wimpie", the President's voice was worse than usual by the sound of his bark, "Go out and tell Ole I want him."

Wimpy went out into the body of the office and looked towards the great cage just as he heard a startled shout from the foreman. The big crane hatched, came to a dead stop in the middle of the track and Ole Peters was seen falling over against the side of his basket.

"Help! Help!" the foreman's voice was hoarse, "Ole's having a heart attack."

In less than a minute the whole office was in a hubbub with the President yelling for someone to do something, but it seemed as if there was nothing to do. The crane operation was dangerous. The only way to get help to him was to climb up the crane truck, only a few inches wide, and above the main floor. How high up at the dizzy height at the track Ole lay like a limp, inert mass of human body.

Wimpy put down a ratrail and quietly got into the crane truck and started to climb, and Wimpy climbed steadily. His stomach was sick and his head dizzy but he reached the track and started to walk out to Ole. Half way across the track he glanced down and suddenly realized that he was standing sideways while his mind went black for a split second and then Wimpy, who was no longer Wimpy, he was Mole stepping lightly, he felt a thrill of joy and exhilaration. He climbed down into the basket, gave Ole his heart tablet and started the machinery. Engineers seized Ole and carried him down to the hospital while Wimpy, for the moment forgotten, climbed back on his high steel perch and felt the fear white and shaken in the lodge.

Even the President was surly on Tuesday Wimpy could hear him barking right through the office door, so Zack scurried in with the stock reports. "What's unusual about the pronouncers round this office anyway? Why hasn't a man like Wimpie been promoted long before now, says Zack." he roared at the boy, interrupting him. "Get out there and get to work with Wimpie

"Gosh Wimpy," Zack's voice was awed. "Everybody thinks it a wonderful, what you did for Ole."

"Wimpie, and Wimpy with dignity

CLEAR TITLES TO FARMS SOUGHT BY SOLDIER SETTLERS

OTTAWA — Clear titles for the 2,879 veterans of the First World War who still own the government a total of $3,121,000 for lands on which they were established as soldier settlers nearly three years ago, was demanded before the commons committee on returned soldiers' problems. Of the original 27,000 settlers, 16,000 left their farms.

H. C. Baker, president and Alfred J. Sibby secretary, of the Soldier Settlers Association, told of the unsolved requests for a clear title to their lands.

Recalling drouth, depression, plagues and fanatical visionaries, Mr. Baker said the settlers have been "pursued with savage vindictiveness" by the settlement board.

"At no time should the board have been empowered to collect from the settler until his food, shelter, fuel and other necessities had been provided for. But it was so empowered and left behind a trail of destruction, broken homes, hearts and untimely death," he said.

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

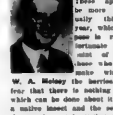
(By W. A. Mulcey, District Ag.)

Several days ago someone brought to this office a number of green Chinke Cherries of which the centre of the fruit was infested with small bugs. We sent this sample to the Provincial Entomologist and he has explained the infestation.

The specimens which you sent are Chinke Cherries which have been attacked by a small, gall-making plant louse which is quite closely related to the Hessian fly. These appear to be more than usually thick this year, which I suppose is rather unfortunate from the point or view of those who like to handle and wax fruits.



W. A. Mulcey

The berries, but I fear that there is nothing practical which can be done about it. This is a native insect and the severity of the attack must beattributed entirely to varying climatic conditions.

It appears that there is a very definite increase in the variety of insects. It might be advisable to become more fully posted on these Several meetings to discuss pests might be in order for next winter.

C. W. L. SPORTS AT STROME

The CWL Sports Day last Wed. was a decided success. A good turnout watched three good ball games. Strome defeated Killam in the first game. Killam retired Spring Lake and then went on to trim Strome in the final game.

Glenon took the money in the tedium softball and Daysland defeated the local junior baseball team.

Games of chance and bingo served to make it an interesting day in spite of two small showers.

OBITUARY

It was with profound sorrow that we learned of the death of Jim Smith. His passing, though not unexpected came with suddenness, a reminder that in the midst of life we are in death. A year ago the deceased was stricken with the pain ful malady to which he succumbed He had been under the doctor's care for some time and it was hoped that by the protection of God he might recover. But it was not to be and on Tuesday morning July 13th he slipped the sheerings of time and glided out calmly into the beyond and leaving the community all the poorer for his passing. He bore his pain with a quiet resignation which was an object lesson to us all. We have seldom seen a man face the end with such courage.

The deceased was born in Scotland and in 1911, as a boy he came to Canada. After a short time here he settled at Sedgewick where in partnership with his uncle the late Mr. Cumming, he engaged in farming.

Jim Smith was a man who was well thought of among his associates. He was always a pleasure to meet and talk with him. His genial manner gained him a host of friends. To his cousin Miss Agnes Dunphy we give our sincere sympathy. His passing will leave a painful blank in her life.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his cousin Agnes, Mrs. Ina Richardson; Mrs. M. Williams Mrs. Radske and Mrs. Ken Rowe, all cousins of the deceased. 1 sister and 2 brothers in Scotland and 1 sister in New Zealand.

Funeral services were held last Saturday from the Sedgewick United Church with the Rev. M. M MacLean officiating, and interment was made in Sedgewick cemetery.

Pall Bearers were Messrs. J. Richardson; G. Tuscon; J. Clark; J. Fraser and J. Smith.

Floral Tributes: Mr. and Mrs. A Burch; C. Jamieson; We Gascoyne, Mr. Tuscon; J. Sparrow; Mr. and Mrs. Ken; K. McGregor; G. Acheson; J.O. Clarke and J. Hallum families; B. Clarke; C. Robertson; Mrs. Lee and Ken; Joe and Jr. R.; Meg and Jim; Betty and Bill; Mr. and Mrs J. Jones.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank everyone for their many acts of kindness and for the floral tributes during the sickness and death of Jim Smith.

A. E. FEE TO CARRY S. C. BANNER FOR LOCAL RIDING

The nominating convention of the Sedgewick Constituency Social Credit Assn. was held in the Empire Theatre at Killam on Thurs. July 15th with a large number of constituents attending despite muddy roads and rainy weather.

Following the registration of the delegates and the appointment of the necessary committees, President James Gordon called for nominations for a Social Credit Candidate for the next Provincial election. These nominations were Mr. S. A. Sorenson and Mr. A. E. Fee both of Killam Each nominee was allotted ten minutes to state his stand. The voting resulted in Mr. Fee being declared elected to contest the next election for the Social Credit party for the fourth time since the Government was first returned in 1935.

The evening meeting, in spite of the heavy rains during the day was attended by about 100 persons. The guest speakers, Hon. David Eve and Hon. Ivan Casey were stranded on their way from Edmonton and were unable to attend. Dr. H. Buyertenhuis of Camrose, the Federal Candidate for Battle River constituency and Mr. Fee both addressed the meeting.

POPLAR PARK CLUB MEETS

The regular meeting of the Poplar Park Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. Martin Jacobs on the 14th with 8 members and five guests present. All business in connection with the dance given by the Club on June 5th was wound up and proceeds amounting to $30 to be turned over to the Recreational Fund and Junior Red Cross hospital

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Storch Aug. 11th

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. E. —

Well, we figured our guess for the election on the 23rd was a fairly reasonable one and we had a share of our readers when were straightaway with us. The Government by selecting the 17th, shows how much it is to be wrong We have a good notion that it was all done just to embarrass after recalled all about my guess. I also think that all this guessing throughout the Province made the Government small reward in making their announcement just to keep us in hot water so to speak

Now however, the cat is out of the proverbial bag; theory has turned to fact and from now on we can expect political opponents to don their political front and start things rolling in earnest. From now on it will be easy to get into an argument as it is for labor to get a raise in pay.

It is very doubtful if the majority of us realized just how serious the situation might have become had the recent railway strike not been called off at the 11th hour. We just could not visualize the nation-wide theory which would have resulted if we who know this fact bear perhaps those who would have to do without the job. Knowing just what the thing means to the nation gives them the weapon to get results

As we predicted and have always practiced, rumor now has it that the railway companies are giving deep consideration to the plea for further boosts in freight and passenger rates of 15 percent Chances are more than fair that such a boost will be granted Without me or anybody else telling you on, you will be able to foresee railway companies soon asking for another boost in pay. With the threat of another strike they'll probably get what they ask for. So you and gentle reader the thing goes on and on. You work and work and spend your dough and where the thing will stop nobody will know Well as the late Mr. Aberhart used to say, "If you have not suffered enough yet it is your God given right to suffer some more" This thing has got to bust sometime and when it does the stench it going to drive it any of us to cover. We have to think of continuing strikes of a national scope, but such action may be necessary sooner or later

It seems to me that just a little more than a mere iota of good judgment in the right places would help.

* * * *

In spite of strikes and elections, there still agues that the grain and seed situation is much brighter than it was some two weeks ago. Coptic rains throughout the country have restored nature's wonderland and given the atmosphere a tang that is both beautiful and inspiring Near that the land has had a rebirth and pastures and meadows are greener than ever. I remind you again to put up all the feed you can. There will be a national shortage Look ahead and plan now for next winter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all those who assisted in putting out the fire on our farm on Sunday, July 11th. A special thanks to the Killam and Sedgewick Fire Departments

PAPER COW IN OTTAWA HELPS PRICE PROTEST AMUSES CROWDS—Ottawa, Ont., housewives protesting high meat prices brought cow hides from ranches in the capital's downtown section with the aniseed of their paper cow. Mrs. Gertrude Williams, president of the Ottawa housewives consumers association, dressed as a farmerette, led the mammal in the protest parade. "Don't let the cow jump over the moon," said a sign carried by a two-year-old bread-buyer.

BRIDGE SIGNS A WHOPPING SUCCESS—The Ivanhoe Bridge, which was officially opened by Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Ont., last week, has already handled more than 2,000 motor vehicles. Above, Premier Hepburn signs the bridge's first toll ticket, while Mrs. Hepburn looks on. The bridge, which included modelling of the latest bench seat, was built in 12 months at a cost of $1,500,000.

D.P.'S ARRIVE IN CANADA — Mother and children of post-Poland. Mrs. Jan Sherman and Shoshana, two were among the 75 D.P.'s who arrived in Canada to settle in Ontario. Mr. Pinman is here, too. Blonde 16-year-old Lithuanian girl, Helene Bernstein, hopes to go to University of Western Ontario in London next year. Her family will farm near there.

D.P.'S NEWCOMERS — Siegfried Nachel, 12, and his five-year-old sister Ilse, were among a group of displaced persons from Europe that arrived in Canada recently. The group will start life afresh in northern Ontario sawmills.

GOOD DAYS CATCH IN ANY MANS LANGUAGE. Good advertisers for western Ontario's citrus industries are Donald Mosher (left) and Ian Talbot, Albert, from Ont. They leave on trip to Grimsby, Ont., to find and rest next brought back 150 strings of 27 beauties. The motorette of fish on long string is a gem.

OIL SPRAYS GRAIN, BUT FARMER HAPPY—21 and M. Bowden, Saskatoon, Sask., homesteader in Bowden township, five miles north of Wakaw, says Oil are in happy. They are spraying their grain to destroy the possibilities of an oil well which has already been drilled on the farm recently. Admittedly the biggest well discovered in the province, it is situated on the recent drilling campaign began by Imperial Oil a year or more ago. Mr. Johnston admits there is talk of a 100-million-barrel field. The well came in at 1,930 feet recently and flowed at the rate of 1,000 barrels per day, spraying oil for 150 yards over grain fields.

Canada May Have King And Queen As Part-Time Residents

OTTAWA Prime Minister Mackenzie King said Monday commons he favored the country would look forward to the day when the King and Queen would make part of the year in the capital of Canada.

Introducing a resolution commending the federal parliament to the consideration of Ottawa as a permanent capital, Mr. King said he thought Canada would eventually make her place among the nations of the British Commonwealth.

The Dominion of Canada today is one of fortunate country in the world and has [illegible] of the whole of Canada. [illegible] no other country has said.

Sections began outside the capital [illegible] was supported.

Discussing the future of Ottawa Mr. King mentioned the capitals of the United States, Britain, France and Italy and said: "I believe as I said, such members of that body believe that Canada has a future greater [illegible] that [illegible] of the countries which have mentioned."

Mr. King's resolution calls for a special national capital fund with annual appropriations be parliament to finance projects recommended by the federal district commission.

It provides that expenditure [illegible] to be recommended on the [illegible] cooperation of Ottawa and other municipalities within the capital district.

He said improvement included [illegible] construction of new bridges and removal of the railway freight terminals will be extremely costly.

The federal government in city [illegible] and the province of Ontario and Quebec have direct interest and responsibilities in developing the national shrine. It would be impossible to keep them together unless this was done.

When you're in the right you can't afford to keep [illegible] when you're in the wrong you can't afford to lose it.

West Coast Whaling Industry Is Thriving

VICTORIA The whaling industry on the west coast of Canada is thriving, with [illegible] whale is thrown away in the process.

At a former B.C.A.F. base at Sand Harbor at the head of Quatsino Sound, west coast of Vancouver Island, the Western Whaling Corporation has set up a modern whaling station.

Operations started several weeks ago and already 10 [illegible] averaging between 60 and 70 feet each. [illegible] have been brought in. Many whales are reported in the vicinity and the three company vessels are out for the harvest.

A Fisher hopper has been turned into a reduction plant and a ramp connects water and land is being used to ring the catch to the plant.

RECIPES

CHICKEN FRICASSEE
2 pounds chicken
Cream
Chicken
1 egg loaf
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped salt pork fat or other fat
Soup flour

Singe, draw and disjoint a 2-pound chicken. Wash and rinse carefully. Put into a saucepan with 1 quart of water, 1 sliced onion with 2 cloves pressed into it, 1 bay leaf and salt and simmer slowly until tender. Remove chicken, dredge the pieces generously with the flour, salt and pepper and brown in the salt pork fat or other fat in a frying pan. When the pieces of chicken are nicely browned on both sides, add the stock in which the chicken has been cooked. If the gravy is not thick enough, add flour [illegible] to it. Season to taste. Arrange with a border of boiled rice. This is a good way to utilize fowls which need long, slow cooking to make them tender.

CHEESE AND NUT SALAD
1 cup cheese
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 cup sweet cream
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped pimento
½ cup chopped olives

Mash the cheese, moisten with cream and melted butter, season with salt and cayenne, add chopped nuts, pimento and olives, press into a mold and let stand 2 hours. Cut in slices and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing. Cucumber mold decorated with pimento shape into small balls and serve on head lettuce with French dressing.

(By Bank of Montreal)

Across the Prairie Provinces both precipitation and range of temperatures during the past two weeks, have varied widely. General conditions in Manitoba and Southern Alberta are good. In Central Alberta and much of Sask., early sown crops are subsistence only, but late sown crops are very spotty and good soil rains are urgently needed. Early sown wheat is in shot blade but generally speaking, late sown crops are patchy, other areas are late and uneven. Grasshopper are scattered points have done but damage excepting in central Sask Pastures and hay crops are generally satisfactory In Southeastern Alberta crops are showing improvement although moisture is needed Average to above normal crops of fall wheat and rye, oats and barley are forecast. In B.C. favorable growing conditions have prevailed during the past two weeks and the outlook generally is good Fruits and vegetables are progressing well and a good crop of hay is being harvested

Alberta All southern crops are progressing well. Late sown grains in Central Alberta are fair but late crops are poor Pood crops a predicted in the northeast section

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

(By W. A. Money, District Ag.)

The Alberta Branch of the Canadian Seed Growers' Assn. is holding a Field Day and an annual meeting at Lacombe at the Dom. Ex. Station on Friday August 13th. We recommend that all seed growers make a point of attending this Field Day. So you won't forget the date please put a very special mark on your favorite calender as you will remember Friday August 13th.

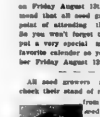
All seed growers are asked to check their stand of registered grain



from now on. Each seed grower must be fully familiar with the variety he is growing. I which although typical Thatcher were higher than the average stand of wheat by about 3 inches. One head had a distinct off-type rachis (Rachis is that part of the head to which the spikelets are attached). The appearance of the head was loose where as the typical Thatcher head is trim and close. Two heads were completely awned. Three were open and coarse. One head was dwarfed.

Length of Heads—
Thatcher Typical: 3¼, 3¾ and 3 in
Thatcher off-type 3 and 2¼
Thatcher Awned: 3¼, and 3 3/8 in.
Completely Off-type 4, 4¼,5 and 5½

At first sight the stand looks uniform but on close examination by you native different variations. A pure stand of wheat should not vary in any variation that can be observed by sight. It is quite easy to judge a stand of wheat. Oats are somewhat difficult and Barley is between Oats and Wheat.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO THE SOCIAL CREDIT, LIBERAL AND C. C. F. CANDIDATES IN THE SEDGEWICK CONSTITUENCY.

The National President, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. F. P. McCurdy, today announced that in response to a request for guidance as to the manner in which the Order as a whole in the various communities can take concerted action in the name of the Order to prevent the election of persons with subversive ideas, the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas the National Chapter Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire views with apprehension the growth of Communism in Canada with its dangerous threat to the long established freedoms of the Canadian people, and

"Whereas immediate concerted action is imperative,

"Therefore be it resolved that every member of the Order be urged to take an active and intelligent interest in the selection of candidates for Municipal, Provincial and Federal elections and use her vote and influence toward the defeat of communist."

In accordance with this resolution Princess Royal Chapter I.O.D.E. Killam, respectfully requests that Social Credit, Liberal and C.C.F candidates of the Sedgewick Constituency to make known their stand on this question in the press and on the platform.

WEED CONTROL

Canada Thistle and Sow Thistle are getting to be a nuisance to the farmers. Control methods for these weeds are as follows — good summer-fallow, working it with plow, disk, foot cultivator; and weed cultivator. The last time working just before frame-up. When Canada Thistles appear in crop, cut out as much as possible.

When Sow Thistle appears in crop pull or cut all plants if possible for Sow Thistle is a heavy seeder Pull Rye is excellent to control both the Tartarian Buckwheat and Tree Mallow.

By the above method, the use of chemicals is avoided, which is sometimes risky in eradicating thistles and where the above method is used it will save a badly infested crop from being condemned by the Weed Inspector.

There are also strange weeds appearing in this district such as Henry Cress. Leafy Spurge, Russian Knapweed, Field Bindweed and Perennial Sow-thistle and Toad Flax

If any farmer has a strange weed appear on his land and does not know what it is, get in touch with the nearest Weed Inspector as soon as possible for advice on control or same as they are very hard to eradicate.

I trust that every farmer will do his utmost to co-operate in getting rid of these noxious weeds.

PLOWING BEE HELD AT J. CHRISTENSEN'S

Johnny Christensen is still confined to the Killam hospital, as on Tuesday July 20th a horse threatened with their trotters and plows assembled at his farm north of Sedgewick to plow the memorial bee. A big yellow cat powerful 60's and 90's pulling four plows and three forage tractors and busy little Packs chased each other madly about the field all day and by set p.m the 125 acres was done

Bill's big red truck was on hand at noon to see to the workbees as they pulled into the barn yard

Mrs. Johnny ably assisted by several other ladies fed the workers and bee." The pies were epics of perfection and with meringue no less. And more coffee pure nectar All in all it was a picnic, not a job

WEED CONTROL

Canada Thistle and Sow Thistle are getting to be a nuisance to the farmers. Control methods for these weeds are as follows — good summer-fallow, working it with plow, disk, foot cultivator; and weed cultivator. The last time working just before frame-up. When Canada Thistles appear in crop, cut out as much as possible.

When Sow Thistle appears in crop pull or cut all plants if possible for Sow Thistle is a heavy seeder Pull Rye is excellent to control both the Tartarian Buckwheat and Tree Mallow.

By the above method, the use of chemicals is avoided, which is sometimes risky in eradicating thistles and where the above method is used it will save a badly infested crop from being condemned by the Weed Inspector.

There are also strange weeds appearing in this district such as Henry Cress. Leafy Spurge, Russian Knapweed, Field Bindweed and Perennial Sow-thistle and Toad Flax

If any farmer has a strange weed appear on his land and does not know what it is, get in touch with the nearest Weed Inspector as soon as possible for advice on control or same as they are very hard to eradicate.

I trust that every farmer will do his utmost to co-operate in getting rid of these noxious weeds.

Premier Manning has announced there will be a plebescite on the development of Hydro Power in Alberta. Due to pressure from farm organizations and other Provincial bodies he appointed a Power Commission several years ago.

His Commission has never done anything—it was never intended that it should. Like Mr. King's price enquiry commission it was to be a smoke screen to cover a do nothing policy. To appease the farm demand for rural electrification. Manning put pressure on the private power companies to at least make a pretence of meeting this demand. Both Sedgewick and Killam saw the high handed way these people played. They held meetings and circulated petitions. Then it stepped dead in its tracks. As intended

Now Manning has the colossal gall to ask us to submit to his autocratic public power development if we want it done that way. That would be like asking a beer tender to enforce a temperance act, or setting a coyote to guard a hen house.

Social Credit has filled the air and press full of its devotion to private enterprise and of how it intends in a new extreme measure than the old time parties. He is now, seemingly ready to throw private power to the wolves to divert attention from oil. Oil is the crux of this thing — the very heart of his policies. He will do almost anything to save the oil for the Standard Oil interest of the U. S. A. What would be better a chance to vote on oil development? Small chance. When public indignation about the oil companies' greed became apparent last winter, the government announced it would modify its leases. It has already shown they lease oil rights on the checker board pattern. So he told the public that would be followed here. How did he apply this plan to the Woodhouse sector of Leduc field? In the township where the Imperial Oil crowd of the U.S.A. drilled their discovery well, he let them select their part in a solid block around the well and compelled the people of Alberta the far fringe and corners of the township Some checker board People have been known to lead dice and to fix fixes whose Manning has the unique distinction of being the first to think of ringing a checker board He will do the same with public power development if he has the chance

The Trend Of World Trade

WORLD TRADE IS ALWAYS a complex matter, and unsettled economic conditions are and have caused much speculation as to the outcome of the present situation. Great Britain, always an important trading nation has become of the serious dollar shortage there, been forced to look more and more to those countries which are within the sterling area for the goods which she must import. Consequently in Canada, which is a dollar country there is some anxiety as to whether Britain will continue to take the greater part of her imported food supplies here, or whether some of this trade may be diverted to countries within the sterling area. There is reason for some concern over this matter, since there are many indications that Britain intends to increase her purchases of food in those countries where the dollar shortage is not a consideration.

* * * * *

May Become A Competitor

It is foretold that Australia may become one important competitor in supplying the British food market. Recently, the Henry Turner, of the United Kingdom Food Ministry, commenting on discussions which has taken place with the Australian government regarding Australian food production, said that Australia could become a vast source of supply for Britain and much of Europe. The British colonial territories in Africa and other parts of the world are likewise increasing food production and may soon be in a position to send supplies to the United Kingdom. A plan to raise millions of pigs, to supply bacon to the British market, is under way in Queensland, and it is also planned to sow large areas in sunflowers, from which oil can be obtained to make margarine, which is widely used in Britain.

* * * * *

Plan Expansion In Australia

There are also plans for great expansion in the production of meat and eggs in Australia. In East Africa arrangements are being made to raise vast crops of grain, fruit, a source of fats and oils, and food production to be increased in other areas where dollars are required for trade. At present the world food situation is such that there are markets for all that is produced and we have recently been warned that Canada will be required to experience shortages in some things as a result of this country's participation in the European Recovery Program. There is no doubt, however, but that the future is uncertain, and that in all probability there will be many adjustments in the pattern of world trade. It is to be hoped that Canada will not find markets for her products depleted as a result of this apparently inevitable adjustment.

Days Of Peace Tough As War, Says Churchill

PERTH, Scotland. — Winston Churchill, accepting the freedom of the city with honor of Perth, declared in the Royalty, warned that the days of peace were no less difficult than those of war.

The biggest effort must be made now, he said, struggle and as exacting as that which won the victory. "We have more difficulties now than we had then," Churchill said.

He said the battle for peace requires the full, united effort of our whole nation, all classes and parties if it is to be that we may arise great in the generations we held when all was done.

Predicts Man May Fly Like Birds

CAMBRIDGE - People may be able to fly like birds in 50 years, says Roger Bishop.

The economist told an 1899 class reunion at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"Pre-packaged will be discovered some product which insulates against gravity. This would make it possible for an individual to stand on something three feet square and a few inches thick and eliminate his weight so that he could fly personally with or without the aid of a motor.

Night Driving Can Be Very Dangerous

Driving in the darkness light of an oncoming car is dangerous business dangerous alike to the dazzler and the dazzled. And it is so unnecessary. To dim the lights of a car is so simple and easy a task that it seems that the danger involved by not doing so would compel a motorist approaching another car at night to take this simple precaution against the possibility of accident to his own car as well as the cars of others. It should not take a hero to bring about the dimming of headlights. Common decency demands that a motorist practice this simple rule of night driving etiquette. For it is etiquette, and good manners are just as essential on the roads as in the ballroom.

Preserving : EGGS :

Buy Parking: Eggs which are to be kept for a short time can be preserved by packing them in trays, sheets, cotton, sawdust or salt. Great care must be taken to see that the packing material is perfectly dry and free from dust and odors. There is always danger of losing eggs by mould on the inside of the shell. If the packing material carries any dust it will be absorbed by the eggs and render them unmarketable for food.

Salt, unless perfectly dry, has a tendency to cake and under it difficult, if not impossible, to remove the eggs. The dampness may come from the eggs themselves, hence this method of packing is not generally practiced.

Lime Method: The lime solution is made by slaking three pounds of good quicklime in one gallon of water. Add to the milk of the lime then formed to three gallons of water. Keep the mixture well stirred for a day, then allow the excess of lime to settle and use only the clear liquid. Some people prefer to add salt to the mixture, using about ½ as much salt as lime. They claim that the eggs keep better and have a better flavor. This solution is extensively used, however, it is generally conceded that the lime solution requires more time and attention in preparation, and the results are no better than when using water-glass.

Water-Glass: Eggs preserved in water-glass will keep several months and can be used for all kinds of cooking—can be scrambled, fried or poached, but can not be boiled unless a hole is made in the end of the egg with a pin or needle to permit the air to escape. The pint, in water-glass preserved eggs, is liable to break easily and the white becomes watery and does not beat up well.

When preserving in water-glass use a five-gallon crock or jar, being sure it is thoroughly clean and dry. Strong nine quarts of water to boiling point and, when cool, place it in the crock. Add one quart of water-glass (sodium silicate), and stir and mix thoroughly. Put in the eggs. This quantity will be enough for preserving 2 to 3 dozen eggs, which may be increased in the solution all at one time or added as they accumulate.

Be sure that the solution is always at least two inches above the eggs at all times. Cover the crock to prevent evaporation.

FIRE CHIEF'S SOLO WAS INTERRUPTED

FLIN FLON, Man — Nero fiddled while Rome burned. And Flin Flon's fire chief Walter Edman played a Nero here recently, at least until the shrink of the fire alarm drowned out his violin solo at the end of the fireman's ball.

And while the fair sex was left to talk of many things, Chief Edman left the dance floor, changed his outfit, sparkled a chimney fire and returned to the party. He finished his solo, and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Population Trend Worries Great Britain

Four Within Next 20 Years Nation Will Be Composed Mostly Of Very Young And Old

LONDON — Britain lives in the shadow of an impending population crisis.

That is the opinion of population experts who warn the country is in danger of becoming a land composed mainly of the very young and the very old within the next 20 years. The reasons, they say, are a retreat from parenthood and a draining of middle-aged groups through emigration.

Those are the main findings of a report just issued by Political and Economic Planning, an independent non-party fact-finding organization. It has been probing population trends since 1929.

To counter these population perils, the report suggested, a "planned adoption of a "population policy" by the government. This should strive to increase the average family to 2.7 children, and create conditions where people will want, as well as be able to have four or five children.

The report predicted that Britain's population of 45,000,000 will be down 1,838,800 in 1970. At the same time that of western, central and southern Europe will be down by 9,888,000, that of northern and eastern Europe up by 27,000,000 and that of Russia up by 17,000,000.

The report also suggested that in the next 20 years population growth would halt in Canada, Australia, the United States and among white South Africans. But it expects to continue "for several generations" in South America.

The report said that migration of the young and vigorous to the Dominions can only make Britain's age structure still more disadvantageous. This could be prevented only if the Dominions accept "an appropriate percentage of those who are a burden on the community." But prospects of other countries admitting a certain portion of British population "are probably slight."

The report also found that the present increased birthrate in Britain may well be a temporary consequence of the war. It reported numbers soon would cease to increase and the population of elderly people "will grow from year to year."

Compensations

By JANE DALE

I have never seen the moonlight dancing upon the ocean wide,
Had I have seen the moonbeams dancing on pools across the countryside—

I have never seen a day a-dawning from the top of a mountain high;
But I have seen a prairie sunrise make glad a summer sky

I have never heard a nightingale, or seen a peacock's fine array;
But I have seen an ant hauling and heard a robin's roundelay.

Need for me has been the pleasure of wearing orchids rich and rare;
But I have had children's fingers twine daisies in my hair.

It has not been my lot to travel where wealthy people roam;
But God has given me eyes to see all the beauty around my home.

Tips On How To Keep Cool

NEW YORK — Stop talking about the heat and humidity and just relax. That's the best way to do it.

This was the advice offered by a recognized psychologist who also favors the mind-over-matter belief that mental layers of wool will help you beat the heat.

The modern way of dressing seems to feed the mind. Trouble with wearing too many clothing he said is that a person is not better he gets it all on. Result, he keeps the heat right next to his body.

Some other suggestions on how to beat the heat were:

Wear something on the head—this is already have a good tan. Then you personally important for older persons.

Yes for yourself, but be sure it is with a regular rhythm. Do not exert yourself. Take a swoon from those in the tropics be as quiet as possible during the heat of the day.

Gulping water by the gallon won't cool a person. It is harmful to health. It forces the heart to do extra pumping.

A cold drink is all right if you like such as tales.

Hot food should be avoided. Eat rarely digested and with light easily digested at the best if you want to stay cool.

Let the perspiration pour out. If you control you should perspire. It's not by your body a normal eliminating process.

The psychologist, who was in the army medical corps, said moderate exercise is during the hot months. The heat and humidity bring on a mental fatigue.

So therefore refrain from talking about the weather. Some work persons destroy himself.

The person who asks "Is it hot enough for you" the doctor has a name for it.

And then let him have

Greater Prosperity in Town and Country

Modern Massey-Harris Machines Increase Output per Man and give the Farmers Greater Buying Power

On Saturday nights all across Canada, the shopping centres of towns and smaller cities are crowded with farm automobiles and farm people. Side by side, with the town dwellers, farm people buy all kinds of consumer goods, from breakfast goods to broadloom rugs, from canned goods to casseroles, from radios to refrigerators.

Time was when farm buying was more limited, when farmhouse furnishings were more meagre. The change is due directly to the increase in the buying power of farm families.

The reduction in operating costs and increased output per man effected by modern farm machinery gives farm families today more income from their operations in supplying agricultural products for home and export markets and more money for both the necessities and luxuries of life. Greater prosperity for all.

Massey-Harris, builders of farm implements for over one hundred years, has contributed in no small measure to this progress through the development of modern labor-saving farm machinery.

Selected Recipes For All Occasions

Attractive, delicious desserts and cakes add the finishing touch to every meal, and whatever dessert you choose you should attempt to make it tasty and attractive. The cookie jar should always be filled for the unexpected company. The knack of making homemade candy should be acquired as it is mighty handy on special occasions and holidays. The use of fresh green salads are a mighty factor in pepping up tired appetites. We're sure you will find something to suit the fastidious taste among the following recipes.

DESSERTS

Lemon Sherbert

3 cups sugar
½ teaspoon lemon extract
Rind of 3 lemons
4 cups milk
4 egg whites, beaten stiff

Mix sugar, extract and juice. Add milk and egg whites. Pack at once in freezer in finely chopped ice and rock salt and freeze. Serves 6.

Fruit Mousse

1 cup fruit pulp
½ cup icing sugar
2 cups heavy cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine fruit pulp and sugar, mixing well. Fold into whipped cream; add vanilla. Mold, pack into ice and salt and freeze for 3 hours, or turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze for 2 to 4 hours, or until firm.

Approximate yield: 1 quart mousse

Variations: ½ cup sieved, stewed apricots and ½ cup mashed bananas

½ cup mashed peaches
¼ cup drained, crushed canned pineapple and ½ cup served stewed rhubarb
3 cup diced strawberries.

Chocolate Chip Ice Cream

2 egg whites
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup light cream, whipped
½ package semi-sweet chocolate chips, chopped.

Beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Add 2 tablespoons sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture will stand in moist peaks. Add remaining sugar to egg yolks and beat with rotary egg beater until thick and light. Add vanilla. Fold egg yolk mixture into whipped cream, then fold in egg whites. Add chocolate last, mixing lightly. Turn into tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. Freeze until firm. Freezing time: 2 to 3 hours. Makes about 1 quart ice cream.

CAKES

Old Fashioned Sour Milk Spice Cake

Cream together well ¼ cup butter or shortening, 1 cup sugar.

Add the following gradually while continuing to beat; 1 well-beaten egg, 2 cup sour milk or buttermilk.

Sift all dry ingredients and add to cream batter gradually:

2 teaspoons baking soda
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg
¼ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins or chopped dates

Pour into well-greased cake pan and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 40 to 45 minutes in shallow pan or 50 minutes in loaf pan.

Bishop's Cake

3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup granulated sugar
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ lb. semi-sweet chocolate, chips
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups coarsely-chopped nuts
1 cup coarsely-chopped dates
1 cup halved glazed cherries

Combine eggs and sugar; beat well. Sift and measure flour and sift again with salt and baking powder. Combine the fruits and nuts and chocolate and add half cup of the dry ingredients to the fruit mixture.

Add the dry ingredients alternately with the fruit mixture to the creamed mixture.

Pour into a well-greased loaf pan and bake at (325 deg. F.) for about 1½ hours.

Serve like fruit cake.

SALADS

Deviled Cabbage Salad

6 hard-cooked eggs
1 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups shredded cabbage
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
4 tablespoons sweet gherkins
2 tablespoons vinegar
Paprika

Mash egg yolks finely; add sugar, salt, mustard, vinegar and mayonnaise. Blend. Mix gently with chopped egg whites, cabbage and gherkins. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with paprika.

Cheese Slaw Salad

1 pound cottage cheese
1 small can crushed pineapple
2 tablespoons gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup mayonnaise

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Put cheese through ricer or sieve. Stir in pineapple and mix well. Fold in pineapple, cream whipped and combined with mayonnaise, and turn into ring mold rinsed in cold water.

Cabbage And Apple Salad

1 package Jelly Powder
2 cups hot water
½ cup shredded cabbage
½ teaspoon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup diced red apples
¼ cup chopped walnut meats

Dissolve Jelly Powder in hot water. Chill until slightly thickened.

Combine cabbage, vinegar, and salt and let stand about 20 minutes.

Fold seasoned cabbage, apples, and nuts into Jelly. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with dressing. Serves 6

MEAT DISHES

Pan Broiled Chops

Chops may be either loin or rib. Wipe and remove superfluous fat. Put chops in a smoking-hot frying pan very quickly on both sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Reduce heat and continue cooking, turning frequently. For rare chops, cook about 8 to 10 minutes; for well done 10 to 15 minutes.

Kidney Stew

1 pound kidney
1 carrot
½ medium-sized onion
2 cups water
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons drippings

Scrape and slice carrot, peel and slice onion, and cook together in 2 cups water until tender. Soak kidney in water for 1 hour. Drain, clean and dry. Dredge with flour. Heat fat in skillet. Drain vegetables from water, reserving liquid. Add kidneys, onion and carrots. Season with salt and pepper; cook for 5 minutes and serve.

Veal And Ham Pie

1½ pounds veal
2 hard-cooked eggs
1 onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon powdered herbs, salt, pepper, red pepper and mace to taste
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Pastry or biscuit dough

Cut veal and ham into thin slices. Trimmings from roast may be used. Mix on plate the flour, salt, pepper, red pepper, mace, powdered herbs and lemon rind, roll each piece of veal in this seasoning and lay in deep casserole, alternately, layers of veal, ham, and eggs cut in slices; pile this in centre of the dish, add cupful of water, and parsley; cover with dough and bake in hot oven for ½ hours.

When baked, add a little well seasoned stock. Serve hot or cold.

The Lunch Box

The lunch carried from home requires thought in planning so that it will be satisfying, nutritious and appetizing. The container used plays a large part in keeping the food in good condition.

The lunch box should be shut-proof, well ventilated and easily washed. Metal boxes have three advantages, and vacuum bottles they are easy to carry home. Some are arranged in compartments and are equipped with thermos bottles.

Sandwiches are not easily cleaned and unless the food is well wrapped, it will dry out quickly.

Fibre boxes are cheap, but they are absorbent and therefore hard to keep clean.

Wax paper, paper napkins, paper plates and containers, paper or rolls of white metal cups, thermos bottles and sealright jars all aid in preparing lunches.

The container should be lined with a paper napkin and each article wrapped separately in waxed paper, and placed in the order in which the food will be eaten. Articles should be packed compactly so that the food cannot be shaken about.

The lunch box menu should be planned to include a substantial food, a juicy fruit or vegetable, a simple dessert and a beverage.

Sandwiches, which are usually included, should be made from day-old bread, which may be Graham, whole wheat, rye, rolls or white bread in rotating the bread, arrange the slices so that they will fit together. Cream the butter or butter substitute until soft enough to spread easily. The butter should be proved a soft filling from making the bread soggy.

Veal Rissis

1½ pounds veal steak
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons fat
1½ cups boiling water
1 onion, sliced and fried
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup sour cream
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon soda
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar together, then add beaten egg and nuts. Sift together dry ingredients and add to mixture alternately with cream. Mix well and drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven of (375 deg. F.) to (400 deg. F.) for 10 minutes.

Sea Gem Cookies

1 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon brandy flavoring
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup rolkins, chopped
1 cup chopped dates
½ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons strong coffee

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add the unbroken egg and beat until fluffy. Add the flavoring. Sift all dry ingredients together, add the chopped fruit and nuts to the dry ingredients. Then add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with the coffee.

Drop onto a greased cookie sheet and allow room for them to spread a little. Bake in (375 deg. F.) for about 15 minutes.

Apple Sauce Nut Cookies

1½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1 cup thick sweetened apple sauce
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped nut meats

Sift flour once, measure, and add baking powder, soda, salt, and spices, and sift again.

Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream together well. Add egg and beat well.

Add flour, alternately with apple sauce, stirring thoroughly. Add raisins and nuts and blend.

Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in moderately even (375 deg. F.) 15 minutes, or until done. Makes about 3½ dozen cookies.

CANDY

Caramel Cream Squares

2½ cups sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup nuts, chopped
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt ½ cup of the sugar in a small saucepan and stir until dark brown in color. Combine the remaining sugar and the milk and heat to the boiling point. Then slowly add the melted sugar, stirring constantly. Cook to (240 deg. F.) or to soft-ball stage. Add the butter, nuts and finally remove from heat and beat until creamy.

Pour into buttered pans, and when cool cut in squares.

Marshmallow Cream

3 cups brown sugar
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
½ pound marshmallows
1 cup chopped nuts
Combine sugar, butter and milk and boil until it spins a thread. Remove from heat and add marshmallows and nuts. Beat until thick and pour into buttered pan. When cool cut in squares.

Installing a tractor can be heavy work if it is not in good shape. If children or women help with the hard work it is especially important to have the controls working easily.

Avoiding Tractor Trouble

Working on the soil is dusty work. Care in maintenance of tractors will mean breakdowns and repairs to expensive wear be minimized during busy times.

By J. T. EWING

AMONG additional services planned by implement dealers when tractors are available, is that of farm servicing of tractors. Many farmers would welcome such a service, but until it is available adjustments and minor repairs must be left to their own experience and ingenuity. There is a right way and a wrong way to service any tractor to increase its trouble-free life.

Rain water or soft water should be used in the radiator. Lime deposits include; from hard water prevent the cooling water from coming into contact with the cylinder walls, causing excessive heating. Radiator passages will also be rusted, preventing the water from being cooled by the fan, and may even prevent proper circulation through the radiator.

If only hard water is available, the cooling system should be flushed periodically with a reliable solvent. Commercial compounds are available for the removal of scale. A rust preventive or a little soluble oil in the water will prolong radiator life and increase efficiency.

Proper Air Vents

Another cause of overheating is the plugging of the radiator air vents by dirt. A screen will prevent most dirt the radiator, but it may be necessary to blow it out occasionally with an air or water hose. Hose clamps and the fan belt should be kept tight.

Because of dusty working conditions care must be taken to prevent dust from entering the cylinder head through the carburetor. If air enters the cylinders is dust-laden the spark gap. Too wide a gap causes misfiring at heavy loads. If the gap is too narrow the engine may die at low speeds. The gap should be adjusted by bending the electrode at the shell of the plug, never the one in the centre of the porcelain. Changing indiscriminately from one make of plug to another is not recommended. Tractor manufacturers have both used various plugs and know which ones are best for their particular engines.

Where it is desired to burn duels late or kerosene instead of gasoline, a change should be made in the type of plug employed. Where gasoline is the fuel, a cold plug is used, and where the fuel is distillate or kerosene, a "hot" plug is required. The "hot" plug is so made that more of the hot gases from the combustion chamber burn away any oil films in the case with the "cold" plug. This enables the "hot" plug to do a better job of igniting the slower burning vapors in distillate or kerosene.

Hydrometer For Battery

A hydrometer, preferably with a temperature adjustment scale, is needed for a battery operated ignition system. The electrolyte at full charge should read 1.280, at half charge, 1.230, and at discharge, 1.180. Battery terminals and connections should be clean. Corroded or acid-soaked terminals may be cleaned with a solution made by dissolving ¼ pound of soda in a quart of water.

Impulse Starter Trouble

In tractors without battery and starter an impulse starter is generally used in connection with the magneto. It may give trouble because that has got into it. All brushes on the magneto should work freely, and make good contact with the distributor disk.

The breaker points in the distributor of a battery-operated system are also important. The other part likely to need attention during the busy season. The rocker arm carrying the movable point must work freely on its pivot or it may stick, causing the spring to break. Clearance between the points are checked with the thickness gauge. If they have become pitted they should be filed with a special file made for the purpose, and then re-adjusted. Rapid pitting usually is caused by a faulty condenser in the magneto or lack of it.

A loss obvious aid in promoting trouble-free operation of the tractor is care in the handling of fuel and lubricating oil. Dirt can just as easily get into the cylinders or the crankcase with the lubricating oil, as it can in the crankcase oil as in any other way. If they are kept clean, the drums a shed should be provided in which they can be stored. Make sure the 20 inches above the floor, and dirted with funnels, clean fuel and oil are assured.

On most tractors the steering gears are concealed in a hole which in some cases the oil must be checked and replenished as necessary.

A frequent check should be made of the air pressure in the tires, if the tractor is rubber shod, and the tires inspected. When regular and thorough use of the grease gun, and a periodic check of the transmission are noted and the oil changed as directed, continuous trouble free operation of the farm tractor will be assured.

TWIN SISTERS DIED FROM SAME CAUSE

LONDON.—Mary Pountney, 18, died from violent bleeding shortly after birth of her sister, Frances, who died from efforts of physicians to save her were futile.

OVERSEAS AIR TRAVEL

International air travel has grown so rapidly since the war that, today in the United States, a plane starts on or completes a scheduled transoceanic crossing on an average of every 53 minutes.

Chinese Herbs On The Market

VANCOUVER. — Tiger balm or dried snake for those rheumatic pains and dried seahorse to keep down the blood pressure are on the market again.

K. H. Lee, pre-war owner of a large Chinese drugstore in Shanghai and his partner, Ke Hagg, have returned from a buying trip to China to set up shop here.

Herbal and animal remedies used for thousands of years in the Orient are being dispensed. Deerhorn tonic for the blood, a herb called "ma, hoang", juice-of-a-lion orders and dried turtles are in stock.

"Chinese medicines are mostly herbs," said Mr. Lee. Many date from the time of Emperor Hien-Yung, 5,000 years before the birth of Christ."

Most are sold in bulk, and serious, both or dried stems above ground. Animal preparations usually used in papers.

Mr. Lee attributes China's freedom from the influenza epidemic in 1918 to these medicines, and points with pride to the long lives of his relatives who have been in the business for three generations.

His mother is 81, his uncles 86 and 88, and his grandparents lived to be 93 and 94.

Young Girl Overcomes A Serious Handicap

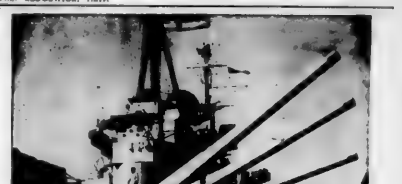
TORONTO — Nine-year-old Eleanor Childers writes, swears, swims and plays with the gang—which is somewhat unusual except that Eleanor was born without arms.

A pupil at Wellwood School for Crippled Children here, the only orthopedic day school in Canada, she is an excellent student.

Eleanor talks rarely about her handicap but will discuss it in a grown-up way with persons she knows well. Her answers are short and not merely curious.

Sometimes people seeing Eleanor for the first time will express sympathy, but she reminds them of her special "guiding light," Kathleen Hart, her school teacher and friend, who, on her way to the front rank of Canadian artists.



BRITAIN'S FUTURE SAILORS TRAIN ON RE-FITTED BATTLESHIP—The retired battleship H.M.S. Iron Duke is re-fitted to the role of a floating naval school for the training of Britain's future sailors. Young lads from between 15 and 16 per cent of the crew. Some of them shown here during physical training period.

TRUNK VENT SMALL BUT LEAVES LARGE

The potato palm of South America has what the Encyclopedia Americana describes as the largest leaf in the vegetable kingdom. While the trunk of the palm rarely has an inch through, the leaves may grow as much as 80 feet long with a leaf stalk five 12 or 15 feet long. Just the thing for the cave-kid with an old summer cap.

GIFT FOR PRINCESS

LONDON (AP) — An official stamp of Britain was sent from London to Princess Elizabeth from eight-year-old Julie Wetherall. The gift is 112 years old, the official stationery of Britain's Caribbean Isle and bearing the first official stamp of the Princess Mary are first to colors.

Perhaps the possible most enjoyable tree is the Mexican Palm of Barbados. Its fruit is edible, the trees leaves are used for thatch for fabrics, cottage and any dead crown.

Crows Did Not Know About High Power Line

CARLSBAD, N.M. — What the crows didn't know apparently doesn't hurt them.

R. F. Tarbutton said crows have built their nest on the crossarm of a power line pole. The pole carries a 66,000-volt line which is a foot above the nest.

After flying were three baby Tarbutton found the trouble just a crack-out bear the egg so the crows had to find a fresh one or with lots of flailing wire shells soon hatched. Everything is fine. But he didn't tell how.

His wood is good for building.

FORT PRINCE OF WALES

THIS accompanying photograph will show some of the remains of old Fort Prince of Wales at Churchill, Manitoba — Canada's most northern fortress in the days when British and French forces were battling for supremacy on the North American continent.

It took 40 years to build this stronghold, the walls of which were 40 feet thick and mounted 40 cannon. It is stated that it rivalled Louisbourg and even Quebec in growing popularity of northern travel, although Yet the fort was surrendered to Governor Samuel Hearne many visitors each year

Barren-Ground Caribou Investigation

WHEN the prairies of west ern North America were covered by white men, they surveyed it and broke it ruthlessly, which is how we have always been shrouded by poverty.

In 1890, with the advent of railways, ranching and the trans-continental railway, the buffalo had to go, and the Indians were confined to reserves. Then the Dominion Government began to realize that the Territories were unsuitable for agriculture, and that the only way to get the land to the people was by irrigation. Irrigation was the only way to get the land to the people was by irrigation. Irrigation was the only way to get the land to the people was by irrigation. Irrigation was

VOLUME XL SEDGEWICK, ALTA. THURSDAY, AUGUST 8TH, 1968 NUMBER 27

MR. A. EDWARD FEE
Social Credit Candidate for the Constituency of Sedgewick

Killam, Alberta, July 31, 1968

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Time and time and time has brought us to a time for making another decision. In fact life is just one decision after another.

On the wisdom or otherwise of our decisions depends the success or failure of our lives. Not being perfect, and being at all times subject to our decisions are wrong, but taking the sum total, if the balance is on the right side, we get by very nicely, on the other hand, if the balance tips in the other direction, well, we just haven't got by so well.

We begin very early in life to make decisions. One of the first decisions a child makes is who is going to be boss in the family, and a child is often ten days old before the matter is settled.

We are told by those who claim to be an authority on child psychology that a child should not be restrained but should be allowed to develop his initiative. In the process of development he often becomes a menace to the neighbours, a terror to domestic pets, a plague to other children, a wrecker of the domestic harmony and furniture, and a general public nuisance. I am still old fashioned enough to believe that a slipper properly applied at the right time and place could do much in direct the his initiative along the proper channels. It could even prevent his becoming a politician or a member of the Press.

While at public school many boys and girls decide what they wish to select as their life's work, and some of them carry out their plans. On leaving high school most people have established their wagon to a star and have visions of future success. If he or she has the ability, the determination, the willingness to pay the price in sacrificing comforts, endeavor hardship and forgotten pleasures, then that future is assured. The idea in making strength that things come too easy to the rising generation, and that the best that is in them will never be developed.

The housewife makes decisions every day of her life and those decisions are important and far reaching. It is when the greatest that these decisions come naturally, take no effort, and are of necessity always right. The one who has to make the decisions knows differently.

Three and sometimes four meals have to be planned each day; the whims and fancies of each member of the family have to be considered in the matter of raising chickens experts have designed a chick starter, a growing mash, a laying mash, and a fattening preparation. On the other hand we have a breed of fowl which is supposed to provide all the different meshes for all the different members according to their needs and requirements, to suit their tastes and fancies and at the same time develop brawn and brain and common sense. She is expected to have abundance for all and leave nothing over to be wasted.

The successful farmer has probably more decisions to make than those of other occupations. He has to decide when and what to plant, when to decide where and how to plant it he has to decide how to cultivate it and protect it from the scores of pests that infest it; he has to decide when and how to harvest it and then where and when to market it. All this in the field of grain. A farm is not a farm without live stock, trees, poultry, gardens and shrubs. Each and every one of these has a study by itself. The buildings, the fences, the water supply, winter quarters and feed for stock, the treatment of weeds, the destruction of pests, the conservation of moisture and the hundreds of others require the farmer to make decisions from hundreds and sixty-five days of the year

On the decision of the farmer may hang the life of a patient; on the decision of the teacher may depend the success of the pupils. On the decisions of the business man depend services to the public and the business prosperity and comforts of his depend ants.

All through life in a democratic country we have to be continually making decisions, both wise and foolish, but they glory in making them ever-the-less The sum total as a rule adds up as the right side and we all have a hand in making or marring the country that has given opportunities to all.

Few people who are things in their proper light would willingly part with the freedom of choice, and still fewer would change places with any of the world today.

More and more governmental activities are entering into our every day lives and our daily affairs, more laws with fines and imprisonments, more rules and regulations and records to keep, new accounting to be done, new orders to be complied with until a man scarcely knows whether he is a responsible citizen or a criminal in the eye of the law. Yet until a government official appears on the scene nowhere does the average citizen feel that he is cheating on his income tax by having a little "on the side" for breakfast; enquires how much change he has in his overalls on a certain day and date and then decide if he should be permitted to carry on or should be hanged, shot or drawn and quartered.

Odd timers begin to pine for the frontier days when a man's honorable word was his bond, when a handshake sealed a bargain, when a neighbor's word was as good as his affidavit, when privacy was not abused, where private property was respected (continued on inside page)

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

Now that the political pot has at last come to the boiling point in the Province it is an easy matter to get entangled in a political web and all one has to do is say the wrong thing to the right thing or the right thing to the wrong person and as the modern expression puts it, "you've had it". I had the opportunity the other day to take part on an alteration between two dyed-in-the-wool C. C. F'r, a youthful and budding Liberal and a Social Credit standing. Just getting the people like that together at a time like this can mean a lot of fun if one is going to be hood wunds sharpe and counter-charges, predictions and just a little bragging. Well, I listened and being what I am, put in a shy word here and there to keep the whole thing at a fever pitch. With the result that I was finally asked "but what my political leaning were anyway. Apparently they could get nothing from my remarks and in that regard I considered I had done my best but I expected as much as I left them all puzzled and all happily convinced that the other could get the right vote.

Not so long ago I had the pleasure of attending a social affair (but not to the Lougheed Centennial Ball) it was a pleasure because the only people doing any talking were those well paid characters whose faces appeared on the screen. These people are paid to do the talking on the screen and apparently the Lougheed Community Society has found that it is some way out as another. In any case the bids at the show were "as quiet as price". Well not exactly either. The evening broke out as started, but before he proceeded far the usher was at his side. I don't just remember the exact words he used but they went something like this "Listen! You keep quiet and I'm not worrying much as to what you make." That's all. And the result? That vacuum-cleaner kept quiet. Now Sedgewick has a reputation to live up to, that show night is the night for the kids to stage a circus. Sedgewick is without a doubt the noisiest show town hereabouts and woe unto it should he leaves a good many of the dollars it possesses run the entertained elsewhere it can also be maintained in Sedgewick. A little pardon on the part of the Hall Proprietors or the operators of the show would be appreciated by those who go to shows to listen to the artist on the screen and not to a bunch of noisy kids.

Just when governments are urging farmers to put up all the feed they can for next winter, the Palmer Brothers of Killam have come up with something new for the section of Alberta. These industrious young men with Palmer Bros Pea Vine Hay Provident have formed a hay baling organization with a seven foot pea vine mower, side delivery rake and a baling machine which turns out small bales after the hay is cut, side delivery rake leaves the hay in windrows ready for the baler. The baler, pulled by tractor moves down the windrows leaving a line of neat ly baled hay at the rate of about two tons bales per minute.

It has been found that the Palmer crew and their equipment can put

GRANDMA SORENSON FETED AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

July 29th marked a grand event for an old timer in Killam, as Mrs Annie Sorenson celebrated her 85th birthday. About 25 friends called at her little home to wish her "many happy returns". Refreshments were served in the afternoon and even and a pleasant time enjoyed by all Grandma (as everyone calls her and her sister mentioned over the radio programs and this reporter has many greeting cards and gifts from her and old friends several bowel bouquets of flowers also brought her great happiness. Having her picture taken outside with friends and relatives also proved to be the finishing touch to a perfect birthday party

C.C.F. De-Bunkers

(Advertisement)

In spite of all the propaganda you read in the press Socialism is not the same as a provincial election. For the simple reason that under the Canadian constitution the provincial legislative powers are too limited to make any fundamental changes in the economy of the province that could be by any stretch of imagination referred to as socialism.

Quite correctly, those who advocate and support the C.C.F. national program are laid down in the Regina manifesto are referred to as social ists This national program has for its objective sufficient fundamental economic changes to change Canada from a capitalist economy to a socialist economy of planned production The federal government of Canada has the necessary power to implement these changes Perhaps not in a single stroke but certainly over a period of time as the local and world conditions ripen for such a change.

But when editors and political opponents of the C.C.F. speak of socialist provincial governments that is just propaganda a red herring to smother the issue. Socialism of real issues at stake in a provincial election. The most that can be said of provincial C.C.F. program and a C.C.F provincial government is that such a program and a government is workable in its nature That is, its legislative tendencies will be to favor non-profit, co-operative and public utility economy Such a government will also encourage and support morally any non-profit co-operative tendencies towards planned economy and public utility enterprise Most of the C.C.F provincial programs consist of social measures common to most modern democracies. They are designed to lower Canadian standard of life of the industrial worker and the farmer in relation to the national income. Such things as provincial health insurance, automobile accident insurance, provincial grants and loans for industrial accident victims provincial assistance for education better rural services, more adequate labor legislation and a lot of other measures to improve the lot of the wage-earner and the farmer family are not fundamental changes in our economy People's Weekly Digested by the Sedgewick Constituency C.C.F. # Canada's Coal Reserves

WHILE CANADA IS FORTUNATE in having rich reserves of coal, much of it located in the West that like some of our other natural resources has not been fully developed. There is always considerable talk about Canada's power in the possibilities of making more extensive use of its natural coal. At present Canada's yearly coal consumption amounts to around 30 million tons. Of this 15 000 000 tons are produced in Canada, while 15,000,000 are imported from the United States. There is little doubt but that the full requirement could be produced here, although there is a fair trade between the countries for the exchange of coal. At present Canada's great industrial areas are mainly centred in Ontario and Quebec which are situated nearer to the coal fields of the Eastern United States than to those in Alberta.

West Could Be Developed

The long distance which coal would have to be brought to these industries from the West, is no doubt one disadvantage which would have to be given consideration in any plan for making greater use of Western coal. Another disadvantage often suggested that the West might [illegible] industrial development, but considering the vast [illegible] industry utilizing the rich ore deposits in Labrador, and North Western Ontario. It is estimated that Canada's coal reserves probably amount to [illegible] and Alberta is now thought to have 15 per cent. of the world's known coal deposits.

Today's Royal Canadian Air Force A Streamlined Service

SPEEDING across Canada's skies in jet-propelled Vampire and fast four-engine North Star aircraft the RCAF of 1948 is emerging from its post-war re-organization as a streamlined service capable of serving Canada in peace and war more than four times as large as in 1939 and capable of rapid expansion in the event of an emergency.

Today's RCAF has three main components, the RCAF Regular Force with an established strength of 16,000 increased to 25 per cent. in 1949; the RCAF Auxiliary 15 squadrons (1,500 personnel), and the RCAF Reserve a large and important pool of trained veterans.

Operational elements of the RCAF Regular which have been, are being or will be formed in the near future consists of 1 Canital Reconnaissance squadron (Lancaster), 2 Transport squadrons (North Star and Dak ta), 1 Mobile Tactical Wing (Mitchell, Mustang, Dakota, Auster), 1 Interceptor Fighter Wing (Vampire), and 2 Photo Survey squadrons (Lancaster Mitchell and Dakota), and a Search and Rescue organization.

Two Commands

Two geographical Commands cover Canada—Central Air Command with headquarters at Trenton, Ont., is responsible for the eastern section and North West Air Command with headquarters at Edmonton, Alta., covers the western part of the country. Maintenance Command is responsible for functional duties of equipment, repair and construction in the RCAF. Air and Transport Command controls all air Force transport operations.

Of the per cent of the Regular Force made up of ground personnel, who receive training at such as Borden, Aylmer Clinton, Trenton and Rockcliffe Training is not confined to recruits but many of the service tradesmen have been selected to other trades and are given refresher courses. In addition more than 2,500 airmen are at present receiving correspondence courses to raise their academic standing and for service academic training at Ajax. Part is being trained in the instructional standards in mathematics and science.

Training is now at full peacetime levels are holding 1,000 part-time wings parades this summer. Reserve training is conducted in two groups, the first consisting of Under a new system of high school graduates selected from the ranks, reserve are commissioned upon graduation and then complete a recruit school, service period as a navigator Reserve are likes selected for commissions and the people to be are appointed to the Auxiliary Reserve, with substantial grants to help defray the expense of keeping aircraft at a local airport and furnishing a modest flow of trained personnel to the Auxiliary and Regular Forces.

Peacetime Tasks

In addition to fitting itself to serve as a modern defence force the RCAF has numerous peacetime tasks. Its photographic aircraft and skills are of the most time gate personnel operational training Photographic experts of Canada is carried out by the Photo of Air Transport Command. More than two million square miles have been covered since the RCAF began the job in 1921. Over 600,000 square miles were surveyed last year and a higher figure is expected for 1948. Photos are used in mining and oil development and in the national resources.

And reache is a response, but the RCAF which co-ordinated largely operates the air search. Before taking over Canada's responsibilities RCAO, have to judge the RCAF has an amazing record of many flights parts of the country

[illegible] at work in research and development to bring about the greatest possible efficiency in the air. Many of the latest developments in training are carried out by the Air Force at the Experimental and Proving Establishment, Beechcliffe, Ont. and the Winter Experimental Establishment, Edmonton, Alta.

Ten of the 15 Auxiliary Squadrons will be activated by the end of 1948. These squadrons are located in Montreal Toronto, London, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver squadron members fly and maintain aircraft of operational standards, and emphasis is placed on modern jet fighters. The RCAF would grow now to fill the establishments of the auxiliary squadrons

More than 41,000 veterans have applied for membership in the RCAF Reserve in the first five months of 1948. Reserve training will not commence before 1949 but applications for membership are tabulated and preparations for transfer to the active classes of the Reserve are under way All Reserve members are available for Air Force duty in the event of an emergency Canada's RCAF is much larger than the fulltime Regular Force, and will be able to fulfill peacetime commitments and ready to meet any crisis with quick action.

GIRLS ADVISE WHAT MOTHER SHOULD KNOW

PORTLAND, Ore. Mothers usually tell their daughters what every young girl should know. Yesterday the girls have retaliated by telling mom in on what every mother should know

The girls had their innings at a Lincoln High School parent teachers association meeting. In a series of skits the high school girls showed their mothers about the things they do that drives daughters absolutely wild.

Here are some of the things that the girls didn't like:

1 Mother's gushy manner when meeting daughter's new friends.

2 Eavesdropping on telephone calls or mother's failure to take a message for somebody when daughter is out.

3 Partiality to another member of the family particularly to a younger brother.

4 Praise of other young people to build up a competitive spirit.

5 Mother's in street use of young generation slang expressions.

6 Excessive demonstration of affection in public including use of pet and baby names, and exhibition of baby pictures.

VERY SIMPLE WHEN YOU UNDERSTAND IT

In case you are one of the many who can't keep track of the changes which 1948 is, in case you've lost track, the trade paper "Shoe Digest" gives what it calls a handy rule: "Every year is a leap year which is divisible by four without a remainder except the concluding years of centuries, every fourth one of which is a leap year or those exactly divisible by four."

Easy as pie, once you explain it!

LIFE OF UNITED STATES PRESIDENT IS NOT AN EASY ONE

WASHINGTON — What does the president of the United States have to do?

Everyone knows he has a hard job. Just how hard it is, few voters appreciate.

His working hours generally are a 7 a.m. to midnight except on nights when he goes to bed early. He lives in a goldfish bowl as far as his private as well as public life is concerned. Secret service agents never let him out of sight and his personal physician gives him brief daily or afternoon checkups.

He's under pressure never-ceasing. Visitors mail and problems pour in without end.

Merriman Smith, United Press White House correspondent, has undertaken "to show in human factors and in words of as few syllables as possible" what the president does. Smith presidency operates" in his new book, "A President Is Human."

Avoiding the legislative side of the story Smith endeavors to highlight and describe the office now sought so eagerly by a host of candidates.

It is by the window, on the night President Jackson's guests ate nearly a ton of oysters at the White House, how some of the most distinguished world figures have suffered through White House ulcers for souvenirs; the story of what Thomas Jefferson called life in "splendid misery"; Smith has set in a foreword to his book.

But it is mostly the human account, an array of advisers, secretaries, reporters, typists, guards, servants, workmen of all kinds.

Many big names and silences to the striking or bizarre historical facts Smith gives a lively picture of this army in action. Some of the anonymous but powerful figures are described. The author analyzes briefly their methods.

He tells of Harry Truman's presidency in rather summary fashion. A dance or party during times of stress is apparently programmed as a relief from the functional chatterbox in the White House. Smith's book, endless facts and figures, is not a breezy step-by-step.

Still, the president is bound by many and rules in many, many ways. He was not even allowed to help himself to a "snack" at the White House because that absolute, unbounded rule.

The president has many things no millionaire could hope to be sure. His private phone and private railway car are fed by-and-by private individuals at a premium. His private and presidential train limitations. And his wife and son, in spite of the famous secret service, also exhibit unusually and sometimes nasty but real nature forces, to be careful of your company. Mary Baker Eddy

A word or a and from the good, has more weight than the eloquent [illegible] of others. Proverb.

He who wishes to exert a useful influence must be careful to instill strong. Let him not be troubled by what nerves abound, but remember the energies to the creation of what is good.—Goethe.

Mosquitoes Are Particular Where Their Home Is

TORONTO — Mosquitoes are very particular about the places where they live.

Authority for this statement is Dr. F. A. Urquhart of the Royal Ontario Museum, who has devoted much of his life to a study of the pests.

Residents of Scarborough Bluffs complained that a neighborhood pond was not being sprayed this year. Health officials and park officials who assert that the district breeding places were not in the pond but in resident's backgrands.

"Mosquitoes are very fussy. Adult feed on mammalian plants growing in certain types of water. The pond in question is of those types. We do, however, taken dozens of bottles of mosquito larvae [illegible] from the ponds in backyards."

Different kinds of mosquitoes emerge as adults at various times during the summer. The trick is to find these periods. Although more efficient methods of reducing the numbers of pests will be found, it will be impossible to exterminate them completely.

Seven diseases are carried by the mosquito, only one to be found in Ontario. It causes a disease common to pet dogs and often confused with distemper. It has never been proved that the pest is a carrier of the yellow virus.

BLUEJAYS IN THE CORN

By ANNA E. WILSON

NEVER mind the bluejays, Bunnie dear. There's good in every bird of feather."

But Bunnie hated the bluejays because their screaming warned in the great northeastern that blew straight across the corn, were bring the boats of the fishermen and making their home desolate. Bunnie had had only one fear there and that bought the bluejays over the Cove, and that was [illegible].

It's not that Hal said reasonably, "as if we were fishermen ourselves, Bunnie. You can understand the nerves of the men down there being stead, but safe and snug here on our little farm, what can the one do to us?"

Bunnie put her distracted hands to her head to shut out the screaming of the jays. The wind was already whooping in the corn stalks as she went in and out among them gathering the pumpkins she had planted between the Hal corn. The pumpkins, bluejays cluttered and shrieked and then shot over as she gathered them into a great heap in the shed.

What could she do to her? It could take Hal away from her. Bunnie thought stubbornly. For all his talk, Hal loved the sea, just as he loved the storms and the jays and the smell of fish. He knew that a storm starting out at salt water with that in mind, and that was why he would trust he would run away.

Hal had loved each of Bunnie's trouble was that she felt about out and he was glad. He was not so different if she could have felt as Hal felt, as the fishermen felt. Deep in her heart Bunnie knew that she could hold Hal on the farm but she could not suffer as he did, and she could share his love of salt water.

But she couldn't, and the jays were screeching louder than ever as she began to gather the feathers that were on the line. Her hands were cold as she stood, in the shed, by them. Folding them neatly into their box. Hal loved her, Bunnie thought, she could ever have quarrelled with him.

Perhaps it was because Nels Peters was making up his crew and she knew Hal's feelings, because of the disappointment of his small farm, because the corn was [illegible] brown, the ripe corn and golden pumpkins and Bunnie, small and earnest in his outgrown overalls. But she knew that Hal had to go and these things better than he loved the sea.

"Look, Bunnie," he'd said, facing the sunset, his fine strong shoulders bare. "Look at that sunset. Isn't it fine. Look how she stands out and [illegible] Bunnie looked at Hal's square rugged sails and the stout hull of her.

She's flat on the keel, too, for the rough water. It's a good boat and well fitted. Isn't a fisherman anywhere has as much heart for the sea."

Bunnie had put a brown hand up to push Hal away. She was tired and nervous but how could Hal know that it was only the fear in her heart that had been words.

"It's the sea you love, Hal," she'd cried wildly. "It's not the farm. It's always the sea. Go away, go and join up with Nels Peters. Go!"

Hal had tried to reason with her. "You don't know what you're saying, Bunnie. You're all worked up." But Hal hadn't been able to quiet her. In her misery and uncertainty, she'd hated Hal. In the end he'd taken the boat and rowed across the Cove to the mainland and now the jays were screeching in her head and every time the great rowan berry blew, she'd think of Hal.

Bunnie put her work-strained hands before her eyes and sobbed. Down there was the rowan wrapped up into crazy white cups that spit and clawed. It was all the sea. Bunnie thought wildly, the jays, the flaring of the seagulls blown about by the storm and Hal.

She had to see Hal. She had to tell Hal how it was. But Hal was across at the mainland. Bunnie held her head. She must get to Hal. In the mainland by Hal's boat, you went by water. You saw sea, but, around the bend, there was a shelter cove.

Bunnie went down to the inlet to find that the wind had now got concentrated into it and the water was sent in [illegible] in the Cove, and the oars fitted to the oarlocks, and started.

Bunnie had never been in a boat before. She'd never felt the pull of the tide. She was now letting you in the face and a sort of glory running through your veins. She'd be swift-ly, awkwardly, and tumbled from the bottom of the boat to the oarlocks and ran.

Once in the open sea, the wind was clawing at the boat. Bunnie's heart held back her wet hair and stared at the water. Nothing else mattered. She'd beat was gone; had already rounded the bend. She could see the mainland and the storm and the clouds [illegible] and Bunnie.

The rising storm breaking into the inlet and tossing it about. She pulled till the muscles in her arms ached and her face streamed with salt water and [illegible] Bunnie was proud of her pride she felt in conquering the sea there was a [illegible] Hal. Hal would be glad that she was gone. Before she pulled she had taken time to take the salt water from her own tears.

Rounding the shed, she could hear the jays screeching in the distance into the mounting storm. She could not help feeling a tinge of pride in their shrill courage. How she, too, could fly down, powerful with a fierce joy; she, too, was part of the storm like Hal.

She stared at the pumpkins and thought how strange it was that she thought of the scheme in the autumn days now. She was sobbing with this strange feeling her wet face when stronger arms seized her, and Hal was murmuring, "Bunnie. Bunnie" into her hair.

"Oh, Hal," she cried, clinging to his coat, "I'm sorry, I'm sorry, I'll go with Nels."

Hal laughed, the wind whipping his words like wings. "I hated the idea myself, Bunnie, and I came back. I know you were afraid of the storm."

Bunnie clung to Hal, the storm howling out then in a wild gale then broke in a [illegible] against the force of it. "I love the bluejays," she said to Hal and then [illegible] fresh with the taste of salt water on Hal's face.

Helpful Hints

When starching clothes, start with pieces requiring the most starch, since continued use of a starch solution tends to [illegible].

The old-fashioned method of mixing fine white table linen by wrapping it in blue paper to add a good whiteness to the paper will prevent the linen from turning yellow.

Here's an old trick which may be new to you: When you are cooking food that needs occasional stirring, give an ordinary spring clothespin a rub down the middle, then clamp the clothespin over the edge of the pot. It makes a fine place to rest the spoon between stirrings.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Orchids From Kip

By R. K. KENT

MELAINE fingered the purse nervously. There wasn't much money but it would help tide them over. And hadn't it been delivered right into her hands when she need it it so badly? There it was in the window but hidden behind the tiny when she went to write the pink advertisement that she gets such lovely care. Kip had bought her [illegible] in the two years they were married, a few weeks ago. He'd brought her to this little apartment, so happy that he'd been able to find the place for them. And she liked it until she looked from the window.

But it's as close to the street, child said.

Kip laughed and said, "You aren't living in the country any more, Melaine. This is the city." Then he put on his hat and left her for a while. Who's he rescue for her in the park, certainly. "It isn't much, honey," he smiled, "but just as soon as we get a little ahead, I'll buy you an orchid Maisie in a few months."

But there'd be no orchid now. Not for a long, long time. Kip would be doctor and hospital bills. Kip's appendix was the fault. He wouldn't be able for work for a long time, maybe never. There'd be no salary for a while. Only the insurance and the small change would go a long ways.

Melaine dumped the contents of the purse on her lap and began to turn pen, an expensive handkerchief subtly perfumed, a plastic compact, some trinkets and a small box. She gritted She peered into the box and snapped it shut. Then she began sorting of bonds. The purse itself was expensive. Kip had given it to her if I lost them."

"I'm glad — Melaine said. "Mr. Marble, what's the matter, Mrs. Marble said, "I can't imagine why you're crying."

Melaine smiled. "Maybe I'm crying because I'm happy. Maybe I didn't. In fact, I was more tempted to take the money."

Mrs. Marble studied her a moment. "You need the money, my dear?"

Melaine felt the publicity. "I was the first friendly person she'd met since Kip had been taken to the doctor and nurses. It was lonely being a stranger in the city. "It's for Kip," she started. The sympathetic eyes seemed to invite confidence and Melaine poured the whole story into Mrs. Marble's ears. "I'll wasn't for the groceries that I was supposed to turn into an orchid some day. I'd never have to — I'm sorry, I'm sorry."

"I can never forgive you enough," Mrs. Marble said, "but I'd like to try." She held out her hand and said, "Goodby."

She hurried away, leaving Melaine wondering if she'd offended her.

"Twenty dollars." She finished drawing harmony. It would be such fun telling Kip. And they'd laugh about the bonds. And she'd tell him how valuable he was. Oh, she'd tell him she opened the door she found a florist's box on the porch. Nervous fingers opened it, and misty eyes read the card tucked in with the huge orchid sent from Kip." It wasn't Kip's writing, but Melaine pinned it to her coat. "It was from Kip — and all of, after all."

Canada, Brazil Relations Good

RIO DE JANEIRO — "Commerce between Brazil and Canada is prosperous and easier because their economic complements each other," the new Canadian Ambassador James Scott McDonald, told the press recently.

Ambassador McDonald is replacing Ambassador Jean Drew who left Brazil for Italy.

Canada intends to buy directly Brazilian goods in large quantities. We are hainly interested in getting Brazilian coffee, cotton, fruits and other foodstuffs. We can supply Brazil aluminum, lead, asbestos in a variety of asbestos, machinery and industrial equipment," the Ambassador said

He added that a good example of efficient trade with Brazil was recently given in a direct exchange by Canadian apples for Brazilian oranges.

He said Brazil is still a customer for Canadian newsprint. He asserted that despite new complicators which appeared after the war, Brazil's imports of Canadian paper did not decrease Ambassador McDonald emphasized that he will seek chiefly to develop commercial relations between Canada and Brazil. A second target in his mission will be to strengthen cultural interchange between the countries.

He affirmed that interest in Brazil is now high in Canada.

Ambassador McDonald found at the Canadian Embassy here one of his old friends. Benjamin Rogers, charge d'affaires whom he met 19 years ago when Rogers was a junior officer in the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs.

Newspaper Decries Anti-Canadian Vacation Move

NEW YORK — The World-Telegram said recently that to urge Americans to forego vacations in Canada because of the Dominion's restrictions on exportation of United States dollars is unfriendly, a short sighted policy.

It is not only that such a policy would hardly damage our own prosperity — and sure is customary to do so.

The newspaper said Canada's dollar shortage has caused because she bought more from the United States than she sold in this country.

Both United States hotel buyers were urging Americans to spend their vacation dollars at home in a statement of Canada.

But Canada's greatest source of dollars is her tourist business, the editorial added. About 20,000,000 Americans visit Canada each year. The dollars they leave there have a quick turnaround. They come back to buy fast, as payment for American goods.

If Americans should cut down on their trips to Canada, the Canadians would be forced to curtail their purchases in this country for the simple and sound reason that they didn't have the money."

BRAINS AND BEAUTY FOR MISS CANADA

TORONTO — Grey eyes and not more pulchritude alone will call the ticket when Miss Canada of 1948 is chosen in Hamilton in August

She'll have to exemplify the qualities of Canadian womanhood with 50 per cent. of the marks devoted to brains and beauty. Dr. Radcliffe Weaver, Hamilton, executive director of the Miss Canada beauty contest, said recently at a press conference

More than 50 young women from all across Canada are expected to enter the Hamilton Lions Club sponsored event. Hamilton, capital of Toronto, Miss Canada of 1947, will crown her successor.

As encouragement, the pageant offers a $100 cash prize but to the scholarships which could be used in any recognized university or school in Canada, the $2,000 grand prize.

The grand prize is a $3,000 scholarship with $2,000 and $1,000 going to the next two winners

Poison Ivy

Its poison ivy season — and for those who have had a dose of the poisoning, its an unhappy one. The precautions and preventatives can do little, according to one expert but there is nothing quite so effective as the good old brown laundry soap. Before going out where you may come in contact with the venomous plant, wash the exposed parts of the body with a lather of brown soap, allowing it to dry on the skin. After returning home the exposed parts should be scrubbed with warm water and a soft brush and then rinsed in warm water. Repeat the soap, lather and run in the summer, should be given the treatment also warned to watch when they let a dog run in the grass for poison ivy often grows in the grass, although the trunks of old trees, walls and rocks are its favorite haunts. Should you get a touch of the family, get a dose of poison ivy, you can ease the itching and discomfort by washing the effected parts with hot water and laundry soap, running well and after applying a paste of baking soda, covered with a thin cloth which should be kept moist. The paste should be removed in from eight to ten hours.

The word clabber comes from the Irish "clabar," meaning thick mud.

Find Ancient Colns Near Sunken Ship

BALDANHA BAY South Africa — The wreck of the Mercatory a treasure-filled Dutch East-Indiaman which foundered and sank in 60 feet of water off Saldanha Bay in the early 17th century, was revealed by Capt Seaner, when a number of spanish coins were washed up on a deserted island in the bay

Divers have not been found so the shore for some years, but experience has now known that treacherous coast will think that this Winter will be profitable to treasure hunter

The latest find was made by an officer who visited the deserted island in his ship's launch. Two hundreds of digging in debris around the jagged reefs yielded him four Spanish silver coins struck in 1622, during the reign of Philip IV, the sins of British five-shilling pieces

Dutch and Portuguese coins across these ancient coins fairly offlowing it for a few days. OUTLINE OF LIBERAL POLICY FOR ALBERTA

(Advertisement)

1. Roads and Highways: Properly constructed highways, properly maintained, should last at least 30 years. We intend to build these kind of highways. Our program calls for the expenditure of one hundred million dollars over a five year period. Of this $20,000,000 will be spent on market and local roads. On these market roads, that amounts to five million per year which is just over 50 percent of the income from gasoline tax and motor vehicle licenses. The market roads will be considered on an operation cost, rather than a capital expenditure, because these roads contain the main arteries of modern progress now. But as our program advances we propose to include them in the network of hard-surfaced, permanent, all-weather highways. The present $6,000,000 spent on main roads is wasted because these roads have to be rebuilt at least every two or three years. We intend to spend much more than this, to ensure the construction of roads that will be a repeat proposition. These roads are passable. It is not the method of construction that are now used, that counts this constant drain and reconstruction of our highways.

2. On Oil Royalties: It is very easy where the crown holds the mineral rights to suspend on which oil is discovered, it is our intention to pay a portion of that royalty to the holder of the surface rights. It will also ensure the crown does not hold the mineral rights. It is our intention to compensate the holder of surface rights for damage and loss he may suffer when surface rights are taken on his land by drillers in the search for oil. In every case where oil is discovered on any land, it is our intention to provide a royalty ... ... the benefit of surface rights than is now provided by any arrangement of the present administration.

3. On Irrigation: It is our intention to increase provincial grants for education in Alberta, to at least 50 percent of the actual cost of operation in Alberta. This is designed to relieve local taxation and school districts of much of the burden they are now bearing, which has resulted in very greatly increased municipal taxation. It is also our intention to consolidate school taxation throughout the Province under the direct administration only 37 percent of the cost of education is borne by the province, and we are aware of the effect this has had on our education facilities in Alberta.

4. Co-operation with the Federal Dept. of Agriculture in the work of PFRA and Experimental Sub-Stations. A business like system of weed control. We recognize that only co-operation with the Federal Department of Agriculture will ensure the success of this policy. We intend to try and prod you on to the path. We have never made an attempt to dictate your voting policy but we do urge you to turn out and read your ballot Carefully and use the freedom of vote which you possess. Turn out and vote.

LEGION BALL TOURNEY

The Legion sponsored Baseball Tournament at Sedgewick last Wednesday was attended by a small but enthusiastic crowd who enjoyed the game and the refreshment booths.

Sedgewick won from Lougheed 3 to the first game, when Bert Hoffman and Sverson beat Wyrozub. The Strome team took Sedgewick in the second round while Killam received a bye. In the final game Killam defeated Strome to win top honors.

The Legion conducted the management and other games and sponsored the big dance at night.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

An open Golf Tournament will be held at Sedgewick on Sunday next, August 15th, and invitations have been sent out to various Clubs. Get your team in. There is at present 12 ... tacipates three or more flights, and the tourney will kick off at 9 a.m.

Prizes have been donated by the following: Gassoll Grocery, Hopkins Furs and Clothing, Drug; Beaton's Fur; Pioneer Meat Market and W. J. Cumberland and Son.

And now since most Tuesday is the day of the election we feel it our duty to try and prod you on to the polls. We have never made an attempt to dictate your voting policy but we do urge you to turn out and read your ballot Carefully and use the freedom of vote which you possess. Turn out and vote.

An Encouraging Situation

IN THE PAST IT HAS BEEN FOUND that the rate of employment is closely related to the general prosperity of the country. During the depression of the 1930's unemployment was wide-spread and wage levels were extremely low. Built employment rates and wage levels rose to record heights during the war but there was some concern at that time as to whether these might fall again when service personnel returned to civilian employment and the great war plants were no longer operating. Events have shown however that there was no immediate cause for anxiety since almost all workers have experienced either shortages and wage rates have increased in almost every type of employment.

Employment Rate Has Increased

Recent figures, issued by the Dominion government, show that the employment index now stands above that of any wartime year, although during the war farmers and factories were operating at their maximum capacities and there were nearly 1,000,000 men and women in the armed forces. Recently an employment index was made, using figures obtained from Canada's nine leading industries, and this index shows that, using figures for 1941 as a base of 100, the rate of employment is now 124.3. This is 3.7 points higher than the figure for 1941 and 14.8 points above the level for 1946. The average weekly earnings in these industries have also risen considerably, having advanced to $39.27, as compared to $35.66 last year, and $32.53 in 1944.

* * * * *

Living Costs Also Higher

Further figures compiled on present employment conditions show that the total wages paid to factory workers now stand at an index of 185.5, as compared to 169 in 1945. During the past two years there has been an increase of 31.2 points in these figures. On March 1 of this year, it was estimated that 2,852,862 workers in Canada's nine leading industries were receiving a total of $99,257,344 every week. There is, however, a less encouraging aspect of the situation, in the figures dealing with unplaced applicants for employment, which show that on March 15, these seeking employment numbered 184,000 which was 9,000 more than at the same time in 1947. By April 15 this figure had been reduced by 4,000, and it was expected at that time that there would be a shortage of labor before the end of the summer, due in part at least, to the rising demand for farm help during the summer months. Although the rise in wage and employment levels is encouraging, the fact that living costs have advanced more than wages during the past year cannot be overlooked. However, records of the Labor Department have shown that industrial wages have risen 74 per cent since 1939, which is slightly more than the increase in the cost of living during that period.

Boy Loses Arm Feeding Bear

PEORIA (I) — A 250-pound black Himalayan bear chewed off the arm of John Dickerson 12, who climbed a fence to feed the animal. A nearby concessionaire, A. B. Eagle, grabbed a cane and stuck it in the bear's mouth, forcing it to release the boy. Chewed off above the elbow, the remainder of the arm had to be amputated at the shoulder.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

A Greek scholar, visiting a woman's college in the United States, was asked whether he would do the multitudinous the compliment of translating their college motto into Greek. He agreed, and asked what the motto was.

It was placed before him, and he read the words, "Pay without purpose is polite."

Filters For Rain Water

This double-chamber filter from two oil drums uses no ingenious automatic dumping bucket to distribute the flow between the two chambers, sending clean water to the cistern.

ONE of the objectionable things about having a cistern for rain water is that not only does it get the rain water but also a considerable amount of dirt, grit, sticks and other material washed into it from the roof. This can be avoided by using a system like that shown here. This drawing illustrates a rain water filter consisting of two oil drums, both partly filled with filter material of sand, charcoal and pebbles, as shown.

To operate a double barrel filter of this type, an automatically tipping bucket is used to divide the water from the down spout evenly between the two filter units, so they can take care of a rapid flow. The discharge from the bottom of the oil drums is a sqbt in two flat funnels and directed into the cistern filler pipe. This type of filter does well for summer weather, but will freeze in winter time and become inoperative.

Another method of providing filtration for cistern water is to build a double brick wall across the cistern, so as to divide it into two parts. These two brick walls should be placed 4 or 5 inches apart, this space being filled with sand, which is the filtering medium. Mortar is used only in the horizontal joints of these walls, the bricks being butted against each other in the vertical joints.

This provides plenty of space for water to flow from one side of the cistern to the other. The down spout is led into one side of the wall, while the suction pipe from the pump draws the water from the other side of the wall. In this way all the water used has passed through this filtering sand.

SUGGEST TERRIBLE WEAPONS AS PREVENTION OF WARS

"We can go a long way if we develop weapons so terrible that even I have to use them," he said

Rare Breed Of Cattle Reported

TRENTON, N.J.—One of the rarest breeds of cattle, the Canadian, can be found on a Basking Ridge Dairy Farm in Somerset county, the New Jersey Department of Agriculture reported

Owned by John Aster, the farm manager, Mr. Yost took 36 Canadians in this state and three in the country

Hundreds of pure-bred animals are imported annually from Canada, but the true "Canadian" in name and origin is smaller than the average black and white Holstein or fawn-colored Guernsey shipped to New Jersey from Canada, the department said

The Canadian breed is a hardy animal, development of cattle imported from France where they were kept solely for dairy. It has many of the characteristics of the Jersey but does not produce as much milk

Advantages that have proved its worth in some of the more rugged areas of Quebec province are that it can live and flourish on scant pasture and run withstand conditions too tough for most breeds. It is a good tensilon herd, acceptable both as a dairy and beef producer. It is not seen even in Canada outside Quebec

Find Insecticide Ursolon Better

REGINA — New uranium complex compound with fluorine and complexing five times better than those originally discovered by the Lac la Ronge reactive field have made high grade "squeals" on the Geiger counter, the Resources Department announces.

Two new high grade showings have been found in the shearing along the fault, and "nothing can be found on record in the world" showing radioactive outcrops of equivalent size over such an extensive area, the announcement said.

Further reports also indicate that the outcrops examined by Government geologists would aggregate several millions of square feet in extent. It is announced that several planes have already entered the radioactive area at La Ronge, with prospectors arriving to stake territory adjacent to the discovery reserves. It is said possible at present to locate mineral claims within a mile of some of the larger occurrences

CONTINUE PRICE CEILINGS ON TINNED VEGETABLES

OTTAWA — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced that ceiling prices would be continued on canned tomatoes, tomato juice, peas, corn, green and wax beans, peaches, pears and plums.

The maximum prices allowed canners are those fixed last November 27 by the schedule to Order A-2456 as amended by A-2481. These maximum prices will also apply to these imported canned goods, except that canned peaches, pears and plums imported prior to July 19 will remain subject to mark-up control only.

It is expected that with the removal of the sales tax on these items, ceiling prices will be somewhat lower for the consumer

ROBBIN & ROBBIN RECIPE FOR LONG LIFE

VANCOUVER — Airerer Rudolph Habbeburg has a recipe for long life

It is: Eat plenty of pie and take long walks, fall in love, if necessary, but remain a bachelor.

He should know. It was his birthday and he claims he is 114 years old.

Mr. Habbeburg says he was born July 8, 1834, in Halifax. The church which contained his birth records was destroyed by fire many years ago. He now lives in a rest home

HONEYMOON INTERRUPTED

FORT WORTH, Tex. — The man missed $41 from his purse, saw a familiar figure on the roof next door and called police. A 17-year-old bride was jailed, Parents of the embarrassed youth got him out with an explanation; he was not a burglar; he was on the roof playing hide-and-seek with his bride.

Yellow is the strongest color in point of luminosity.

BRITISH WORKER HAS NEW SWIM METHOD; "WALKS" ON EVER THAMES

LONDON — Joe Simms, 31-year-old railroad worker, "walked" across the Thames here from Battersea Park to Chelsea embankment, 250 yards, in 17 minutes.

Simms, who weighs 185 pounds, claims to have perfected a new method of progress through water after 15 years research. As he "walked" across the Thames his arms were folded across his chest and only his head showed above the water.

A spectator who followed in a boat said, "The whole time he was in the water he appeared to be perfectly erect." Simms said after his "walk" across the river "That is something like it, ma'm."

"My movement is made with a slow cycle action," he said in discussing his technique.

The Next Five Years CAN Be The BEST!

ALBERTA TODAY HAS THE BRIGHTEST OUTLOOK OF ANY CANADIAN PROVINCE. THE VASTNESS OF HER NATURAL RESOURCES, THE ENTERPRISE OF HER PROGRESSIVE PEOPLE AND THE SOUND ADMINISTRATION OF HER PRESENT GOVERNMENT HAVE BROUGHT ALBERTA TO THE THRESHHOLD OF A GREAT ERA OF ECONOMIC AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

THE RE-ELECTION OF THE GOVERNMENT UNDER WHICH OUR PROVINCE REACHED ITS PRESENT ENVIABLE POSITION WILL ASSURE THE CONTINUATION OF ALBERTA'S OUTSTANDING PROGRESS AND MAKE CERTAIN TO ALL HER PEOPLE THE INCREASED BENEFITS THEY WILL REAP FROM THE STILL GREATER PROGRESS AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE NEXT FIVE YEARS.

This is your Social Credit Government's Ten Point Program For The Next Five Years

I. NATURAL RESOURCES
The rapid and orderly development of Alberta's vast natural resources in the best interests of all her citizens.

II. AGRICULTURE
A vigorous program to further improve and stabilize Alberta's basic industry — farming.

III. RURAL ELECTRIFICATION
Extension of rural electrification throughout Alberta as rapidly as possible.

IV. HEALTH
The progressive expansion of Alberta's public health and social welfare program — already one of the best in Canada.

V. MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS
A new and better deal for Alberta Municipalities through implementation of the Judge Commission Report.

VI. EDUCATION
Constant efforts to still further improve Alberta's modern system of education and reduce the cost to municipal districts.

VII. ROADS
Progressive extension of Alberta's road programme until the entire province is served by an adequate system of all-weather highways and roads.

VIII. INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT
Industrial and economic development to increase Alberta payrolls and save excessive freight charges on exports and imports.

IX. LABOUR
Full co-operation with labour and management to secure just rights of both and assure uninterrupted production.

X. THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS
A continuation of the Government's unrelenting fight to make secure, the rights of each and every citizen in social justice, economic security and individual freedom.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

And Then It Was Night

By ANNE KENDALL WILSON

IT AN alley shadowed by tall buildings the new moon got a chance to show its face early, and Bruce Herman threw off his head and thought about home. He touched the letter from Margie in his pocket fondly, laughing Margie had brought Barrie Drake with that letter.

On a night like this the whole crowd would be down at the corner drug store by now scrounging what would be the sunlight on her neck and she would be gesturing and talking as that way which always stir old him up. Why didn't they all get good jobs to begin with" Her eyes perked up at him from under dark lashes as she took time out to sip her chocolate soda. "Don't any of you read the want ads in the city paper? There's nothing in this town" she leaned up her nose scornfully and then she would sigh "If I could leave Mother . . . but then I'll never have a chance."

Sometimes Bruce was sorry for her, but other times he wasn't quite sure she meant it. But it was what she said about not being tied down to him to the manager of a big department store in the city, and get him this job to men's wear.

The letter in his pocket made a warm spot. He was waiting to get to his room to read it. "The one most likely to succeed" he could hear her saying a little huskily that last night when the whole crowd came down to see him off.

GOOSE CREEK AG. SOCIETY HOLDS 35TH ANNUAL FAIR

On August 11th the Goose Creek Agricultural Society held its 35th successful Fair. Prize to the war the Fairs were held at Goose Creek. While the conflict was on the fair move of the district decided to discontinue holding Fairs and direct all effort to winning the war. Last year some considerable change a new start was made, the time at Lougheed. Retaining its original name and with some of the founders still on the directorate, it cautiously set to work adopting itself to its new environment. When we look at the names of the chief executives it would seem that the management of this Society was a problem in Black and White. Those acquainted with these capable gentlemen will tell you that while affairs are in their hands, no problem exists.

Some of the old-timers present have witnessed a rapid succession of changes in customs, fashions and methods of cultivation, production and transportation since they broke the prairie and with a team of oxen. From the oxen to the small horse and then the large horse outfits; the steam threshing outfits and the thousands of oxen from the East who came West each fall to help with the harvest; the gas tractor and recently the self-propelled combine. The days of the trusting prairie tenant and the slow cultious trips to some distant town are almost forgotten. Still the main essentials to health and comfort remain unchanged. A new generation has grown up since this Society was formed, and it is gratifying to note how they are assuming responsibility for the comfort and well-being of their Fair. Future prospects look bright.

Entries in the livestock classes, while small, lacked nothing in the exhibits shown. In the case of the cattle horse this is understandable, but beef and milk are in greater demand than ever.

The ladies, as usual, put on a fine display of needlework and delicious things to eat. Recent rains have helped in filling out the grain, and some fine showes of well-filled heads were shown. This Society has a reputation for its excellent vegetables, and despite the unusually long dry spell, classes were well filled and the quality was good. In some sections competition was of the keenest nature.

Though the afternoon was showery, a good crowd assembled to view the exhibits. Five judges were supplied by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and Mr. A. H. Bowker was on hand again to place the awards in the poultry, grains and grasses, roots and vegetables and dairy produce. Judging was completed in good time allowing exhibitors and others to socialize or to run with the judges, reasons for the various placings. Much of the educational value is often lost on account of the judges wishing to hurry away.

It was a good Agricultural Exhibition and exhibitors and patrons are looking forward to next year. Those in charge are to be congratulated on the success of the 1948 venture

Mr. A. H. Bowker was with but one exception been acting as a judge at all the Fairs of the Goose Creek Agricultural Society since 1927. Does this constitute a record?

WEDDING

A very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian Manse in Edmonton on July 24th when Phyllis Hope, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Harpe of Athabasca became the bride of John Craig Lawson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lawson of Mirror. The Rev. J. Ellis Elliott officiated.

The bride looked lovely in a blue sheer top-length gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and bell sleeves. Her chapel veil was caught to her head with orange blossoms, and she wore a bouquet of shaded pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Jane Harpe, sister of the bride, wore a floor length pink organdy gown with a fitted bodice and puffed sleeves. She wore a corsage of red roses. Tom Lawson, brother of the groom was best man.

A reception for the immediate families was held immediately after the ceremony at the Royal George Hotel. The bride's mother was attired in a brown dress with grey accessories. The groom's mother wore a blue suit with white accessories.

The couple went on a trip to Jasper and Banff for their honeymoon For travelling the bride donned a rodeine and blue dress with a plaid coat.

Mr. Gordon Harpe of Lethbridge attended his sister's wedding. The couple is now at home to friends.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

During the past two or perhaps three weeks the people in our paper have been subjected to an unceasing barrage of political propaganda. Nearly all of which delivered in abnormal and time-worn pattern which has been adopted by politicians in the correct method of approach to a bewildered and unstable electorate. The popular method seems to be to spend fifty minutes of each hour attempting to make all opposition appear as fools and misguided representatives of the people. The remaining ten minutes is used to try and convince the same gullible people that the speaker's party is their only salvation for our dear, dear province.

As though we were not suffering enough already, the Liberals were holding forth in national convention at the same time. In our opinion (subject, this national) affair was an insult or a shot in the arm, when the unpredictable Mr. Pearse came forth with a well-advised denunciation of his own party. Seldom do we hear a speaker tell so many of the failures of his regime. It is our own opinion that such candour from an within his party is a good indication of good to the party with a predominance of good for the entire nation.

Although the election seems to not realize it, we of the printing trade are quite aware of the fact that many lines of paper are still in short supply Especially is this true with the finer grades of paper. It was somewhat bewildered therefore to receive this week a many-paged and multi-colored magazine which was printed on well finished paper the title of which was " Publicerra " official publication of the Agricultura De La Nacion Argentina." What ever that may mean to you and us now, it is beside the point. The thing is that almost (99 p.c.) of the publication was edited in a foreign language. Even the captions under the illustrations were in a foreign language. The question is: why send such a publication to English-speaking people who can never hope to read it or understand it? It is to and cherries and raspberries been in short supply for more essential and more profitable purposes.

Nature has indeed been liberal this season so far as wild fruits are concerned. Not in many years have the saskatoons, choke cherries, pin cherries and raspberries been in such quantity. Bushes and shrubs are fairly loaded with large juicy berries just awaiting the hands of the pickers. If you are not getting your share of this wild nature's crop you are missing a good thing. Get out your collar with a dog-ear which can make up a really delicious wine.

Perhaps even before you read this, Mr. Gardiner's announcement of last week will have had an effect on your household budget. The 17 p. of the export embargo on beef cattle could mean in stock raisers a source of added worry for the housewife and the wage-earner. Already have found the butcher not willing too much for the weekly purchase to handle A raise of from 2" to 20 percent in the retail cost of a steak really puts that essential food item in a luxury class all by itself The life of a cabinet Minister must be a sad one indeed To make one section of the people happy is almost sure to arouse the ire of another

GOOD ENTRY LIST FOR LOCAL GOLF TOURNAMENT

That the golf game has made a strong come-back in this part of the country was proven over the past week end when thirty players representing the fines (Open Golf Tournament held at Sedgewick in many years. Players from Hughes, Amisk, Hardisty, Lougheed, Sedgewick, Killam and Camrose were out more than the usual quantity ing round at 9:00 a.m. Sunday, and from there on the entrants were sent out in flights of three for an 18 hole match play.

Low qualifier was W. Townsend of Sedgewick, with Cpl. D'undon, Hardisty as runner-up

Winners in the various groups were as follows:

Championship Flight: 1st Wm. Townsend; 2nd Cpl. Braiden

Consolation Flight: 1st A. Eagle, Sedgewick; 2nd E. Cooper, Sedgewick

Second Flight 1st Wm Murphy, Hughendon; 2nd W. D. Hnatiy, Sedgewick.

Third Flight: 1st J. Adamson Sedgewick; 2nd C. Cochrane, Hughendon.

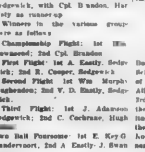
Two Ball Foursome: 1st E. Key G. Vandervaart, 2nd A Eastly J. Swanson

Best Dressed Golfer Phyl MacLachlan, Killam

Fielden Prize Award: Don Bailey Camrose

The weather was ideal for play on the sporty local course which is being steadily improved each year Interest in the game is at a big pitch and next year should see a largely increased membership.

The Club wishes to sincerely thank those Merchants who donated prizes for the events, the ladies for the efficient job of catering, Mr. and Mrs V.D. Eastly for the use of the ... and anyone else who helped in any way with the success of the tournament.



F. V. YOUNG, west coast actor, will be heard in many CBC drama broadcasts from Vancouver, and who, in the last five years has been heard regularly on the Thursday night Telegram Ensemble.

FUNERAL OF LOUGHEED CALLED TO LAST REWARD

Friends and neighbors over a very large area were grieved on hearing of the passing of Marcus Pope, well and favorably known old timer of the Lougheed and Sedgewick districts. Mr Pope passed away at the Killam hospital on August 12th 1948 after a lingering illness. He was born at Uvinson, Ala on March 28th, 1880. On Feb. 20th, 1910 he was married to Rosa Arnold of Uvinson He came to Canada in 1906 and homesteaded in the Sedgewick district, moving later to his farm at Lougheed where he resided up until 1944 when he retired and went to White Rock, B.C. to try and recover his health

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. A. H. Olson of Killam, assisted by Rev. MacLean of Sedgewick and Lougheed. Mr. Pope was a member of the Killam Baptist Church. A beautiful duet, "Glory Eye and Eye" was rendered by Mr. Hirtzley Humphrey and Loree Stevenson accompanied by Mrs. Cecil White at the organ

Deceased leaves to mourn his loss his loving wife, 2 sons Glen and Howard and 2 daughter, 4 grand children, 1 brother, 1 sister, 1 brother-in-law and mother, and 1 brother and 3 sisters pre-deceased him.

Pall Bearers were: A. Stenberg, O. Probst, F. Sax, M. Holman, N. Butcher and H. Weir. Hon Pallbearers: R. Hopwood, G. Probst, Dr. Zipser; R. Wright; Wm. Wright; K. Messervey; H. Walmsley, F. Peel and Mr. Sass-Kortsak.

Interment was made in the Lougheed cemetery.

Clean Threshing Equipment

Get your threshing equipment in shape to harvest registered seed certified seed crops. The threshing machine or the combine should be cleaned thoroughly, so that no old mixtures will be mixed in when the pure grain is threshed. This may mean dismantling some of the equipment underneath the cylinder, and may mean removal of the sieves to eliminate all grain. Also the grain elevator should be cleaned and more especially if the horizontal one. A good way to clean this equipment is by using water This way is now practiced by two of our leading seed growers in the district. A report from Mosley pump is used to supply the water The machine is set into motion and is completely washed with water under pressure.

W. A. Mosley

Also the granary should be absolutely clean. If the granary has been used for other varieties it is suggested that the walls be lined with new paper. Also the cage of the bin should be swept carefully. The same applies to trucks and racks.

The bulletin on "Production of Registered Seed" advises that each grower must follow a safe seed production method

Several weeks ago I had the occasion to follow a truck on the highway, which was hauling grain to the elevator. The box was practically full of wheat. The truck was travelling at about 40 miles per hour and due to the action of the wind I venture to say that this chap lost about a bushel of wheat in every five minutes. Therefore I recommend that all truckers and farmers get in the habit of using a tarpaulin to cover the grain box when grain is in transit. This will not only prevent the waste of grain but also the spread of weed seeds on the road. I hope that this article will be noted upon by all truck drivers

Progress In Literature

THERE HAVE BEEN MANY INDICATIONS during the past few years of the growing importance of Canada as a nation, in farming, manufacturing, trade and other fields of endeavor, this country, in spite of its relatively small population, has advanced to a foremost position in international affairs. Credit is due to those who have worked to bring prestige to Canada in industry and science, but there are also many who have brought home to the country in the fields of arts and literature. In this connection it was recently announced that Canada now has a list of its own 100 best books", which has been compiled at the request of the Arts and Letters Section of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

* * * * *

Were Selected By Committee

The list of the 100 best books, written in English, was selected by a committee of eight judges, all outstanding Canadian scholars and critics. It was chosen for the information of people in other countries interested in Canadian literature, and includes books on a wide range of subjects, in various styles of writing, representing the work of contemporary authors as well as those of earlier periods. Among the earlier writers whose work has been selected are the poets Bliss Carman, Duncan Campbell Scott and Archibald Lampman, the naturalists Grey Owl and Ernest Thompson Seton, the novelists Sir Gilbert Parker and Mazo de la Roche, the humorist Stephen Leacock, and the historical novelist Susanna Moodie.

* * * * *

High Literary Standard Shown

Contemporary writers whose works were considered to be among the 100 best in Canadian literature included Kenneth C. Cragg, W. O. Mitchell, Audrey Brown, Hugh MacLennan, Kenneth Haig, Ross Munro and many others. It would be most unlikely that there would be general agreement as to the choice of books placed on the list some of necessity many fine books were omitted because of the limited number which could be chosen. There is no doubt, however, but that we have reason to be proud of the books which were selected to be recommended to people of other countries who are interested in the work of Canadian writers. Literary achievement is one measure of the rank of a nation's development and of its maturity. The preparation of the list of 100 books for the Arts and Letters Section of UNESCO has served to bring to the attention of the public the high quality which has been attained here in this important field.

Atom Poisons Are Deadly When Taken Into Body

CHICAGO.—Atomic poisons, which Dr. Stafford Warren says may hang around dangerously for many years, have been explained.

Dr. Warren, one of the top technical scientists of the Manhattan District and the atomic bomb, showed delegates at the American Medical Association convention pictures of how the experiments work. All of them use radioactive atoms and nearly a dozen are deadly poisons if they get inside the body.

He said that after an atomic bomb was the poisons would fall into water supplies and areas where food is growing. They would be a risk to life, he said, unless doctors learn what to do.

These atomic things are slow poisons. They would take, Dr. Warren said, probably years of scientific experiments to learn just how much of them people can be allowed to breathe in or eat without risk.

STEALING IS NO LONGER LEGAL IN OLD CITY

ALBANY, N.Y.—It's not legal to steal in this 94-year-old city any more.

Until now it was quite all right to steal things in Albany, provided you pried small items, worth less than $20.

The city fathers found out when a petty larceny case came up in municipal court. There wasn't any ordinance in the book forbidding such thefts but the city council soon made it illegal.

RULE WAS PROVING MUCH TOO EXPENSIVE

NEW YORK. Police waived a rule requiring pet property to be held six days in order being sold to permit the sale of a pug. The pug taken over from two men who said they found it, the city's expense for two weeks before police decided it would be too expensive to keep the animal.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"What is it that has horns, a long pointed tail and carries a pitchfork?"

"I give up."

"I don't know either, but it's been following us ever since we left that last bar."

* * * * *

"So you and your neighbor are not on speaking terms?"

"No. He sent me a note of all to use on my lawn-mower when I started to cut the grass at six in the morning."

"And what did you do?"

"Sent it back and told him to use it on his wife when she started singing at seven at night."

* * * * *

A Negro was pleading his own case in court the prim of a lawyer. He called the chief witness to the stand and said: "Joshua, where was I when you stole those chickens?"

* * * * *

"Sir, there," shouted the gallerynomb, "where's your rear-light?"

"I want to see where I'm going to, not where I've been," said the cyclist, disappearing into the darkness.

* * * * *

The umpire at the Saturday afternoon match didn't know much about cricket, but he wouldn't stand any nonsense. The first ball hit the batsman's pads.

"Out!" roared the umpire.

"Out—what for?"

"Aid the afternoon," replied the umpire

* * * * *

Magistrate: You are ordered to pay a fine of ten guineas, plus five guineas costs. Have you anything to say?"

Offender: "Rather. And if you'll promise not to increase the fine, I'll say it."

* * * * *

"Your vacation doesn't seem to bother you."

"Oh, my boss tells me when and my wife where."

* * * * *

Angry Father: "What! You proposed me with a bill for fifty guineas for one consultation and at the same time ask me if you can marry my daughter!"

Medical Suitor: "I am merely trying to convince you, sir, that my profession is as lucrative that I can an excellent match."

* * * * *

Johnny hurried to get the evening paper. Tomorrow was picnic day, and he wanted to read the weather forecast.

"Well, dear, what do they predict?" his mother asked.

"They haven't decided yet," the youngster replied gloomily. "Haven't decided!"

"No it says 'Unsettled.'"

* * * * *

Mrs Smith was vigorously pounding her face before greeting out "Why do you go to all that trouble?" asked Smith, who was waiting impatiently.

Modesty, my dear," was the reply

"Modesty?"

"Yes I've no desire to shine in public"

* * * * *

"Now," began the architect, "my you'll give me a general idea of the kind of home you need—"

"I must something," replied the husband, "to go with a dance-hall where my wife brought home from down."

GRATE GATE FOR AUTOS

Plan and observation of a gate that allows cars to pass but keeps cattle and horses at home in their own pastures.

SIDE VIEW

Of those who drive automobiles a very small number, it is thought, is of gate which does not require that the driver get out of the car and walk still hold livestock satisfactorily. In this respect the automatic type of gate will provide an answer, but it still better one is the ordinary "cattle guard", also known as the "cross gate", "grate gate" and "Texas gate."

Probably this gate is the best arrangement for providing some sort of barrier which will allow the passage of motor cars without making it necessary to open a gate, and which will still confine livestock. This gate consists of a shallow pit about 2 ft. deep, 6 ft. wide, 4 ft. across.

Two fairly heavy logs are placed across the pit, as shown in drawings, the logs being placed about where the car wheels will travel. Then 6-inch poles, iron pipes, or old steam- or tractors.

Various types of gratings to confine livestock can be made. Here is one shown in actual use which consists merely of planks placed on edge and spiked together to form an open, shallow grating. To be 100 per cent. sure of stopping livestock the openings in the grating should be a little narrower and quite a little deeper.

GOOD FISH STORY

FORT WORTH, Texas.—The trio of fishermen was having bad luck. Then a one-pound bass made a strike at a shad, jumped out of water into the shad, and bit one of the anglers. He grabbed the bass, shad and all. Or so the story goes.

Unusual Vessel is Sailing Up Lakes

OTTAWA.—A 65-foot motor vessel in which the fishermen doesn't even look where he's going is now sailing up the Great Lakes. The boat —National Research Council's "Radar"—will put wartime radar to use in peacetime marine navigation.

The vessel is equipped with the most advanced types of radar. Riverrul "blind" pilots have been safely navigate narrow channels and come within 12 feet of buoys or otherwise observed by darkness or fog.

Ottawa Report Shows Butter Stocks Lower

OTTAWA.—The Bureau of Statistics has turned out a gloomy report on the butter situation.

It showed that total supply of creamery, dairy and whey in Canada now is approximately 83,000,000 pounds, down 10,000,000 pounds from the supply position a year ago.

The figures include stocks up to the beginning of June plus production during that month, which amounted to slightly more than 44,000,000 pounds, 1,500,000 pounds ahead of June, 1947.

However, while butter production was up during Jn e, the domestic disappearance of butter was the highest for any month this year, totalling nearly 32,000,000 pounds against 28,000,000 in May and 28,000,000 as well as June, 1947

Although production improved during May and June, the bureau said it still was insufficient to "increase the deficit caused by heavy withdrawals from storage during the low production months of last winter, when butter became scarce

In pounds per capita the domestic disappearance during June this year was 2.48 pounds against 2.33 pounds in May and 2.39 pounds in June last year. Rationing restrictions were lifted June 7 last year.

Arctic Sailors Naturally Have To Eat Heartily

MONTREAL.—Baked beans with ham and eggs made up the favorite breakfast of the men who brave the ice floes aboard the Regina Polaris, which has left Montreal on its annual trip to the Arctic. The ship, which has taken the place of the Nascopie in supplying residents of the north with their yearly needs, also sailed out of port well stocked with provisions that are to sustain the crew throughout the 5½ months' voyage.

Clarence Rossiner, chief cook and a former chef aboard a number of liners, said the Star that baked beans are especially preferred by the French sailors, who are 50 per cent of the crew of twelve

"We eat a lot of salt pork and beef, also," said Mr. Rossiner, who had never been to Canada before. The English culinary expert listed the main items on the dinner menu as follows: "soup, a joint, sweets (turnips) and dessert." He latter being usually fruit or pie. Occasionally he tries fancy recipes, he said, though he attempts none of the 7-course banquets of passenger ships where "every entree has a French name and something is always labelled something else."

The route which the ship is following goes first to Churchill and then makes six trips farther north, the most extreme point reached being Dorset in Baffinland. Supplies of meat are obtained on these regions for the return trip home

The men get tired of never seeing women, according to Mr. Rossiner. Evenings are spent with cards and books, and variations in the scenery of "icebergs water and whales" occur in the brief stopovers along the way. And mealtimes become more than a matter of stocking up on vitamins in a life where other social diversions are few.

Employees Of Restaurant Had Long Cold Wait

CLIFTON, N.J.—Twenty-three persons "stored" in a refrigerator while a bandit looted a restaurant, thawed themselves out and notified police.

A lone gunman locked eight employees in a big refrigerator while he waited for someone to open the safe.

As tradespeople appeared, delivering to the restaurant, they joined the confinement one by one—in the refrigerator.

Finally, Milton Turner, the owner, appeared and the gunman forced him to open the safe. Turner then joined the others in the refrigerator.

The bandit was rather considerate, police learned. They were in a "serious state of shock" when police arrived, but soon had hearts later.

He tossed them all the coats he could find, found several bottles of whisky to help keep warm.

Color Of Car Is Character Indication

BALTIMORE.—The color you choose for your car gives an inkling into your character, according to a survey made by three automobile associations purported to reveal.

According to the color poll, "unelected people prefer blue; athletes, red, rugged men, yellow, and introverts, orange."

The survey also shows that color preferences vary by regions. In the southwest, vivid colors are preferred. On the Pacific coast, light pastel tints are chosen. In New England, subdued blues, greens and grays are favorites.

RICE MAY COST MORE

MEXICO CITY. — A world rice shortage may boost prices for the 1948-49 crop, members of the 16-nation rice committee said. World price average may be slightly more than eight cents a pound.

Pasteurized Milk Is Safe.

MARBLE IS PLENTIFUL IN ALBERTA HILLS

SYLACAUGA, Ala. — Residents boast that this is the only town in the nation with a marble filling station. Situated atop one of the best marble veins in the U.S., Sylacauga has marble sidewalks, marble fishponds, marble fences and marble driveways.

HARVEST WAGES

The Alberta Federation of Agriculture recommends that the going wage for harvesting and threshing for 1948 be $4.00 per day for harvesting and $7.00 per day for threshing, based on a ten-hour day, including board.

For the past two years the Directors of the A.F.A. have recommended a uniform basis for establishing harvest wages. At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors the above recommendations were endorsed

The purpose of such action is to give farmers a guide as to what can be considered a fair wage and thus avoid the unnecessary confusion and misunderstanding The Federation has been in consultation with the governments of the Provinces, Saskatchewan and Manitoba and finds that this recommendation is in line with those made in other provinces

The Answer
Now at long last comes a miracle in good hearing. Works at home, in Church, at work — in fact, any place where hearing well is a necessity. No tiny it can be concealed in the hand, yet so powerful that even a whisper may be heard distinctly. — Interested people may write to the distributor of this surprising device
Wm. G. Brigman
Suite 1, National Trust Bldg., 2nd Ave. at 20th St.
Saskatoon, Sask.
To make this invention even more unbelievable, the cost of operation has been cut from dollars to pennies.
Would you like to see and hear this new development in your own home without risking one cent?
Write at once for the facts. Mr. Brigman will be in your district in the near future.

An Unjust Subsidy
For two years prairie farmers have been obligated to subsidize all the people of Canada with cheap bread and flour, losing over $1.00 a bushel on approximately 70 million bushels each year. Farmers, we suggest, should protest to their Members of Parliament against the continuance of this unjust subsidy.

Britain Fears Potato Bugs From Continent

Many thousands of acres of potato-growing farm land on the South and East coasts of England are now the scene of make-believe "invasion" battle, as they were in the wartime days. This time, however, the invader is the Colorado potato beetle discovered in Germany, which in the worst threat to Britain's potato crops in ten years. Spraying and searching for the pest is being intensified in areas where the beetle has been found recently, and a small army of farmers, officials, watchers and searchers are engaged in an all-out effort to beat the Continental threat to the crops.

Upper left: Searching potato fields for the Colorado beetle on a farm near Rochester, Kent. The area is the scene of an intensive spraying operation.

Above: A duster-sprayer at work in a potato field on a farm near Rochester. There are four of these sprayers at work in the area, and they are using 20 tons of DDT per week.

Inset: This is the enemy against whom the fight is being waged. Samples of the Colorado beetle are taken in containers by the mobile army" which is covering a large area of Kent as a precaution against the pest.

Lower left: A government official, in charge of anti-beetle operations in a large area of Kent surveys potato-growing land on which he and his assistants are about to set against the beetle.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

FIND EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR UNDULANT FEVER

Investigations carried out over a 16-year period in the laboratories and clinics of the University of Minnesota Hospitals indicate that combined treatment with streptomycin and sulfadiazine is more effective against human brucellosis (undulant fever) than any other known therapy.

Writing in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, four physicians report the cases of more than 26 patients with active brucellosis whom they studied and observed, and whose treatment they directed. The doctors are Wesley W Spink, M.D., Wendell H Hall, M.D., James M. Shaffer, M.D., and Abraham I. Braude M.D. from the Division of Internal Medicine, University of Minnesota Hospitals and Medical School, Minneapolis.

Executed in importance by only three other communicable diseases tuberculosis, syphilis and gonorrhea undulant fever has baffled medical men for many years. The Brucella organisms are transmitted to humans by contact with diseased hogs, goats or cows, or by drinking unpasteurized milk. The forms which the disease takes are extremely variable and even after apparent recovery the Brucella organisms may remain in the patient's tissues. Relapse and recurrence of symptoms has therefore been common.

The four doctors report that in both acute and chronic brucellosis cases a sulfadiazine-streptomycin combination brought the most satisfactory results. Also patients whose symptoms pointed to brucellosis as the most probable dangerous responded well to the combined therapy although the presence of Brucella organisms in their tissue or body fluids had not been proved. The treatment also was effective in cases with serious complications of brucellosis.

It had been attempted previously to treat the disease with sulfonamides or with streptomycin, separately but without success. Only occasional treatment with both drugs combined gave satisfactory results.

BIG GIRL AT QUEEN — Highstrung as Wales Elizabeth Rose of Kelowna, B.C., was surprised to find she had been chosen unanimously as queen of the Okanagan Valley British Legion carnival. Blonde and 16, she has spent most of her life on a B.C. fruit farm.

LANGUAGE NO BARRIER IN LAUNDRY BUSINESS

GALT, Ont. — Tom Jack Tung, Chinese, can't speak, read or write English, but he's been running a laundry business here for 34 years. Tung tags his laundry bundles with such descriptions of his customers as tall man with hooked nose; little dark fat man; slim girl with glasses, man with one front tooth missing.

Weekly Tip

LITTLE DROPS OF PAIN?

Use turpentine immediately on blisters, and paper-cuts. Soften corns and callouses by soaking the feet in warm water and scrape off.

Summer Insects Hold Greater Terrors Than Blizzards For Men In Yukon

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory (Summer insects hold greater terrors than winter blizzards for the men who roam the trails of the Yukon.

A man on the tramp in the Yukon during the summer months carries plenty of matches and netting with him. He "dopes" his skin with special preparations. If he stops for a meal or a rest, he builds a circle of "smudge" fires and sits in the middle.

There is many a tale of men frozen to death in the Yukon snows, but far more horror they cannot rival the stories told here of prospectors lost in the hills and unable to protect themselves from the solution of mosquitoes and black flies. One search party last summer found a missing man sitting on a tree stump, crying softly.

Clouds of black flies, an insect unusually no bigger than the head of a pin, have been reported reaching from ground level to a height of 25,000 feet, resembling the "funnel" of a tornado.

Despite interfering with everyday life in the north, these insects present a problem for military authorities, who since 1942 have been studying the operating efficiency of military forces in the sub-Arctic regions. So far, these experiments have had to do mostly with cold, but now the Canadian defense research board is turning its attention to bugs.

Right field parties are spending the summer in the north this year, under the auspices of the defense research board. In addition, laboratory investigations will be carried out at Fort Churchill, Manitoba.

It is hoped to compile complete information on many types of mosquitoes, black flies and deer flies, and to investigate control methods. The parties will fan out across the north, from the river delta, Southampton Island, Coats Bay, Chesterfield Inlet and Frobisher Bay. The parties are being taken in by air, and will continue their experiments until the end of the Arctic summer, late in August.

Their job will be to collect insects, observe breeding and biting habits, note the effect of weather and vegetation and compile 24-hour timetables of insect activities. Various repellants and control methods will be investigated and a new pest-proof suit will be tried out.

Last year, a check at Fort Churchill identified 10 biting types and various non-biting types of mosquitoes, 12 species of black flies and nine of deer fly types. It was stated that the pests appear in round the clock shifts.

Most fertile breeding grounds are said to be in the barren lands, where spraying methods are described as ineffective because new hordes of insects move in as soon as an area is cleared.

One project envisages spraying areas with insecticide, designed to kill insects when the thaw comes.

The research teams also will conduct experiments to see whether it is possible to create artificial immunity to insect poisons in humans. Members of parties, many of them students or faculty members of Canadian universities, will be insured with various perparations and will report themselves, it was stated.

Grooms Mistaken For High Officials

LONDON — It appears that lower brackets of visiting Olympic teams should not throw out of their chests. It causes embarrassment.

When the grooms of a visiting equestrian team—officials didn't say which one—turned up at a camp near London they were dressed so smartly that British officials mistook them for high officials of its team.

The grooms were suitably entertained until it was discovered that the real officers were in Aldershot.

Rocket Trips to the Moon? You May Live to See Them! Scientists See Possibility

Atomic Fission Discovery Plus Post-War Experiment With Guided Missiles Has Developed Keen Interest in Not-Now-So-Fantastic Theories Of Space Travel

Rocket is Moon? Artist Alfred J. Buescher's Cut-option of Moon Rocket. Inset is V2 Rocket.

By JOHN F. RESHOWER
Central Press Canadian

WASHINGTON — Rocket trips to the moon within the lifetime of some of those who read this?... That is the striking prediction of some scientific thinkers not fantasy fiction writers who now believe it is a definite probability.

A lot of other Canadians also may become convinced that there is much a possibility after they view a spectacular travelling science exhibit which is starting on a swing around the country from the Museum of Natural History in New York city.

It is the memorial exhibit of the work of the late Dr. Robert H. Goddard, pioneer rocket authority. His discoveries were cribbed by the Germans who during World War II startled the world with the V-2 rocket.

The Guggenheim Foundation has financed the display which eventually will be permanently installed in the Smithsonian institution here.

The careful students of Dr. Goddard's research include more than 300 rocket experts and aviation men in the United States, among whom are such flying pioneers as Gen. James H. Doolittle of Japanese-bombing fame and Charles A. Lindbergh.

Flights to the moon seem no more fantastic to Dr. Goddard than did the projected voyages of Columbus and Magellan 400 years five centuries ago.

Reverse Thinking

They point to the quickened pace of science and invention today as a convincing of their thesis that the interplanetary travel may become a reality by a half-century from now.

Dr. discovery of atomic energy that really has started the wheels. Whereas the problem of powering a ship across space was once considered before they figure that a single significant discovery in how might overcome this seeming difficulty also might.

When Jules Verne wrote his imaginary book about the "Moon Trip" the author of that fabulous romance made prophetic glimpses into the future no one dared even to try to put down on paper exactly what it would take to negotiate the 238,000 miles from the earth to the satellite.

However even before the discovery of atomic energy scientists had to do some scientific calculation, and one thing with an estimate that a rocket space ship would need at least 25 tons of gasoline and liquid oxygen as fuel for a moon trip. This settled the matter in the negative for the time being.

Now, however, calculations by some scientists indicate that a few pounds of fissioning uranium 235 would be the equivalent of the tons of gasoline, fuel, and no oxygen would be needed except for breathing by the occupants.

The has led to other awesome planning that reckons more travel to a process somewhat like an eager, motorized getting down to the specifics of an automobile journey to the mountains.

Route Mapped

Rocket enthusiasts point out that by maintaining a speed of "only" 175 miles per hour, the moon could be reached in a matter of eight weeks.

The space ship might then try to take a bending, or with side jets might circle the moon and immediately return to safe sanctuary on the earth. It would be a non-stop voyage of about four months!

The intrepid rocketeers hastily add however, that such a trip would not be simple. There would be the problem of navigating, for the space ship would have to aim for the moon on the basis of mathematical calculations that would lead unerringly to a position in outer space.

There are elementary to any astronomer, however, and such matters already have been plotted out, not only to the moon, but also to Venus, Mars and other planets.

The first 268,000 miles would be the hardest. There would be the initial thrust needed to free the craft from the earth's clinging grasp.

The plan calls for a relatively slow lift through the 100 miles of relative-ly dense earthly atmosphere, then a gigantic push up to more than seven miles a second. This is faster than an anti-aircraft shell and far speedier than the one-fifth-of-a-mile per-second record of present jet airplanes.

The space ship would get "over the hump" when it was about 100-mile miles from the earth, for then it would begin to "fall" toward the moon instead of the earth.

Atmosphere Lacking

The "hump" is necessary for the reason the take-off would be timed for the new moon when the moon's attraction behind the satellite would divert and assist the Reverse rockets working on the same principle as those employed in the craft. It would be needed to apply the brakes as the moon was neared. for the moon has no atmosphere like earth's to act as a cushion.

On the return to earth, however, the space ship would have to rake its way into the atmosphere for the friction would generate white-heat like that of meteors which rush earthward at so blazing rate when they penetrate the earth's envelope.

It relative ease to four weeks and has a four-day week. The lack of atmosphere causes the moon to have a scorching 600-degree temperature for the two weeks that it shines brilliantly, and then a like period of pitch-black darkness the thermometer would read 60 degrees below zero.

Either these discouraging facts are unknown to a number of venturesome Americans or they choose to ignore them in the fact of what they view as growing conspicuous of earthly living for the dreamers of the interior actually is softened by people asking to shake out claims to portions of the moon's surface

First-Hand Contact

Interior department clerks patiently explain that the moon is free territory and it belongs to everyone.

The planning of the rocket authorities, however, does have practical applications of immediate value. It is leading to more specific thinking than ever before concerning what "space" is outside the earth.

This may lead to useful knowledge concerning cosmic rays and other intercellular influences that may more deeply affect life on this planet than has ever been realized.

They know that the old-fashioned idea that "ether", or outer space is "nothing" is very wrong. Outer space is a teeming area of mysterious, electric streams from the sun, cosmic rays from remote planets and meteors flying fragmentary.

That these would be hazards to the interstellar traveller is an understatement.

Nevertheless, the rocket planners point out that simply the earth has some first-hand contact with the moon. Radar has been bounced off moon. Radar has been bounced off moon. Radar has been bounced off

ABOUT MARKETING

"During the past twenty years we have learned a lot about the marketing farm products; most of it from those who had more idea than experience. We have met in few conferences on this matter. I one of them only two of the parties present understood that real quality, all the others had ideas that were more ornamental than useful Whatever improvement there has been in the marketing of the products of our nation's greatest industry has come largely from experience Experiments by government and interference by same have not always succeeded. The grain marketing system evolved by a century of experience has no equal anywhere else. The same may be said of their system of marketing livestock. Perhaps neither is perfect but those that have no foundation in experience are not likely to make either perfect. History records that conclusion at last, so far as we have gone."

This is an editorial from a recent number of the "Pennsylvania Farmer" and written by Mr E. S. Bursley, acknowledged to be one of the most highly experienced and best paid agriculturists in the U. S. Everything that Mr. Bayard says about marketing applies to the U. S. equally as well in Canada. H.G.L. Strange

I am sure both the writer and the farmers of the district still have a warm place in their hearts for The Late Hon. Charles Stewart

—Chas. Ball

CHAS. BALL DONATES CUP TO GOOSE CREEK AG. SOCIETY

An Agricultural Fair was sponsored by the Lougheed district in 1915, at which time the late Hon. Chas. Stewart, then Prime Minister of Alberta, donated a valuable silver cup to be competed for in the Best Dairy Cow section. This to help to promote the dairy industry in the province Charles Ball was the winner of this cup, which was to be won three times by any competitor before he became the owner. This cup has since 1915 been held by Mr. C. Ball pending further competition

He has now presented the cup to the Goose Creek Agricultural Society to be competed for under the same terms and ruling made by the original giver, to whom all the honor is directed although he has been called away from our midst.

FOLK SONG SPECIALIST

Alan Mills, baritone singer and guitar artist of Montreal whose Sunday night programs have won him a wide audience among summer listeners. He sings at 11 a.m. MWT, on the CBC Trans-Canada network and with each song tells the story of its origin. To his program, also, Mills brings a seemingly endless supply of songs, tunes and chit-chat in his "traditional" manner, most of which became his repertoire during seven years in industrial shows, grand operas and on the stage.

Baseball Club Dances At Lougheed Every Saturday Night

MRS. LEHMAN SPEAKS AT U. F. W. A. MEETING

The regular meeting of Fairchild Valley UFWA was held on August 19th in the Anglican Church Hall in Sedgewick with 15 members and a number of visitors present.

Arrangements for the Old Time Dance to be held in the Fairgrove School on August 27th were made.

Mrs. Lehman, Director for Camrose Constituency, was a guest. She spoke on a subject of interest and urged that a full quota of delegates be sent to the two forthcoming conventions, the U.F.A. Convention to commence Nov. 30th and the Joint UFA and AFU Convention in January next. Mrs. Lehman discussed the possibility of Citizenscourtes being brought into Canada, and said that it had been estimated that the Canadian public would consume 5 pounds per person per year which would be $5 million pounds. She wondered what this would do to the Canadian butter market and to the Canadian dairy farmers. She spoke of the failure of the International Wheat Agreement and pointed out that the future of the world farmers rest in the hands of the U. F. A. P.

The meeting decided to make the regular meeting day the 3rd Thursday of each month. Next meeting to be at the home of Mrs. P. Hooper.

POPLAR PARK COMMUNITY CLUB MEETS

The monthly meeting of the Poplar Park Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. Stenzler on the 10th of August, with 8 members and 6 guests present.

All business in connection with the picnic held by the Club on July 17th was concluded, and $16 dollars is being turned over to the General Hospital for the X-Ray Fund.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Howard Tetlock, on September 8th.

KILLAM NEWS

Richard and Frank Beaudoin from Clarkston, Wn. and Duncan Cameron of Edmonton are visiting their grand parents Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bennett and Darryl and Gary.

Pauline Kryn has resigned her position at the hospital and left on Monday for a weeks holiday. She plans having duties at the General Hospital in Edmonton.

Some weeks ago I stated that the people of Alberta were not ready yet and did not want any form of Socialism. Last week's election was pretty conclusive proof that my opinion was correct. The failure of the CCF party to elect a single rural member indicates just about where that party stands in rural Alberta.

At the same time, the electricity vote would seem to indicate that the average rural voter has never heard of that old adage "consistency thou art a jewel". He voted for public ownership on the one hand and received the only party which has consistently advocated such a policy.

The only answer seems to be that rural Alberta wants electrification but does not want it even to them by a CCF government If he gets it through a S. C. government then he must admit that the party is not entirely socialistic. Just where does that leave the whole thing"

The Liberal Party got no further than the CCF even though that party promised "cheap" power from coal by pseudons. What was the cause of their obvious unpopularity? Was it a case of "too little and too late?" I don't think so. I am rather inclined to the theory that the old line parties are unpopular with the rural and unpredictable Albertans and that neither of the two old parties will ever be returned to power in the foreseeable future. The people of Alberta know what they have got now and it looks like they are not willing to cast it aside to try something new at present, or to return to something of which they know a little bit also.

In any event, the Social Credit Party is returned in an uncertain manner and it would be unjustified in not giving to Alberta the very best It can give just as quickly in it can give it. We need new and better roads; we need more convenient assistance in financing the education of our children; we need more and better health services We want these things and the government knows we want them. Parties, current 5 years Social Credit has a good opportunity to justify the faith the people of Alberta have put in it. "The next five years can be the best." O. K. That suits me.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

In spite of all the biting criticism leveled at the Alberta Government in the past several months, despite the apparent and wide-spread concern in many quarters about the rate of taxation levied today and caused mainly by the newer set-up in rural education and municipal administration and in spite of the increasing discontent with the large M. D's. and centralized schools, the people of Alberta went to the polls last week and accorded Premier Manning and his followers one of the greatest endorsations of policy ever recorded by a party leader in the annals of Canadian history.

Many people are wondering today why in the face of all this criticism the Social Credit party should win such a conclusive victory. The obvious answer could be that a person should believe nothing he hears and only half of what he sees. One hard working farmer said to me the other day that he would never believe anybody again, not even if he knew the man was telling the truth

But aside from all this, what was the reason for the return to power of the Social Credit Government? I myself believe that Social Credit has departed from its original platform. Ideals and promises had decided to give Alberta about the best government in Canada which has been "dished up" over most of the Dominion for many decades. Although not entirely socialistic, it is "getting along" with the present administration rather than change men or try out another new system.

WEDDING

HAWK — MIDDOE

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Thursday, August 12, in the United Church Manse, Daysland, when Doris Elaine, eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs N. Middoe of Daysland became the bride of James Virgil, third son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rawe of Strome.

The ceremony took place at 2:00 p.m. in the flower decorated living room of Rev. and Mrs Brundage.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a graceful floor length dressy oyster white satin with round bow yoke edged with heavy silk Venetian lace and lace at the waistline, and lily point sleeves. Her embroidered floor-length veil was held in place by a garland of orange blossoms and she carried a large arm bouquet of American Beauty and white lilies and pink snapdragon. Miss Myrtle Middoe, sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor and was attired in a floor length sky blue crepe frock over bive satin, with a sweetheart neckline Miss Lavrains Rawe, sister of the groom also bridesmaid and chose a floor-length dress of blue net over nylon, with brocade bodice and sweetheart neckline and white mittens. Both maid of honor and bridesmaid wore blue beaded coronets and carried large bouquets of pink carnations, sweet peas and pink bouvardia. Orval Rawe, brother of the groom, and Ronald Middoe, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a blue crepe frock with heavy blue satin trim and blue hat, corsage of red roses. Mrs. Rawe, mother of the groom wore a black and white silk jersey dress with black trim and black and white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with only the immediate friends and relatives and Rev and Mrs. Brundage present. The bride's table was laid with a white lace cloth centred by a decorated 3-tier wedding cake flanked by tall white tapers and vases of pink roses.

A wedding dance was held in the Memorial Hall on Thursday night for their many friends and Mr. Hawe will reside at Strome on the groom's farm.

"It's Pool Elevators This Year"

The Alberta Wheat Pool is celebrating its 25th anniversary. The rallying cry is "Make this year a Pool Elevator Year."

Many of the men who participated in the formation of the Alberta Wheat Pool are no longer engaged in farming. Their recollections of the pioneer days are no doubt coloured by the pressure of circumstances which brought about the Alberta Wheat Pool's formation. Nevertheless, they should realize that the Wheat Pool has been a tower of strength to Alberta agriculture.

Alberta farmers have, over the years, paid for many an elevator system. But Alberta Pool Elevators is the only one owned by Alberta farmers today.

Besides providing grain producers with exceptional service and protection, Alberta Pool Elevators has, over the years, paid patronage dividends and retained reserves as follows:

|---|---|
| Patronage dividends paid in cash | $ 3,725,000 |
| Patronage dividends paid in reserves | 3,028,000 |
| | $ 6,753,000 |
| Purchases of reserves from members | $ 4,480,000 |

This record shows what can be done through co-operative effort. This year deliver your grain to—

Wider Medical Service

THE NEED FOR IMPROVED MEDICAL SERVICE for the people who live in remote districts of the prairie provinces and the North West Territories has been frequently pointed out in the press and by others who are interested in public health and welfare. Many of the people who live in settlements situated far from railway lines and good highways both automobile medical care in cases of serious illness or accidents, in spite of the fact that frequent "mercy flights" are made by the R.C.A.F., and by chartered planes in Saskatchewan, two government-owned air ambulances are operated from points more in Regina and Prince Albert, and they do excellent work in the areas which they serve. There are many people, however, who are of the opinion that there should be a service of this kind, organized by the government, for the benefit of all those living in isolated districts in the North West.

* * * *

Units Operate In Australia

In Australia, where there are also many remote settlements, some medical boats have been established. Each one of these boats has a well-equipped hospital, and a "flying doctor", who visits patients and can bring them by air to the hospital if that is necessary. This service operated for the benefit of people living far from railways and highways was considered necessary by the Australian government in recognition of the fact that every settler who goes into a sparsely-populated area becomes of a somewhat mature would no doubt be an inducement to people contemplating settling in such districts here. There is still much productive land which it is in the interest of the country to settle and develop, and provision of assured medical service would undoubtedly encourage people who might otherwise hesitate to live there.

* * * *

Splendid Work Has Been Done

Rural doctors, the Red Cross and medical missionary workers do splendid work in caring for people in settled districts, but there is still, no doubt, a need for "flying doctors", to bring help to cases requiring care which cannot be provided in such places, and to visit patients where there is no established medical service. Dr. Mary Johnston, M.B.E., who was for some time a medical doctor in northern Alberta, has expressed the opinion that many lives could have been saved in the district which she served, had there been facilities for bringing help by air in cases of critical illness. In addition to being an inducement to prospective settlers, the introduction of medical service by air would be a humanitarian measure which would be appreciated by the many people living in the northern parts of the western provinces. This is one of the questions deserving the consideration of those interested in the welfare of our people.

Import Ban On Vegetables Will Not Be Lifted

OTTAWA. Forecasts made by a number of readers newspapers that the import ban on all U.S. fruits and vegetables would be removed seasonably with the lifting of the 10 to 25 per cent. excise tax proved unfounded. Nevertheless it is well known in price board circles that this barricade against fruit and vegetable imports is due to be lifted at the moment when the Canadian crops are prepared for.

There is strong pressure already being exerted by Vegetable and fruit growers to maintain the import ban in some modified degree. They are bringing the argument that, as the result of the fruit and vegetable ban, there was a huge increase in Canadian market garden planting this year; that this encouragement of Canadian production ought to continue until next year, perhaps under some schedule of seasonal imposition and removal.

In a measure, this is already done by means of seasonal tariffs, none of which, however, operated so effectually as the total prohibition of the ban imposed last November. Fruit and vegetable growers received that no unfavorable effects on Canadian health developed as the result of the fruit and vegetable ban, as had been predicted by many experts. The chief effect, of course, was on consumers which moved until 40% to unpaved ceilings on the sky rocketing markets.

Hope Subsidy Will Stabilize Bread Prices

OTTAWA — A prices board official has informed a press conference here that the 41-cent subsidy or drawback to be paid to millers of domestic flour to stabilize bread prices at their present level will be based on the annual consumption of about 63,000,000 bushels of wheat. On that basis, the cost to the Canadian taxpayers would be about $28,350,000 a year.

The only source of information said it was estimated the removal of the subsidy on fats and oils would mean the saving to the government of from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 a month — in other words, it would largely balance the payment of the flour milling subsidy.

But while the payment of the 41-cent subsidy to millers of flour for domestic consumption is calculated to maintain the present cost of wheat raised from $1.55 to $2.00 a bushel on the level of the British contract Aug. 1—it does not take into consideration the increased cost of shortenings used in bread due to the removal of the fats and oils subsidy. The subsidy question of steel rests with the small manufacturing industry and not passed on to consumers in higher bread prices. It is pointed out that the government still has authority to increase ceilings on retail bread prices (which it does not want to do unless forced).

Story Of Royal Canadian Mounted Police Bands Is Most Interesting

WINNIPEG. — Few things set the pulse racing or stir the heart more than the swing of a marching band played by a good band. The people of Manitoba had Lots (pity dorms) strated as they heard at various parts concert; its the R.C.M.P. band which recently completed the Manitoba leg of a dominion-wide tour.

The band's 64 organization is made up of seventh band presented by the force. Colonel Perry, serving particularly musical genius were destroyed in a fire in 1927. Out what a marvel all the earlier bands forms an adventurous and sometimes rollicking history.

The R.C.M.P. Quarterly, official publication of the force, relates the experiences of one such band forced at Swan river barracks in 1876. It tells of the band's debut on Queen Victoria's birthday in 1876.

"The Indians had never heard such a band before and showed astonishment, especially the squaws and pappooses, who ran to their tepees in terror. The men lined the big drums and offered to trade a good horse for it."

Later bands were used to impress the Indians at treaty signings and other functions. In 1877 the Blackfeet at sharp reputation marched to the government encampment with his guns on shoulder to the Mounted Police for the term was hotly playing "Hold the Fort for I Am Coming".

When asked why he chose such an inappropriate tune, the bandmaster, aware of the chieftain's low reputation, said, "Isn't there a verse commencing, 'See the mighty host advancing, Satan leading on'?"

The Quarterly let the cat out of the bag in describing the sudden and rather disastrous end of the Fort Walsh band in 1881. Those used to the courteous efficiency of the Mounties may find it hard to believe, but the Quarterly says it's so.

In celebration of the news of a sensational victory by Lord Roberts in Africa, the enthusiastic bandsmen of gang to the men who were giving a concert in the officers' mess. Stimulated by this the band divided its turn out on the parade ground and give vent to patriotic airs.

"Apparently they had obtained some liquor in addition to the official issue," the end story goes, "and when the first trombone player objected to having a clarinet wailing in his ear, the clarinet player refused to agree on what force to play is not known.

"Shortly a free-for-all ensued. The instruments became weapons in the fight and most were destroyed. As a result the band was disorganized."

How Grain Can Be Stored Safely

OTTAWA. — Here is the how to prepare grain storage for the new crop. Moisture and insects are the greatest threats to farm stored grain. The most important factor in good storage is keeping the grain dry. Uniformly dry grain will escape insect attack and spoilage.

By observing the following precautions grain can be stored safely for extremely long periods to certain rain and snow.

Brush down walls thoroughly. Clean all cracks and remove all grain debris. Sweep the floor with damp sawdust and destroy sweepings. Spray the clean empty bin with 5 per cent. DDT, spray at the rate of one gallon per thousand square feet of wall and floor surface area and allow to dry thoroughly before running the grain.

Do no' fill the granary to the roof but provide all possible ventilation without allowing moisture to enter.

Examine the bins of grain frequently to determine whether insects are present or the grain is heating. If the samples are chaken over a 9 or 10 mesh screen, the grain is retained while the insects will pass through to a sheet of paper where they can be seen readily

If insects are found, the grain should be fumigated.

Details as to fumigation may be obtained from Stored Product Insect Investigations, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, or 724 Dominion Public Building, Winnipeg, Man.

Output For Flour Mills Decreased

OTTAWA. — Output of Canadian flour mills in June showed a decrease from June, 1947. The bureau of statistics reported a 22-per cent. decrease in wheat flour produced 1,911,000 barrels compared with 2,-452,000

Cumulative output for first 11 months of the current crop year was 22,429,400 barrels, a 14-per cent. decline.

Wheat used in flour production totalled 4,747,000 bushels in June against 19,381,000 last year. Amount milled for flour in the 11 months of this crop year was 126,269,000 bushels compared with 117,665,000.

MAKING MORE STEEL AVAILABLE FOR NAILS

OTTAWA.—The government has moved to aid Canadian builders of residential homes stalled by a critical shortage in the supply of steel wire nails.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation says the government's steel controller will take steps to increase the production of nails by diverting certain quantities of steel rods into the nail manufacturing industry.

The small production increase expected will be distributed by C.M.H.C. branch offices where non-priority residential builders show proof of undue delays in obtaining nails through usual sources.

C.M.H.C. said the government's move was "an emergency measure" and was not intended to meet total requirements of any individual.

RECIPES

PLAIN MUFFINS

2 cups flour
4 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons fat
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients, add gradually egg well beaten and fat melted, then milk. Bake in muffin tins, 375° F., about 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 deg. F.). Half a cup of corn may be used and 1 cup of flour added to the mixture.

SALMON LOAF

1 cup baked mashed salmon or canned salmon
1 cup stale bread crumbs soaked in 1 cup scalded milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon onion juice
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Combine ingredients in order given, folding in the stiffly beaten whites last. Place mixture into a well greased and crumbed pan and bake in a moderately hot oven or steam the mixture.

What To Do For FAINTING

FAINTING is a condition due to sudden failure of the action of the heart, which may be caused by hemorrhage; or by fatigue, or a close and crowded room; or by fright, dread, sudden bad news, or by the sudden relief from fear or anxiety after prolonged suspense.

The signs are: The patient turns giddy and faint; the face is pale; the pulse is rapid and weak, or almost imperceptible; the breathing is quick, sighing and irregular, and the skin becomes cold and clammy.

TREATMENT—

1. Undo all clothing about the neck, chest and waist.
2. Ensure an abundance of fresh air; open doors and windows; keep back a crowd; remove from any harmful gases or impure atmosphere.
3. Sprinkle the face with hot and cold water alternately, and apply warmth to the pit of the stomach and over the heart; vigorous friction of the limbs upwards has a stimulating effect. Smelling salts may be held to the nose.
4. If bleeding has been the cause of the condition guard against its recurrence. The wound will not bleed to any marked extent while the action of the heart is feeble. The wound must be carefully watched to be sure that bleeding does not recur when the patient begins to regain consciousness and the heart's action improves; or, if there is no wound look for signs of hemorrhage from an internal organ.
5. If want of nourishment has been the cause of the condition give food sparingly at first.
6. Give no food or fluids whatever by the mouth while the patient is insensible.

BRITISH PLAN TO PURCHASE 22 CANADAIR NORTH STARS—The division of the British government to buy 22 Canadair North Star 60-passenger planes was hailed in Ottawa as one of the great landmarks in Canadian industrial development. The order is valued at $14,000,000. It is a "dollar-saving contract" to the Canadian aircraft industry, one authority said. Forty passengers and a crew of six can be carried by the big Canadair North Star planes where pressurized cabins enable them to fly at 20,000 feet. Here is one of the TCA's North Stars, powered by four engines, leaving Montreal airport. The U.K. decision to abandon the "fly British" policy for British Overseas Airways Corp. came after "exceedingly disappointing" trials of Britain-built Tudors. It is expected the first Montreal-built Canadairs will be delivered to Britain within eight months, 15 in a year

CENTRIFUGE TESTS WITH HUMAN GUINEA PIGS REVEAL FACTORS TO SAVE JET PILOT LIVES

FLIGHT TO "FLY"—U.S.C. student in G-suit and new type helmet prepares for run in centrifuge.

By ANDREW E. BOONE
Central Press Canadian

LOS ANGELES — Germans subjected monkeys to the centrifuge years before their merry-go-rounds.

Over here, men sit on the edges of whirling centrifuges to test anti-blackout suits, have X-ray pictures taken of vital organs at six Gs and higher, and otherwise pass as human guinea pigs that medical scientists may learn what takes place in the human organism during conditions of spins and sharp turns.

Largest of these machines is the electrical whirler at the University of Southern California. In two seconds count 'em—its 47-foot long arm speeds up to 60 miles an hour. Human riders zip about the perimeter of the room something like living comets.

During the war these G-runs merited top secrecy and also were classified as one of the number one priorities by the office of scientific research and development.

For about three years, the staff has worked closely with the aeromedical units at Wright Field, the Mayo clinic, the navy in collaboration with the navy medical department of the aircraft carrier service of the Pacific fleet at San Diego, the project contributed importantly to developing the G-suit now in service.

Its effectiveness has been proved many times in pull-outs during combat maneuvers and dog fights.

Now the U.S.C. researchers are plodding ahead along new paths. Their present studies relate closely to the G-suit development. Let's look first at the G-suits and their inspiration, then at the new horizons.

The G-suit, as most of us know, enables pilots to overcome the pull of increased gravity. In maneuvering creating a force of more than about four times the earth's gravitational pull on the flyer's body (4-Gs), blood is drained from the head into the lower parts of the body.

Action And Results

The action might be compared to the effect of a cream separator with the centrifugal force forcing blood into the feet. The phenomenon is also be likened to a rock tied to a string and whirled around the head, the farther it whirls the heavier the rock feels.

At 10-Gs a 200-pound man weighs one ton. At 8-Gs his blood is twice its normal pressure iron. The heart cannot pump against this increased force or weight.

Without the suit, the pilot's vision becomes blurred and dim. His senses are dulled and he may "blackout" or lose all vision. He may even lose consciousness for a brief critical period during the pull-out or on the turn.

However, an ingenious valve automatically lets air into five bladders in the suit located at the flyer's abdomen, thighs and calves.

The higher the G becomes, the greater the air pressure in the bladders and the lower part of the body is squeezed to the extent that blood is not pooled in the lower extremities. This permits the heart to pump it into the head, thus maintaining a supply of oxygen to the brain and eye tissues.

The suit increases the pilot's blackout tolerance by one and one-half Gs and if he tenses and strains, three Gs or more are obtained. Where he may blackout at four or five Gs without the suit, he may withstand eight or nine Gs with it.

When level flight is resumed the valve lets the air out of the suit automatically. The long maneuver at level flight the pilot may imbibe his suit by hand, which overcomes fatigue by a massaging effect.

In making the scientists tests the human centrifuge is used to obtain, under the controlled conditions of the laboratory, the high Gs produced by turns and pullouts of fighter planes. The subject to be tested is fitted with many types of apparatus, giving him the effect of a man from Mars.

Each device has ingeniously been devised for a specific purpose. A thermal apparatus on the nose records breathing. To one ear is clamped a gadget with light bulbs and a photo-electric cell to measure changes in blood content of the head.

Another similar device on the other ear records the oxygen content of his blood. Electrocardiograms record heart action during the test. Additional devices indicate visual and auditory response as well as changes in pressure in various body cavities.

Time, the magnitude of "G", and air pressure in the suit bladders are all simultaneously recorded on the same records. Most recent development is a device to record blood pressure in the arteries.

After the subject has been examined for physical fitness, he is strapped with a safety belt in a cab located at one end of the beam. The cab swings out, and the subject's head is directed toward the centre of rotation.

It is like lying down, feet out, on the edge of a huge merry-go-round traveling 60 to 66 miles an hour. Acceleration causes blackout similar to that in pulling out of a dive in combat.

What happens? The heart and diaphragm move out of place, the lungs crowd with blood. Without the G-suit's protection, the abdomen all will protrudes, heart and diaphragm drop about two inches.

Acute Problems

Inflate the suit, the pressure applied to the abdomen raises the diaphragm more than three inches.

Japan Using Arsenal For New Industries

YOKOSUKA, Japan — Trains instead of torpedoes, paper instead of planes, are coming off the production lines here where Japan once had her largest, naval operating base.

Fifty-five new industries, many of them housed within the once walled and tightly guarded confines of the base area, are turning out a variety of goods ranging from cloth to clocks.

The harbor, which once admitted only Japanese warships, is an anchorage for commercial vessels.

The walls which once hid Japanese naval secrets have been bulldozed away.

The five-mile length of the establishment, from the naval air arsenal on the north to the surface base on the south, is open to the public except for a small area where the United States Navy operates.

The Japanese built midget submarines here, plus some planes and many torpedoes. At one time the base employed 70,000 persons.

American raiders hardly touched Yokosuka. The United States Navy found machine shops, cranes, derricks and docks practically intact after the surrender.

Now the machines are used for peaceful production or to keep in good shape the United States naval vessels on duty in Japanese waters.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Mrs. Karl A. McCormick paid $1.35 for a shabby painting at an auction seven years ago.

Three art experts examined it recently and pronounced it a genuine Goya, possibly worth $20,000.

SAFE SPEED FOR ALL CAR DRIVERS IS EXPLAINED

ST. CATHARINES. — What is a safe speed? Suppose, says the St. Catharines Standard, you are rolling along in your car, driving just under the speed limit. Suddenly another driver bugs your right-of-way at an intersection or a child darts into the street or another car forces you to swing wide on a sharp turn or some other kind of emergency confronts you. Could you keep your car under control or stop in time at the speed you are traveling? The Department of Highways suggests you ask yourself that question when you drive. And if your good judgment tells you the answer is "no", then you are driving at an UNSAFE SPEED whether you are under the legal limit or not.

Home Considered Most Dangerous For Polio

NEW YORK.—How to keep your children away from infantile paralysis, as far as this can be done, was explained at the first international polio conference

Home is the most dangerous place, if anyone in a home gets the disease, or becomes a carrier, the intimate association spreads polio faster than any other way known way From a polio home the disease spreads most to homes of intimate friends

Schools and camps are not as dangerous, because the contacts between children there are not as frequent.

Dr Robert Wood, New York University School of Medicine, reported that the possible known pathways of spread are food, hands, material from mouths, utensils and toys, flies and sewage.

Recruits Are Being Sought For Services

OTTAWA — The defence department has issued a recruiting campaign for all three services, both active and reserve forces, on Sept. 1. Defence Minister Chalmers announced.

The minister said the campaign will be marked by air shows and other "major events" and will continue throughout the winter.

Present strength of the three regular forces is roughly 30,500 and no definite target is being set.

"We will take all we can get so long as they meet our qualifications," Mr. Chalmers said at a press conference.

The minister said he would officially open the Royal Military College at Kingston Sept. 30 on a post-war basis as a training ground for future officers of all three services.

The Royal Roads college in Victoria, Columbia would open the same day, also on a tri-service basis for the first time. There would be 100 in the first R.M.C. class, selected from 400 applicants.

The 100 would be chosen from 250 who were awarded out of the 900 RCAF cadets.

Both R.M.C. and Royal Roads would, for the first two years, have a curriculum g similar to those at university. In the summer months cadets would join C.O.T.C. contingents from the universities in camps of their respective services.

This would fuse the military training of the universities and the service schools and was aimed at producing officers of a higher calibre than we've ever known in Canada.

Careless Pilot Causes Many Plane Accidents

The following article appeared in Canadian Aviation. The report of fatal aircraft accidents in Canada during 1947 makes sad reading. There were 279 accidents involving Canadian aircraft, an increase of 101 from the previous year! Of the 279 big and little crackups, 19 were fatal. In most cases, show-off pilots in light planes were the culprits. In 74 cases the aircraft was written off, in 153 instances, major damage was sustained, in 18 accidents there was serious injury to passengers.

It is impossible to calculate but not difficult to imagine the total toll which these 279 accidents have exacted. Even the loss of life and the financial havoc of demolished aircraft do not complete the dismal picture. There were the screaming headlines heralding each fatal accident, the shattering of public confidence in the airplane. There has been the grievous burden of mounting insurance costs, for which these accidents are fully responsible. There is, furthermore, the unhappy knowledge that the fatal accident rate is still at large, that the record has not been improving in 1948.

If calm, school and private flying are to survive as popular activities in this country, certain drastic and effective measures must be taken. Education will help. Flying instructors can aid the cause by giving increased emphasis to the dangers of unhandling the airplane.

We have taken strong exception to certain out-of-date air regulations and procedures. But we have no sympathy whatever for the pilot who breaks the rules of safe flying. The civil aviation inspectors are helping is sincere and conscientious job of safety enforcement, we believe. Let's give them all the support possible. Our major assignment for 1948 should be to eliminate the unsafe pilot from the Canadian sky

The collector of animal stamps who has made a start for his philatelic zoo with stamps of the British Empire, will find the stamps of other countries rich in specimens for his zoo. Few countries could have mustered some stamps featuring native animals.

As an example of what can be added to the philatelic zoo, there is the buffalo on the 20 cents United States issue of 1923, and the beaver on the 3 cents navy express commemorative stamp of 1946. Bolivia features a large number of native animals and birds in its 1939 set, including the llama, vicuna, brocket, chachilla, tucano, condor and jaguar. Guatemala's Republic shows cows in a 1942 set featuring its dairy industry. Ecuador has the iguana issued and the tortoise on a 1936 set. Curiosities shown on many of its stamps the native water bird Hoatzin has an ost on the 50 centavos of the 1935 airmail se

Mexico does not show many animals on its stamps, but on a 1950 anti-inferia stamp shows a mosquito, probably only stamp showing this insect. Paraguay features cattle and pony passes on 1939 pictorial set and carrier pigeon on 1930 airmail stamp. Martinique shows a gull on the current airmail stamps. St. Pierre and Miquelon feature the Newfoundland dog and the fulmar petrel, a type of gull.

Among the Americas, stamps of African animals show more animals outstanding being the republic of Liberia This country has issued animal stamps since 1862 when the elephant was featured. # Is Quite Ready To Carve The Newest Crest

OTTAWA — The man who scraped the Government by 11 years is all set to carve Newfoundland into Confederation.

Clem Somey, a sculptor, a stonecarver and a singer and clarinet player to boot, says he figured in 1937 that something like a 10th province was going to happen to Canada. So, in the midst of the work he has been doing for the Government for 30 years, he carved 10 inserted of one shield, a coat of arms great gothic arch at the entrance of the Centre Block of Parliament.

Nine of them have long been filled with the coats of arms of the provinces. The 10th stayed blank. Now, with Newfoundland coming in Mr. Somey admits he would have more to do: it would be Newfoundland, Yukon or the Northwest Territories — he will make it one of the first jobs to complete the picture

He works in a little room on the fifth floor of the Centre Block, moulding in clay and then casting in plaster all sorts of designs of faces such as Champlain and Wolfe and Macdonald and gargoyles of symbolic characters.

LONDON BOUND—The two full grown bronze steers above and a junior member of the family left for London next on the Canadian Pacific cargo liner Beaverglen which was docked in Montreal recently. The bronze, captured in northern Manitoba, are accompanied by a baby puppy from northern British Columbia, which will find a new home at the Zoo in Chessington, London.

Shoes Not Sanitary Declares Foot Expert

OKLAHOMA CITY.—The shoe is the most unsanitary article of body covering in existence", according to Dr. Felton O. Cataldo, foot expert.

"There is heat, darkness and moisture—the same conditions that produce mold on cheese or bread," Cataldo told a meeting of the Southwestern Chiropody Congress here.

That is why so many persons have athlete's foot, he said.

"A fastidious woman who never will wear other clothing more than a day will wear her shoes six months and keep them stored in a dark closet when she's not wearing them," the doctor chided

"Men are worse because their shoes are almost without ventilation," he added.

To guard against fungus infection, the speaker should change shoes at least twice a day and expose the unused pair to sunlight, Cataldo advised.

Are you afraid of lightning? I don't admit under a bed in a lightning storm, but I don't like it. No, sir! It is important to any where a person is absolutely safe from lightning In one year in the U.S.A. 718 people were killed by lightning. And 1,150 or more were injured when struck. The world's worst place for lightning is South Africa. There in 1904 one hundred of lightning killed 64 people in a hundred-mile area around Pretoria.

HORSES & WOMEN

"You will be interested to know," the recently formed Horses & Women club of Boston is progressing nicely," writes a New Englander. "The club, primarily organized for the purpose of improving the breed of wives, dedicated at its last meeting an interesting angle of wife training. This deals with a wife's behavior when a dobatic plan is in the air. Such behavior when dressing to go out with him. That she have her clothes, accessories, etc., ready and collected in one place. That she have her husband less to wait for her while he cut down considerably, we hope."

BRIDE'S BOUQUET

A Californian says she will throw her bride's bouquet at a wedding and was the next of the bachelorettes present to be married. She also says that a bride's bouquet should be made up of flowers that are in season, and is predicted in such cases, she was the next of the women present to become a bride. That superstition is a myth, she admits, but that a baby shower is a new one to me. Have turned it over to our Ottawa & Western department editor for further.

BASEBALL CRADLE

San Francisco has produced baseball players than any other city in the United States. I don't know what city is second. But I do know that the most beautiful baseball cradle I've ever seen is the one built town from a spectator standpoint, but it certainly is no cradle for baseball players.

ONE-HANDED CLOCK IN BRITAIN HAS BEEN RESTORED

CONINGSBY, England — Modern engineering skill often has unusual applications. A first-class example of this is the restoration of the ancient one-hander clock in the tower of the church of St. Michael and All Saints here.

Said by many to have the largest dial in all England, the clock's face is 16 feet across. Its restorer's intention is has only the hour hand to tell the time. Since 1897, when the clock was given its present one before the middle of the 17th century, there is no introduction of the minute hand more were converted.

The Coningsby clock is one of the most outstanding of those which escaped conversion. Usually, only the hour hand is used now; the time can be told to the nearest five minutes without difficulty. The main framework of the clock is of oak beams. The original wheels and pinions were of wrought iron with handcut teeth. In some cases the divisions had been wrongly made, and later corrected.

After keeping good time for many years the clock became so worn that on account of local regulations it became defective After it had been dismantled for some time it was proposed to scrap it and replace it with a modern clock. There was a good deal of local opinion to this proposal. Eventually in the end a Nottingham firm agreed to recondition the mechanism.

Every worn tooth in the wheels was built up by welding and recutting by hand, and only one wheel had to be replaced. In many places welding was used to build up worn parts.

Executors Find Use For Mine Detector

LONDON. — A wartime mine detector, useless in the search for metal, will be used in a final effort to find the will of a secretive old lady who had a habit of hiding money.

She was Mrs. Daisy Alexander, who was 82 years old when she died of shock following a bomb explosion in 1940. She was the widowed daughter of Isaac Singer, who created the Singer Sewing Machine Co.

For many years Mrs. Alexander had lived in Grosvenor Square, near the United States Embassy, in a big house which she rvtained despite many pleas to evict her

Her wealth was estimated at more than £3,000,000 (12,000,000 dollars), income which she scarcely touched amounted to £40,000 ($160,000) a year.

She made at least five or six wills, her attorney, Harry Gibbs, recalled after her death the only will that could be found was 40 years old.

Mrs. Alexander's survivors believe she may have hidden a later one, and the old house, now empty, contains the answer.

The government has leased the building for offices and has given permission to the executors to go over the walls with a detector which once hunted out German mines in the sands of Libya.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL JUST ONE OF CROWD

HALIFAX — Viscount Alexander slipped unannounced into Halifax to meet his son Shane arriving on the Aquitania, and went on his way unnoticed.

Attired in a grey suit and grey felt hat and accompanied by his younger son Brian, the governor-general mingled with the crowd on the pier awaiting the liner.

"It's it's a mistake, I tell you!" insisted Joe.

Perhaps—ninety million an hour is always a darned mistake."

Joe sighed the sigh of the defeated and dragged himself back to his car, the irrepressible crush close at his heels.

"I'll fade outta the picture at the next corner nobody'll miss me," he muttered to himself, as the car got under way again.

"My advice to you is to go straight," Joe was moved to say to the fugitive-face Air's side, remembered his past—you and—"

The remainder of Joe's sentence was drowned by the roar of a motorcycle gunning on them from behind. "Step on it, mister! That copper's on our tail!" cried Cherub-face Al

But Joe allowed his car to come to a complete halt. The gun pointed through the open window on Cherub-face Al's side, remembered his immediate respect.

"Get out!" said the officer, yanking open the car door. "Pick up your pal, will you?"

The flicker of a smile crossed the cop's face as his hands went up. Something round and hard stopped him in his dirty shirtsleeve. "Yeah, I'm a copper great, I am," he drawled brazenly, as he stepped to the sidewalk.

"Well, I never!" gasped Joe. Hon'd he ever manage to—"

"Joe, my friend! Forgot the ticket! Get going!" gruffly ordered the officer. "Here! This ten can of yours couldn't do nicely!"

Fishing Village On East Coast Is Lovely Place

PORTUGAL COVE, Nfld. — Here, and not in St. John's, one finds the real Newfoundland.

The country that is to become Canada's 10th province is one of loneliness such as the Canadian prairie farmer has never known and it is not lately that it has risen straight out of the sea around it.

Perhaps the finest fishing village that lies on Conception Bay Looking across the water to the wharf, from which the ocean has swept more than once, one sees to the left, across the sheer brown cliffs of Bell Island. Behind rise three giant headlands with their narrow rock, sheer cliffs dropping up from the rocky shore. There is no sandy beach.

About 200 people live here in small houses, most of them painted white and seem to cling dangerously to the rocky ledges. They have no foundations. Only to build them are they allowed to grind into solid rock.

One wonders how and where carts cannot pass winds through the village.

There are no vegetable or flower gardens. They are practically a grass.

On Sunday fishermen hang their nets on their wooden fences and go to either the little Anglican or Roman Catholic church, replace it with the fishing duties sit idly at their moorings.

The rest of the week is hatchbreaking, boat building, fish packing, and then sell it to buy cheap clothing, potatoes, a few canned goods and new fishing gear.

DUE COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

WELCOME INSULT

By KATHRYN DENNIS WILSON

THE WORLD strutted across his nesty clipped into to his newly acquired sedan parked out front. He had reached the age of fifty still as-native almost an honey body. But the morning was different. The world was his oyster. In this shiny second hand car, he could drive to his accounting job at Western Aircraft looking with a new dedication to his body.

Sadly, his plump little wife, called from the bungalow's porch, "Remember, Joe — don't pick up hitchhikers — it's dangerous!"

I'll be careful," promised Joe, opening the car door.

He climbed in behind the wheel, thinking, "Maybe I couldn't marry Nothing but first-class passengers will ever ride in this line!"

The car was taking Laurel Canby's hairpiece turns like a veteran when Joe abruptly pulled the emergency, squealing his tires to a halt. He was the attractive, young female countenance of the young man with upheld thumb which had caught Joe's compassion The fellow's hat—a loud flaming red under the sun, peered straight through Joe's and reptilite heart. It reminded him of the son he should have had years ago.

MERCHANT MARINE WILL GROW WITH DOMINION TRADE

OTTAWA. — The growth of Canada's merchant marine will keep pace with any expansion of dominion trade with the nations of the world, Transport Minister Chevrier said in the House of Commons.

Clyne added that, in the event of war, Canada's merchant fleet is in "far better position" with respect to her merchant marine than she was in 1939. Many more country's are faced with a dangerous shortage of shipping, he said.

With all other national fleets operating at capacity in the service of their own countries," he said, "the Canadian government intends to guarantee steady development of Canada's fleet to meet competition in any nation."

How It Feels To Be Struck By Lightning

ESTEVAN, Sask — What happens when you're struck by lightning? Ask Ernest Bell.

Ben Kinart, 56, of Bryant, Bashas the answer. Lightning struck him while he was cleaning the barn left door at the farm of Ernie Peterson, eight miles north of here.

Said Kinart: "I saw a big ball of fire beside me. There was a deafening crash and I remember only being hurled into the ball of fire When I came to, my children were around me. I could not move my hands, nor could I feel my feet, nor see the fire

"It was the closest thing to the atomic bomb I care to see."

The ball of fire struck Kinart on the left side and passed through a hole, large enough for a fist, in the wall, which was found several feet away. A concrete counterweight on the barn door was shattered

Donald Pendrick, who had been helping Kinart in the barn, estimated the flaming clothing and smouldered out. Kinart was taken to hospital

Ancient Law Governs Horseback Riders

NELSON, B.C. — Police Chief Robert Hanshaw has dusted off the book of by-laws to come up with an ancient law limiting horseback riders to the rear seat.

Health Grants To Provinces Are Announced

OTTAWA — The federal government's new health grants to the provinces when the $30,000,000 voted by parliament at the last session, have been announced by Health Minister Paul Martin

The grants, which Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in announcing the move are intended as a step towards a national health service, were worked out mainly on the basis of estimated 1947 populations.

They are topped by the $9,967,979 which Ontario will receive with Quebec next at $6,980,025. Nova Scotia will get $2,339,153, Saskatchewan, $3,501,742, Alberta, $3,980,732, Manitoba, $1,500,995, Nova Scotia, $2,343,177, New Brunswick, $1,726,; 988, and Prince Edward Island, $383,057.

The largest single type of grant is for hospital construction. Divided on a population basis, this totals $4,396,430 available to Ontario Quebec will have $3,043,650; British Columbia, $1,066,743, Saskatchewan, $871,626; Alberta, $850,932, Manitoba, $799,151; Nova Scotia, $643,307, New Brunswick, $568,322, and Prince Edward Island, $97,264.

This is a "matching grant", available to the provinces only if at least as much money as the federal government. It will be paid for specific projects, and is to be spent. The quality for it hospital construction projects which have been under $4,396,430 available to Ontario Quebec will have $3,043,650; British Columbia, $1,066,743, Saskatchewan, $871,626; Alberta, $850,932, Manitoba, $799,151; Nova Scotia, $643,307, New Brunswick, $568,322, and Prince Edward Island, $97,264.

The restriction—that new projects must be undertaken—applies to the other grants.

The hospital grant will be paid on the basis of $1,000 per new bed for acute cases and $1,500 for new bed for chronic cases. The amount paid from federal funds is not to exceed one-third of the total cost.

In the case of hospitals or additions to them started before April 1, the grant can be obtained for construction done after that date

The second largest grant is for mental health — $4,000,000 rising to $7,000,000 in the next five years. Thegrs will be a flat $60,000 grant to each province, the rest divided on basis of populations.

The government has allocated $2,500,000 for cancer control, to be distributed for specific projects.

Of the sum of the $1,000,000 public health research grant, which the government has set aside for the first time provincially, individual projects will be submitted to the federal department of health which will recommend whether they should be accepted or

—By A. W. B.—

A visible reminder that our most desirable season of the year, one near, is quickly drawing to a close was forcefully drawn to my attention one evening last week when I noticed neighbors covering flowers and tender vegetable plants for the night on a promise of protection the danger of frost. It brought to my mind the thought of how quickly the past few months have slipped away, and how quickly the seasons can be changed from uncomfortable heat to an uncomfortable chill. Feeling many of us unprepared for the change. It seems that no matter how busy we live in the country, the coming of winter finds some of us with not enough coal in storage, with still a few vegetables in the garden and with these storm windows still not repaired and painted let alone put on over the windows.

• • • •

The change in frosty weather will also bring rolled from that dread disease commonly known as Polio, according to medical science. This fearful sickness seems to thrive in the warmest months of the year and as each of those peak Polio seasons passes it is accompanied with many fervent and prayerful words of relief from mothers and fathers everywhere. Just now perhaps the Polio menace is at its height and each case should be taken to see that the children do not over-tax their physical energies to the point of near exhaustion, that they eat properly and do not catch sudden colds. These simple rules may prevent weeks of heartbreak and suffering. Parents are advised by medical authorities to keep children from crowded and stuffy rooms where many people are gathered together. This may be hard to do for children will be children and have little realization of danger until it strikes. A firm force may be necessary. Even an application of the hairbrush to the upholstered part of the anatomy conveniently placed for that purpose, may help.

• • • •

The coming of colder weather also signalizes the opening of the game bird shooting season. Soon nobody we change from spilled shoes and rumpled night dress, to rubber boots and winchester jacket. Already the ducks are flocking and many an old trigger finger is getting itchy. Well, it won't be long now. After shooting is over, there's curling, hockey, skating, snow shoeing, rabbit hare shooting and coal hewing. So, you people in the warmer spots needn't fell sorry for us in winter. We have volume with a higher price.

MR. AND MRS. J. W. OAKES HOSTS TO SIXSEWICKITES

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Oakes of 5631, Osler Street, Vancouver, B. C. were hosts to a number of old Sedgewick friends recently. Mr. Oakes was a former Sedgewick resident where he conducted a general store business in partnership with his brother, the late Wm. Oakes.

Needless to say, an enjoyable time was spent at the dinner table and after, recalling old times in and around Sedgewick.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hoffman, Mrs. Geo. Crooks, and W. Hoffman jnr. all of Chilliwack; Mr. E. Lesh, Sedgewick; Mr. and Mrs. C. Dinstrual, Edmonton; Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Craig, Assagi; Mr. and Mrs. Wallis; Mrs. Murphy formerly of Killam, Mrs. J. Paine, Mrs. Chas. McCrudden, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Purvis, Mrs. Alex McKee, Mrs. A. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Burpee, Miss Betty Burpee, Mrs. Hugh Gray and sons Wilson and John; J. Buchanan, A. J. Hussey, Rev. and Mrs. Holloway, Mrs. A. M. Mills and daughter Audrey, Mrs. H. A. Dermay, Mr. G. Barnes, Mrs. G. Barnes, Mrs. Geo Quinn, and Mr. Ray Oakes.

lots to do and lots of fun thank you.

• • • •

Coming home recently from the city of Edmonton, we once again had occasion to stop off for a minute or two in Camrose, and on this trip as in all recent ones, we were struck by the continuing growth of that up-and-coming town. Almost everywhere we looked new buildings were being erected, new streets being paved in shape and old business places being given a face-lifting. We noticed that the building housing the "Camrose Canadian" is no longer about and alone in its glory but is now almost the very centre of an enlarged and thriving business section. A fair cry indeed from my first visit to that town in 1908. We are given to understand that Camrose is toying with the idea of becoming a city by way of charter, and the day may not be too distant when "going to the city" may mean the short hop up to Camrose.

The map printed above shows the yields of wheat in the various districts in each of the prairie provinces.

An extraordinary picture presents itself this year, that has seldom occurred before, which is that the poor crop area extends north and south, instead of east and west and continued to the southern half of the areas as is usual in poor crop years.

COUNSELLING THE BOY

(By Edgar Guest)

I shall not care what blunders you shall not fret about each small mistake.
Stay clean and manly and I shall not care.

Shun all that's shameful. That is all I ask.
When you depart let men be glad you came.
Give all you can of courage to your task.
Then if you fail, have failure less from shame.

I would not bind you with parental chains.
Nor have you think to please me you must win.
Fail if you must, and still my love remains.
I only ask you not to stoop to sin

Use what you have of judgement and of zest.
With all men living keep your dealings true.
Beware not blundering, but the shameful act.
Further than this I would not counsel you.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday, August 21st, the St. Joseph's Church at Killam was the setting of the pre-celebration of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kinser, greatly respected Killam residents.

The real anniversary is on November 22nd, but since some of the daughters are unable to be present then, the celebration was moved ahead. Due to the absence of the Pastor, Rev. Fr. Barker, a cousin of Mr. J. Kinser, solemnized the High Mass

The choir sang, "What Happiness Can Equal Mine?" The Altar was decorated with flowers and potted chrysanthemums, the work of Sister Hermidents, daughter of the jubilarians. After mass congratulations had been received, a dinner was served in the basement hall for 52 relatives and friends. Seated at the head table were the visiting Clergy, Fr. Barker and his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Kinser had the pleasure of having back with them on this special occasion their family of one son and seven daughters. One daughter was unable to be present.

The happy couple are blessed with 11 children, 24 grand children and 2 great grandchildren. We trust that God will continue to shower His blessings upon them to celebrate many more anniversaries together

KILLAM UNITED W. M. S.

The WMS of the United Church resumed its meetings on Aug. 25th, at the home of Mrs. D. H. Wilson.

Mrs. H.A. Whaley conducted the worship period and chose Isaiah 40 as the topic. The supply allocation was presented by Mrs. R Baker.

Mrs. Vagt gave a very interesting lesson on Christian Stewardship.

After the close of the meeting the hostess served a refreshing lunch.

OAKLAND BEAVERS TAKE LOSALS SADLY BY 6 - 2 SCORE

Playing before a fair crowd at the Sedgewick ball park on Monday, the all-colored travelling beavers from Oakland, Cal. romped off with an easy 6 to 2 win over the local club.

The competing team comprised players from Strome, Killam, Sedgewick and Lougheed, and while their hitting was fairly good errors in the playing field cost them four of the six runs against them.

The comical antics of the colored boys kept the crowd in good humor

The team played in Strome the following day and in Hardisty on Wednesday.

CROP REPORT NO. 11

(By Bank of Montreal)

General In the Prairie Provinces widest international grain continues to interrupt operations, cutting is progressing and threshing should be fairly general shortly. In Sask., fair to good crops are in prospect in the eastern and parts of the north central regions. In Alberta, except the eastern districts, crops generally are late in good. Harvesting of very good wheat and coarse grain crops is well under way in Manitoba. Flax, however, particularly in late-sown fields, developing rust, and serious loss may result, in Quebec, in general, the weather of the past week has been beneficial to growth, but more moisture and warmth are needed in some sections. Grains continue to make good progress. An average apple crop is expected and small fruits are plentiful. In Ontario, crop conditions generally remain favorable, although more moisture would be beneficial. Harvesting of fall rye and wheat is well advanced and the threshing is now complete in many sections with above average yields. Peaches and grapes are promising, and a normal apple crop is now expected in the Maritimes. Late grains are ripening rapidly and average crops are in prospect. In P. E. I. the apple crop is below normal. In B. C. continued cool, wet weather has been general, hampering farming operations and silencing some crops. The apples are sizing and coloring well, with above-average returns being in prospect.

Alberta — Crops have generally made good progress. Wheat harvesting has commenced in some districts and should be general by next week, provided favorable weather continues. Very good wheat yields are reported from scattered centres and the overall estimate appears better than last year. Some lodging and shelly damage is reported.

SEDGEWICK W. M. S.

The August meeting of the Sedgewick WMS was held at the Manse on August 25th, with a good attendance of members and visitors. Arrangements were made concerning the postponed Rally which now is to be held on Wed. Sept. 22nd by the United Church at Sedgewick.

The Worship Service was on the theme of the Armament of Goodwill. The President, Mrs. Gosnell conducted a membership quiz which proved very interesting Mrs. Maclean served a delicious lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gosnell on Wed. Sept 29th at 2 p.m., and visitors are very cordially invited to attend.

A Valuable Service

THE WORK OF THE Canadian National Institute for the Blind is known to many and there is widespread interest in, and admiration for the splendid things it has been achieved by this organization in the liberty years since its activity here. The institute has done a great deal, during that time, to prove that blind people can be successfully rehabilitated and their economic problems adjusted. With the continued interest and co-operation of the public there is now little doubt but that in most cases, blind people can find useful occupations in the community and enjoy economic independence and security.

* * * *

Need Stressed For Prevention

The number of registered blind people in Canada now is 13,564, while prevention cases, that is cases in which the likelihood of blindness is indicated, number 26,618. Of these, 2,503 were given treatment or assistance during the past year. While these figures have been made available, they do not represent all the cases which came to the attention of the institute, since new cases are constantly occurring and being brought for treatment. In the field of prevention, emphasis is laid on the importance of maintaining and increasing this service, since the value of assisting preventable cases of blindness cannot be overestimated.

* * * *

Great Need For New Libraries

One of the many services rendered by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is the free library service, which makes available books in Braille, Moon, and "talking books". These can be secured in Winnipeg, Vancouver and Toronto, but the great demand for the books in these libraries, and particularly for the "talking books" already it evident that it would be desirable to have a great many more centres for this service. Another project which the Institute is now anxious to obtain is more centres the number of its residences, recreation and service centre for the blind. It is clear that the organization has, in the past thirty years done an enormous service to the blind people in the country and is deserving their suffering and in helping them to find interesting and useful occupations. It is to be hoped that it will continue to receive the public support which it so richly deserves in its important and humanitarian service.

Gold Output Remains Higher Than Last Year

OTTAWA — Gold production for May dropped from the figure set in April but still was higher than a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

Output totalled 245,936 fine ounces compared with 286,065 in April and 268,910 in May, 1947. During the first five months of 1948, production rose to 1,294,368 fine ounces against 1,264,883 for the like period of 1947.

May output by western provinces, with May, 1947, figures in brackets, British Columbia 25,114 (19,731); Manitoba and Saskatchewan 15,810 (11,865); Northwest Territories, Yukon 13,634 (Yukon 13,130).

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Mother — "What are you doing in the pantry, Tommy?"

Tommy: "Fighting temptation, mother."

The grateful father was thanking the young man for his bravery in rescuing his daughter from the river. He finished up: "Do you realize, my boy, the great danger you were braving yourself in?"

To this the reserve replied briefly: "There wasn't any, I am a champion swimmer and I am already married."

* * * *

"Do you have much variety at your boarding house?"

"Well, we have three different names for the meals."

* * * *

Teacher: "If a number of cattle are called a herd, and a number of sheep are called a flock, what would a number of camels be called."

Johnny: "A caravan."

* * * *

"What is dignity, Dad?"

Dignity, my son is what you think you have until the boss says 'What's the meaning of this?'"

* * * *

"Boy, if I don't get rid of this cold soon, I'll be a dead one," moaned the jockey to the exercise boy.

"Reign do what the doctor said?" asked the boy.

"Naw", replied the jockey, "The sign on his door said 'Go in I' and I wouldn't monkey with a king shot like that!"

* * * *

"Who's the responsible man here?" asked the caller.

"If you mean the fellow that always gets the blame," answered the office boy, "you're speaking to him now."

* * * *

"My dear," said the fond mother earnestly, "I can't think why you can't get on with your husband. He's all right in his way."

"Yes, I know, mother," said her daughter, "But he's always in mine."

The travellers in the railway carriage were discussing railway matters. "I consider," said one, "that the single fare for the double journey in a very good investment."

"It certainly is," added another, "because you get a return for your money."

RECIPES

MEAT LOAF

Shape hamburger mixture (with cereal) crumbs into a loaf, lay slices of bacon across the top. Place in baking pan and bake at 1400 deg. F. for 45 minutes. If the oven is being used for something that requires a low temperature, the meat loaf can be baked for 2 hours at 1200 deg. F. Serve with gravy made from fat in pan by adding flour. Allow to brown and boiling water

APPLE SNOW

½ cup sugar
2 egg whites
Powdered sugar

Pare, quarter and core 4 sour apples. Steam until soft and rub through sieve. There should be ½ cup cooked apple. Beat the whites of eggs until stiff add gradually apple sweetened to taste. Pile lightly on a dish and serve with custard sauce. One tablespoon lemon juice may be added

BAKED POTATOES
RETAIN VITAMINS

Medical men know that many health-giving foods we eat regularly, are in the good that they might be—since they are improperly prepared for the table.

In Canada a traditional method of preparing potatoes, for instance, is to boil and peel them. This process destroys nearly half the vitamin C, thiamin, riboflavin (B-2) and niacin they retain after all of the interest we have in keeping the body's tissues healthy.

Need Of Western Eggs To Check Rising Prices

TORONTO — Only possibility of a break in the present high egg prices at present seen by Dominion Department of Agriculture officials is an influx of western eggs.

A spokesman for the department agreed with Ontario Department of Agriculture officials that the price of eggs may go even higher and eventually reach $1.00 a dozen.

As he explained it production of hens is down 20 per cent. in Ontario this year and the pullets that are being bred were produced late in the season. The reason he said is the farmers simply shied off in that season. A combination of factors, including the low price, high cost of feed and shortage of labor as well as of theme trend which no one can ever quite explain was responsible.

The result of the decreased production means fewer eggs, and in addition the late buying means a severe shortage.

Production on the prairies is down though not to the extent of Ontario's.

J. R. SMALLWOOD MAY BECOME WORLD PREMIER

ST. JOHN'S — Joseph Robert Smallwood, 68, the apostle of confederation, will in all likelihood be Newfoundland's first provincial premier.

Smallwood is probably, at one and the same time, the most loved and most hated man in Canada's youngest province. But all agree with this picture, coming from one of his opponents: "Joe Smallwood is not a man in 200,000 but one in 2,000,000."

Smallwood, a journalist-orator, a fighter hard to beat once the gong sounded, Smallwood almost single-handedly swung this country to confederation, in the last three days before the July 22 referendum, for instance, he attended 62 meetings.

Flood $2,500 For Selling Bad Eggs

SEATTLE — Three men were fined $2,500 each in Federal Court here for selling bad eggs to the U.S. government during the war.

Lewis de Donahoe and Kenneth A. Moody of Tacoma and William R. Meneherbarth of San Francisco were said to have carried out orders of three officers of a California firm who recently were sent to jail and fined $25,000.

Thousands of eggs were involved, fraudulent invoices were made out and the government shortchanged, Judge Lloyd L. Black was told.

Manitoba Starts New High School Course

Changes in the curriculum for Manitoba high schools — the most radical to be made by any province in Canada, according to officials of the department of education will be introduced to Grade 10 students Similar changes will be put into effect for Grades 11 and 12 at the beginning of the next term, September 1949.

The new study program permits students to choose one out of five different courses, instead of the six general courses formerly offered. The five alternative courses are general which leads to University; commercial, home economics, agriculture and industrial. All courses include the four basic subjects of English mathematics, science and social studies. Aptitude tests have been conducted during the past two years to assist students to determine which course they wish to take

There is no compulsion for smaller schools to offer all courses, officials point out. The school board in each area is free to select one or more of the specialized courses, depending on the equipment and staff available, or to offer the general course only with such technical options as can be carried. The new general course is based on a four-year program for average students, but may be cut to three years by good students. The other courses require three years to complete.

Attention will also be paid to the normal choice of students in different areas, officials state. Winnipeg, for example, will not offer the agricultural course. Brandon does not include a commercial course in its present plans, while Dauphin intends to offer all five courses.

An additional feature of the new curriculum is that it sets aside from 10 to 12 per cent. of a student's school hours to be used at the principal's discretion, for the needs of the school, e.g., give club, debates, student councils, or remedial work in subjects in which the student is behind.

Objects of the change are to encourage students to complete their high school course, and to use technical subjects as a medium for general education.

Blight Causes Big Loss To B.C. Potatoes

VANCOUVER — Late Blight of potatoes has become serious in some parts of the Lower Mainland and loss through rot has been severe in many cases, announces L. C. Maclaren, assistant plant pathologist, Vancouver.

Late Blight is a fungus disease which devastated the potato crop in Ireland in 1845, and resulted in widespread famine.

It spreads rapidly by wind and rain, and gets in its crop destroying work when the nights are cool, and the days warm and humid. Under such conditions a field may become completely blighted in a few days.

Mr. MacIaren said: "Unless proper precautions are taken now to prevent the spread of the disease from plant to plant in the field, and from plants and ground to the tubers, this type of disease may be repeated in second early' and 'late' crops.

Rules for the conduct of debates in the English public schools are designed to curtail unnecessary argument as far as possible.

SASKATCHEWAN FINDS LEONARDITE

REGINA — Deposits of leonardite have been discovered in the southern part of the province near Estevan, Dr. W. Crashaw, assistant professor of chemical engineering, University of Saskatchewan, reports.

An extensive research program with leonardite has been carried on at the university for over a year to discover its chemical makeup and commercial uses. The project is financed by the Saskatchewan Research Council

Dr Crashaw said that wood staining is the most promising use of leonardite discovered so far. When covered with varnish to make it waterproof, a satisfactory stain is obtained

Other possibilities of the new mineral include use as a tanning agent, a mixing material for paper, drilling mud for deep wells and paint pigments. Leonardite has also been used in the manufacture of pottery. Leonardite is a black, jelly like substance and is a "southering" product of lignite coal.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

CONSCIENCE

God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self-government, reason, and conscience — Mary Baker Eddy

There is no class of men so difficult to be managed in a state as those whose intentions are honest, but whose consciences are heretical.—Napoleon

The men who succeed best in public life are those who take the risk of standing by their own convictions. — James A. Garfield.

Cowardice asks, is it safe? Expediency asks, is it politic? Vanity asks, is it popular? But Conscience asks, is it right?—Punshon.

FIGURED OUT SURE WAY OF GETTING A SEAT

The nervous little man glanced nervously at his watch, grabbed his bag, and rushed out to the station platform. The effect on the other travelers was all that could be desired. They also picked up their luggage and ran. Shortly afterward the little man returned, picked out the best seat in the station and sat down to wait for the train which was not due for 30 minutes.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CROP YEAR

These prairies have experienced an extraordinary crop year, details of which are worth pasting in anyone's scrap-book for future reference. The crop started out with moisture reserves that were 21 p.c. above normal, showing the promise of a 456 million bushel wheat crop. But then came the westerly two-thirds of Sask. and the easterly one-third of Alberta, the worst good May and June rains did not cover, indeed a condition of drought existed up until the 12th of July Manitoba and the eastern portion of Sask. and the west ern two-thirds of Alberta, did, however, enjoy these fine May and June rains and so have fine crops. On July 11th I forecasted that if these drought conditions continued, our wheat crop might be 260 millions of bushels only. On July 12th, however, abundant rains came and a remarkable change in prospects took place so that the Sools estimated the prairie wheat crop at 321 million bushels and the Government estimated the crop at 346 million. The fear of frost, however, is still a factor, particularly in some westerly parts of Alberta where still green wheat crops of 60 bushels to the acre are quite common.

All of this would seem to illustrate that no three prairies almost any thing can happen in rainfall and crop productions; and that it is never safe to make definite prophecies too far ahead. — H. G. L. Strange.

The Best banking system

CANADA has a banking system which, for efficiency and dependability, is unsurpassed in the world. Competitive, flexible, adaptable to the changing needs of the country, it serves Canada's producers, her industries, her traders—and it serves your personal needs, too.

No customer has to fear for the privacy of his regular banking transactions. This privacy is completely free of political pressures or considerations—it is rooted in Canadian banking practice and tradition.

Contrast this Canadian way with conditions in lands where freedom is denied—where every bank is a political tool, every banker a State official! State monopoly of banking, proposed by Socialists here, would fasten the Marxist foreign pattern on you.

Untrapped Trapper

In an Arctic post the R.C.M.P. are anxious to get in touch with a trapper

The trapper's enthusiasm for an Indian girl led him to make gifts to her that were not his to give. He was apprehended, when complaints were brought to the R.C.M.P., and ordered to cut the coming winter's supply of firewood for the post

Through the Arctic summer the trapper worked off his sentence diligently, was released and forked out the bush

On the first cold night of late August a Mountie brought in an armful of the newly cut wood. He had some difficulty with it. A few more samples from various places in the pole confirmed his worst suspicions. The wood had all been cut two inches too long for the fire box.

Scientists To Study Natural Resources In West

EDMONTON — Two Montreal scientists arrived here on an eight-week journey through Alberta and southern British Columbia to determine how the natural resources of these provinces may fit into the future development of their company. They are Dr. D. F. Brown and George E. Gallop of the development department, Canadian Industries Limited.

According to a joint statement from the C-I-L men, they will look into the possibility of procuring basic raw materials for existing chemical industries and of business expansion within the area.

Opportunities for establishing new plants in Western Canada will be sought but a careful advance study is required into any reasons are reached. Many economic factors must be considered before a new industry is started in any locality they said.

C-I-L already operates five plants in the West, a salt works in Newspaper, Man., a paint plant in Regina, an agricultural chemicals plant in New Westminster, B.C., and explosives plants at James Island, B.C. and [illegible]

HANDY CART—Many a tired back can be saved by building a little cart like this for water or milk cans, and for all the other odd jobs of the kind. Though the original was designed for use at a summer cottage it would be useful on any farm.

Solves Problem Of Housing In Canadian Northland

WINNIPEG — If a visitor to the Canadian Arctic should find himself shadowed by a house while trekking across the tundra it wouldn't be a trick of the Northern Lights.

"Floating" buildings are one of the latest of many devices used in the Arctic to combat the vagaries of the north.

A Montreal construction engineer, George Jacobsen, described the buildings in an interview here before proceeding to the 80th parallel, north of Cornwallis Island. There he will construct one in a chain of weather stations springing up across the Arctic as part of a meteorological program by the Canadian and American governments.

"Floating" homes, he said, is man's reply to permafrost—permanently frozen ground — which presents one of the greatest problems involved in northern construction work.

Permafrost varies from five to 200 feet in depth, with the top layer becoming mushy, and sloppy during the short Arctic summer.

"However, 'floating' houses are our answer to this problem. The buildings are designed on the same principle as a boat, they're not anchored to the ground but float with any movement of the earth's surface."

Similar in construction to Mosquito aircraft, the buildings have walls of light plywood, insulated both inside and outside with aluminum. Spun glass is used as an added insulation factor.

LOANS FOR FARM HOMES

With present day competition from other industries farm help is scarce and it is often quite a problem to get suitable hired help, whether for seasonal or permanent employment on farms.

The farmer who can offer comfortable and attractive living quarters to a prospective hired man, especially if he is married, has a distinct advantage and can generally attract the more efficient worker.

Building a small home for a helper on the farm is not a difficult job, and many farmers could do the work themselves or perhaps remodel an existing building.

An attractive pamphlet, 6 Sound Steps to Farm Building and Improvement, has been prepared which gives particulars of the method of obtaining loans for the construction, alteration and repair of farm buildings under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. One of the sections is devoted to separate houses for farm help.

Farm Improvement Loans not in excess of $3,000 may be obtained for building purposes up to 90 per cent of the estimated cost of the building with an interest charge of five per cent simple interest, with repayment periods of from one to ten years depending on the amount borrowed. Loans are made through the branches of the chartered banks in Canada and are guaranteed in part by the dominion government.

This legislation is being taken advantage of by an increasing number of farmers and it is probable that loans for building this year made under the act will greatly exceed those of last year.

The pamphlet giving particulars of the loans may be obtained from any branch of a chartered bank in Canada, or by writing to the Supervising Farm Improvement Loans Act Ottawa.

Dump Forests Lessen Fire Hazard

VICTORIA — Forests dampened by rains are providing little fire hazard compared with former years. There have been 324 fewer bush fires this season than last, when the total was 873. The cost has been much less, with the 619 outbreaks since May 1 costing only $23,383 to combat, as against $48,790 spent in the corresponding period of last year.

For a like period in the fire season of 1946 there were 958 fires, costing $69,548 to combat.

N.S. POTATO CROP GOOD

KENTVILLE, N.S. — Annapolis Valley apple prospects are none too bright, but early potato fields are expected to yield a 10-per cent increase above last season, although planting was delayed

TO STUDY NATURAL RESOURCES IN WEST—Dr. D. F. Brown and George E. Gallop, Montreal scientists who are conducting an economic study of natural resources in Alberta and southern British Columbia for Canadian Industries Limited. Dr. Brown graduated from McGill University in Montreal with a Ph.D. degree in chemistry while Mr. Gallop is a graduate of Toronto University where he specialized in chemistry and mineralogy.

Will Study Diseases At Lethbridge Lab

To aid the western farmer in controlling plant diseases as well as insects, the Dominion Department of Agriculture's Science Service is expanding its laboratory at Lethbridge, Alta. Research in plant pathology will now be added to the entomological work carried on there since the laboratory was established in 1913, announces Dr. K. W. Neatby, Director of Science Service.

To co-ordinate at this laboratory the investigations of the various units of Science Service and to increase liaison between Science Service and the Experimental Farms Service and western universities, the Department has appointed W. C. Broadfoot Officer-in-Charge. Formerly at the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Edmonton, Dr. Broadfoot has headed research in soil-borne diseases at Ottawa for the past two years.

In the laboratory expansion plant pathology will be headed by Dr. H. W. Cormack, an authority on diseases of forage plants, formerly of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Edmonton. Dr. C. W. Farstad will continue to be in charge of research in field and forage crop insects. E. H. Painter is investigating weeds.

From their studies of wheat stem sawfly and pale Western cutworm the entomologist scientists have studied grain growers to save millions of dollars. Under the successive guidance of E. H. Strickland, M. L. Reasoner and C. F. Mason, the laboratory at the Lethbridge laboratory has been widely adopted by western farmers.

Their reputation enhanced by their work at Lethbridge, Strickland is now professor of entomology, University of Alberta, Edmonton; Reasoner is Chief, Field Crop Insect Investigations, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa; Mason is being transferred as Officer-in-Charge of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Chatham, Ont.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

The following are questions and answers appearing in a recent issue "Health Notes," featuring a column under the heading "Health Quiz", that have helpful and important information:

Q. Should I use baking soda to preserve the fresh green color of vegetables?

A. No, the nutritional value is not in the color and the cooking heating with baking soda destroys vitamin C completely.

Q. Is Career beneficial?

A. If career has affected persons remotely related to you it means children in stock life as father and mother it is not necessarily inheritable but a lot more will-power is suggested

Q. In view of the fact that smallpox has been wiped out in this country is there still need for vaccination?

A. Absolutely. There is no safeguard immunity from smallpox. Anyone who has not been vaccinated can contract the disease.

Q. How can I get rid of an ingrown toenail?

A. Consult a qualified chiropodist. However, if you prefer to handle it yourself, you should be warned of the danger of digging around points under it, or of trying to trim it with penknife or razor blade. Instead, soften the nail by soaking in warm soapy water. With a razor or something similar scrape the centre of the nail from root to tip and dissect through the nail. Bend up the outside portion of the nail and insert a tiny piece of cotton or wool on each side. Replace the soaking each day. Direct cut the nail until the ingrowing part has grown past the painful spot. Then cut straight across and not down and around the side of the toe.

Weekly Newspaper Convention Delegates —

Largest number of delegates in several years attended the 32nd annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, Saskatchewan Division, at Regina. T. E. Bertrer of Wolseley, vice-president of the Association, presided in the absence of President Dr. R. J. Deachman, of Shaunavon, who was regretfully missed for the first time in nearly 25 years because of illness. Many important and vital subjects were discussed, with the prime aim of the Association to elevate the standard of newspaper publishing in an effort to increase readership value of the papers. At the last business session Mr. T. E. Bertrer of the Wolseley News was named President, Dr. Deachman of the Shaunavon Standard Honorary vice-president, with Walter Aschield of the Grenfell Sun as secretary-manager. Other members of the executive are: A. E. Bach, Biggar; Lorne Lorenzen, Rosthern Journal, and J. Pinchary, Rosetown Eagle.

X-Ray May Preserve Food Indefinitely

NEW YORK — Six American concerns are financing a research project in electronics that may result in better milk, safer water and preserve all foods indefinitely.

Spokesmen on the project are a group from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston who have just reported preliminary research indicating food products may by exposing them to an electron beam or X-ray.

Beginning on the Journal of Applied Physics, the M.I.T. group said that it has produced at a low voltage a machine that destroys bacteria either in canned or frozen foods such as milk, water, apple juice.

The machine added that use of an electron beam may be accelerated to operate on a monthly basis above the household machine presently sold for refrigerators.

It was further said that the expense of the food products in the machine did not take away the appetizing taste though the machine was thought to help in retaining its full nutrition.

The scientists said that the days of the milk delivery man may be numbered if it was proved out if the electron beam could be made economical. It possible, then day-to-day delivery of milk would not be necessary.

A household-sized model has been built for the project and while also a work in progress a model for the American Meat Institute was not so optimistic. He said that X-rays presently cost only a half inch. The electron beam however, may overcome that if was said.

Craftsman Uses Human Hair To Create Mosaics

WINNIPEG — A first glance at Jos Wuetz's pictures leaves them in doubt as to whether a talented man whose hobby is painting.

A closer examination is necessary to learn that the pictures are not executed with a brush. They are made by using the hair as the implement.

Mr. Wuetz's own hair of varying shades pasting it on glass for a mosaic effect. A detailed work on the artist has mostly of patience. He is retired watchmaker. The average length of a piece of hair used is a pathce is one quarter of an inch.

The hair is imported from Switzerland where the skin is obtain it from local and other institutions it is first cleaned of its natural grease and oxidized. It arrives the hair on the background. Mr. Wuetz uses a pair of curved nail scissors to cut the hair which he makes short. He uses a pair of tweezers to paste the hair in.

It is necessary to use any artificial coloring or pastels, he says. It's natural hair in the natural shades of the skin.

He work has always been Mr. Wuetz's hobby. No one taught it to him. He says he picked it up while in his native Holland.

On the wall of his living room is a reproduction of Manitoba's Legislative Building. The representation a good one measures about two by three feet and is complete in detail, from the lettering of the building's entrance to the small rails on the lamp-posts.

Mother Of Peace Ship Expedition Is Dead

NEW YORK — Rosika Schwimmer 76-year-old world famed Pacifist who in 1915 started Henry Ford On a Peace ship" to Europe to end World War I, died in All, after 10-month.

Mrs. Schwimmer was known as the mother of the peace ship expedition which ended without result in Stockholm.

As a champion of peace through international accord, Rosika Schwimmer was well ahead of her times. In 1914, 21 years before the founding of the United Nations and before two world wars had taken place—she proposed the creation of a world federation of nations to abolish war.

Her lifelong fight against war brought her the nominations of five nations for this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

Born in Budapest, she began her career as a journalist.

In 1918 she was named Hungarian minister to Switzerland and became the first woman ambassador in history.

Recently she willed her brain to Cornell University.

HEALTH APPROVED SEED

Each and every year Canadian crops suffer losses, sometimes severe, because disease caused by bacteria and fungi attack the crops. Many of these diseases are carried in the seed itself, so there has been a persistent and growing demand in recent years for seed that is known to be free from disease.

Agricultural scientists have long been devoting considerable attention to this most serious problem, and some progress has been made, notably with Canadian seed potatoes which in consequence have enjoyed a good export market because they were free from disease.

A new designation has been applied for such seed called "Health Approved Seed". This classification now has an international standing as we can presently look forward to the production of more Canadian Health Approved Seeds of many kinds and varieties. The Dominion Plant Products Division has set up standards for the production of Health Approved beans and peas, and the Division is ready to set up additional standards for more kinds and varieties as scientific progress enables disease free seed to be produced.

Once again Canada is in the forefront in quality seed production, for no more disease free seeds can be produced, as will demand from foreign countries for our good Canadian seeds increase.—H. G. L. Strange.

District Ag's. Weekly Corner

(By W. A. Mulvey, District Ag.)

Several weeks ago Dr. Larry Tyrrell from Dominion Plant Diseases Laboratory, and I collected some Pea Moss Aphids in the Cameron Municipality, to find out the prevalence of disease in grain.

Upon examination we found prevalence of common rust rot in wheat. The wheat plant first builds a strong root system. A node about 1½ to 2 inches in length connects to a secondary root system which grows from upon later and is found near the surface. It is this node which is affected by rust. The early crops escaped the severity. This year this common root rot would not injure the grain very severely, because there was ample rain during the filling stage. However should it have been dry the wheat would have been stunted much more. I am bringing out this point to all readers because common root rot did more damage than any other disease in this area. We found only 1 field absolutely free from this disease. A field infested with this disease is indicated by a very weak stand of wheat, and severely crowded out by weeds.

During the last three weeks we have had numerous inquiries about lizzies on the grain. I collected several samples of these insects and had them identified by Dominion Entomology Lab. They identified it as wheat Aphid or plant lice. The Aphids are damaging the green grain because they suck the vital juices from the plant which is needed to build the kernels of the grain. Fortunately would not injure the ripe grain to any extent.

Now is the time to watch the nonmarvellous to control Canada Thistle. Do not let these thistles build up the root system and secure a strong hold. Which method to use? I discourages the use of narrow tooth cultivators. Stanley Shadbolt, Field Supervisor for M. D. Camrose, and myself examined a 20 acre field the other day where a narrow tooth cultivator was used with hopes to injure Canada Thistle. Upon examining we found about 50 p.c. of Canada Thistle was still intact. So we recommended he operate with a one-way tiller. This he did. By operating in shallow he destroyed all the thistles in one operation. The important point is to cut the stems or root. In places where you cannot till with a tiller such as two wet spots, I strongly recommend that you use chemical control. I have an occasion to examine a half section of land that was summerfallowed this summer. But the pot holes were full of thistles. Now that we have warm weather, 2 4-D will certainly knock them back until the harvest is over.

RED ROSS TO BE DISBANDED

The Board of Grain Commissioners recently announced their intention to degrade Red Robe wheat some time in the near future, but the Alberta Government has protested against any action being taken until a new wheat is produced that will take the place of Red Robe. The Government is right; for the new variety, Saunders, bred especially to take the place of Red Robe, is still on trial. Red Robe, which became of its extreme earliness has brought untold millions of additional revenue to Alberta farmers, was discovered and selected by Seager Wheeler, an outstanding seed grower, who made no profit to himself from his discovery. Without Seager Wheeler's persistent, long and hard work in his own fields there would have been no Red Robe. Seager Wheeler on account of his advanced age was recently obliged to give up active farm work. He has quietly disappeared into the shadows of retirement. The thought occurred to me whether all the Alberta farmers, and perhaps the Alberta Government itself, who have so benefitted throughout the years from Red Robe, might not wish to show their appreciation of Seager Wheeler's outstanding contribution to Alberta's farm wealth, by conferring on him a modest honorarium in order to make Seager and his Wheeler a little more comfortable, with freedom from financial care, in the evening of their lives.
—H. G. L. Strange.

POPLAR FARM COM. CLUB HONORS MARGARET BRODIE

KILLAM, Sept. 6.—The Poplar Farm Community Club held a farewell on August 30th for Margaret Brodie who leaves shortly for Edmonton to take a business course.

Mr. Elmer Jacobs made a presentation on behalf of the friends and neighbors present. Cards and dancing was enjoyed, after which the members of the Club served a very delicious lunch.

Good luck Margaret.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

Last week in our summary of the Alberta bird publication by the end of 1948, our operator forgot to mention what might prove to be a very important point. It is that all sprayers of pump guns must plug the mags size so that it will hold only two shells. Under the new regulations a pump gun must only carry three shells (one in the chamber and two in the magazine). This new law is designed, I presume, to cut down your chances of bagging birds.

We in the northern sections of the Provinces, furnish the breeding grounds for a million and one Fish and Game Societies do their utmost to preserve and increase the bird population, our farmers lose hundreds of bushels of grain each year feeding them, and each year it seems our shooting becomes more difficult through added restrictions and regulations. While at the same time hunters from "outside" are allowed to come in and bag their limits of the birds we practically raise for their pleasure. And then, of course, there is the American hunter who gets a chance at the birds which we raise up here. These men may have something to do with our regulations. More peculiar things have happened and these gentlemen are apparently spending a lot of money up here to preserve and increase the duck and geese population. Lobbying still goes things over you know.

I noticed in last week's edition of the People's Weekly, that Mr Roger has been brought to his knees by bolters of sympathy poories in from C. C. Fers. If that can bring tears, what did the election results bring? A cloudburst!

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our husband and father, Rasmus Bergman, who passed away August 30th, 1947.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are ever near
Days of sadness will come over us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
Ever remembered by his Wife and Family. 221d

Rising Living Costs

FOR SOME TIME THERE HAS BEEN widespread concern over the steady increase in the cost of living in Canada. It is true that prices have risen alarmingly, and that in spite of general increases in incomes, it has become very difficult for many citizens to meet the present costs of food and other necessities. It was expected that prices would rise after the war and Canadians have suffered considerably less in this respect than have the people of most other countries. Where no economic controls were enforced during the war or in the years following it, prices and wages rose to fantastic levels, but even in those countries where those factors were regulated it has not been possible to avoid the trend to inflation, as controls were gradually removed.

Dollar is Worth More in Canada

Recently figures were issued comparing the cost of living in Canada to that of the United States, our nearest neighbor, and a country whose economy is, in many ways, closely [illegible] our own. These figures were calculated as nearly as possible on the same items and show that, on the basis of their value in 1939, the Canadian dollar is today worth more than the American dollar, and that Canadian consumers are paying less for most commodities than the Americans at exchange rates based on values in the United States on May 15 of this year. It was shown that the American dollar is, in general, worth 89 cents, compared to its value in 1939 while the Canadian dollar is worth only 87 cents and the clothing dollar 51 cents.

* * * * *

Greater Rise is Indicated

On June 1st of this year, the Canadian dollar was worth 83 cents in general, as compared to its value in 1939, while the food dollar was worth 81 cents and the clothing dollar 57 cents. It was also shown that on May 15th, the cost of living index in the United States was 173.9 while in Canada on June 1st it was 153.1. Prices have risen to some extent in both countries since these figures were compiled, but economists believe that the rise has been more rapid in the United States than in Canada. While it does not help us to know that the American people are facing more difficulties than ourselves in the matter of living costs, it does bring to our attention the fact that the trend is general, and that while the situation here is far from encouraging, it could be much more serious.

Uranium, Rare Metal, Discovered in British Columbia

VANCOUVER. — Uranium, rare metal used in making atomic bombs, has been found in British Columbia, near Gun Lake in the Bridge River district about 15 miles north of the gold mine town of Pioneer.

The find was reported in Vancouver by the young prospector who discovered it, Ernest Johnson, 33.

It was confirmed officially in Victoria by Dr. J. V. Walker, B.C.'s deputy minister of mines.

"It's uranium, all right," Dr. Walker told The Vancouver Daily Province. "It's the first authentic discovery in B.C. of which we have definite information."

Dr. Walker said samples sent in by Johnson are not finished yet. We don't know how much uranium exists there and we haven't yet identified the mineral as the [illegible]. We do know, however, that the ore [illegible] is radio-active and that it contains uranium.

U.S. POPULATION TAKES JUMP TO 145 MILLION

WASHINGTON — Boom growth on the Pacific coast led the United States to an estimated population total of 145,616,000 in 1945, a rise of 8.9 per cent since the 1940 census. The Census Bureau figured the combined population of California, Oregon and Washington now by 3,384,000 [illegible] the total was [illegible] 13,714,000.

NEW INDUSTRY

Make Cellulose Sponges In B.C.

VANCOUVER — A new Canadian industry — manufacture of cellulose sponges — recently went into operation in Vancouver.

The sponges, previously manufactured only in the United States and Scandinavia, are being made from high grade white pulp supplied by local forest companies, under special patents.

Located on Granville Island in Vancouver, the new $100,000 plant employs 20 persons and is making commercial and domestic sponges. Officials expect to supply them to the Canadian market and also to export them to the U.S.

President of the new industry is Frank Farber of Qualicum, a well-known lumber operator and vice-president of the B.C. Trade Logging Association. Vice-president is Camillo Carbian, who arrived recently from Denmark and who has been associated with cellulose sponge production in Scandinavia.

U.S. COTTON CROP TO EXCEED 1947 YIELD

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Agriculture Department estimated this year's cotton crop at 15 [illegible] bales. It reiterated the average yield per acre at 318½ pounds.

The Department said indications are the 1948 cotton crop, part of which is being [illegible]-ed now, will be larger than any year since 1937.

This was the department's first estimate of this year's crop. It placed total cotton production for 1948 about 2,316,000 bales more than the 1947 crop.

CAN PRAIRIE FARMERS GET ALONG WITHOUT HORSES?

By T. H. MELVILLE-NEBB
United Press Canadian

FOR quite a few years now they've been saying that the horse is finished in the west. Especially since the war ended, farms have been mechanized at a tremendous rate, and the trend continues. Thousands of farms that used to use horses for all field work have switched to power farming, and big barns that used to be filled with horses are either falling apart, or else they are being used as house expensive power machinery.

But supporters of the horse say that most farmers cannot get along without at least one general purpose team, especially in winter. A team of horses, they say, will do chores on mixed farms at far less cost than any other method. They also point out that a horse will get to town when the roads are snowed in, a time when a car or truck couldn't budge.

Last winter was a case in point. Any farmer who still had a few horses during the months of heavy snowfall early in 1948 had plenty of reason to be glad he had them.

And this year's Class "A" western fair circuit proved that there's still a lively interest in the horse. There were five exhibitions, at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina, and at each one there were good displays of heavy horses. There was also a fair interest in these displays on the part of farmers who had long since switched to power.

Classes for heavy horse teams were specially popular at the fairs. In all cases, stipulations were crowded when heavy four and six-horse outfits were scheduled to appear.

In spite of a hope to interest on the part of horse breeders, a few ardent horsebreeders have stayed without saddle had never noticed it a short the business, and they managed to put on a good show. Judged by any standard, the heavy horse classes were good, and some outstanding individuals were shown.

The greatest spectacle of all, the rodeo, was, if anything, better than ever before at Western exhibitions. While mechanization spreads through the farming and ranching community, there are still plenty of tough cowpokes to ride the meanest horse that ever left the chutes.

If the public thought the ranching business had abandoned the horse in favor of the airplane or the jeep, they had an eye-opener at the two major rodeos of the west this year, the Calgary Stampede and the Edmonton Exhibition Rodeo events were, if anything, better than ever this year. There were more chuck wagon outfits competing in the most exciting western event of all, chuck wagon racing. Bronk riding, with and without bareback riding, was as popular as ever.

While the cost of horse-keep has become something of a [illegible] factor, thousands of people back to see the heavy horse classes at Western exhibitions. Experienced [illegible] farmers still decide that a team of general purpose horses on the farm is a great asset, and there will be a return to horses in a few years' time. Here is the Clydesdale team, owned by J. F. Dunham of Fairlight, Sask., winner of four championships on the West-ern Class [illegible].

Helicopters Used In Fight Against Pests

CALGARY — Helicopters have been used in spray the area between Sandy Lake, and Field, B.C., with DDT and Diesel oil, in an effort to kill lodgepole pine needle miner. Three plots of 30 acres each were treated, using different spray deterrins in each section.

The pests have been in outbreak in the Sandy Park area since 1942 and first injury to the trees was noted at that time. They are tiny moths about a quarter of an inch in length and very narrow, with silver-grey wings. Larvae, when hatched, begin to mine the needles of pine trees during July and August. During the winter they remain dormant inside the needle, resuming feeding in the spring.

Although the pests will not kill the trees in one year, the present outbreak has reached a serious stage. In 1946 it was hoped that natural factors might stop some of the damage but this year, heavier mortality dropped to about 20 per cent.; and permanent injury is reported to trees in the Lake Louise area.

RECIPES

FISH — BAKED, WITH STUFFING

Select a fish weighing from 3½ to 5 pounds. Bake with the following stuffing:

1 cup crumbs (bread or crackers, or half and half)
¼ cup melted fat
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Few drops onion juice, if liked
¼ cup water

Mix ingredients in order given. If a dry filling is desired, the water may be omitted. Three tablespoons catsup, chopped parsley, capers, pickles, or oysters may be added. Clean and wipe the fish. Rub the inside with salt. Fill with stuffing and sew together. Cut diagonal gashes 1½ inches apart on both sides of the fish and place a strip of bacon or salt pork fat in each gash. Brush with melted fat, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dredge with flour, tie in the shape of a letter "S" and bake in a dripping pan. When the flour is browned, baste the fish once in 10 minutes. Cook until the flesh is firm and separates easily from the bone.

BAKED RICE AND CHEESE

2 cups cooked rice
Butter
1½ cups cheese grated
Milk
½ teaspoon salt
Bread crumbs

Cover bottom of buttered baking dish with rice, sprinkle with cheese, season and dot with butter. Repeat until rice and cheese are used. Add milk to half the depth of rice. Cover with crumbs. Bake at (350 deg. F) about 30 minutes or until cheese melts and crumbs are brown.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS
BEST OF ALL
By JANE DALE

I like the treats that mother makes
To please a little man,
I like the stories that she tells
And I love her goodnight kiss.

I like her greeting every morn
When the sun is climbing high,
It seems to set the day aright
When it could be all awry.

I like to see her in the house
When I come in from play,
And I love the welcome in her face
When I have been away.

But of the many things she does
I love by far the best
To feel the comfort of her arms
And the softness of her breast.

After a naughty girl I've been
And hesitate to scold,
I'll cherish those forgiving hugs
Until I am aged and old.

Tourist Trade Shows Gain

OTTAWA — United States tourists are coming to Canada in greater numbers.

The Bureau of Statistics reported that American traffic entering Canada during June was six per cent. higher than in June, 1947, while Canadian traffic returning from the United States was eight per cent. lower.

The total number of border crossings was 881,000, consisting of 680,-300 foreign entries and 192,600 returning Canadian vehicles. Of the foreign inflow, 182,600 entered on traveller's vehicle permits. 479,700 were non-permit of local entries and 17,600 were commercial vehicles.

The Canadian traffic comprised 16,500 units remaining abroad more than 24 hours, 168,100 staying for shorter periods and 16,000 commercial vehicles.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

TRACHE SAVE THEM!

Dr. Alan Brown, Physician in Chief of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children and Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Toronto, once opened a radio broadcast by telling a little story. We'll quote from Dr Brown's script—

"As a rule most speakers open their remarks by telling a story. Well, I'm going to open my remarks this evening by telling a story—but it isn't the type of story which will make you laugh and put you in a good humor to listen to the rest of my talk. It is the story of a little girl who spent many months in Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

"The little girl's name was Mary. She was the only child of a doctor who didn't believe in the then newfangled idea of pasteurization — the heating of milk to destroy disease germs. He was so convinced in his own mind that he was right—that pasteurization was a useless and harmful process—that every day he drove out of the town where he lived to get raw milk from a special herd he had picked out as safe.

Divulges TB

"This went on for some time, but one day Mary developed a condition which necessitated a trip to Toronto — to the Hospital for Sick Children. She had bovine tuberculosis — contracted from the herd which her father thought so healthy and safe.

"Yes, Mary was just another victim of unpasteurized milk—a victim of parental neglect, through ignorance. And, her case was not an isolated one. Many little Marys and Johnnies have gone through the same taking—and many of them today are crippled from the effects of bovine tuberculosis contracted from infected milk."

Dr. Brown also stated that "we who know the disease possibilities of raw milk and who have watched the beneficial effect of pasteurization have firmly believed that no sound argument can be advanced against pasteurization."

University Men Say Egg Grading Easy

ST. PAUL.—University of Minnesota farm school men say a housewife can tell whether high-priced eggs really are grade A.

If the egg has a round, high yolk and if the cover of the yolk is strong and has plainly-seen white knots on its sides, the egg is grade A.

If the egg flattens out and runs all over the dish, or has barely-visible white knots on the yolks, farm school experts suggest buying elsewhere.

The latter, they said, may be perfectly all right but they're considerably less than grade A.

One of the earliest ways of measuring time was by burning a candle.

Round-Up Of What 1948 Floods Will Do For Western Canada

Drought Area of the Prairie Provinces Is Now Restored to Record levels by Melting Snow and Rainfall

WATER supplies in the so-called Drought Area of the Prairie Provinces were restored to record levels by melting snow and rainfall in March and April of 1948. Hundreds of lakes and streams, which were remembered only by the very early settlers, came to life again. Districts which had been dried out and afflicted with marshes and lakes and traversed by running streams.

The drought area of the Prairie Provinces had, in the last 10 years, become known generally as the P.F.R.A. area, because the benefits of this act are extended to residents in it. The area contains about 125,000 000 acres of land or 200 000 sections. Long-term records of various water conservation offices indicate that these lands will produce an average of about 12 acre-feet per year of run-off water from each section. In some years it may be more in some years less in some regions it is dependent on the direct regimen it at least 12-acre feet per section. In 1948 it is estimated that there will average at least 18 acre feet per section which would amount to 3,600 000 acre feet for the three areas. Expressed in tons this water requires 12 figures.

Appearance Changed

The appearance of the preserves has changed completely for the season. Where dry lakes, white alkali flats, and parched channels have appeared for many years, there are now immense areas of blue water and receding creeks.

Southeast of Regina a rich area of agricultural land which was a marsh at the turn of the century, was homesteaded some years later, and has been cropped for at least 30 years, had now been reclaimed by marsh.

In the Weyburn district creeks which have not discharged any great volume of water for at least 25 years were miniature torrents.

In southwestern Saskatchewan, Lake Johnstone, usually dry in August of each year, is back at the level of 1905.

Between Regina and Saskatoon, Last Mountain Lake extends as a thin expanse of water for over 30 miles. Before the turn of the century this lake was navigable. Boats of fair size plied up and down it in the early years of settlement. In the 1870's it receded to little more than a glorified slough. Its level was restored four feet in April of 1948, which required a quarter of a million acre-feet of water.

In 1939 the P F R A constructed a dyke across the Qu'Appelle River north of Moose Jaw for the purpose of diverting the flow of Moose Jaw Creek into a large marsh, known as Buffalo Pound Lake, in the valley of the Qu'Appelle a short distance from Tuxford. The most optimistic view of the development was that some of 25 000 acre-feet of water might eventually be gathered in the lake. Over 70 000 acre feet were trapped in 1948. Buffalo Pound Lake, instead of being a little more than a marsh, extends as one long expanse of water from the dyke north-west of Lumsden for 60 miles up the Qu'Appelle to Eyebrow Lake, another marsh a short distance from Tuxford. This water will be passed down the Qu'Appelle to Long Lake during the season.

In East Central Alberta, Berry Creek and other streams have shown themselves as great producers of valuable water which may be impounded for irrigation development south and east of Hanna. In the Medicine Hat region, lakes, marshes, and reservoirs, which have existed on a thin supply of water for many years, filled to overflowing. Cheer Lake in the Hanna-Rosyth district is typical of all others south of Calgary it is filled.

Extensive Damage

It was to be expected that run-off water of the quantities which were stored in 1948 would do considerable damage to both privately-owned and public reservoirs and works. Dams failed, spillways washed out, railways were damaged, roads were breached.

In the aggregate the damages will amount to millions of dollars, but each individual dam is offset by the benefit of greater value. The dams which failed did so because the reservoirs in which they were created were completely inundated. Water saturated the grain fields to depths of eight and 10 feet and more. The spillways which would normally carry reservoirs which were completely filled with water. Railway bridges quickly frequently narrow an stream which had not carried water in any great volume for years. The lands adjoining damaged roads were not dam in better condition than the roads.

Many urban centres of Western Canada depend for their supplies of supplies on underground reservoirs. Such reservoirs usually consist of little more than a large deposit of sand or gravel into which surface water seeps, in some cases, from which it is pumped for urban use. These sand pockets depend upon the face run-off to be re-charged. During the last 10 years there have been times when no run-off occurred for two and three years in succession and the water level dropped significantly. The 1948 run-off has recharged to the maximum these underground reservoirs.

It is quite true that farmers of Western Canada are perturbed about the damages and delays caused by floods this year as they have been every, they made no complaints. They have a feeling of security derived in knowing that the "Good Old Days" of water surplus can return, and have not been replaced entirely by a constant threat of water and dust. They much prefer the flooded lands to the black blizzards of the 1930's. For many of them the dry years have restored confidence.—Farm and Ranch Review.

Bird Scientists Still Foil To Find Whooping Crane's Breeding Grounds

REGINA—The bird scientists have not failed again in their search for the breeding grounds of North American's most rare bird.

The ornithologists believe they are working against time.

Of the 33 living cranes—survivors of the largest flock migrating annually from the southern United States to Canada's Wood Buffalo Park—only pairs are believed breeders this year.

Unless the nesting grounds can be found quickly and the birds studied so they perhaps can be bred in captivity they are doomed.

Two American, Robert Smith and Robert Allen, have spent the Easter carrying from Starr or Pure Spruce to Richard Islet on the Arctic Red coast. Flying from a base at Aklavik near the Mackenzie River mouth they feel they have at least narrowed down the possible nesting ground of the birds and may stand a fetter chance on their return to their search next year.

Smith is an officer of the United States Fish and Wild Life Society, while Allen is an official of the National Audubon Society on loan to the U.S. Government. They began their search in 1945.

As the Canadian prairie became settled, the birds were pushed further and further north. Being but slow reproducers at best, the new surroundings forced on them proved to be too much. They need extensive marshes for the nests that house usually two eggs. The last nest found in Saskatchewan was in 1925.

Smith and Allen know that each spring the birds that migrate leave Austwell, Texas, for their trip north. They are followed and reported all until they reach the north, where they disappear.

Two birds are in captivity and it is hoped they will mate. One of the remaining 31 white birds with black-tipped wings is a non-migrant which has lived with a colony in Louisiana for a number of years. Two others didn't migrate either this year but stayed in the Texas Gulf region.

The hope here say that the birds from scattered points in northern Saskatchewan and Alberta of nesting shooting crane may be connected with the 12 migrating run-breeders. One report came from Flin Flon, in central Manitoba and a second from the Peace River district in northern Alberta.

Next year, Smith and Allen intend to comb the region between Great Slave Lake, just north of Alberta and Great Bear Lake further northwest. They feel they can't discover the nesting grounds too soon.

Right Way To Lift

A Canadian farmer noted for his strength and also for his unassuming modesty, was asked how he managed to lift such heavy weights.

"Well", he answered, "I am naturally strong, but a man might be as strong as an ox, and yet strain his back in lifting a comparatively light weight, if he lifts the wrong way. Don't lift with your back. Lift with your legs by bending your knees, and keep your back as straight as possible without straining to do so. That is, keep your back as vertical as possible to the ground when lifting.

"And don't show off. If you find you cannot heave a sack or anything else unaided call your shoulders, get someone to give a hand. If the weight to be lifted is too heavy to carry alone, don't have false pride, get help. There is a limit in everyone to the amount of strain the muscles will stand, especially on your back. And the way to lift is to lift with the legs. They are the natural elevators."

China's Black-Death

World Health Organization Joins Chinese In Grim Battle

SHANGHAI — Chinese and World Health Organization doctors are fighting a grim battle with spreading plague—the "black death" that has killed many people than all the world's wars. The disease spread to Kiangsi and Chekiang provinces during the Japanese war, says Dr. Robert Pollitzer of the W.H.O. In 1947, he reported, Kanchang Kiangsi, had 81 cases and 31 deaths.

"We are moving heaven and earth to prevent the disease spreading further," he said. It has been active in Fukien province for 20 years, but until the war was not known in Kiangsi or Chekiang.

Plague has scourged the world for centuries. In the 14th century it swept Europe and Asia, leaving perhaps 25,000,000 dead.

The disease is carried by fleas which normally live on rats but which can transmit the germs to man.

Vigorous preventive measures have kept it well under control in the western world. In the Orient it is much more common; as recently as 1918 it swept over Manchuria and killed thousands.

"Plague is like a tiger. Unless it is completely killed it may do tremendous harm," Dr. Pollitzer said. It has control, he reported more than 20 years fighting the disease in the Far East. The W.H.O is a part of the United Nations. It works with the Chinese ministry of health.

There are three major fleas of attack, Dr. Pollitzer explained.

1. Treatment of persons already infected. Sulfa drugs are important, and Dr. Pollitzer also is watching with interest the development of a new drug called polymyxin.

2. Checking the spread of the disease by using anti-plague vaccines and, most of all, DDT to destroy fleas which carry the germs.

3. Killing rats.

Dr. Pollitzer estimates China has 600,000,000 rats. Powerful poisons like those used in the west in infected regions. To prevent accidents to humans, these cakes are distributed at night and carefully collected by security guards.

Shanghai, China's largest city, has thus far escaped any serious outbreak of plague. Conditions there are different.

The plague normally is worst during the spring and summer months, when the rat-carrying fleas become active. Shanghai's peculiar fleas do not become active until July; hence not much opportunity to pick up plague germs from springtime-contaminated, country fleas.

More Alfalfa Seed Grown In West

Production of alfalfa's seed in Canada has been maintained for the past 20 years by the Plant Products Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in making rapid strides. In 1939, production was placed at less than one million pounds By 1946 production had increased to about 4,000,000 pounds and last year to nearly 11 million pounds. Current prospects indicate that the 1948 crop may be even larger than in 1947, says H. R. Purnell, of the Plant Products Division.

It is also noticeable than the increased production has been the result of producing seed from stock grown from Ontario. In 1939, practically the total crop was grown in that province. By 1945, however, the possibilities of producing alfalfa seed in Western Canada were being realized. As the knowledge spread that alfalfa seed of superior quality could be a profitable crop in certain areas of the West, production has increased there very considerably, while that of Ontario has declined. In 1947 over 90 per cent. of the total crop was grown in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Saskatchewan alone accounted for over five million pounds.

As the result of increased production in recent years Canada has had large quantities of seed available for export. Canadian grown alfalfa seed has gained an excellent reputation on world markets and the United States has become a market for a good share of the surplus seed. Exports from the 1947 crop were the largest on record and amounted to nearly eight million pounds valued at more than three million dollars.

Sixteen Mental Clinics Operating Across Canada

OTTAWA — One in 30 Canadians will spend at least part of their lives in mental institutions.

But, despite the fact that in the last 10 years there has been a 60-per cent. increase in the population of mental hospitals beds and with the increase hasn't unduly alarmed over the situation.

Part of all Canada's aging population has a bit to do with it.

Dr. C. M. Hincks, chief of the department's mental health division, said in an interview here that about 25 per cent. of those now in institutions are aged persons.

Many of these persons are beginning to accept mental hospital care.

"While the mental hospital still is under a stigma, it is changing like what it was gone years ago," said Dr. Hincks.

He added that Canada's 16 mental health clinics throughout the Dominion were doing much to assist persons in need of specialized treatment, but not hospital care.

A shortage of trained personnel—and especially of mental workers skilled in psychiatric treatment—is the main problem facing the post-war expansion of these clinics, particularly in western Canada.

Sometimes recommended by a school board, juvenile court, parent-teacher organization, or welfare group, the clinic is staffed by a psychiatrist, a psychologist and a social worker.

Behavior of epileptics, children, and others is studied at the clinic. Dr. Hincks described as "a most healthy sign," the fact that teachers are beginning to show a greater interest in what makes children behave they way they do.

As well as providing treatment, workers at the clinics help teachers and parents how to detect undesirable behavior trends.

Dr. Hincks said he felt the time was quickly approaching when mental health services should be integrated with other health services to the community.

"People are realizing more and more the part psychological factors play in disease," he concluded. "They also realize that delinquency has natural causes and they are going to look for people who know the 'answers'."

HASTY

Jackson and his wife were doing a little fly fishing about the town.

"How many have you caught?" she asked, after a while.

"Six," replied her husband, "three males and three females."

"How absurd!" his wife smiled. "How could you tell if they were males or females?"

"Easy, my dear," he beamed. "Three were on the sugar and three were on the mirror."

If the public continues to buy its current quantity of milk and ice cream, there will be less cheese and butter made in Canada this year.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

ANOTHER CHANCE

By H. H. CLARKE

NINETEEN - YEAR - OLD Chuck Brewster glumly watched his beloved grandmother, Widow Brewster, as she wrestled the petunias to rode the white picket fence that enclosed her gay little yard. She was an energetic little lady for all her gray hair and her years, and her flowers were her hobby.

"You see, Sutton," said Chuck dispassionately, "Granny's grandfather's going to take the car away from him, and Granny wasn't to blame at all. I was driving."

"Oh, Chuck," she exclaimed. "What-ever got into you? You never speed!" She paused and tried to look stern at him, but it wasn't a success because her face was never built for sternness.

"I know," he answered forlornly. "It was all because I was late for the Scout meeting. Mother had ever car and Granny offered to let me use hers. I was speeding a bit but—well, gosh! Just the trailer was smashed and of course I'll pay to have that fixed. If only the old bumard would give us another chance, or at least give Ronny one. But no! He says he believes in discipline and he knows Ronny responsible. I feel like a perfect heel! Golly, Ronny's my best pal!"

"Another chance!" His grandmother's eyes lighted up triumphantly, then thoughtfully. "That's it," she said slowly. "I'll never forget, another chance!" She dropped her litter trowel and clasped her hands. "Chuck," she announced with determination, "you never can tell what's going to happen in this little old world. Ronny just has to talk to that old grot. Ronny isn't to blame at all. It just isn't fair. He doesn't get a bun for Waterside!"

A few hours later Mrs. Brewster faced the handsome grey-haired grandfather Chuck's pal Ronny in his stately home in the little adjacent town of Waterside, where he lived all alone with his servants. But all her pleadings for Ronny and Chuck proved to be futile. The old man was courteous but determined. "The old — the old curmudgeon!", thought Mrs. Brewster, "He's as stubborn as — as I am!"

"Listen here," she said desperately, "I want to tell you something—something I've never told a living soul before. When I was about eleven years old I stole a dime and caught her breath. "When I was about eleven years old I stole a dime from a storekeeper. It was a little pin from a storekeeper. It was a little pin. The storekeeper was tiny diamonds and the whole affair fascinated me beyond description. I did it slide it, right out of his muffler!" Her voice shook with emotion. "The-man was his name—I remember so well. And do you know what he did when, of course, I was caught wearing it? He lied he lied to protect me! He said he'd given it to me!" Shame and pride wrestled for mastery in Mrs. Brewster's face.

Then she looked the old man firmly in the eyes. "I never forgot, it," she went on, "and all my life I've tried to give everything another chance at everything in honor of that old schoolmate whom I never could repay for the second chance he gave me. Also — I never stole again!"

Mr. Brewster's eyes shone and her face was a beautiful pink. "Didn't anyone ever do you a big service—one that you could never repay?" she demanded. "If ever they did, don't you see that here's a chance to pass it on—and be more than one to someone else?"

She paused and looked hopefully at the old gentleman. "Oh," she thought with misery, "whatever's the matter with him? He looks stunned. I must have shocked him dreadfully! I hope he does think I'm sure that Chuck came from a family of thieves. It would be just like him!"

But the old gentleman recovered himself quickly. "All right," he said arising as though it didn't really matter much after all. "I'll forgive Ronny and Chuck. I won't take the car away from Ronny. Is that what you want?" He looked at her so searchingly that Mrs. Brewster thought the man must be off his head, even though it was such handsome old head. However, she smiled and thanked him warmly, as she edged rather hastily but triumphantly toward the door.

Mrs. Brewster's brain was still harping on the diamond pin the next morning as she stood by the gate. Her calling rang for the boy and Somehow the old episode seemed to repeatedly vivid to her mind.

"I just goes to show," she said to herself, "that there's no end to a good deed. It goes on and on making ripples in life, like a stone thrown into a pool."

Her lofty thoughts, however, were interrupted rudely as a big sedan came roaring down the street at what appeared to Mrs. Brewster to be an excessive rate of speed. She stepped back, as her gate was near the street and the car gave the impression that it might careen off the pavement. But no—it whirled in a dramatic stop in front of her own gate To her surprise, Ronny's grandfather disembarked! He wore no hat and his silver hair shone in the morning sun. He had a license," she thought, as he stepped briskly toward the gate and looked at her with a quizzical smile.

"Hello, Sutton," he grinned at her Mrs. Brewster stared. She stared again and slowly she began to grow ble unaccountably. "Oh!" she cried, "Oh, my aching back! You're—you're Hiram!"

The handsome old gentleman made her a low bow.

"That I am," he replied chuckling. "And I am. I've come to see Chuck, "she announced with determination, "my nerve all gone! Chuck's pal Ronny responsible. I feel like a perfect heel! Golly, Ronny's my best pal!"

"Another chance!" His grandmother's eyes lighted up triumphantly, then thoughtfully. "That's it," she said slowly. "I'll never forget, another chance!" HONORING THOSE WHO MADE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE

Many communities across the prairies hold memorial services in memory of gallant young men and women who made the supreme sacrifice. This may signify the freedom that is ours in Canada today These communities are to be commended for their spirit and effort in holding these services. Above, a memorial service was held recently in Calgary's Stampede Corral with the Crack branch of the Canadian Legion holding a memorial service at Crack. Bank. The service was preceded by a parade of ex-servicemen and several organizations led by the Calgary Highlanders Pipe Band. The cenotaph was banked to overflowing with beautiful wreaths placed by the different organizations in the district.

The cenotaph, erected after World War I, is located at an intersection on the main street, and names of men of Crank and district of both wars are inscribed. At night it is illuminated by lights on each corner of the decorative fence that surround the memorial, and makes a very impressive scene from the platform of the station at the head of the street.

THE BOOK OF THE MONTH

Prairie Oil Production Up Over 1947

CALGARY — Alberta-Saskatchewan oil production climbed to new high of almost 60 000 barrels daily in the week ended Aug 3 indicated daily average was 59 873 barrels, or more than 2 300 barrels higher than former peak of previous two weeks. This is 7,100 barrels higher than officially recorded yield for June.

Estimated production for first seven is 15-month history passed the 30,000,000 barrel level. Conservation board reports deliveries of 30,994 barrels daily including 9,161 barrels from Wild Atlantic well and 11,288 barrels from 100 other wells operating at restricted rates. Turner Valley oil run 10,790 barrels plus an additional 1 614 barrels of natural gasoline.

Lloydminster Up

Lloydminster production was estimated at 2,184 barrels daily from Alberta wells and 2,753 barrels from Saskatchewan. Smaller Alberta pools were estimated at 2,163 barrels daily.

Prairies rolled up an oil production gain of 1,644,000 barrels with the six month total at 4,943,962 barrels. Alberta produced 4,669,207 barrels Saskatchewan 374,965 barrels. With continued growth expected the final half-year production should exceed six million barrels and the 1948 total may approximate 12 million for a new record compared to 7,344,173 barrels for 1947.

1950 Games Awarded To N.Z.

LONDON — The 1950 British Empire games were awarded to New Zealand

The committee to decide the venue of the commonwealth sports meet voted down Canada's bid, 13-2, to hold the games at Toronto

Bermuda was Canada's only supporter

Prof Nelson Hart of London, Ont., general manager of the Canadian Olympic team, represented Canada at the meeting.

He detailed the Toronto offer with a $50 000 guarantee but the committee decided to hold the games again go to the southern hemisphere.

After the meeting Prof. Hart said: "The delegates wanted to spread the games around. We had it before—in 1930 at Hamilton, Ont. — and this will be New Zealand's first time."

The games will be held in January, 1950.

The five races of mankind are Caucasian, Mongolian, Negro, Malay and American Indian

SEDGEWICK ACTIONS

The Fairdomain Valley 19PWA would like to express their sincere thanks to everyone who came out to Fairgrove and made their dance a real success.

Mr. and Mrs. "Red" Munro and in last child of Edmonton have been visiting the Ken McGregor home.

Mr. Frank Mayes jnr., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Mikkelsen, of Kimberly B. C. spent the long week end in the town and district.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Papke of Hilden Alberta and their son Wilmer and wife of Cremona and son Robert of Cremona were calling on friends in town last week. The Papke family formerly resided here where Mr. Papke was employed by Bill Hoffman and was also convenor of the local skating rink for some years.

The town that school would not reopen until the 13th was greeted with loud chuckles by the youngsters, but the ban on movies received everything Henry Wallace is getting down south with the exception of eggs. They cost too much.

A large crowd which included the Oakland Beaver all-colored ball team enjoyed a baseline and weiner roast on the Lake on Tuesday of last week. We are informed that this derby team has put Sedgewick down as a must for next year.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Vennard senior of Westlock are visiting at the home of their son Johnny and family.

Miss Gladys Armstrong has been visiting her parental home here.

Mr. Ray Robbins of Edmonton and his sister-in-law, Mrs. B. Robbins of Anola, Iowa (formerly of here) were renewing acquaintance to town last week. They also added quite a number of apple and plum trees.

The local tennis club members enjoyed a social party out at the Lake on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mrs. M. Trooly has enjoyed a vacation at Biggar, Sask.

Some two dozen folks from town attended the Paul Perry dance held at Bellshill last week.

Mr Bob Tweedy of Edmonton was a visitor here last week.

The light frost which visited the area last Friday night nipped a few of the gardens. We have no reports on the grain crops but imagine the green low-lying fields have received some degree of damage.

Misses Elsie and Lillian Tweedy left by motor last Saturday for a visit at Banff and Kimberly B. C

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lindquist and Miss Myrna Peterson all of Camrose spent the week end in the district.

Miss Mary Muirhead and a girl friend of Calgary were at the Muirhead summer home for the week end.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the A.W. Hastly home on Saturday evening in honor of Mrs Roy. Hastly of Saskatoon (nee Wellis Bibby). A large crowd of town and country ladies attended and the guest of honor received a profusion of useful and attractive gifts.

DEATH

Friends at Morsa and Sedgewick will be grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Anna Kalstrae Nees Knudson which occurred in the Camrose hospital on September 6th.

Mrs. Knudsen was born on Aug. 16th, 1872 at Sagvag, Stord, Norway, and came to Canada in 1900. She was married on arrival to Mr. Nils K. Nees and the couple resided at Morsa, south of Sedgewick until 1924 at which time Mr Nees passed away. In 1930 she was married to Mr. Ingvar Knudsen and resided at Dunsdale until her death.

Mrs. Knudsen had no children but in 1917 she and Mr. Nees adopted a little girl, Margaret, now Mrs. H. Parker of Lac La Biche.

LOUGHEED W. I.

The W. I. met at the home of Mrs. S. Dunsdon on Saturday, Sept. 11th, when the non-grandmembers of the Institute entertained the grandmembers at their 22 wee present.

A delightful afternoon was spent which concluded with a delicious lunch. Each grandmember received a corsage of sweet peas while the oldest grandmother, Mrs. I. Johnson, was presented with a bouquet of very beautiful glads.

The program consisted of:

Reminiscence: A humorous program, by Mrs. A. Shubery; Reading, Mrs. T. Street; Piano Solos, Miss Phyllis Hemmi and Miss Eleanor Olsen; Community Singing, Mrs. Hall, Miss Ruth Hall, Miss Ruth Ellen and Doris Lawrence and June and Mavis Marlow.

Mrs. H. E. Ray, on behalf of the grandmothers, thanked the hostesses for the delightful afternoon.

Next meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Peterson. Each member please bring a friend to this meeting.

THANK YOU

The Rector and Congregation of St George Church, Killam, express our sincere thanks to all those friends whose prompt action limited damage to a minimum.

ST. GEORGE'S W. A.

The W. A. of St. George's Anglican Church, Killam, met at the home of Mrs. White on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 9th. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by the Litany and Prayer.

Plans were discussed for the Fall Bazaar to be held in the Co-op Hall on November 30th. Due to the fire in the Church on Sept. 5th, the meeting of the W. A. were asked to meet at the Church on Friday at 1:30 p.m. and help with the cleaning. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

WEDDINGS

A quiet but impressive wedding was performed on September 1st at the Rectory of Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Penticton, B. C., when Mary Patricia McKenna, daughter of Mrs. Alma McKenna was united in the bonds of matrimony to Benjamin James Quinn, son of Mr. Benjamin Quinn of Penticton, and the late Mrs. Quinn, both formerly of Sedgewick.

A reception was held following the ceremony, at Lynton Heights, after which the young couple left for a honeymoon trip to Victoria. On their return they will reside in Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinn received a number of congratulatory messages, including one from the bride's sister in Halifax and one from the groom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCracken of Lougheed.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES MEET

The ladies of the Killam Presbyterian Church met for their September meeting in the Church. Because of the Polio ban the attendance was smaller than usual. A brief devotional period was led by Mrs. Lars Erickson and Mrs. D. Bonner. Letters were read from Wales and Saskatchewan, Scotland, from women who were recipients of some of the clothing sent to Europe in the spring.

Miss Joan Roberts gave a most delightful account of her two days at Camp Sylvan Lake. The topic, dealing with early days of Presbyterianism in Canada, and the beginnings of the WMS, was ably taken by Mrs. Fleyd Robinson. The October Thank-Offering meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bole.

On Tuesday, Sept. 21st, Miss Isabel McCaskill of Calgary, will address a meeting in the Church at 8:00 p.m. All interested in Missionary work are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

NOTICE

The September meeting of Sedgewick District Board of Trade will be held in the Anglican Church Hall on Tuesday, September 21st at 8 p. m. A special speaker has been invited. Everybody please turn out to this meeting.

CARD OF THANKS

The members of St. George's W.A. wish to take this opportunity of thanking those who assisted in the cleaning of our Church, especially Mrs. A. E. Fee and Mrs. R. B. Carmichael; also Mrs. P. Garwood and Mrs. W. McMahon, who so kindly made an afternoon tea.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. H—

Every once in awhile we in these small towns are confronted with cases or another of the insurmountable little events which go to make up a full life for any rugged individual. Such an event occurred last week when I was besieged by small in conformity several of my hard earned dollars in a wheat oil scheme which had been developed especially to make use the west Canadian millionaire. The inventors they will reside in Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn received a number of congratulatory messages, including one from the bride's sister in Halifax and one from the groom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McCracken of Lougheed.

Don't think for one minute that this art of schooling money out of an unsuspecting public has become completely lost. It's still going on and some people are still falling for it. Just show some people that you can fool them with some hard to get article at a great reduction and the proposition is snapped up. You throw your money only to find out that you've been "taken".

Of course I do not intend that you should become suspicious of every travelling salesman who here today. There are legitimate agents who are worthy as your own local merchant. My object is to educate you in the fact that your town is becoming more and more civilized with regards to what you can buy. You are not almost anything you want today through some local agent who has set up a permanent business in your town. He will get you what you want at competitive prices and after selling it to you he stands behind it with some degree of guarantee of satisfaction. What is more he stays ready to service it for you. Now before a commission (he won't last long if he doesn't) but his profit goes to help build sidewalks keep the school running give free posters and maintain roads. Where does the commission and profit go when you pay it to the "fly-by-night" agent? Back to the city where the salesman maintains his home.

Just think of these things the next time you are approached and urged to patronize the drifting agent

There is a growing trend of disconcert with the fellow who sweeps into town once a month or so with a sheaf of bargains in one hand and the other in your side pocket, driving as little as possible while collecting as many dollars from the town as people will part with. There is a growing demand that if these people want our dollars they must come out of their towering cities an business men. If they do that we will likely do business with them if not they will find that the gullible country bath is quickly becoming as sharp as a cricket.

DISTRICT AG'S. WEEKLY CORNER

(By W. A. Mosney, District Ag.)

Several days ago I examined field of wheat of about 20 acres T field was sown on last year's brome sod. We found about one wild oat plant per three square feet through out the field. The owner thinks that these wild oats were scattered by livestock, as we began to invest gate. We found on those days when fish-ranged were and finally dressed "smooth-bro from the cities made regular excursions out to the "chicks" to take the local potash "for a ride". A good many of them succeeded too for it may be truly said that there is a sucker born every minute. Much to my delight though, these gullible individuals are becoming fewer and fewer, and the guy artist is finding the going becoming tougher and tougher with each succeeding year. It seems almost as though the artist better times has placed many newspapers and radios in the home and as a consequence we so-called "city-suckers" have now become wise up to the various nocturnal visits items of these fly-by-night agents.

Air Transport

WHILE THE PEOPLE OF ALL NATIONS have not yet learned to live together in complete agreement there are many signs that progress is being made toward the establishment of better international understanding and co-operation. Air transport, which links people of many countries by what is now, relatively, a few hours' flying time, is the latest, and perhaps the greatest, factor bringing the peoples of the world together geographically and in other ways, in a force which is contributing a great deal at this time to the bonding up of confidence and good will. The International Air Transport Association, which has seventy members representing, in forty countries, is now attempting to standardize air transport throughout the world and to establish high standards of safety, efficiency, speed and economy.

High Degree Of Uniformity

Member companies of the organization carry most of the world's air traffic over 500,000 miles of routes and employ more than half a million men and women. They give indirect employment to millions more. A recent article telling of the work of the Association, says, in part, "In a world that speaks many languages and uses many different systems of weights and measurement, the International Air Transport Association is the airlines' answer to the imperative need for complete international understanding on all procedures, practices and devices used in their industry." As a result of their work, a high degree of uniformity on many matters has already been achieved.

Possible On Wider Scale

The interest of the Association in safety is demonstrated by the fact that there is exchange of information between the various companies on accidents and near-accidents, in the hope of increasing the safety of air travel throughout the world. The scope of the work which is being done, and the success with which efforts at establishing co-operation in matters related to air travel have been met, are encouraging signs for those who hope for lasting world peace. The many difficulties which must be overcome and the many differences in practice between nations which must be brought in one standard, show that there are ways of bringing about agreement and understanding and indicate that what is being achieved in the matter of air travel may well be possible on a much wider scale.

Children Had Fun While It Lasted

PITTSBURGH, Oct. When 4 and 5½ bills fluttered on Pittsburgh's sidewalks pedestrians found the currency was being right in the hands by two small children in an automobile.

District Boss, local grocer and father of the children, said that his Saturday's receipts in the glove compartment and drove to the bank to deposit the money. When he stopped off on the way, the money popped out the compartment and started scattering bills. He says he's still missing $20.

New Flagstaff Now On Tower Of London

LONDON: The Tower of London's new flagstaff, cut from a Douglas fir believed to be 300 years old, was brought into service recently, where it took the place of the staff which had stood on the White Tower from 1490 till 1945.

The new flagstaff is a gift from British Columbia. When cut the tree was 156 feet long. The Standard and which called flagstaff measures 85 feet, about 70 feet of which is embedded in the roof.

Queer Reactions To First Broadcasts

NEW YORK What radio broadcasting broke upon a startled world, the wonder and amazement with which the marvelous new invention was received was not unmixed with superstitious fear and dread says the Wall Street Journal. An examination of the early history of pioneer radio stations reveal some amazing human reactions.

I never had lightning knock bricks off my chimney before," an early set-owner complained to the radio station. "What do you think I am, anyway? While another man's wife heard queer noises in the fireplace, and had "hysterics". One woman said the radio waves played over her bed springs and kept her from going to sleep. In fear and trembling, she cut up so hours.

The point story, however, concerned a widow, who was visited by a ghost of her late husband while she listened to the radio. She hoped he would return again, but when he did not, she wrote the radio station: "He didn't possess any aptitude in mechanical matters when he was living—Do you suppose he could have gotten on the wrong wave and been switched somewhere?"

It took Abraham Lincoln only two minutes and 15 seconds to deliver the Gettysburg address.

SHEEP FEEDING RACK

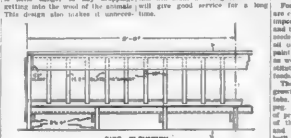
WASTE of feed through tramping long when feeding sheep can be easily avoided by using a well designed feeding rack. The accompanying drawing describes a sheep feeding rack of the portable type which provides a rack for hay and trough for grain. It may be built any convenient length, but units 12 to 16 feet long are most satisfactory.

Since the bottom of the hay rack is raised 15 inches off the floor there is little danger of hay dropping and getting into the wool of the animals. This design also makes it unnecessary for the sheep to get their heads through the spaces between the slats of the rack, instead the tendency is for the animals to pull the hay from the rack.

The legs are made of 2x4 inch scantlings as are also the cross members supporting the troughs and hay rack. The bottom of the rack is supported on two pieces of 2 by 6 inch plank, which, in turn, rest on the cross members. If good material is used and all joints are well nailed this will make a strong rack which will give good service for a long time.



This simple sheep feeder is not difficult to construct and will do the job for a long time because of rugged design.

Ample Sport For Hunters In New Law To Safeguard Birds

OTTAWA Annual rules aimed at saving hunters their fun—the ducks and geese a fighting chance—have been announced by the government.

The 3,000-word regulations the result of months of negotiations with the provinces and the United States, detail dates, bag limits and firearms restrictions.

They are the official code of honor for the hundreds of canvas-coated Canadians who take to the wide-open spaces each Autumn in search of migratory birds.

In general, the new rules leave open season dates and bag limits pretty much as they were last year, said Dr. H. F. Lewis of the Dominion Wildlife Service.

The daily limit for ducks in Eastern Canada is seven, compared with eight in the West. The Eastern season averages about a month during October and November, while Western Canada's season in some great gets under way early in September.

For the first time, no all-Canada "ceiling" of three-shells-at-a-loading has been put into force. But only Saskatchewan is going that far. In other provinces — at the request of provincial authorities—the "ceiling" is one or two shells at a loading.

Must Fix Guns

This means that automatic and pump guns must be plugged or altered in some way so that they hold only the number of shells permitted by the individual province.

Although most rules are substantially the same as last year's Dr. Lewis said in an interview, "there are changes in details in most parts of the country."

Hunters should study the regulations for their particular districts to be up to date on these changes."

Another new rule is the reduction from 15 to 10 in the "possession limit" for geese of all kinds. This includes geese "in hand", in lockers, automobiles and hunting-camps. It does not apply in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, where geese are an important part of the natives' food supply.

Seasons and limits have been lengthened a bit in British Columbia and Alberta, where the duck population is somewhat better than in the other provinces. There are special new restrictions for the James Bay district, limiting the areas where non-residents may hunt.

Citation For World's Oldest Carrier Pigeon

WASHINGTON — Kaiser, oldest carrier pigeon in the world and a veteran of two world wars is getting a gold leg band and a citation.

The 30-year-old bird is retired now, but during the Second World War he helped train other carrier pigeons, some of them his great-great-great-great-grandchildren.

He's still wearing the aluminum leg band with the seal of the German imperial crown which Kaiser Wilhelm a army put on him as the First World War.

Hatched at Cologne, Germany, in February, 1917, he was captured in the Marne offensive and turned over to the signal corps as a prisoner of war. He's outlived more than a dozen wives.

Edible Oil Fields

Altona, Manitoba, Is The Leading Centre In Sunflower Growing

(By R D Macleary, in C-I-L Orbit)

SUCH varied items as a bottle of medicine, a can of paint, or a pound of shortening that housewives are likely to bring home from shopping tours may seem to have little relation to a field of bright yellow sunflowers. But there's a definite relationship, particularly to the fields in the Red River Valley of Manitoba where more and more farmers are making sunflowers their cash crop.

For Canadian grown sunflowers are coming to play a more and more important role in the goods we use and the food we eat. From sunflower seeds comes rich, edible vegetable oil used in the production of soap, paint varnish and certain medicines as well as bread, pastries, hard substitutes, salad dressing and other foods.

The leading centre in sunflower growing is the town of Altona, Manitoba, 70 miles southwest of Winnipeg. This will be the third big year of production for Altona. Residents of this little town of 1,200 people and surrounding communities have built their own processing plant which turns out 80,000 pounds of oil a week. When the Dominion Government encouraged farmers to grow more sunflowers, residents of Altona and district raised $180,000 in share capital and government-secured bonds among themselves for the project.

Importance of sunflowers to food supplies has been increased by the drop of lard production in Canada during recent years. In 1941, 130 million pounds were manufactured while in 1946 production had dropped to a mere 48 million.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture is behind this scheme to supply the country with more vegetable oil. Previously, Canada had imported most of her oil from Argentina where more than 1,000,000 acres of the plants are grown yearly. Before the war, not a single acre of sunflowers for oil was planted in Canada. Now, rich, edible oil flows from the Altona plant 24 hours a day into waiting railway tank cars.

Sunflowers are seeded in the first or second week of May and harvested toward the end of September. Harvesting is done by ordinary grain combine.

The elevator at the Altona plant has a capacity of 1,000,000 pounds of seeds and dries them at a rate of 6,000 pounds an hour. After leaving the trucks, the seeds are carried to the top of the elevator by an endless belt of small cups. At the top the cups dump the seeds onto a conveyor belt which distributes them to the various storage bins.

During processing the seeds are subjected to 310 degrees F. in the cooker. Oil is extracted from them here and is forced by steam pressure through filter presses. These consist of 22 separate plates of cast iron, woven canvas which removes all seed particles. Then the oil flows into cone-shaped outdoor tanks to await shipment.

Great care is taken to maintain the purity of the oil. A chemist checks its progress at all stages until the finished product flows clear and smooth into the storage tanks.

It is estimated that Canadians could use up to 50,000,000 pounds of vegetable oil a year. Production in Canada is only a fraction of that figure as yet, but the Altona venture is a step in the right direction.

FREAK PULLET—John Dunlop, young poultryman of Wales, Ontario, has a freak New Hampshire pullet with two extra legs protruding from the rear. He is shown holding the bird in the palm of his hand. The pullet runs with a breed of chickings out, from all appearances, is their mistress. Quite a knack is stirred up when the chickings take to the pond.

Princess Margaret Receives Legacy

BALMORAL, Scotland — Princess Margaret became the envy of teen-aged girls throughout the world when she celebrated her 18th birthday. This means she can now have a house of her own and a lady-in-waiting. She also comes into a $10,000 legacy.

With her coming of age, King George's vivacious, strong-willed younger daughter can decide just about everything for herself except the question of marriage. Her father or the head say in that and his consent reportedly is "no."

As she run downstairs to open her birthday presents, among the young persons waiting to greet her was the Marquess of Blandford, 22, reported by No. 1 on her long list of eligible bachelors.

Her coming of age brings her a $100,000 legacy left by Mrs. Margaret Greenville, a personal friend of Queen Elizabeth's. She has no personal income, however, as the King still has considerable control over her purse strings.

Dutch Immigrants Running Big Industry In California

PARAMOUNT, Calif. — "Shotgun" dairying, they call it, and it's big business for a colony of Dutch immigrants in this fast suburban district.

They [illegible] among other things and the cities wear out an entire herd in a year.

They supply more milk than any other county in the United States, yet they can't quite meet the needs of the Los Angeles metropolitan area alone.

This isn't farming. It's industry. The cows are in stalls and corrals, for there are no placed meadows. Land is too costly for alfalfa growing. Paved streets instead of country roads. Insect the even rows of houses and barns and the rumble of feed trucks is never stilled.

Forced feeding (the shotgun technique) consists simply of giving heavy all she'll eat of a rich diet—corn, linseed meal, cottonseed meal, hay.

This system has built up a milk production of 10,500,000 gallons a month and yields $61,000,000 annually to the dairymen. They have to produce as much milk as possible because feed is high. All of it is shipped in.

Copra, the dried and broken kernels of the coconut, comes from the Philippines. Plants at nearby San Pedro crush it, extract the oil and mail the residue for cattle feed.

Such is the streamlined activity of Paramount, Artesia, Clearwater, Bellflower and Norwalk. The Dutch, along with substantial numbers of Portuguese and Swiss, go about their dairying with no sentiment whatever. When their cows "burn out", they sell them for beef and buy fresh cows, for about $300 each.

The average dairyman has 100 cows on 10 acres or less. He expects each cow to produce 1,200 gallons a year. He can't afford to be sentimental.

The influx of the Dutch began after the Second World War. Charles Koopmans, who operates an insurance and travel agency in Paramount, estimates their present number at 20,000 or more, many of whom left Holland because of the effects of the war.

"Holland", he said, "is overpopulated. Those coming over now are largely relatives of Hollanders who have made money in the dairy business here and who can set them up with a piece of land and a string of cows. Since the majority are experienced dairymen, visas are easy to get."

In almost every respect they become Americanized rapidly, but know English before they come and the rest pick it up in six to eight months. They present an problem for the schools.

As workers, they are unexcelled. One-nearly-arrived family picked up the pails and mastered all the milk barns on their relative's dairy six hours after they got off the train. That's typical. When a newspaper photographer called on them that afternoon, they declined to pose. "There is work to do," the father said sternly. "We have no time for pictures." He and all the kids—10 of them—turned to their milking.

New Look Idea For Men Has One Merit

The new look for men is on its way, says a dispatch from Paris. The idea is that the vest should contrast vividly with the coat and pants. Colors suggested for vests are scarlet, cinnamon, lavender, pearl gray and bright yellow. We don't like the idea of going around like peacocks says the Windsor Star, but there is one merit in the new look idea. A vest, which generally is not good as new when pants and coat are done, could be worn indefinitely if there ought to be some room for a crack about vested interests but we can't think of it.

Few Willing To Quit Work At Fifty-Five

MINNEAPOLIS.—Father may be getting on in years but he isn't ready to retire yet.

He has reached the age of 55 and he's fairly well fixed financially. But he likes his job, still working and he is the sun. He wants to keep right on the job as long as he can.

Two out of every three persons who answered a poll taken by the Minneapolis Life Insurance Company said they want to keep the nose to the grindstone.

The company asked more than 3,100 policyholders the following question:

"If you knew right now that you would be financially able to retire when you reach age 55 or 60, how many days of fishing and hunting, with a little gardening or golf thrown in to break up the day would you like?"

Becomes A Habit

It appears that the longer one works the longer he wants to work. Only 28 per cent, of those now under 50 wanted to continue work after reaching retirement age while more than 37 per cent. of those past 60 voted for keep right on going as long as they could.

A factory foreman added a little note to his answer and it showed how most people feel about retirement. He said:

"When I'm not able to hobble around the plant any longer, I'll get me a stool and run the freight elevator. I'd go crazy with nothing to do."

First Discovery Of Oil In North America

CUBA, N.Y.—This year marks the 324st anniversary of the finding of an oil well in North America.

The first written record of petroleum's discovery on this continent, seven years after the Pilgrims landed in New England, mentions the Cuba Lake oil spring.

A Franciscan missionary discovered and recorded the then mysterious "pool which could be not afire", as it was described by the Seneca Indians.

Friar Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a missionary from France, visited the spring on July 18, 1627, and in a letter telling of his travels, mentioned discovering "a very good oil." He wrote that the Indians at first treated the sticky fluid with superstitious reverence. Later, they discovered its valuable medicinal properties and for many years it was found on the patent medicine shelves labeled "Seneca Oil".

Chemical Used During War Now Controls Weeds

OTTAWA.—One of the war's top secret weapons, the powerful chemical 2,4-D now is being used successfully in the control of weeds in lawns, grain crops.

An agricultural department spokesman said that, all other things being equal, western Canada's grain and cereal crops will probably soon show growth as a direct result of the use of 2,4-D.

It has revolutionized weed control methods in Canada as well as other countries, said Dr. R. O. Bibbey of the botany and plant pathology division of the department.

So specialized is the chemical certain crops are just as susceptible as certain weeds. But wheat, oats and rye—Canada's three big cereal crops —are wholly resistant to 2,4-D'y killing qualities, the spokesman said as resistant.

2,4-D is "very successful" in control of wild mustard and stinkweed, Dr. Bibbey said in an interview. Sprayed over the broad products, it makes quick work of the weeds but does virtual crops no harm.

"It is estimated 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 acres in western Canada were sprayed with 2,4-D this year.

This and related chemicals and their weed-control showings will be reviewed in Winnipeg Nov. 2-3 at the second western Canada weed control conference, Dr. Bibbey announced. He is chairman of the national weed committee, composed of provincial and federal officials, which sponsors the conference.

Because of the "two-fisted" type of attack — on food crops as well as on weeds — its application must be carefully controlled, he said.

Farmers now can purchase for 75 to 80 cents enough 2,4-D to spray an acre, Dr. Bibbey said. With sprayers available from $75 to $100, securing a big farm can use the powerful chemical at a cost of about $1 an acre.

What's Your Fancy?

First Canned Salmon Not Likely To Be Scarce

VANCOUVER.—The Fraser River's reduced salmon catch this year will not directly affect the supply of canned salmon available on the consumer market this winter, a Fisheries Department spokesman said.

"Salmon canned here for consumer sale is not all caught on the Fraser," he said.

Canned salmon production graces on the West Coast for August were up over the last two years, he said. Already this year 480,330 cases of 48 one-pound cans have been packed. This compared with 1947's 432,000 and 1946's 347,000 cases.

It was reported that the Fraser River catch this year would not reach its originally expected 1,000,000 fish.

DATE WITH A LADY

By WILL NEREB

JOHN opened her bedroom door and stood there watching her fix her hair. He shuffled his feet nervously, trying to get up enough nerve to tell her.

"Mary," he stammered. She looked around at him curiously, her hairbrush poised in mid-stroke.

"What is it, John." She wrinkled her brow in worried concern. "You haven't been acting right all evening. Is there something that I can do?"

John looked at the ceiling as though he had never seen it before, spending half a minute examining the chandelier. Finally he looked at her almost pleadingly.

"Yes, there is." It was something to tell you, but turn the other way and go on with your hair."

Mary turned back to the mirror, and started running the brush over her sleek auburn hair again. John examined the ceiling some, and finally looked at the back of her dressing gown.

"Mary," he said, "I have something to tell you, as I said, and I don't know quite how to put it. You know as well as I that our marriage hasn't been going too well these last few months. I don't know what's wrong with us. Maybe just the monotony."

She glanced at his reflection in the mirror and watched him nervously scrape his right shoe back and forth across the rug. He didn't get on at once, so she said, "Yes, I know it hasn't been going too well."

He glanced at the reflection of her face in the mirror, then watched her back again.

He shifted nervously for a minute. "Well, whatever the cause is, it just isn't right. What I'm trying to say is that this evening I have a date — a date with a lady I know."

Mary didn't turn around. She sat watching his reflection in the mirror. Her shoulders sagged a little as she set both her hands on the dressing table top. "Is she anyone I know?" she asked.

"Yes," he stammered, "I'm afraid she is. I shan't tell you who, but you know her pretty well."

"It's been a long time since you've come out with another woman, hasn't it, John?" she asked wearily.

He shuffled his feet nervously again. "Yes, it has been a long time. I had a date for three years . . . since before we were married. I didn't realize how long it had been. I felt that I had been terribly unfair to my wife, and I don't see why I should keep it [illegible] just now."

Mary looked at the comb over her hair as she answered. "I think it was very kind of you, John, to tell me. I had the same problem . . . I have a date tonight, too."

He stopped shuffling his feet and stared at her. "You have a date tonight, too?" Then he seemed to say a little. "I hope you'll have a wonderful time."

She smiled at herself in the mirror. "I'm sure I will. You see, everything I admire in a man. She's handsome, he's kind, he's a gentleman," her eyes seemed to sparkle, "he's wonderful!"

John turned away, and walked through the door into his dressing room. He got out his tuxedo, and spread it and his shirt, sox, and cuffs out on the bed. After a shower he slowly got dressed. His date wasn't until eight-thirty.

When he was dressed, he stopped by Mary's room to say goodnight. She had on her white evening dress, the one that she looked so beautiful in. She stopped trying to get her hair to stay up long enough to speak at him. "Where are you supposed to meet her, John?"

He tried to smile back, but was not very successful. "I'm meeting her in front of the bank at eight-thirty," he said. He glanced at himself in her mirror, and straightened his black tie.

"Where are you taking her?" she asked.

He looked down at the smoothness of the top of her head. "I don't know yet. I think that she would be decided on the spur of the moment, don't you?"

"Well, I guess it is more romantic," she said. "Oh, by the way, will you call me a taxi on your way out?"

He phoned for a cab and finished combing his hair, and then went out and got his overcoat from the closet. It would be a nice night for a drive in the country, so he put down the top before he started.

At eight-thirty he was standing in front of the bank and scuffing his shoe back and forth on the sidewalk as he waited for his date. Every few minutes he would glance up at the clock in front of the bank, then up the street toward the main part of town.

At eight-thirty-five he saw a figure approaching down the sidewalk. As she got closer he could tell it was his date . . . the girl he had been praising to Mary all night was the one that he would spend the rest of his life with.

As she came up he tipped his top hat in a gallant manner and said, smilingly, "I'm glad you're here, but then I would wait forever for you."

She smiled at him, and he could see that she loved him as much as he loved her. She slipped her arm in his coupe, and he and Mary got and drove away to an evening of romance.

RECIPES

CASSEROLE OF RICE AND MEAT

2 cups chopped cooked meat
1 tablespoon fat
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 egg
1 cup fine bread crumbs
2 cups cooked rice

Season the meat, mix with crumbs and beaten egg, and add small white rice to make mixture pack easily. Line a greased mold, or baking dish with 2 or 3 cups rice. Pack rice well and fill with meat cover with the remainder of the rice, cover tightly and steam or bake about 45 minutes. Remove from molds. Serve with tomato sauce.

DUTCH APPLE PUDDING

Four ounces flour
1 teaspoonful baking powder
2 ounces margarine
Half an egg (fresh or dried) apples
Sugar to taste
½ teaspoonful salt
½ teaspoonful ground cinnamon
1 gill household milk

Sieve flour, salt, sugar and baking powder into a basin, and rub in half the margarine. Beat egg, mix with milk, and add to the dry ingredients to make a stiff dough. Grease well over a greased fireproof dish, so that it is about ½ inch thick.

Peel, core and cut apples into eighths. Arrange in dish in neat, sharp edges downwards. Put the rest of the margarine in tiny pieces on top of the apple. Mix together about 2 teaspoonfuls sugar according to taste, with the ground cinnamon and sprinkle over the top of the apples. Then bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes, or until apples are tender. Serve with hot custard.

"NERVES" She Called It

Lonely, broken-hearted, she could not sleep — she never went out — she thought everything was wrong. Then a friend told her to try Dodd's Kidney Pills — but it was Kidneys—Not Nerves that were at her blood—stained kidneys. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and remove acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain diuretic, oils, and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore them to normal action.

SMALL NUMBER IN CANADA UNEMPLOYED

OTTAWA — Employment in Canada is being maintained at a high level, the Bureau of Statistics reported.

A survey conducted during the week ended last June 25 covered almost 3,000,000 Canadians had jobs. The survey figure was 4 946 000 of a total "working force" of 5,050 000 Thus 104,000 were out of work.

Statistics indicate total Canadian employment is growing at the rate of about 200 000 a year, the bureau said. Employment in the peacetime armed forces, however, is decreasing "seems to be relatively stable but there is a marked upward trend in the other regions."

Record Price Paid For Canadian Ram

SALT LAKE CITY — A small, black-faced Suffolk ram from Alberta brought $2,500 at the opening auction of the 33rd annual National Ram Sale. The high price was paid by Jay Lockhart, Midvale, Idaho, to P. J. Rack & Son of Drumheller, Alta.

* * *

J Melvon Jones, secretary of the National Suffolk Sheep Association, sponsor of the sale said that so far as he knew the price is the highest ever paid for a Suffolk ram.

The sale attracted more than 500 buyers and spectators from Canada, Britain and the United States.

Canada And U.S. To Share Military Data

WASHINGTON — James Forrestal, defence secretary, disclosed that the United States and Canada have agreed informally to exchange military information on a "broad general basis."

Forrestal recently returned from Ottawa where he conferred with Hon Brooke Claxton, Canada's minister of national defence.

He did not specify what types of military information would be exchanged. But his aides indicated that data on potential war production would get a top priority.

They said officials of both countries are discussing methods of allocating specific industrial tasks to each nation in the event of war. The purpose of this would be to prevent unwarranted surpluses of some materials and unnecessary shortages of others.

Forrestal said it is "too early" to say whether the informal U.S.-Canadian agreement will lead to a formal pact.

Discussions on a U.S.-Canadian war plan are continuing through the United States-Canadian joint defence board.

Forrestal's aides said that U.S.-Canadian conferees will discuss plans for standardizing rifles, machine rifles and artillery weapons of the two armies. At least, they have different calibers. American bullets do not fit Canadian weapons, and vice versa.

Defence officials said they were impressed by the "co-operative and positive attitude" of the Canadians in the preliminary conference. Among the subjects discussed, they said, was the status of U.S. air bases on Newfoundland, now held under a 99-year lease.

New Federal Labor Code Is Now Effective

OTTAWA — The Canada Gazette carried official notice that the federal labor code, passed at the last session of parliament, became effective Sept. 1.

The code, revising machinery for handling disputes in industry under dominion jurisdiction will embrace labor relations in such industries as railways, communications, shipping and other interprovincial activities.

The code will be administered by a 10-man Canada labor relations board, headed by Mr. Justice C. B. O'Connor of the Alberta supreme court.

Besides setting up machinery for handling disputes in federally-controlled industry, the code also makes provision for transferring industries from provincial to federal jurisdiction along with the charge slip.

DEFICIT HAS BEEN GREATLY REDUCED

OTTAWA — Canada's adverse trade balance with the United States dropped considerably during the first six months of this year when the value of the Dominion's foreign trade hit high level in terms of statistics reports.

The adverse balance for the half-year period was $236,950,000 compared with $446,000,000 in the corresponding period last year.

ST. MARK'S ANGLICAN CHURCH MOLDS HARVEST FESTIVAL

HARDISTY, Sept. 20.— The congregation of St. Mark's Anglican Church held their Harvest Festival Service with a record attendance.

The Church was attractively decorated with flowers and vegetables. Special music by local people, and added much to the colorful service.

The inspiring and appropriate message was delivered by the Rev W. Brooks, Rector.

Thanks go to everyone who made this a most successful occasion by their work and attendance.

W. I. TO SPONSOR TAG DAY FOR BLIND

Saturday, Sept. 25th is the day set aside for generous and sympathetic people to contribute to the welfare of those unfortunate who have been crippled by blindness. This annual appeal meets with generous response from the public at large for few indeed are those who have not a cent spot in their hearts for those who are handed to bear the burden of misfortune and cruelness of man.

At Sedgewick, members of the W. I. will canvass the residences, while a special delegation will be on the main street and Bassano section, all day Saturday, Sept. 25th. We urged to give generously.

Donations of $1 or over will be acknowledged by official receipt to be used for income tax purposes.

DISTRICT AG. TO BE LOCATED IN FLAGSTAFF

A great deal of satisfaction is being expressed by farmers as others in Flagstaff Municipality, o the announcement last week by the Hon. Mr. Ure, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, that Mr. L. D. Williams had been appointed as the District Agriculturist for the M. D. of Flagstaff.

For the past few years it had been felt that, while this territory was obtaining adequate service under the existing circumstances, that it was should be located in the vicinity and thus enable a closer contact to be maintained with his office.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of U' University of Alberta, and has been the assistant D. A. at Camrose under Mr. Wm. Molony. He is a veteran the recent war where he made quite a record for himself. Mrs. Williams was formerly Irene Rosencutt at Camrose and Vermilion.

The new appointee will be located at Sedgewick and headquarters in the M. D. Flagstaff Office on Main Street. It is expected that Mr. Williams will take over his new duties within the next fortnight.

M. D. FLAGSTAFF NO. 62

AN AMENDMENT TO THE MUNICIPAL BY-LAW.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THERE HAS BEEN INTRODUCED IN THE COUNCIL OF THE MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF FLAGSTAFF NO. 62, A By-LAW OF WHICH THE FOLLOWING IS A SYNOPSIS—

THAT under authority of Section 345 of the M. D. Act the Council enter into an agreement with certain Doctors to provide Medical and Surgical care to the residents of the certain portions of the Municipal District of Flagstaff No. 62, i.e. All that area of Flagstaff with the exception of Township 46, Ranges 19 to 25 inclusive.

THAT the monies to be expended for the purchases of this By-Law are to be raised by a levy upon all the assessable property in the certain portions as outlined.

THAT the levy for Medical and Surgical services shall not exceed 10 Mills.

THAT a payment of $7.50 will entitle any person who is not a ratepayer, but who resides in the Municipal District of Flagstaff No. 62 to all benefits of the Medical Scheme.

THAT this By-Law supercedes By-Law No. 2, 1944 for Medical Services and that this By-Law becomes law on the passing thereof.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. R.—

This week I have before me more work than I can ever hope to do, so this column will not contain much of my own editing. I have though, run across an article or two in the pamphlet "Industry" which I would like to set before you for your digestion.

Real Leader Speaks—

William E. Foster, head of the Commonwealth Party in the United States, summed up the whole Communist attitude towards industrial relations recently when he said:

"A program based on class peace would be a first-class disaster to the workers and the people generally as well as to our party The aims of the trade unions cannot be achieved by class collaboration, but by constant battle between capital and labour."

This is a pretty frank admission of the fact that Communism does not can be achieved by peaceful relations between labor and management, but only by continuous strife.

The Racine (Wis.) Journal-Times publishes a story about the workings of capitalism which needs no comment:

"Mary, a woman of fifteen generations, has been employed for nearly five years as help by day in the homes of several families. To one of these families she went when a baby came a trusted friend, whose help has smoothed many rough places in her life. Mary has saved, has invested some, by thrift and frugal living have managed to purchase a beautiful suburban home which pay to assets their future security. The employers, no longer needing their help at home, have sold it and have rented an apartment in Mary's building. Thus the 'capitalist' people are paying rent to the family of 'workers'."

To me it seems that it might be a good idea if someone would tell the Russian people about this.

BEE LORE

The honey harvest is now on, and those who have gone to the trouble to understand the requirements of the producers of nature's "Best of all Sweets" have been well rewarded. A few of our beekeepers have had poor results. Poor of being stung, and not knowing what to do or the proper time to do certain things in connection with colony management being the chief cause of failure.

Early estimates of this season's honey yields by Provincial fully the conservative reviewed by our local Apiarists that we have one of the best honey producing districts in Canada. Statistics show that Alberta for the past three seasons has a very substantial lead in production per colony over any other Province. Alberta's average yield of honey per colony for 1946-7-8 was 94 pounds Manitoba takes second place with 79 pounds, while Ontario with almost half the colonies of bees in the Dominion, has only an average of 46 lbs. The above figures should offer some encouragement to those beginners for the various reasons failed to get results. Beginners are easily confused and should not be asked to explore the inner country of Bee Lore in any haphazard fashion. Only those who have tried to digest a great volume of bee information in one year have any idea of how confusing all the new terms can be when all are unfamiliar. Realizing this, the writer of Bee Lore has, through your local paper, endeavored from time to time to assist beekeepers with timely information as to what to do and when. Our thanks to the Editor for this accompaniments of longevity.

DISTRICT AG.'S WEEKLY CORNER

(By W. A. Molony, District Ag.)

We are in receipt of an extended pedigree of a Holstein Bull that is entered in the Sedgewick Dairy Calf Club. His name is Colony Netherland's Perfection 34th. He was bred by the famous Colony farm and the Frame Farm, two of the outstanding Holstein Breeding establishments in B C. are using half-brothers of the above bull 'Irish' as senior herd sires. Apparently they are proving out. The sire of this bull has 39 daughters, with 34 records. Their average milk production is 17,086 pounds of milk, with an average of 3½ percent.

W. A. Molony

The Dam of this Bull is Colony Vi Irish Bessie Rolin. As a two year old she gave 16,634 Lbs of milk and 527 of butterfat.

I hope that all members of the Sedgewick Club at Sedgewick are take notice of this bull calf tion, and make the very best use of this sire in the district. We suggest that all his daughters will be retained for future breeding purposes, and we should have quite a few purebred cattle in the district as well.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bradley of Sedgewick Alberta announce the marriage of their daughter Adeline Adell, to Mr Alfred Victor Chadderton, youngest son of Mr and Mrs. W. Chadderton of Edmonton.

The wedding took place on the evening of September 16th at the Grace Lutheran Church, with the Rev. C. I. Klawer officiating.

Upon their return from an extended honeymoon, Mr and Mrs Chadderton will reside in Edmonton

JOYCE OLSOMSBERG HONORED

Last Thursday evening a group of 20 young people gathered at the S. Olsomberg home to bid farewell to Joyce who has accepted a position in Edmonton. The evening was spent in the form of a scavenger hunt, enjoyed and only by the girls but by a greater part of town residents. We wonder who the young man was who helped one group by cloud by giving them a lift down a back alley! Have you a copy of Kitty" was the most popular question of the night. After two hours of trudging down house to house Mrs. Martz came to our rescue by digging out a book with Three Little Kitsens in it. Thanks Sorry to have disturbed your sleep.

After a delicious lunch, Joyce was presented with an automatic electric toaster by the group and will be quite useful in those haunting days to follow.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Erickson are living on the farm for awhile with ing to get possession of the Jamieson home which they purchased lately.

A Successful Program

THREE YEARS AFTER THE END of the war it is possible to consider what progress has been made in solving the post-war problems, some of which appeared formidable as we approached the transition period from war to peace. One of these problems was that of rehabilitating the 1,000,000 Canadians who served in the armed forces and helping them to become established in civilian life. It is now believed that sufficient time has passed to survey the results of the rehabilitation program, and according to Walter S. Woods, Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs, the veterans have been no problem child, but normal, and a little above the average because of his varied experience.

Many Veterans Were Assisted

In a recent interview, Mr. Woods pointed out that great foresight was required, together with legislation and action" to achieve the satisfactory results from Canada's rehabilitation program which are evident today. The cost of the program has been $1,500,000,000, and it is safe to say has been used to establish veterans on the land, train, assist and to assist them to take vocational training or university courses. During the past three years $4,000 men have been established on the land, at a cost of $174,000,000. Those include 19,000 full-time farmers who are now working 3,300,000 acres of land. In addition, 70,000 veterans have received vocational training 53,000 have gone to universities and more than 60,000 have been set up in business with benefits or loans.

Housing Has Been Problem

The chief difficulty in the rehabilitation program has been the housing problem. While all sections of the population has been affected by the acute shortage of homes in Canada since the war, many veterans have been actually handicapped in successfully re-establishing themselves because of this problem. Otherwise Canada's re-establishment program is considered to be completed satisfactorily and successfully. The credit is due to the planning and administrative of the program, and to the fact that large expenditures were made, the greatest credit should be given to the veterans themselves for having taken advantage of the opportunities which were offered to them and for successfully readjusting themselves to civilian life. It is a hopeful sign for the future of our country that this great post war problem which might have presented many serious difficulties has progressed so satisfactorily.

Canada's Advance Lies Northward

Resources Minister Deeply Impressed With Development Of The Territories

OTTAWA - A 7,000-mile air journey has convinced Resources Minister MacKinnon that the route of Canada is a frame ins north.

The resources minister returned from a three-week tour of Alberta and the Northwest Territories deeply impressed with the tremendous strides the Dominion has made in the development of mineral resources.

The first time I went to Yellowknife" he said in an interview, "it was just a prospecting area. Nothing was developed and that is only 10 years ago.

"Today, the face of the Northwest Territories has changed. There are three gold mines in Yellowknife alone. In the Mackenzie River Territories will equal Ontario and Quebec in the amount of mineral production.

In Yellowknife, where there had been nothing but bare ground in 1938, Mr. MacKinnon saw strawberries and tomatoes.

"The agricultural season is short but intense," he added. "The climate also is severe, but it still hasn't kept some 4 000 persons from Yellowknife and the surrounding district.

At one of the three gold mines (Giant-Yellowknife), Mr. MacKinnon helped pour the first gold brick the company has produced.

"Within a matter of months, two other significant events will take place," he continued. "One will be the flow of hydro-electric power from the Snare river power project in the N.W.T. and the other will be the completion of the Grimshaw-Hay river road on the border of Alberta and the Territories.

"On these two projects alone the government is spending more than $7,000,000."

FISH BOWL NEARLY CAUSES A FIRE

CHAIR LIFT NEARING COMPLETION IN ROCKIES

The first chair lift in the Canadian Rockies is nearing completion in Banff National Park, Alta., being installed at Mount Norquay to convey skiers in winter and sightseers in summer 1,200 feet up the slope of the mountain from the site of the main ski lodge.

There will be a chalet at the top of the lift at which light refreshments will be served during the summer months. It is expected the lift will be ready for use in September.

Cloudy summers are relatively cool, while cloudy winters are relatively warm.

Beaver Moved To New Ground By Plane

Fifty beaver were flown 450 miles from Saskatchewan's Prince Albert National Park in a recent carefully timed transfer to Wood Buffalo Park, outside the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

A plane carried the beaver in box traps and distributed them among seven lakes throughout Wood Buffalo.

Beaver has become too numerous in Prince Albert Park, the resources department said in a statement in Wood Buffalo Park their numbers had been reduced by trapping.

The transfer of beaver has to be carried out swiftly and must be made in the month of August," the department said. "If an earlier attempt is made the beaver kits might be separated from their parents while still dependent upon them. If it is left until later, the beaver would have sufficient time to get ready for winter."

Mothers-in-Laws May Visit Canada

OTTAWA - A Dutch treat is in store for 1,000 young women.

They are Netherlands war brides of Canadian servicemen, and the treat is a mass visit by their parents — perhaps in 1950

Mrs. Annette Brunton of nearby Wrightville, who married a Canadian airman in The Netherlands, said the Canadian Holland Club in the Netherlands is sponsoring the idea

Club members are contributing regular amounts, with which they hope in a couple of years to be able to charter a ship to take the parents to Canada.

Paper Publishing Costs Soar

TORONTO. — Costs of publishing Canadian newspapers have increased more than 200 per cent. since 1941, the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association reports.

The CDNA was commenting on a New York report which said rising United States publishing costs were causing three-cent daily papers to disappear from households

Sixty per cent. of Canadian daily newspapers now charge five cents a copy. 27 7 charge four cents and 12 3 three cents, the association said.

First Aid Hints For SPRAINS AND STRAINS SPRAINS:
When, by sudden wrench or twist, the ligaments and the parts around a joint are stretched or torn, the joint is said to be sprained.
SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS:
1. Pain at the joint.
2. Inability to use the joint without increasing the pain.
3. Swelling and, later, discoloration.
TREATMENT:
1. Place the limb in the most comfortable position and prevent any movement.
2. Expose the joint and apply a firm bandage.
3. Wet the bandage with cold water and keep it wet.
4. When this ceases to give relief, take the bandage off and re-apply it.
In all doubtful cases treat as fracture.
STRAINS AND RUPTURED MUSCLES:
When, during severe exertion, muscles or tendons are over-stretched they are said to be strained; or, if they are actually torn, they are described as ruptured. A so-called strain in the groin (hernia) is an injury of a totally different nature.
SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS:
1. A sudden sharp pain at the seat of injury.
2. When the muscles of a limb are strained they may swell and cause severe cramp.
3. Further exertion is difficult or impossible; for example, if the strain has occurred in the back the patient may be unable to stand upright.
TREATMENT:
1. Place the patient in the most comfortable position, and afford support to the injured part.

The Fraser river salmon catch this year will not meet earlier expectations, fishermen predicted. A spokesman said the anticipated 1 000,000 salmon now will not likely exceed 800,000 to 700,000

When a baseball from the park across the street smashed her front window, Mrs. Blanche Sorensen objected. She got this advice from the ball players: "Move your house back —it's in the way."

All poultry meats and eggs sold off Canadian farms or consumed on the farms, including eggs produced by urban and rural dwellers were valued at more than $258 million in 1947. In 1946, the comparable figure was $201 million.

A British Overseas Airways Corporation Liberator recently was completed by the weather in climb 18,000 feet to contact an air tanker of Flight Refueling Limited. At this record height the plane took on 600 gallons of fuel

No Shortage Of Turkeys

OTTAWA. — Canada's supplies of turkeys are normal, officials of the agriculture department said.

They were commenting on a Washington report that turkey supplies in the United States will be scarce and prices higher during the November Thanksgiving season.

Canada now has about 3,500,000 pounds in storage, officials said, with new supplies expected to come on the market in quantity in late fall.

Canadians do not lean heavily to turkeys as the Thanksgiving dish, as in the U.S. Here, the big market is at Christmas.

Considerable quantities of turkey will be available for export to the U.S., it was stated, and some now are moving. Dressed birds are packed out in carload lots, and British Columbia and central Canada also are shipping out sizeable numbers of loose for hooking

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS
Harvest Thanks
By JANE DALE

My grateful heart sends forth to Thee
In words of deep humility,
A meed of thanks for gathered store
From field and tree safely once more.
May I abundant blessings share
With Thy poor people everywhere.
My grateful heart sends forth to Thee
A prayer for all humanity;
Remembrance of their care or creed,
May they from hunger soon be freed.
Upon them, Lord, Thy blessings pour
And give them too, abundant store.

Many of the editors attending the Alberta Weekly Newspaper convention recently held at Calgary took their wives and families with them, and while the men were in sessions tours were arranged for the ladies to some of Calgary's industrial plants, and from reports there were no "sorry ones" among them. The above picture was taken during a tour.

Metal Discovery Means Considerable Development In Peace River Area

EDMONTON — Discovery of substantial deposits of lead, zinc or other base metals in the Great Slave Lake area would mean considerable development to the Yellowknife and Peace River districts and northern British Columbia, Resources Minister Mackinnon said.

The two firms have removed a large area on the south shore of Great Slave Lake near Hay River, on which they propose to spend a large sum in the next three years.

Success of the program would mean the construction of a $10 smelter and extension of railway facilities, Mr. Mackinnon said. It would also lead to power development and would provide a market for coal deposits in the Peace River area and northern British Columbia.

Canada Second In Providing Haven For Displaced Persons

GENEVA.—Britain absorbed nearly three times more refugees and displaced persons during the last 12 months than any other country, the International Refugee Organization reported.

Of some 308,000 refugees resettled in new homes, Britain admitted 69 - 000. Canada was second with 23,344 persons admitted in the same period.

The refugees were mostly Poles, Russians, Yugoslavs, Balts and Germans. The resettled Germans were nearly all Jews or victims of Nazi persecution.

Refugees were resettled in 73 countries on five continents, but 77 per cent, went to only six countries. The total number cared for by I.R.O. dropped during the year from 784,000 to 500,000.

Belgium admitted 18,167, the United States 16,536, France 16,216, Argentina 12,163, Palestine 6,743, Venezuela 5,866, Australia 5,632, Brazil 5,091, The Netherlands 2,686, Paraguay 2,033, Sweden 1,945, Chile 1,472 and Peru 1,242.

More than $1 000 displaced persons were returned to their former homes, mostly in Eastern Europe, with nearly three-fifths going to Poland.

BOLT OF LIGHTNING HAD QUITE A SPREE

AUDUBON, N.J.—A bolt of lightning bounced crazily between two doors on the Audubon Hospital but injured no one. After striking a second-floor window, the bolt glanced off into a first-floor dot kitchen where it upset a pot of soup and knocked a spoon out of the hand of the woman who was stirring it.

Interviewed on his return from a visit to Yellowknife, Mr. Mackinnon said much would depend on the success of a recently-announced exploration program in the area by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada and Ventures Ltd.

Three Times Normal Number Of Graduates

About 1 000 men and women will graduate from the Agricultural Colleges of Canada in 1948. The Dominion Department of Labour points out that this number is more than three times as large as that which has been considered a normal graduation.

Employment authorities do not consider this too large a misinvestment in view of the expressed opinion regarding the various trends in employment of agricultural graduates.

A proportion of the students will take up farming, others will specialize in the sciences directly associated with agriculture, or will adopt teaching as a career. But industries such as those associated with handling and processing foods — meat packers, milk distributors, canners, cold storage plants—farm equipment manufacturers, seed merchants, and other industries allied with agriculture, are now making an increasing bid for the services of those with agricultural training

So You're Coming To Britain!

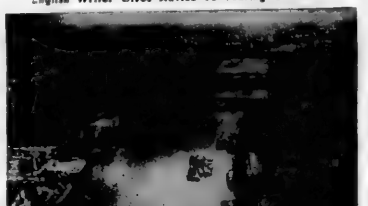
English Writer Gives Advice To Touring Canadians



London—That's three London Bridge in centre foreground. Mr. Punt's dome is upper centre right.

By LEMS CRAWTON
Central Press Canadian

LONDON Eng — There may be paradise in Heaven, but not in Britain if you are one of the lucky 100,000 who have secured passage for a joyous vacation to Britain you have many interesting days in store.

You are coming to a country which is still up to the neck in after-the-war effects, but a country which is steeped chock full of interest, tradition and kindly people.

Come prepared for some hardships, but do not get attention in the agency stories circulating about the hard times in Britain. Many of the stories are exaggerated as you will discover upon arrival over here.

Many of you will be coming to stay with friends. In that case, a word of advice — It will be appreciated by your friends if you would bring with you some food parcels to help out the food rations.

Also, there are probably some types of food you like which are not available in Britain at present. Bring your own cigarettes—They are very expensive here—about 60 cents for a pack.

The hotels in Britain are expecting you. Britain is prepared. The hotel situation in London is difficult but no more so than it is in Montreal or Vancouver in the months when the situation is not difficult at all. Besides, if you are planning in Britain and have plans to stay in a hotel then undoubtedly your reservations should have already been made.

As for the food and drinks in the hotels, these will be a trifle timid. In the larger hotels, meals are being specially prepared for tourists by the skilled chefs.

Small hotels in the country usually serve up good old English dishes, and a Scotch salmon, grilled herring, tender-fried Dover sole or roasted or broiled English mutton will bring a sigh of fastidious epicure.

I am not going to boost our coffee for We know we don't make it like you do but then perhaps, you will like our tea.

Hotel meals consist of three courses of which one is a main dish. The maximum price that may be charged for any meal in an hotel is approximately one dollar, but some hotels are permitted to make a house charge. This varies according to the hotel from 10 to 75 cents for luncheon, from 10 cents to $1.50 for dinner.

There are her sports as home rowing, cricket, yachting, and there are always the lochs of Scotland for relaxation, beauty and fishing. Take a hike along the moors of Scotland, have a relaxing walk near the famous cliffs of Dover.

For drama and music you are certainly coming to the right place. In Britain there is, this summer, something to suit everyone.

There is a Shakespeare Festival at place at Stratford-upon-Avon, birthplace of the dramatist. There is also a season of Shaw plays in Harrogate, the well-known spa in Yorkshire.

On Aug. 23 the International Festival of Music and Drama takes place in Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland. Symphony music will be played up and down the country by excellent orchestras.

For those of you wishing a quiet evening with a friend to the modest sum should be a dance orchestra, there are many ballrooms, some with good restaurants attached.

Travel in Britain is rather simple It is a little country compared with Canada and traveling from one end to the other can be done in one day

The Tourist board has a word of advice to offer—bring your own towels and soap because of the shortage of these commodities over here.

One writer who recently visited Britain that she found the conditions quite appalling. Well, the answer is simple. There are labor difficulties and at the present time there is a general reconditioning of railway stock which has had a rough time during the war

No visit to Britain would be complete without seeing many of the world famous buildings of historical interest. If you have as yet not obtained some literature from a travel bureau, I would advise you to get a booklet issued by the Travel Association entitled the British Isles. This is an excellent guide book to our famous structures.

You should also try to obtain copies of Calendar of Events—1948, booklet, giving dates and restaurants in the British Isles and the many well illustrated folders dealing with hiking, fishing, golf, racing, and so on, all issued by the Travel Association.

COUNTRY BOY GETS EVEN WITH CITY SLICKER

ATLANTA, Ga — A country boy from Tuscola, Ga., said he got even with a city slicker

Howard J Hackney traded his motorcycle for a two-wheeled-gallows-trailer for an automobile The stranger disappeared with the motorcycle and police soon arrested Hackney for possession of a stolen car

Hackney cleared himself, but he vowed he would track down the man who swindled him.

He and his wife figured their man would try to leave the state, so they began haunting bus stations in Jackson, Macon and Augusta.

When they failed to find the stranger, they decided to try Atlanta. Hackney searched the streets by day and at night he and his wife watched the bus terminal

On the third night Hackney spotted his man at the station.

He called police. They charged Cree H. Lester, 36, with suspicion of larceny of the auto and motorcycle.

New Industrial Importance For Manitoba

WINNIPEG — Manitoba, long considered by the rest of Canada as an expanse of prairie suited only to agriculture, soon may take its place as another but major province in an industrial way.

"There is not a single community in this province so barren in possibilities that at least one industrial plant could not be promoted with success," Hon. J. S. McDiarmid, minister of mines and natural resources, said.

All over the province, on a two-year survey, industrial opportunities of the province are being investigated by the bureau of industry and commerce.

Started in 1947, the survey covers 91 more than 70 towns and villages throughout the province. It is a "factual investigation of resources and possibilities," Mr. McDiarmid said

"It gives a true picture of conditions and possibilities of the various communities. For the first time there has been brought together in orderly form, up-to-date data which business men would need to sell."

Some of the survey's findings:

Since 1946, 35 per cent of the new industries established in Manitoba were located outside Greater Winnipeg

Industry in the province has grown from a $150,000,000 business employing 15,000 persons in 1939 to more than $450,000,000 in 1947 employing 30,000 persons.

372 MILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP FOR CANADA

OTTAWA. — Canada's wheat crop this year, at present estimate, looks like being 30 million bushels better than last year's, but almost 80 million bushels under the 1936-1947 average.

DBS put out an estimate of 372 million bushels. First estimate for prairie spring wheat is 340 million bushels, against 319 millions last year.

Guitar Inducement Fails To Keep Hired Help On Farm

MOOSE JAW, Sask. — Don Flett, 22, of Dunphie, Man., pleaded not guilty in R.C.M.P. court to a charge of theft of a guitar valued at $75. The guitar was purchased as an inducement to keep him down on the farm.

Complainant was F. David Sorenen, Briercrest farmer, who valued the instrument at $142.

Court was told Sorenen purchased the instrument as an inducement to keep Flett working. The hired man agreed to pay for it out of wages. However, the accused claimed it would have taken him too long to pay for it that way and he quit after working a week, to take employment at another farm. He said he intended to send the money to Sorenen later.

Vitamin Oil In Mixed Feeds Has Been Checked For Some Years

The vitamin fortification of commercial mixed feeds, especially poultry feeds, is common practice. It is important that vitamins be added in sufficient quantities to meet the needs of the animals or birds to be fed. But it is also important that the cost of the feeds is not increased unnecessarily through wasteful use of these costly vitamins. In order to produce economically, feeds which are nutritionally complete, manufacturers must therefore know the potency of the vitamin supplements they use.

For some years now the Plant Products Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which administers The Feeding Stuffs Act, has been checking the vitamin A and D guarantees made by manufacturers of feeding oils. Such oils are the most commonly used vitamin supplements.

When this work was started many discrepancies were found. Some firms met their guarantees fairly consistently, others were badly out at times. Most firms whose guarantees were low, were at times above as below their guarantees. This indicated that they were having difficulties in blending or testing.

The tests for these vitamins are very delicate and subject to wide errors, unless proper methods and precautions are used. Through direction and instruction it was possible to bring the testing methods of manufacturers into line, with the result that in recent years very few cases have been found where vitamin A and D guarantees on these feeding oils have not been met.

Thinks Gold Standard Still Best System

VANCOUVER. — A Canadian-born college teacher, now a knighted director of the Bank of England, said he thinks the gold standard still the best medium for world exchange.

Sir Edward Peacock was here inspecting the Hudson's Bay Co., store and the Canadian Pacific Railway facilities. He is a senior director of both organizations.

"Although international trade is scarcely functioning at all today and is terribly hampered by restrictions and regulations," he said, "gold is still the best standard of value.

"Gold has the confidence of the world . . . no matter how efficient new monetary theories might be, they won't work until they get the world's confidence— and that takes scores of years."

NATIVES HAVE MAINE PRODUCE IMPOSSIBLE

After 20 years of effort, French promoters have given up trying to grow silk in French Equatorial Africa. Mulberry trees were planted in the Ubangi district in 1930, and silk worms set in them. The trees thrived and so did the worms. But in 1941 the native workers left the plantation found that silk worms were a great delicacy. No amount of threats or bribes would stop their devouring this new dish. So the project has been abandoned.

Word "Buddy" Saved Veteran From Suicide

NEW YORK.—Here's how a word saved a man's life.

Veterans Joseph Cano received a telephone call at the Snyder Ave. police station in Brooklyn.

"I just wanted to let you know I'm going to commit suicide," a voice said.

"Why do a thing like that, Buddy?" Cano asked.

"What do you mean, 'Buddy'?" the voice asked. "Are you in the army, too."

"Sure," said Cano. "I was in the 65th Infantry."

"You were right beside us, then," the voice said, "I was with the Fourth Armored."

By that time other police had traced the call. A patrol car zipped toward Malta Avenue. So in a few more teeth still talking about the days with Patrolman Cano. He was taken to Kings County Hospital for observation.

Helpful Hints

When you use a dust mop, slide it over the floor without lifting it up, as you don't scatter the dust.

• • • •

Hang a bag of clothes pins on the line and you will find it easier to hang up the clothes to save yourself extra steps.

• • • •

You can get almost double the amount of juice from lemons and oranges by heating them before squeezing!

• • • •

Bed pillows may be washed without removing the feathers. Rip an opening along the bottom long in both ends to allow the air to circulate; otherwise the pillows will mat. Fix the opening together with safety pins, as you won't lose the feathers, and wash in lukewarm suds. When drying, shake well to restore the fluffiness to the feathers.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

NO FORTUNE WANTED

By MARTEN MELBURN

THEIR long, sleek red roadster turned into the gas station and stopped at the nearest pump Don Nichols, his face reprimed with grease and his hands black from using oily rags, strolled over to the car and leaned easily on the door.

"You look Miss Anderson?" he said, "I just filled your tank yesterday

"I thought I'd better have the oil checked," she replied primly.

He grinned and proceeded to check the oil—found it adequate He returned to the driver's door—she was sitting and said, I'm afraid there's nothing I can do for you today."

Thank you, Mr. Nichols."

She started to drive on. He shot a thousand feet behind to him and read softly "Dear, must we go on like this forever?" She placed a hand on his arm.

He grinned again, but with considerable of an effort. "You know how I feel about you, Elaine. But I won't work, and you know it."

"But why?" she cried. "Why won't you work? I've been done better."

"Certainly. Someone else has done it before. But I'm not built that way. When I make my pile it'll be my own—not something I've been donated."

She was on the verge of tears. "I can't help it if I've got money. It wasn't something I ordered. There's nothing I can do about it."

He softened suddenly "I know, Elaine—and I hate blaming you. I'm sorry about you but I can't see my way clear for doing anything about it. There'd always be that money between us. It's just one of those things, you'll have to be patient. I'll give anything if only I were penniless. Then you'd know my motives—you'd get millions I'd always have the feeling that people were referring to me as the man who married wealth, not as the man who married Elaine Anderson."

Must our lives be ruined by your pride," Elaine pleaded. "Through different and instruction it was possible to bring the testing methods of manufacturers into line, with the result that in recent years very few cases have been found where vitamin A and D guarantees on these feeding oils have not been met.

He felt, and fused, but better in the morning. It was an unhappy decision but he had made up his mind. He could not have Elaine and that was all there was to it.

It was after shaving, while he was examining his clean, shining face in the mirror, that the idea came to him. Of course, why hadn't he thought of it before? Suddenly life took on a rosy hue It might not work but there was no harm in trying. He rose to the station with a song on his lips

It was almost a week before Elaine showed up at the station. She had quite-your-boy sugar and was all smiles today Don hobnobbed in the rear with a cheery "Elaine" for her pains.

She said nothing, looked at him questioningly "Elaine," he said, "Will you marry me?"

Her face drooped. For a moment she could not find words. Then she leaned over and fell into forehead. "Are you sure you feel that it's right, Don?"

"Oh, I feel just fine, just fine." She closed her eyes and counted to ten, then opened them and asked, "How would you mind repeating what you just said—"

"I said, will you marry me?"

And all she could say was, "Oh, Don."

After the ceremony was over, they rode out into the country in Don's car It was evening and Elaine sighed happily of content. Justice of the peace had performed the ceremony, and that was put, knew about it

They parked by a little, curving stream, and Elaine whispered, "I'm so glad your pride didn't keep you from me."

"Yes, it would have been awful" "Marriage," she said, "is a partnership We're partners aren't we?"

Yes, indeed" His eyes were closed; he was drunk on the nearness of her. "Well," she persisted, "we're partners what you've got is mine, and what I've got is yours"

"Certainly"

"In that case, Elaine said, "We can open a string of gasoline stations from here to the coast"

"No, no—can't"

Elaine looked up at him "Why not?"

Because we haven't enough money

"I do"

"I'm," he interrupted, "Have nothing."

"What do you mean?"

He took a deep breath. This was it "I knew," he said, "That if I went to your father looking like a gentleman, he might consent to our marriage So I went to see him immediately after a tough day at the station My face was dirty, my hands were filthy my dreams were torn. I looked a mess I told him I was broke and jobless

"You do, he said, and I'll cut her off without a cent. So there you are—if you're cut off without a cent"

For a long time nothing Then she snuggled close to him "Good old dad," she breathed, "I guess I'll just have to get along on gasoline stations the hard way."

FRIED TOMATOES

Slice firm unpeeled tomatoes. Dip in flour in which salt and pepper have been added. Fry to a light brown on both sides; about 3 to 4 slices at a time, taking care not to break them. Remove from pan, pour in top milk and let come to a boil. Pour over tomatoes. Usually enough flour is left in pan to slightly thicken cream.

BROWN BETTY

2 tablespoons melted butter
2 cups loosely packed bread crumbs
4 sliced or chopped apples
Grating from lemon or orange rind
Juice of 1 orange or enough water to make ½ cup liquid
½ cup sugar

Put the buttered crumbs into a baking dish in alternative layers with the apples, making the last layer of crumbs, and sprinkle each layer of apples with the fruit juice, water and sugar Bake 1 hour, cover the dish the first half of cooking. Serve with hard sauce or cream. Pineapple can be used the same way, using pineapple juice for liquid.

TO LIVE OFF LAND ARMED WITH BOWIE

VICTORIA — Three modern adherents to the Robin Hood tradition are set to embark on a trans-Canada jeep-and-trailer trip.

Armed with bows and arrows, the trio, Maurice Charles, his wife Nikki, and Leo B. Therrien, all of San Francisco, plan to live off game as much as possible, with the occasional bit of bounty money for the scalp of a predatory animal.

"We want to prove that people can live off the land as they did in the days of Robin Hood," Charles said.

Manitoba's Sunflower Crop

Part of Southern Manitoba's 31,000 acres of sunflowers; at midsummer growth was good.

Sunflower acreage in Manitoba is on the increase and incidentally, costs acreage has decreased, which may be due to better rainfall in the southwestern part of the province where the sunflowers and corn are mainly grown. Corn can stand more drought than sunflowers. Increase in sunflowers is also influenced by general prosperity and good prices for oil, and the operation of an oil extraction plant at Altona. However, besides varieties are available. Last surveys on the Southern Manitoba crop indicate there are approximately 31,000 acres in sunflowers as compared to 23,000 in 1947.

No Shortage Of Butter In Northland

CHURCHILL, Man — While the rest of Canada wonders which—if either—side its bread will be buttered on, Eskimos as far northern Baffin Island have butter to barter.

The word "butter" here means seal blubber.

Eskimo families numbering 40 or so, who wandered on Salisbury Island salvaged large supplies of both butter and coffee which drifted ashore from the Hudson's Bay company ship Nascopie, wrecked last summer off Cape Dorset

Employees of the department of transport, stationed at Nottingham, were short of the two commodities and gladly entered into trade with the Eskimos.

They had plenty of tea and that was fine with the Eskimos.

Rush In Alaska For Uranium

$18,000 Bonus Offered To Prospector Locating A Sizeable Deposit

ANCHORAGE, Alaska.— A $18,000 bonus offered by the Atomic Energy Commission to any prospector locating a sizable deposit of uranium has started Alaska's biggest "stampede" since the gold rush days of '98.

Prospectors roaming Alaska's wilderness have discarded their gold pans and picked miners' hats. They're using the lure for signs of rock-coating, uranium-bearing gold and other uranium-bearing minerals.

It is thought, in the uranium area has been besieged by prospectors seeking information on uranium. He said pamphlets prepared by the AEC giving methods of locating and recognizing minerals containing uranium are being distributed.

"The prospectors are hitting for the hills in great numbers, but they aren't looking for gold," he said. "With the price fixed and production costs soaring, you can't make gold mining pay.

"But a uranium strike would certainly pay. In addition to the bonus the government is guaranteeing minimum prices and even paying transportation costs of the mineral in some cases.

Stewart said he expected the rush to hit full swing this summer when all prospectors will have assembled the necessary gear and climbed up on methods of locating uranium.

The prospectors and uranium bearing minerals in the territory but we don't know how large the deposits may be, he said.

If uranium is found in large quantities, future generations of Alaskans may reminisce on the uranium rush days of '48."

Now is the time to vaccinate your calves against Blang's Disease. If you have made use of the Dept. policy before, ask your local Vet for serum. If you have not vaccinated your calves before, ask our office for application forms which, when completed, are sent to Edmonton. The Alberta Dept. of Agriculture supplies vaccine to local Vets. As cases of prevention is better than a cure, no matter how an owner elects to vaccinate your calves soon.

During the summer there were many observations made that the poor growing season of the past year would be followed by very well. Farmers on the land will be worked last fall will have an early start this spring. Those who had to kill off the weeds this spring found that they were in an early. Now the word possible. Now is the time the land should be worked and the time to land should be worked and the time to land should be worked and the time to

Security For The Farmer

DURING THE PAST FEW YEARS Canada has enjoyed a period of unprecedented prosperity. Industrial expansion has taken place on a very large scale and incomes have risen rapidly in that field. It is interesting to know that agriculture has likewise prospered during this period and that farm incomes have also risen, enabling many farmers to substantially improve their financial positions. It has been an accepted fact, in the past, that as a whole farmers did not receive a large share of the national income and it is gratifying to learn that this is no longer the case. That increased farm income is being wisely used is demonstrated by figures which have been made public by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, showing the reductions which have been made in farm debts in the past few years.

Debt Reduced On Prairies

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has reported that in 1946 the number of farms on which there were mortgages or debts on lands or buildings was reduced by 42 per cent. Mortgage debts on buildings and lands in the prairie provinces in 1941 amounted to $178,102,000. In 1946 this figure had dropped to $98,444,000 which was 55.3 per cent. below the total for 1941. The report showed that the greatest drop had taken place in Saskatchewan. In the same period, agreements for sale debts in the prairie provinces dropped from $123,393,000 to $80,043,000 or by been per cent. In this case, the reduction in Alberta was greater than in either Saskatchewan or Manitoba.

Living Costs Have Risen

While debts on lands and buildings have been substantially reduced the farmer like all other citizens has had to contend with rising operating and living costs. In April of this year the index covering the farmer's operating and living costs had risen to the record level of 183.2 with costs in the years 1935 to 1939 as a basis of 100. Farm machinery was one of the first articles from which price controls were lifted and there have been prices also for taxes, wages for farm help clothing and many other things. Farm income in the first quarter of 1946 was 344,562,000 more than in the same period in 1941 and $150,617,000 more than in the first three months of 1940. While they have had to meet rising costs, it is gratifying to know that farmers have taken advantage of the present period of prosperity to substantially decrease their debts and thus increase their present and future security.

RECIPES

BAKED TOMATOES WITH CHEESE

4 large tomatoes
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup grated soft cheese

Wash tomatoes, remove stems and cut crosswise. Place cut side up in baking pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Combine bakes with the melted butter and cheese and mix well. Put a small spoonful of mixture on each tomato half and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: Servings.

STUFFED POTATOES

Select medium-sized, smooth-skinned potatoes. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) until tender, about 45 minutes. Cut off top lengthwise; remove the potato with a spoon, taking care to leave shells unbroken. Mash the hot potato and add butter, cream or top milk and seasonings.

Fill shells with mixture, rounding the top. Place in a shallow pan and bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 20 minutes or until delicately browned.

BEARS IN MAINE ARE KEEPING UP TO DATE

AUGUSTA, Me. — The new bush law for bear hunters includes a trapping bag.

Game Warden Charles Harmon of Aroostook County reported to the state bush and game office here that he found a black bear that was carrying such a bag.

It contained a couple of dead trout and a hunk of bait. But I scared it so much it dropped the bag in flight.

Among other things, the bag contained a lipstick.

NEW GOLD DISCOVERIES

FARMER GOING TO GIVE SURPLUS CABBAGE TO RABBITS NEXT TIME

WILSON-BARRIE. If farmer Henry Bobbin can't find more surplus cabbages he's going to turn them over to the rabbits.

Bobbin recently found himself with 40 tons cabbages he couldn't market and so he offered them to the public.

No one showed up however, and Bobbin passed another appeal for take-in, saying that the cabbages would go to go to waste.

Then the crowds came.

Yesterday, Bobbin reported that every cabbage had been neatly picked up the 10,000 surplus cabbage left had disappeared with an additional 1,000 he had planned to send to market as well.

A BIG EAGLE

In a recent issue on the "World News in Pictures" page there was a picture of an eagle with the caption under it "Biggest Eagle Shot in Southern Ontario". The wing span of the bird was six feet four inches. This has brought a response from Howard Rusk, and the above picture shows an eagle that measured seven feet one inch from wing tip to wing tip it is held by two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Pasak of that district. Mrs. Pasak killed the eagle with the stick shown in the picture after it had eaten one of the chickens, and then got caught in the fence

Sees Canada As World Leader In Uranium Ore

OTTAWA Canadian scientists generally agree Canada is gradually overtaking the Belgian Congo as the world's greatest producer of uranium ore

One of these scientists is 47-year old Arvid Thomas who is in a unique position to know. As chief of the radio-activity division of the geological survey bureau, he coordinates between Ottawa and Eldorado—the government's vast uranium refinery in the Northwest Territories.

Returning from his fifth trip to Great Bear Lake, the uranium expert said he is fully satisfied Canada is "on the right road to a bright atomic future."

Thomson agrees with atomic energy control board scientists in Ottawa it is quite possible that Canada already has exceeded the Congo's known uranium production.

He is certain too that Canada is ahead of Russia in production of uranium ore

Canadian Pay Rolls Set Record

OTTAWA The pay envelope of Canada's industrial worker is at its fattest in seven years, reaching an all-time record now

Average weekly earnings of workers in eight leading industries were $40.19 on July 1 and the bureau of statistics reported that is a peak for the seven years in which the bureau has been recording payrolls.

The new figure represented an increase from $40.02 at June 1 and from $36.15 a year previously.

The payroll average was computed from industries' tabulation of figures in eight leading industries—manufacturing logging, communications, transportation, construction, trade, mining and services such as hotels and laundries.

In manufacturing, the weekly average payroll at July 1 was $44.26, compared with $40.63 at June 1 and $36.47 a year previously.

PEACE RIVER SETS NEW GRAIN RECORD

EDMONTON Records were broken for grain shipments from the Peace River district in the crop year ended July 31, with an aggregate movement of 50,000,000 bushels, an increase of 500,000 bushels over the record of the previous year.

Half of the total during the past year were made up of wheat, the remainder comprising oats, barley, rye and flax. In store in country elevators at the end of the crop year were 650,000 bushels of various grains, against one million bushels a year before.

With an ever-increasing amount of grain from this rich northern Alberta district, elevator companies launched an expansion program last year. New elevators were opened at High Prairie, Wabasg, Grimshaw and Hines Creek, in the B.C. Block

DORMITORY NEWS

Hello Everybody. The Dormitory is in operation again, with a staff of three. Mr. and Mrs Schulte are with us again, and a new member has been added, Mrs Elizabeth Crawford who is the new cook. There are 51 students, a few more than last year They came from a wide range too Yes all the way from Provost. That sounds promising does it not? There should be some real chimy news this term. Before we start however we would all like to say hello again to all our old readers. We are glad to be back with you.

It seems that this year our Ellen hasn't changed a bit. To be sure she is back in that same old rut and is ing the same old job. All the others are much the same too with one or two exceptions of course There is good old Bob A who has become a real lady killer He has a bit different conception of this though Bob than the rules are telling him

You never saw such kids as some of these new ones in the Dorm are There is Eleonora Blatz for instance She is no bigger than a minute, and consequently has acquired the nickname of Half Chick; but we also think that what of her there is now she should see some stretching before the way she gets around

Speaking of atomic energy, you should see some of these kids dance

Poor Richard, (Abe's Rich Thomas from Arelah) had a bit of bad luck with a banana peel We are all very anxious to see him take the tape off his chin, and see if there will be any bad scars or anything.

We are facing a real problem here now. It seems that the matter for the present year is settled and there won't another one to be found up for For the present we are getting water from the school but no one knows how long this will go on.

Well, no long tales. We will bring you up to date on our down doings each next week.

Tank for Cooling Milk

PROPER means of cooling milk are essential to the production of a first class product. It is desirable that milk be cooled quickly for best results, then kept cool until shipment. The health inspection services of most cities ask for the storage of 2½ to 3 cans of raw per cow where ordinary methods of farm cooling are used. It should be of particular interest to dairy farmers, therefore, that with a properly installed cooling tank a little more than a ton of ice is sufficient to cool 12 cans of milk per day during the hot warm months of the year all the cooling to be done with the ice. This takes care of 6,000 lbs of milk during the six months mentioned, which is considerably more than the average dairy cow will give during this period of time.

It would seem logical to said, therefore, why put up 2½ tons of ice per cow when 1½ tons will do? In an ordinary concrete tank about half of the ice put into it is wasted cooling the tool and air around the tank. If a tank is properly insulated, however, this loss is reduced to a comparatively small amount.

Freshly drawn milk has a temperature of about 96 degrees Fahrenheit and for best results it should be cooled to 50 degrees, or less, within two hours after milking. To extract the heat from a given quantity of warm milk it requires a definite amount of refrigeration, or stored cold, to absorb the heat. This refrigeration is supplied either by melting ice or by a refrigeration machine, usually driven by electricity. Recent studies of this problem have shown that to cool 100 lbs. of milk to a temperature of 45 degrees in two hours takes 1.3 kilowatt hours of electricity or 60 lbs of ice. Insulated tanks of course, are essential not only for economical cooling but also to secure the degree of cooling necessary for a first-class product.

The size of the tank needed will depend on the number of 8-gallon cans to be cooled at one time, plus the necessary cooling water and ice. To obtain the necessary capacity of refrigeration storage in the form of ice water there should be three times as much water in the tank as there is milk in the cans.

The tank should not be deeper than necessary to permit the cover to close over the tops of standard cans, as excessive depths only add to the labor of lifting the cans out, and the depth of water need not be greater than sufficient to reach the necks of the cans. The accompanying table gives the dimensions of several convenient sizes of tanks for different sizes of dairy units. It should be noted that a standard inside width of 2 ft. and a depth of 2½ ins. is used in all sizes, the variation being in the length only.

The important thing in the construction of an insulated tank of this kind, of course, the insulating material. A great deal of research work has gone into the development of the best forms of prepared insulation for this kind of milk-cooling tank. Not less than 3 inches of the material is advisable, and it should be made up either of corrugated cork sheeting such as is used in the construction of refrigerators, or of any of the wood pulp insulating boards now on the market. Sawdust cannot be used in the insulating material trade are preparing hermetically sealed sheets or cakes of this insulating material in shapes and sizes which fit the standard tanks with a minimum of cutting. It should be remembered that it is extremely important that these insulating packings remain permanently dry, because any insulating material here contained in the insulating value when it becomes impregnated with moisture.

In building one of these insulated tanks the best procedure is to lay the floor of the tank first, placing in position the drain pipe lug-clay with the fittings for the overflow pipe. When this is completed the insulating material is put in position both on the floor and in the side walls, first outside and inside forms for the walls of the tank are put in place and both walls poured at the same time.

As the concrete walls approach completion, anchor bolts for the wooden frame around the top of the tank and for the angle iron corner protectors for the front of the tank are placed in the concrete while it is still soft. The cover for the tank is made of a wooden frame filled with insulating material and the under side of it at least should be covered with galvanized iron to keep the insulating material dry.

Manitoba Bull Won High Honors At Argentine Show

BRANDON, Man. Facing some of the keenest competition the livestock world can produce, Otto Leader, a polled Hereford bull bred by Sheriff Malcolm M. McGregor, of Brandon, placed first in its class and won a reserve championship at the Great Palermo cattle show in the Argentine.

The bull was bred at the sheriff's farm in Brandon and sold at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto last year for $5,000 to Pereyra Ipsola, of Buenos Aires, one of the largest breeders of Hereford cattle in the Argentine. It was flown to the South American ranch last January.

At the Palermo show as many as 150 bulls are shown in one class and they represent the finest breeding stock in the world, making the herd win an outstanding achievement for Sheriff McGregor.

Adding to the achievement was the fact that the bull was the first polled Hereford to be taken into the Argentine and it was in competition with horned entries.

Sheriff McGregor, one of the most enthusiastic promotors of the polled Hereford breed in Manitoba, was informed of the win by cable. "I have always maintained that the breeding quality and individuality of the Hereford cattle right here in Manitoba is as good as you'll find any place in the world," he stated.

The Leader family was the first to import Hereford cattle into the Argentine in 1882 and have built up a tremendous herd in the intervening years. During his visit to the Royal Winter last year Pereyra Ipsola also bought a half sister of Otto Leader, and it was flown to the Argentine in the same plane.

Sheriff McGregor previously exported a polled Hereford bull to Australia and has received very favorable reports of its progress as well.

BIG RYE, FLAX CROPS

The combined output of fall and spring rye for Canada from the 1946 crop is estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at mid-August to be 26.3 million bushels, nearly double that of 1947. The Canadian flax crop on currently estimated is exceeded only by the 1922 crop which reached 22.4 million bushels.

A near-record 1946 Canadian flaxseed crop of 26 million bushels from 3.9 million seeded acres is also forecast. Last year the outturn was 12.3 million bushels while the largest harvest crop previously harvested in Canada was one of 28.1 million bushels in 1942.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

A Little Window

By JANE DALE

From a little window at the head of the stair
I see a part of the world out there.
Some twinkling stars and a neighbor's light,
Some shining water when the moon is bright.
Some tall dark trees against the sky
And miles of fields with harvest high.
I gaze out there when I go to bed.
It gives me a vision and fills my head
With lovelier views than my puny pen can
And gives me hope as I climb the stairs.
It shows me life will never be
Just four small walls if I can see
The beauty way the higher high
With one step closer every night.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

SMALLPOX PROTECTION STILL NECESSARY

The latest generation of Canadians know little or nothing of that once-dreaded disease, smallpox. There have been very few cases in recent years, and it is doubtful if many of the nation's physicians have actually seen an active case of what once was a scourge.

The reason for the disappearance of smallpox, of course, is vaccination — a proven immunizing process discovered and perfected by England's Dr Edward Jenner in 1796.

However while smallpox is now an almost forgotten disease, care should be taken that it does not break out again.

In a National Immunization Week" message to the nation the Health League of Canada states this once dread scourge can again become a menace if vaccination is neglected. Vaccination and re-vaccination procedures should be maintained because there is no natural immunity to smallpox.

Anyone who has not been vaccinated can contract the disease—vaccination is the only protection

Yellowknife Mine Pouring 240 Tons A Day

EDMONTON — The pouring of the first gold brick from the Giant Yellowknife Mine at Yellowknife brought to fruition 12 years of staking, financing and development that has run into millions of dollars.

Dr. Charles Camsell, former Canadian deputy minister of mines and resources, officiated at the pouring ceremony before some 60 federal and Alberta officials, mining, oil and aviation executives, service representatives and Edmonton and Yellowknife businessmen.

A. Ken Mair, Giant Yellowknife manager, presented the gold brick to Camsell and Resources Minister Mackinnon, who in turn presented it to W. C. Mennie, Ottawa, master of the mint.

At present, Giant Yellowknife is milling 240 tons a day. It is pouring bricks currently by means of milling, cyaniding and mercury amalgamation. Snare River power is coming on in the end of December. A roasting plant will begin operating in November.

The whole plant will be operating by Christmas and operating rate stepped up to 300 tons a day by early 1948. Later it will go up to 500 tons.

The mill is designed for eventual expansion of 1,000 tons daily capacity.

Hardy Little Holland Quietly Seeks to Reconstruct Industry, Better Economy

The sad and the new — A wistful 1946 model car shows little use of Holland's old and picturesque windmills. Though Holland strives for progress it will absolutely abandon neither its tulip gardens or windmills.

By PAUL A. SHINKMAN
Central Press Canadian

THE HAGUE, Holland — Wooden shoes, windmills, tulips and canals have been the mainstay of Holland's international relations long enough.

Now they are going to have to earn over and make room for more realistic, if less picturesque, international ties based upon political and economic industrial considerations.

That is the general opinion current in the Central Press correspondent by such active young figures in the Dutch government as J. van den Brojel, foreign office experts on the Marshall Plan, Max Wiengie of the ministry of economic affairs, and H. G. Hermans, political aide to Prime Minister Louis J. M. Beel.

The Dutch government has no desire to abandon or lose its great tourist industry which was shattered by the war. A quick look at the country reveals that the canals, the dikes the Zuyder Zee, and the national costume and dress are as picturesque as ever.

However, there is a new look in the picture" says Wiegins. The 10 million guilders which were transferred to loans and grants to the Netherlands under the Marshall Plan during the second quarter of 1948 were promptly the channels in the East Indies. Those funds are not being used to make handouts to the needy but to get people back to work.

The money Wiegins referred to here is used to reconstruct industries that previously had been destroyed or damaged by the war. Some of the money is also used to buy farm machinery and other necessities.

In other words the money going to the Marshall Plan countries is not an investment in our economy and industrialization.

Industrial Europe is rationalizing. Businesses that might barely be operated profitably under the pre-war economic conditions are now being reorganized so that the total economy is not interfered with. And that of the two or three strikes now the war — mostly in the machine industry — were settled by the government and the others were settled by the employers and workers themselves.

To the foreign observer the Dutch seem to be aware that this country gives a shape the most curious combination of elements of political nervousness that would has ever since the war. Within the short space of 10 days recently Holland saw the following march of events:

1. The nation marched to the polls for its general election every four years.

2. A slight shift in popular sentiment, mostly to the right, threw upon service minister at the resignation of the queen, the responsibility of forming a new cabinet.

3. The foreign ministers of the five western European nations congregating the Western Union, met in The Hague for a weighty conference on Berlin and, indirectly, Soviet Russia.

4. Crown Princess Juliana took her first big step as regent for her aging mother prior to her own coronation when she summoned Prime Minister Beel to form the new cabinet.

In virtually every democratic nation in the world this year, one of these important national developments would have found the press and radio blaring bulletins and "Extras" to the people, and many of the people themselves gathering in front of the palace and mansions to see the show.

However, in the Dutch capital the change seem has been treated with quiet casual interest, and the Dutchman and his wife have gone about their business without interruption — except for the half dozen breaks during the day for the indispensable dash to coffee.

The prime minister's aide H. G. Hermans — himself a journalist who has been invited to spend a year on the faculty of an American university smiled when I commented upon what seemed to be phlegmatic Dutch

New Cloth Stops Revolver Bullet

WASHINGTON — Standing 10 feet away, a Washington policeman plunked a 38 revolver bullet into a cloth target and blanked at what happened.

The bullet went about half way through, then fluttered out.

Hidden in policeman stared in disbelief, a chuckle arose from a spectator. Dr. Raymond Seymour of New Brunswick, N.J., knew the bullet-proof target was a new plastic material.

Earlier, Dr. Seymour had told the American Chemical Society the material is "stronger than steel" on a pound-for-pound basis.

He says it is a multi-layered "sandwich" of woven glass fabric and a resinous plastic material. It was a rather-inch thick.

Seaweed Industry Feasible At West Coast

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Research Council believes a "small-scale" kelp extraction and processing industry could be set up in this province.

In a progress report issued recently on research work which started in 1944, the council said that a number of help seaweed deposits are commercially available on the coastal waters and that the establishment of an "algin extraction" industry

Officials would not say what the yearly "small scale industry" would be dollars and cents.

But," they say, "it certainly would be a million dollar industry."

Algin, an extraction of kelp, is used to make ice cream, whipped cream, and many products more soft and elastic.

The research council found that the help found in coastal waters along the B.C. Mainland is of a higher quality than that found on the American west coastline.

At present, alginic acid, the kelp extract, is selling at approximately $1 a pound.

Infra-Red Rays Used in Protecting Produce From Frost

NEW YORK — The same infra-red rays that enabled snipers in the days of world war to see in the dark have been put to work protecting fruits and vegetables from frost.

Stoebergs, magazine of the American iron and steel institute, said the device using the rays could save $200,000,000 worth of crops annually.

As techniques for use of the machine develop, the publication said, scores or even two months may be added to the growing season for many crops.

Building Houses In Turkey Is A Furious Dusk To Dawn Scramble

ISTANBUL — In Turkey they say house rain from heaven. A new subway at Istanbul is called just that, goes boom, crash, or "houses from heaven". Like mushrooms, these houses grow from dusk to dawn. The Turks have their own magic to save housing shortages, a built-in loop-hole in the building code.

The code says any man can build a house if he has a building permit. The trouble comes in getting the permit. Officials in Turkey are particularly stingy because building materials, although unrationed, are needed for essential public projects.

So, if a Turk decides he materials on his post-war try cottage dream without the essential permit, maybe pathetic police are likely to tone it down.

The gimmick in the building code says that if the Turk manages to get a roof over his house by dusk the police catch up then he is inside the law. What's more, the police not only have to leave the house in peace, but also give the builder a permit to finish it.

Consequently there's a brand-new boom in black market housing.

It works this way:

The contractor finds a man who has been camping on the doorstep of the building authority begging a permit. He offers to furnish the house-needy man both the house and permit—for a price.

Then a skilled team of workmen go into action. They practically pre-fabricate the house. Every bit of lumber and material needed is measured and cut to size and then lined up and made ready for a building crew and a furious dusk to dawn scramble.

There is only one goal—the roof.

As soon as darkness falls, the workmen hang together as skeleton house. The roof is slapped on in a whirlwind of night-time hammering. Comes the dawn and the house-owner and contractor smile at the police.

City Of Edmonton Looking For Planning Experts

EDMONTON — With the northwest airport chief and Alaska Highway at its front door and Canada's No. 1 oilfield at its back, with 135,000 population — up 8,000 in the past year, and an $18 millions 1948 building program, Edmonton would like to know where it's going.

City council has adopted in principle plans for a complete civic survey by authorities on civic government and community planning, instructed Mayor Ainlay to name a three-man committee to find the experts.

They'll first job: examine the whole administrative organization, present physical conditions and development plans, and propose improvements.

Need for replanning was emphasized in a dispute this year in re-zoning property earmarked for a civic centre to permit construction of a $2 million hotel. Other demands and problems have since cropped up.

Edmonton's area of 63 square miles, ringed about before parking meters were decided upon as a new answer to downtown traffic difficulties; changing from street cars to buses now nearly completed; better transportation, street lights and help seem in fast-growing outskirts; the need for new schools, improving and extending bridges over the North Saskatchewan River, increasing water pressure, and even sewage tie control.

"KITTY" GETS HIS PEARLY FROM CIVIC PETTICOAT.

CORAL GABLES, Fla.—This city pays an old cat, named Kitty, $15 a year.

Kitty showed up at the city equipment yard eight years ago, minus a tail, but unprotested. Truman Smith explains, when rats and mice were about to take over the garage.

Kitty set about risking the place of vermin in exchange for milk and a place to raise a family.

She has had a yearly "appropriation" ever since. It's listed under the vague heading of "shop overhead." But don't let that fool you— it's milk for Kitty.

Smith continues that Kitty has completed about 16 broods of kittens since she has been around.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THIS IS LOVE

By ANNA E. WILSON

SWALLOWS, Andy said, reminded him of some humans, the way they built their nests of mud and hair and straw, high up in the eaves, trusting that the rain wouldn't wash them away or the wind blow through the rafters and send their pretty nestings tumbling down — the hard, yard floor among the ruins of the insecure home of careless parents had provided.

And yet, Andy reminded himself, watching the birds dip and circle and dart about, some swallows' nest have built well, deep, long nests for the swallows. He sighed, thanking of Chris and Chuny.

Chuny was tall, broad-shouldered, his face weathered and brown, and a kind, if slightly baffled smile. He had built his home up there on the cliff, slight proof and wind proof, and then he had married Chris and taken her to live in it. It was Chuny who reminded Andy of the swallows — there was something brave about her, and trusting, too trusting Chris skimmed through life just as the swallows skimmed the earth, never quite touching it, never quite a solid, human part of it.

"But Chris," he could hear Chuny explain patiently, "I can't put you down to look pretty and that ruffled dress makes your back look like a pigeon's in her first pantaloe, but we can't afford it."

But Chris hadn't heard him. "Look at the way the shirt flare out, Chuny."

"Chris, honey," Chuny's voice was roughened with love and worry. "I can't the fancy stuff on the outside for which I have you. Looking at you in your ruffled dress I see only three I shats with everyone like a pretty picture. But," Chuny frowned, trying to explain himself, "Sweety and self-respecting people have to do with themselves. I don't depend on you or you on me. We're two people, and we're going to stand on our own feet."

Chris' face went quiet suddenly and she went up to the bureau and picked up the picture of Chuny's mother. "Chris' the boy's voice was husky — how you in those old overalls, wear when you are weeding."

Chris was already turning up the hem of the ruffled dress and popping the pins into the pincushion. "I'll ford new dresses and all the pretty things that you want, honey," she told him, she worked for Mr. Marshall and lived with her sister. "I just couldn't stand it, Chuny, if you didn't and he fired now that Chris' home might come down on them and ruin them like the mud nests of the swallows.

But in spite of his fears and worries Chuny loved Chris so that his voice had a heartful tenderness as he tried to explain things again the day she bought the ruffled curtains.

"They're pretty, Chris," she did. "I'll say so in for the walls that you decided to move into town any time, but rent it, and then her twice was small with disappointment. "Chuny, don't you like it?"

"They're pretty, Chris, and no one-no, I keep the home prettier and cleaner than you but the old curtains were good yet and I was saving the money from the raises to pay the taxes I know," he said gently, seeing her incomprehension, "that you can see the curtains, Chris, and the taxes are just something you hear about. But Chris, darling, if you could only get the real value of things straightened out in your head — the surface things that are just for today like the curtains and the real deep things, like a home that's all our own — and a family. Things we've earned by our own planning and working. Oh, I know, Chris, that you couldn't do a mean or ungentle thing, but that makes it all the harder."

"It'll take something more than just talking, Chuny," Jim Christ brother, had been lounging on the veranda. "Chris just doesn't understand that anything terrible could happen to her Chris isn't a great egoist; but she can't realize that you love her for what she is and not just for looking pretty."

Chuny's young face was tense and lined with worry. "If we don't have money for the fall wheat we won't be able to make our payments and may be forced to give up the farm and Chris' loves it."

"I can't help out with the payments or with the taxes, Chuny, and I doubt it wouldn't matter for there would be something else tomorrow. It'll have to be something that you can drop into like that will reach Chris and make her see things your way."

And then Chris bought the pores boring and Chuny flung out of the house crying out at last in bitterness and frustration to "I love you, Chris, but you'll ruin us with your unconscious extravagance."

He was known for a long time that the old bayloader wasn't safe but he handled it recklessly until it jammed and then climbed up to examine the machinery. Jim found him on the barnyard floor where he had been thrown by the sudden cranking of the loader. He carried him in to Chris. Then raced his old car into town for the doctor.

The doctor was blunt. "A ruptured fracture of the hip. He'll have to spend a year in the hospital. I'm sorry, Jim, but I can see no other way in which he can be cured without crippling it. It'll cost a lot. Can Chuny afford it?"

"Chuny will go to the hospital," Chris cried wildly, seeing Chuny's fine strong body crippled and bent. "Won't he, Jim?"

Jim explained gently about the money for the rafters that had gone into curtains, the money for the wheat that had bought the porch swing and other furniture. "And, he finished, "Chuny doesn't own the farm as he can't mortgage it. He's still making payments."

Chris didn't cry for all she looked so. There was a vein of iron in her. She went out quietly and looked at the pretty pleats in the curtains, the fine curtains on the windows and at the new porch swing and then she went in to Chuny and took his hands, holding fast to his hard.

"Chuny," she told Dr Mcyers tiredly, "is going to the hospital for a year. He's going to have manager and X-rays and everything that he needs. Mr Dunlop likes this house so he'll pay a good rent for it. I can get my old job back with Mr Marshall, and I'll earn will keep Chuny in the hospital. Suddenly she clung to Chuny, and then she cried brokenly, "I've been like one of those swallows, building a nest carelessly and when the wind blew, it came tumbling down on me, but Chuny, you don't give up just because they're failed once, they build again." Her shoulders slipped for how the working wildly, her arms light about Chuny. "I'll just be there, Chuny. Our marriage isn't just skimming life. It's welded in pain and fire and misery. Oh, Chuny, Chuny this is love."

BEAVER PELT TEN SQUARE FEET SETS A RECORD

WINNIPEG — Hilmer Hanson who has a registered trapp line on the Hudson Bay Railway, has trapped what he believes is a record beaver pelt.

Game guardians call it an 82-inch pelt but their method of computation means that this is the combined length and breadth. It covers about ten square feet, which is more beaver in one piece than the Natural Resources Department ever saw before.

Seek To Rid Lignite Coal Of Water Content

SASKATOON — Experiments are being conducted at the University of Saskatchewan which are seeking to rid lignite coal of its 30 per cent water content.

Dr W. Graham, assistant professor in chemical engineering, is conducting the experiments in view of the fact Saskatchewan's coal fields at Estevan in the southern half of the province produce only one lignite coal.

In transportation excess weight of the water adds to cost. Drying by hot air causes coal to crumble badly will climb $1.50 to $1.75 a ton and would not give as satisfactory results as the present $1.25 a ton.

Coal miners' demands for higher wages.

Union trouble earlier this year in the Alberta mining fields.

All these make a bright side to the fuel picture. The official said that the Saskatchewan government and Mines have been noted and that the eastern provinces will benefit to a greater delivering the central provinces. A slight increase also is noted in the Alberta area.

These increases, said the official, coupled with unstrategic deliveries from the Pennsylvania fields will make for warmer homes in Canada this Winter.

Police Refuse Actor's Request

SASKATOON. — When Cameron Mitchell Hollywood actor, was fined $12.20 here for speeding, he asked police to send the "bill" to the American Automobile Association.

Officers said Mitchell explained: "We don't bother with such trivial things in Hollywood." Police declined to accede to his suggestion, and said they were not conducting a collection agency.

RATE WOMEN BETTER AT JUDGING HORSES

TORONTO — Take it from pretty Joan Pickard of Winnipeg women are better than men at judging horses.

Since more girls than boys take riding lessons it seems logical they should be more competent to judge horses, to which junior riders compete," said Miss Pickard, here to represent Manitoba in a junior horse judging competition.

Memorial Gates Dedicated At Consort

An event of lasting importance to people of Consort, Alta., and district was the recent opening and dedication of the Memorial Gateway at Lake Road Cemetery, at which a large crowd from the surrounding country attended. The picture above gives one an idea of the size and shape of the gateway, but it does not do justice to its fine workmanship and artistic beauty. The plaque, can be seen—on the right hand pillar and one on the left. The plaque on the right side reads: "Erected to the memory of the sons of Consort and district who made the supreme sacrifice in the cause of freedom, 1939-1945."

The Statement

"We are not before a beautiful memorial built of stone on a solid foundation, lasting we pray, as the memory of the men whose names are come to be known that memorial is the memory of those gallant sons of Consort who gave their lives that we might live. We, therefore, dedicate this Gateway to the glory of God in memory of those who died on the Field of Honour, and in honour of the living who served and came back to us. May the memory of these magnificent services be kept green and may the cause of freedom in which they fought be upheld in our hearts and minds and in those of succeeding generations.

In days to come let this Gateway be a symbol of the days of Freedom which shall arise out of the sacrificial efforts of those whose giving of themselves we commemorate today. Of those who made the supreme sacrifice

"They are not dead they shall not die while still Afterlove lives and memory fulfills
Its tasks of gratitude
Not theirs alone
The sculptured monument, the graven stone
The commonwealth of free men, the whole
Worldwide shall tell their noble sacrifice."

Canadians Again Warned To Go Easy On Coal, Fuel Oil

OTTAWA — A government authority has again warned Canadians that it will issue an official warning that Canadians are easy on coal and fuel oil supplies this Winter.

The spokesman said that although Canada's fuel picture looked brighter than a year ago struggle difficulties still persisted.

The Dominion, he said, still was unable to transport sufficient fuel oil and coal from United States points as the short navigation season to prevent the entire supply moving.

Steeper prices also appeared to be the order of the day, according to the spokesman said. Anthracite coal

South Saskatchewan Irrigation Project Proving Successful

(By Ken Liddell, in Regina Leader-Post)

SWIFT CURRENT — The Swift Current-Herbert irrigation project is trying out its first unit of long panels of ditch are beginning to find that as the quite a husky baby on their doorstep at Rush Lake and just now first use of water on private farms at Herbert, extreme eastern end of the project. And they say there was gratifying increase in acreage under the ditch and also in interest among farmers.

The situation was gratifying because while governments can put the schems in operation they can't make people use it. To use an agricultural crowd Waldeck and Rush Lake. The Rural Municipality of Excelsior at Rush Lake this year offered 15 lots of clear land, 20 acres, most irrigable, for $300 each, and D. Campbell, secretary-treasurer, reported that seven lots had been sold with inquiries about two others.

Building Restrictions

Mr. Campbell reported the council was pleased with this reception because it had been anticipated that the building restrictions would be a drawback to quick sales.

The lots are selling for $250 cash, balance in 10 years when title will be given, but the purchaser must agree to erect a $2,000 dwelling in five years and a windbreak of 500 trees.

Mr Campbell said the restrictions were a bit stiff but as the surveyed area would eventually become a virtual village adjacent to Rush Lake they were considered necessary to prevent speculation.

In addition, at Rush Lake, about 2,500 acres had been placed into irrigable parcels of 40 acres each. These will be offered to dry-land farmers for grazing feed. Preference will be given to veterans, then to farmers within the Rural Municipality of Excelsior, then to farmers outside the municipality

Interest In Feed

Mr Campbell said that interest in this municipality centred chiefly around larger irrigated plots for feed crops. As of grazing he said, the whole scheme will mean that the general economy of the municipality will be more assured as dry years hardest might not affect crops as far as stock is concerned.

At Waldeck, however, between Rush Lake and Swift Current and about 10 miles east of the latter point, the interest was chiefly in farmers within the Rural Municipality of Lacadena where to farmers outside the municipality

CANADIAN BACON POPULAR IN U.K.

Canadian bacon is well liked in the United Kingdom states the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

R. Logan Layton, of the Department, who is stationed in London to report on the quality of Canadian meat arriving in the United Kingdom, recently paid a visit to Wiltshire. The city is the distributing centre of foodstuffs for the densely populated port of England renowned the world over for its cotton spinning and weaving industries, and for its engineering, machinery and chemical factories.

Mr. Logan talked with butchers and meat dealers, wholesalers and retailers, and as a result of his enquiries reports that Canadian bacon is most popular. He states that representatives of the bacon trade drew his attention to the fact that retailers are more enthusiastic over Canadian bacon than ever before

HARDISTY COUPLE FETED ON GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

HARDISTY — Mr. and Mrs. Chas Jarvis were guests of honor at a social evening given at the Strome School on October 1st, the occasion being their Golden Wedding Anniversary. There was a large gathering of friends and neighbors and all report ed a very enjoyable evening.

During the evening the Misses Muriel Johnson and Eunice White and Mr. Virgie White sang several appropriate trios, including "The Anniversary Waltz." A mock wedding, with Lorraine and Laurel Goodwin as the bride and groom, attended by Eleanor and Gilbert Tillman was officiated at by Simone Goodrich.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis were presented with a lovely gold-colored Chen elle bedspread. They also received gifts of money from their son Floyd and their daughter, Mrs. J. Armstrong, also numerous gifts from their friends and relatives in P. S

A delicious lunch was served at midnight, with a three-tiered wedding cake highlighting this part of the entertainment Mr and Mrs Jarvis cut the cake Both the "bride and groom" also the "best man" and "maid" thanked their many friends for their gifts and for the lovely evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis were married in Harding County, Iowa, in 1898. Before coming to Alberta they lived in Oklahoma for eight years. Since 1906 they have lived south of Hardisty where they farmed. The couple has two children, Mrs. Goldie Armstrong of Vancouver Island and Mr. F. Jarvis of Hardisty. They also have four grandchildren.

RECENT BRIDE GIVEN SHOWER

LOUGHEED — Mrs. M. Reagon nard and Mrs. D. Y. Walmsley were joint hostesses at a shower in honor of Mrs. L. Robertson (nee Yvonne Phipps) on Friday evening at home of Mrs. Walmsley.

The guest of honor was presented with many lovely gifts contained under a very fast arrangement, after which she graciously thanked her many friends.

The hostesses served a delicious lunch, assisted by Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. George of Killam.

Mrs. Robertson left Friday evening to visit other friends in neighboring towns, after which she will join her husband in Edmonton and leave for her home at Ottawa.

THREE KILLAM POTATOES WEIGH SEVEN POUNDS

Just as one more clinching argument that Alberta and more especially the Killam district can produce with any area in Canada, your reporter was this week handed three potatoes by the Rev. W. Brooks, who in turn had gotten them from Mr. Wm. White of Killam, on whose ground the potato were grown.

The three potatoes were part of a collection crop the seed of which had been in the ground over winter The gather the three specimens weighed exactly seven pounds, with the largest one tipping the scale at 3 pounds and 12 ounces; the smaller was two pounds These beauties are now on display at the Community Press office where they are first class advertisements of the Killam district.

KILLAM UNITED W. M. S.

The WMS of the United Church met on Sept. 29th at the home of Mrs. M. York. Members answered the roll by giving thoughts on Temperance. The devotional was led by the president, Mrs Baker

The first chapter of the new study book "West of the Gorges" was ably presented by Mrs. H Wilson with the assistance of various members.

After the close of the meeting all enjoyed a delicious lunch.

NOTICE

All members of the Sedgewick Dairy Calf Club and any prospective members are urged to get their names and applications for calves in to Mr. Gerald Olson or Mr H. S. Hay, by October 15th, so that orders may be placed for calves.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. E.—

We are approaching the time o year when once again I feel it m duty to warn my readers against th dangers of fire This is the time o year when heating stoves and fu naces are being used and the dange of using these units without fir guards is far greater than at any other time. We have heard and seen a dangerous custom which should positively need mentioning. Now is a good time to replace burnt-out pipes and to thoroughly clean chimneys and stoves. Such care taken now is good insurance against the danger of a fire in mid-winter.

Now is a good time too, to make a decision not to leave small children at home alone during the months ahead when they must be kept at home. We have heard and seen a pretty busy life. If we were not in such a hurry all the time things like the above wouldn't take place. We know that the secret of successful buying is to have the money to pay Cash money talks and the secret of having cash money of course is to save regularly The secret of safe, trouble free saving, is Canada Savings Bonds More than a million Canadians know this because they now own Canada Bonds It is money safely put out of sight, and so conditioned We will not another chance to buy Canada Bonds this month and the best advise I can give you is to grasp the opportunity even if you must buy by instalments

* * * *

Just so you will know where I stand on world series baseball let me tell you that I picked Cleveland to be in there come the finals To be sure you don't think I did so after they copped the pennant, I am also predicting that Cleveland will win the world series way about four games to two That's cutting it very thin, but 'well' wait and see. Incase, though no bottom. I'm not that good and besides I'm just not a gambler' man.

* * * *

Now, just by way of easing away from this column for the current week, I would like to tell you a little story which I think most men will agree with (if they're married) It seems there was a man who attained the ripe old age of 100 years. On being asked by a reporter to what he'd attribute the main reason for his numerous years of living, he replied simply: "Well son, I got married when I was 21 years of age, and my wife and I decided that when ever we argued, the loser should go for a long walk. Son, I figger these 79 years of fresh air did me a mighty lot of good".

KILLAM SCHOOL DIVISION OPERATES 25 VAN ROUTES

(By Dr J. W Chalmers)

When the Killam School Division was organized in 1933, the only bus routes that it operated was from the Otto E. D. to Innisfail. For consi derable growth in van transportation in people was quite gradual. The organization of the Central High School at Sedgewick, about five years ago, provided a powerful stimulus with the organization of van routes for high school pupils from Killam and Sedgewick. Lougheed in In 1947 the school districts of Inwood, Strome Lougheed and Alsask followed Killam, Sedgewick and Hardisty into the division opening the way to large-scale centralization.

In the same year the two-room school at Morris was re-opened to provide education for children in the Morris District, and special arrangements were made to transport rural children to Hardisty and Provostina which towns are not part of Killam School Division. This year the trend to centralization was continued, and Galahad also became a school for divisional pupils.

Today the school division operates twenty-five van routes, including one to Hardisty, two to Lougheed, two to Sedgewick, four to Killam, one to Strome, two to Daysland, one to Holden, one to Galahad, four to Alsask, two to Morris, two to rural zone routes to hotels and three to Hardisty for high school pupils from Killam, Lougheed and Strome The two rural zone routes pertain to the Morris and Provostina areas. The other vehicles are owned by their drivers, who provide van service on a contract basis Two of these routes are operated by horse-drawn conveyances Pupils transported to Provostina attend the district school and are charged in fees approved by the Board of that district

The policy of centralization is now addressed second by sending educational pupils for many reasons, However, the main reason for its development in the Killam School Division has been the shortage of teachers in recent years, especially for rural schools. Thus in 1946 eighty-five rooms were operated by the schools that now form part of the School Division To-day that number has dropped to forty-five Of these forty-six are engaged in graded schools Many of them are married women who are willing to teach in their home school but would not find it possible to serve in rural schools at some distance from their homes Many others are experienced and able teachers who would have no trouble in finding long term schools outside the School Division, and are therefore not available for rural schools Actually the School Division were to operate all rooms that were operating when the Division was formed ten years ago, forty additional teachers would be required.

MRS. MARY POTTS CALLED BY DEATH AT NEVADA

Word was received by Mrs Jam Whaley on September 20th to t effect that her mother, Mrs. Potts, had passed away at her hom at Sparks, Nevada.

Mrs. Potts was well known here and in the Morris district where she has often visited her daughters, Mrs P Nixon and Mrs. James Whaley, and her passing will sadden the heart of the many who knew her.

We join with a large host of neighbors and friends in extending our sympathy to Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Whaley in the great loss they have suffered.

Progress In Science

THE PLACE OF RESEARCH IN THE national economy has become increasingly important. During the war, the value of research work was recognized in all countries and it was shown that well trained scientists, given adequate facilities and financial support, were able to make great contributions toward solving many of the most complex problems of the times. A notable example of this was the opening up of the great new industrial areas through a development which might not have taken place for many years had not scientists been given the resources and support to carry on intensive research work with the object of producing the atomic bomb.

* * * *

More Money Is Being Spent In Canada the need for research work in further ing the development of our peacetime economy has been recognized, and the amounts spent to provide for scientific research has been substantially increased. The Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction and Supply, recently announced that the Canadian government now spends more than ten times as much on research and scientific activity in 1946, the amount allotted to this work was $20,000,000 and in 1945-46 was $25,000,000. In 1938 only $2,000,000 was allowed for this purpose, showing the expansion which has taken place since that time. Of the $40,000,000 spent this year it is estimated that $24,000,000 will be used for research and development work, of which $6,000,000 will be spent on construction and purchase of equipment.

* * * *

Indications Of More Interest In his report Mr. Howe drew attention to the fact that during the last years of the war, research and other scientific work for military purposes was three or four times greater than that done for civilian purposes. Now however it is expected that two-thirds of the annual expenditures will be devoted to problems related to the country's peacetime economy. In addition to the work which is being done under the auspices of the Dominion government $5,000,000 is being spent by the governments of eight provinces for scientific work on matters which are within their own jurisdiction. The per capita expenditure for each province for this work is Ontario $2 cents Nova Scotia 43 cents, British Columbia 42 cents Prince Edward Island 27 cents New Brunswick 26 cents, Alberta 23 cents Saskatchewan 22 cents and Manitoba 16 cents. Quebec's expenditure was not announced. These reports indicate that support for scientific research and development in Canada is increasing and this will undoubtedly mean that there will be progress in agriculture, medicine, industry and other matters essential to the welfare of the nation.

Irrigation Dam To Be Built Near Medicine Hat

MEDICINE HAT E. L. Gray Regina, superintendent of water development for the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act confirmed reports that an irrigation dam will be built across Gros Ventre Creek, 40 miles southeast, to provide a greater water reserve for irrigation between Irricana, and Medicine Hat.

The dam estimated to cost between $20,000 and $25,000, will provide additional storage for 6 000 acre feet of water The dam will augment supplies in dry years through the Gros Ventre and Bow Creek canal which join near Irricana.

High Prices Force Vegetarians To Become Meat Eaters

VICTORIA Even vegetarians are having a hard time with the high cost of living.

They have joined the ranks of the meat eaters in high-price protests.

Fruit and vegetables today are three times higher than they were 10 years ago.

As an example said one grocer We used to sell carrots at five cents a bunch Now we sell a bunch of about a 15 cents The same thing is pretty well true of all fruits and vegetables

So there isn't much use of raising vegetarians if you plan to get away from the high cost of meats

German Girl Would Like To Come To Canada

VANCOUVER Gertrude Behring a pretty German girl now living at Varel in the British zone would like to come to Canada and start life anew

She finds life in Germany too grim and in a letter to friends here she said

Germany is like a poultry yard One person plucks the other I am sorry for saying so, but it is true

The new Deutsche-Mark means to much to live on Most of the people here have no work because the factories have no money to pay them and the shop-houses are full but we have no money to buy anything

Gertrude, 23 years old, is a good cook and a willing worker.

I know only one dream," she wrote "to go to another part of the world where I can buy the bread to live on."

NOTICE TO CITIZENS OF HARDISTY AND DISTRICT

At the request of the Hardisty Chamber of Commerce and numerous private businessmen and citizens, I was invited to attend a meeting at Hardisty to talk over the possibilities of my extending the COMMUNITY PRESS to cover Hardisty and District, by adding a Hardisty page to the paper. As a culmination of this meeting, I interviewed the businessmen to ascertain what the advertising response would be should such a step be taken. The answer is shown on this page, and was such that I deemed it possible to 'give it a whirl'.

This week sees the commencement of the Hardisty page in the COMMUNITY PRESS and it is our hope that the advertising response will warrant the continuance of the Press being circulated throughout Hardisty and district. It shall be my endeavor to make this page a 'homey' one containing what is of a local interest, and in this connection I ask for your cooperation in giving any news of interest to Mr. Barry Thorp or Miss Ivy Elmquist, Club Secretaries etc. are invited to publicize their activities in the news columns.

The Thorp brothers at the Post Office are acting as subscription agents and will be pleased to write you out a receipt for a new or renewal subscription. In the meantime the page will be circulated for one month as complimentary issues.

I shall invite your suggestions for improvement as well as your criticisms, with the hope that through them the page may become a better one for the readers.

Why FERGUSON PLOWS

When you use a Ferguson Plow, you don't depend on number of bottoms for penetration—the 3-point attachment to the tractor actually pulls the plow into the ground. The inverted power-wing bottom is paired by still another Ferguson feature, the automatic disc-cutting furrow. Each needs no adjustments to assure uniform furrow width.
Each of these plows is a unit with the tractor as you need no heavy frames, no wheels, no levers, no separate lifting devices. You lift, lower and adjust depth by finger Tip Control. There is a wide choice of genuine field-powered Ferguson Plow Bases to fit your soil conditions. Ask, or to show you these bases and to explain all advantages.

Boosted by large sales of new ships and vessels Canada's export trade jumped $14,300,000 during July to $288,800,000 against $280,000,000 in July, 1947, the bureau of statistics reported

EXPERIMENT—Some special crops are being harvested with small tractors just 15 miles from central London. The harvest is part of an experiment with reclaimed gravel land where thousands of tons of grain, potatoes, and other vegetables could be grown in hard-pressed Britain.

Recommends Insurance To Farmers For Crop Damage By Feeding Ducks

CALGARY — Insurance against damage to crops by feeding ducks, may become a federal responsibility if a report being prepared by Dr. Oliver Hewitt, Ottawa Dominion Wild Life Service inspector, is accepted.

After inspecting crop districts in the Calgary area, Dr. Hewitt reported that extensive damage has been done by ducks feeding off crops in the Blackie and Bragg Creek district and lighter damage around Strathmore. A heavy yield is anticipated this year.

Dr. Hewitt said in Calgary, following his inspection, that he would recommend that some form of federal insurance be available to recompense farmers against crop damage by feeding ducks.

A similar recommendation was passed at the annual meeting of the Alberta Fish and Game Association early this year. It urged that some form of insurance, similar to hail insurance, be paid farmers.

Dr. Hewitt said that if colder weather started freezing ponds in the north, the birds would be driven south earlier than usual and farmers could then expect heavy losses unless their crops were harvested.

Winter wheat and rye crops in the district east of High River were hard hit by the brunt of the attack. Crops lying in swath on the ground were providing feeding grounds for the ducks and farmers do not have the men to spare to go after the birds in an all out attack.

Honey Crop Up By 13 Per Cent.

OTTAWA. — The honey crop this year is estimated at 41,853,000 pounds, 13 per cent more than last year's and 17 per cent greater than the average for the five years prior to the war

A preliminary honey crop report says although the number of colonies has dropped this year from 800,700 to 661,700, the average yield is up from 63 pounds to 74½.

Estimated 1948 production, with last year's comparative figures in brackets:

Prince Edward Island, 70,000 (57,000) pounds; Nova Scotia, 138,000 (112,000); New Brunswick, 182,000 (142,000); Quebec, 4,235,000 (3,898,000); Ontario, 15,781,000 (12,296,000); Manitoba, 7,498,000 (6,180,000); Saskatchewan, 5,038,000 (6,232,000); Alberta, 7,980,000 (6,507,000); British Columbia, 845,000 (1,120,000).

MORE STRAW BALED FOR FODDER

SWIFT CURRENT. — There was more baled straw between Swift Current and Prince Albert this year than he had ever seen in his life before, L. M. Ogilvie, agriculture supervisor said after returning from a two weeks tour of the northern part of the province.

Mr. Ogilvie attributed this fact to the shortage of feed in many points in the province this year. In many cases he said the baling operation was completed the same day that the combining was done.

Mr. Ogilvie said that this indicated to him that farmers all the way north were aware of the fodder shortage, and were taking this means of putting up straw in as small a space as possible for the winter months. In this form it is easily shipped to other points in the province when additional straw is required.

Storing Vegetables For Winter

NOW is the time to think of storing away those surplus vegetables for the winter, or at least beginning to make preparation for their storage. It is useless to wait until the first cold weather is on you, then find no place ready to receive them. Storing vegetables are cheap now, it would not be a bad idea to buy some and put them away, providing the conditions in the cellar are favorable.

Select a suitable portion of the cellar. Board it off from the rest of the cellar. Cover the boards with felt paper. Do so on both sides of the partition and do a thorough job. Your object is to exclude the artificial heat from the furnace. Provide a false floor for part of this room. Nail a few slats on one of the walls. Build a few bins on one side of the room. Provide a few hooks in the ceiling. Order a load of builders' sand and store it in one of the bins. Provide a few old boxes and old bags.

The reasons for this advice are given in what follows:

CAUTIONS ABOUT STORING

Don't let the frost injure the crops before you take them into the cellar.

Don't bring them in while they are in a moist condition.

Don't sever roots with dump near if the cellar is hot. They will start to grow if you do. Rid them quickly, cool, dry or give away in preference.

Don't let cold winds dry out your potatoes. If you do a bitter taste will develop.

Don't try to store onions, squash or pumpkins in a cool cellar. They will keep better in the attic.

Don't forget to watch your storage room and sort out decayed specimens before the trouble spreads.

Don't forget that a thermometer is a good friend in a storage room. If it is impossible to provide a special storage place as suggested, select that part of the cellar furthest removed from the furnace where the greatest amount of air circulation takes place.

Oversize Eggs Causing Shippers Lot Of Trouble

WINNIPEG — Canadian hens are causing a lot of trouble by laying oversize eggs.

A. F. Darnell district inspector of poultry products for the Federal Department of Agriculture, said matters have reached the stage where poultry men are asked to use what they can do about raising hens that produce smaller eggs.

Thirty years ago eggs averaged 18 to 19 ounces a dozen. Breeding programs produced strains capable of laying eggs weighing anywhere from 24 to 26 ounces a dozen. Now, approximately seven per cent. of the eggs on the market weigh more than 26 ounces to a dozen.

Crates simply weren't able to cope with the expanded barnyard fruit. Mr. Darnell said that of every case sent overseas during the war, an average of one dozen eggs arrived cracked or broken because egg slots weren't large enough.

Manitoba producers got together and asked the federal government if the size of crates could be increased. "Go ahead"—the producers were told. They did—and the railways started feeding since it affected space allotments.

Mr. Darnell said that through a new breeding policy it was hoped to reduce somewhat the number of oversize eggs on the market. Raisers also are being discouraged from shipping big eggs overseas. The jumbo eggs mostly are being absorbed by the home market. However, since an overseas quota must be had, at least some of the big fellows get on the boat.

CAUTION URGED IN FALL SEEDING

REGINA — For the protection of crops, seeding of fall rye and winter wheat this year should be delayed until grasshoppers have practically disappeared, Field Crops Commissioner W. H. Hamer said recently in pointing out that even a small number of hoppers could do much damage when grain starts coming up.

Mr. Horner added that stubble fields in the Carlyle area, which must be seeded, since such fields were likely to be heavily infested with grasshopper eggs. Widespread damage when hatching begins next spring would be "almost inevitable" because of the difficulty in controlling this type of infestation.

Not only were crops sown on stubble-infested fields likely to be lost but there was also a danger of hoppers moving in nearby summerfallow crops and destroying them, Mr. Horner concluded.

Successful Transfer Of Moose From Elk Island Park

The successful transfer of 10 moose, five male and five females, from Elk Island National Park, Alberta, to Cape Breton Highlands National Park, Nova Scotia, by the National Parks Service of the Department of Mines and Resources, was announced.

The 2,500-mile trip, which lasted nine days, was made over Canadian National Railways lines. The animals were taken by special truck from Little Bras d'Or, near Sydney, N.S., to the Roper's Brook area in the Cape Breton Park, where they were released. Officials of the National Parks Service and the Dominion Wildlife Service had charge of the moose during the entire trip.

At one time moose were abundant on Cape Breton Island, but excessive exploitation resulted in their extermination. In winter, when deep snow made the animals helpless, hunters often slaughtered them in their winter "yards".

Under sanctuary conditions however, wild animals that were virtually extinct at the turn of the century are once again thriving. The buffalo is a classic example.

The re-establishment of moose in Cape Breton Highlands National Park is regarded as an important project. A recent investigation of wildlife conditions there revealed that the area is excellent in cover range. Under these favourable conditions the moose should increase rapidly.

WORLD TRADE WEEK TO BE HELD ANNUALLY

MONTREAL.—World Trade Week will be observed annually in Canada, it was decided at a meeting of the national committee following the first observances across the Dominion this year. The week is sponsored by The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Canadian Section of International Chamber of Commerce, Canadian Importers and Traders Association and Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The timing of the week in 1949, the committee decided, should take into consideration the similar week in the United States and should be held prior to the Canadian International Trade Fair

NEW FARM SPREADER

RECIPES

CHEESE FLAKE POTATOES

6 hot boiled potatoes
1 tablespoonful mayonnaise
2 cupful of corn flakes rolled fine
Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and roll in mayonnaise, then in corn flakes crumbs. Place in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven (425 deg F.), or toast under the broiler flame, turning frequently, until well browned

BAKED SQUASH WITH SAUSAGES

Cut squash in half, remove seeds and place squash in baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and ¼ teaspoon molasses for each portion.

Put a little water in bottom of baking dish. Cover and bake one hour in moderate oven

At the end of the first 30 minutes, place in each piece a few small link sausages which have been put into cold water and heated to the boiling point. Finish baking uncovered.

For youngsters the squash may be baked without the addition of sausages, and served instead with slices of crisp bacon

COLOR TREND FASHIONS

A trend towards the choice of lighter and more colorful paint shades for automobiles is expected by manufacturers. Black and dark blues, which used to account for practically half of the volume of automobile finishing, still range highest in color preference but their margin has been considerably cut. In modern car finishing, some 60 per cent. of the preference goes to such colors as light green, beige, grey and marine blue.

EVERYONE IS LOOKING FOR THE ANSWER TO COMMUNISM

People are finally waking up to the fact that Communism is not merely a political or an economic system but an ideology. You can't shoot an idea, buy it off or out-maneuver it politically. Ideas, like seeds, trade and a red rash of hysteria don't deal with it either.

Those five people now in an part of the deadly cancer of anti-christian which has thrived on democracy's apathy and softness. Many have sold their souls and their nations to communism because they have seen no better way to answer a class hatred of our age. In the great democracies of the world that is a strange paradox. How our statesmen awake to find themselves on the defensive.

John Foster Dulles put his finger on the answer when he said, "The communist problem cannot be solved by trying to crush communism by force. The solution is for those who have faith to exert themselves more vigorously to translate their faith into works." Free people realize that moral weakness is the soft underbelly of communism.

Dr. Chen Li fu summed up his observations after a tour of America and Europe interviewing presidents, prime ministers and cabinet ministers, "The most effective answer to communism is the moral force of a superior ideology which is the basis of democracy. With this I have see how communists can be changed. / moral rearmament is the deepest plan will be their surest way to an swer this danger and win over th communists."

He said that he had seen durin his tour the need for a number of changes in his government and hin said that would so fix democracy a China show effective. He also said he hoped that the session of Parliament beginning in Sept. would in itiate new steps in that direction.

For a nation that now spends 70 percent of her national budget fight ing an ideology —armaments, th armament of a superior moral ideol ogy holds the key to victory. — New World News Agency.

OUR WESTERN TOWNS

CLIMAX, Sask.

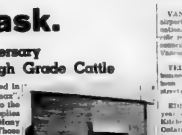
—Celebrates Silver Anniversary —Becoming Noted For High Grade Cattle



The town of Climax is twenty-five years old. It was founded in 1923 and, according to old timers, was named after "Climax", a town in Minnesota. Of course, settlers had been coming into the district from 1909 on and were compelled to freight their supplies from the mainline towns of Swift Current and Gull Lake. Many came from Minnesota and the Dakotas. Those from Minnesota are blamed, or commended, according to your point of view, for the name given to the place. By-the-way, its silver anniversary was fittingly celebrated on July 1st.

The south line C.P.R. came through in 1923. As might be expected the railway company laid out the present townsite half a mile north of where business buildings had already been erected. The whole town moved down to the new site. The general location is good, at junction of highways 37 and 46 and the central point on the mainline railway, just 12 be kicked out.

WAS TYPICAL FRONTIER TOWN OF THE WEST

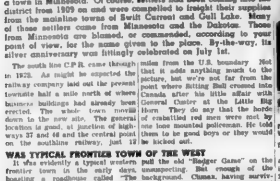
It was evidently a typical western frontier town in the early days. Boosting a roadhouse called "The Blind or Blood"—"Silver Dollar" and others, etc Why, they even used to



Main street of Climax looking from the south.

The Climax Hotel is well equipped for the traveller and the touring neighbors from across the border.

FRUIT GROWERS WITHOUT IRRIGATION

Within the memory of town and district residents, which provides an efficient windbreak, a race fruit orchard has been planted, cultivated and nurtured by George Kaweesh, a farmer south of Climax. The hardy cross-grains forms the backbone of this wonderful shelter belt and is studded sprinkling of ash and elm trees.

The land sown enclosed, four or five acres in all, slopes gently to the east-and, and would seem well suited to the purpose. Surprisingly enough, the whole project was started only about eight years ago and while producing more or less during th- past three or four years, record the result of production this season.

There are long rows of two or three different varieties of gooseberries, red, white and black currants, ground cherries and strawberries. Then comes ordinary cherries and plums. The trees are of good size, act, eight and ten feet high and well branched. That description also ap-

When your BACK ACHES...

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys put out of order cannot excrete and poisons remain in the system. Then backache, headache, rheumatic pain, lowered zest or feel "tired and looking tired" soon follow. To help keep your kidneys working properly—use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They increase flow of kidney urine, ease backache and help you feel and look better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills.

WHEAT ESTIMATES DOWN IN PRICE

WINNIPEG — Here it is the product that has come down in price.

Dr. M. S. Longhead, medical health officer, told Winnipeg's corn breakh committee the price of rat poison, is much lower than it was a year ago. Consequently there was money left over from an appropriation for rat extermination.

Rayon was the first man-made fiber.

WOODRIDGE, Man. — Mike Gerasdy when driving cattle to Lake with a party of friends encountered a bear. Taking a .22 rifle, which he had in the truck, Mike shot the bear at 15 paces and the others took to the bush. Returning to investigate the party obtained a heavy calibre rifle and returned to the scene of their encounter. The bears had not moved from the scene of the first shooting and the party decided on killing three more. The other two disappeared into the heavy bush.

WOLSELEY, Sask — Allan Bourne, a farmer of the district, fractured his leg recently and his crop became ripe but he was unable to harvest it.

Then Archie Watson, a neighbor, organized a "harvest bee". Nearby farmers pooled their efforts and resources to harvest Mr Bourne's crop. When operations were in full swing there were five combines in the field, two binders cutting oats, three men stooking, three trucks hauling grain, two tractors drawing wagons and five women cooking for the workers.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

"OLD MAN"
"Had Shakespeare Fallen As In Reason Due In This World" ?
By S. B. WILSON

IVE passed a good many houses in my time—no that there's pretty much time to bother, here and all every anxiously.

"Not exactly, my dear or maybe even Dr Smith and, saying across the lawn. Get your ladder plate! I'll be back after my next patient.

"Is I, for'ble silm? Bulphur an' molasses took in spring is powerful medicine" came tinnily from old Avery.

"No I just hit him. I'm lookin' for John Andy."

"You run 'long up Maple Street—number two. You set on the steps of that two-room shack till I come. I back there—as you're welcome."

"Thanks." flung out the young man, wheeling quickly away

Old Avery squinted up at the black cloud hanging ominously low. He stooped, picked a sprig of raisin, tucked it carefully into his overall pocket. His baby-cat doted on catnip.

Suddenly, the rain pelted down. Old Avery limped to the rear of the house, stuck his white head in the kitchen door. "Old 72 he rained first thing in the morn'n—weather prognostin'. Here's a chance for lodgin—I ain't done nothin' much."

"Shay—when I finish washin' dishes," grunted Nellie, the maid. "Why they'll build high windows like they paint much?"

"Let's have that cloth, Miss." said old Avery, taking the rag from out of her hand.

Suddenly, he mounted the kitchen stool, wiped black soot from top window-panes.

"Thanks a million" said Nellie, hearing his knee-joints crack at each downward step. "You're sure spry!"

"Tes—developed muscles years ago whipping brussels carpets for stylish ladies to pay my way through the university. Ever paint much?"

Before Nellie could reply Mrs. Smith called from the living room, "Nellie—don't start the ice cream! I've phoned the grocer's strawberries are sold out!"

"Lorde's fruit-stand had a nice batch of 'em when I were past a mile back," offered Avery.

"I'll go tell her!" gasped Nellie, rushing away.

"I'd best be gettin' on—not hinderin' folks as is busy here in the world," mumbled old Avery, picking his way down the tin-smoked steps.

LOCAL TEACHERS COMBINE BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

(By Dr. J. W. Chalmers)

Together with their colleagues from Camrose and Provost Inspectorate, local teachers were in attendance at their convention in Camrose on October 4 and 5. The well-rounded program included talks by visiting educationists, discussion of professional and association problems, the showing of educational films, a demonstration of the teaching of primary reading in a class of Camrose children, and, as an extra-curricular feature, the inevitable shopping expedition.

Killam Inspectorate teachers took a prominent part in the program. Mr. Stan Mallett of Alliance, ably served as convention president (others who acted as chairmen of meetings included Miss Mary Whaley whose marriage takes place next week. A large gath ering attended.

Most luncheon was the banquet held Monday eve at the United Church, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Principal speaker was Dr Phillips, whose address, amusing and instructive, was devoted to a description of a typical rural school in Upper Canada during the 1830's. Dr Phillips' address was much enhanced by his informal dramatic characterizations of both pupils and teacher the latter often being an inexperienced co-ed. After the banquet many teachers were seen at the theatre or at the dance sponsored by the Canadian Legion. Others enjoyed themselves in informal conversation and social relaxation.

Guest Soloist

The broadcast, which is heard over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC, at 9 p.m. EST, will originate in Toronto with Paul Hahn conducting the Northern Electric concert orchestra.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NEWS

This has been such a short week folks, that there is not much news to tell you, but here goes:

Yes, that's really curtains you see hanging on the girls' windows. They really look nice don't you think? We dorm girls are proud of them.

(1-c)

We had a party Wednesday night in the form of a dance Everyone enjoyed kicking up their heels to the phonograph and to music supplied by Iris Court The 364 question raised was the high-life of the rhythm dance, the square dance or the lunch served afterwards.

(2-c)

It is evident that "Poo Woo" (Ellen McShane) is preparing for initiation already. Why just tonight he was seen tying pretty little bows with finely ribbon that he packs around in his pocket.

omOmo

It seems that Richard is really getting popular with the women. The girls say he's still a little shy tho'

0000

What will Ellen come up with next? Not Chinese pyjamas anyway because that's old stuff now. You seem people are always what you came nearly not missing.

The best news of the week was the appearance of Noll Carpenter who was obliged to miss school because of a fractured wrist.

A note from the Returning Officer of Central High Voting took place last Wed. noon to elect a Council for the first term. Results were: President: Bob Beairsto; Grade Ten Rep: Rosemary Manning; Grade 11 Rep: Norma Murray; Grade 12 Rep: Betty Gibson; Councillors: Rosemary Cookson, Jane Stoner, Kay Mercham; Mary McLeod, Percy Motley, Ralph Gordon, Dave Gibson, Russell Allscott and Mr. Stowe.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE NEWS

Have you ever seen a crowd? Perhaps you once saw a hundred people or less trying to get into a movie that was having a fire sale It looked like a lot of people But that was a mere nothing compared to the people you can reach through the advertising columns of the Community Press Take our paid circulation and we'll gladly give you the figures—multiply it by five at least for the people who read the copy, and then you really have a crowd and you don't have to have a fire to reach them either Just tell your story, with pictures if you have any Not all of those people will come in at 9 a.m. some morning hop in for bargains, but most of them will see your advertising and when they are sufficiently encouraged to buy from them, they'll be in, even on a dull afternoon. So don't be penny wise and pound foolish, looking for some thing cheap, like after a fire, or coming in asking for merchandise they want Your advertising will determine that in a large extent. It isn't five insurance, but it is insurance

If you want to get along with the fellow, here are a few hints on what you may and may not call them You may call a woman a kitten, but you must not call her a cat. You may call her a mouse, but you must not call her a rat; You may call her a chicken, but you must not call her a hen; You may call her a duck, but you must not call her a goose. You may call her a vision, but you must not call her a sight

—By A. W. E.—

It was here not for the fact that Mr Wesson Cherwich, that great scientific British statesman, is leaps and bounds ahead of me in intelligence and wit, regarding his remarks on public sentiment, that two great minds think alike. But since the first mental clash came down exist, I shall suffer it to say that I agree in his entirety with his statement that NOW is the time to come to a final understanding with Mr. Stalin and his communist lackeys. Right now is the time to see that Russian disturbers of the peace 'put up or shut up.' The pattern followed by those unscrupulous Reds too closely resembles that followed by the late Fury Hitler to be ignored Too long now have the peace loving people of the world been shoved around by mad dogs who are bent on tearing their philosophy down the throats of a passively resisting world Sooner or late the West will have to meet the East in a test of strength and the sooner the meeting can be arranged, the sooner another threat to world peace will be whipped out. It is now or cutting millions of dollars a year to do a necessary job of backing after the damage is done A job that could be done much cheaper with co-operation from Russia We now have Red Russia will never co-operate, so we must tell it not to hinder us, or else. We have the power, Truman has the iron will, finally ribbon that he packs around in his pocket.

FIRES AT KILLAM AND SEDGEWICK DO DAMAGE

The district south of Killam had a real scare last week when a prairie fire started on the McPherson land went to a 200 acre field of wheat belonging to Mr. Grocert. Five fighters soon gathered from a large area, and with the aid of several tractors the blaze was finally put under control

It is believed that the fire started from a cigarette stub discarded by a duck hunter.

Fire broke out last Thursday on a quarter near Hill Park School some 12 miles north and east of Sedgewick, and before the blaze was put under control by an estimated 15 fire fighters, an area covering nine of three sections had been burnt o

Although no crops of grain were destroyed, it is estimated that about 100 tons of hay were lost by farmers in the path of the blaze.

Cause of the fire is believed to be from smouldering brush which had been cleared and burned on the road

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Lady and the Mouse

By Lila Lennon

Words Were Different From The Dreams, But Intent The Same.

Tom had a problem. And when you have to discuss your problems with a small, friendly grey mouse . . . It's time for action.

The mouse's name was Roger and he was a nightly visitor in the Blair kitchen. The first time he and Tom met they stared at each other a moment and when Tom said "Hi," and tossed him a nibble of cheese, he decided it was safe to stay. Each night they after but only when Tom was at the [illegible]

Tom sat precisely on a tall stitch so stool polishing off a sandwich and a glass of cold milk. Tom and Roger she addressed the mouse in the latter. It's this way. I'm in love with Jeff. I have been ever since we were kids.

Her tone was wistful and it was, for although at all to point Jeff Davis Tait and I have landed ever that I realized at the moment when he laughed a shock of unruly red hair. Tom continued plaintively, and Roger twitched his nose understandingly.

The trouble is, Jeff just doesn't see me as a desirable woman. I'm the best-boy pal and a swell pal. I'm easy to talk to, but I can't take her back and ski. I can't bowl. I can't do all the things he does and just as well, because he's spent years training on them.

Pal! she said disgustedly. "If he calls me that just one more I'll bark like a dog."

Roger made a tiny squeaking laugh. What's that? Oh, yes he'll give me the shirt off his back but I don't want it. Tom, unless his arms are in it and around me!

Roger made a careful circuit of the kitchen and came back to nibble. Tom sighed. What can I do, Roger? I've tried. The night I wore that seductive backless gown he said it was cold. The time I did my hair up on my head, he told me to stop playing grown-up. And when I read that new perfume he wrinkled his nose and said, What a that, soap water?

She waved the empty glass dramatically. "See what I mean." It's very discouraging, being in love with a guy who used to watch your mother change your diapers."

Tom continued mournfully. Here I am, twenty and developing a real frustration complex. I'm positively haggish to a degree. I've had it for years and years.

Tom hugged her knees. The mouse sat down with variations of sympathy. But, the moment always came when Jeff held her close and whispered, "Darling, I adore you!" Or Jeff, big voice rough with demanding desire . . .

"You're mine, mine!"

Cold fingers tapped her spine, and Tom shivered. Roger twitched his tail sympathetically, but went right on eating. Tom eyed him. You don't care at all do you?" she accused.

Roger trembled with dignity.

I'm really worried," she continued slowly. "Especially since that chef finished piece of fluff. Ivy came to dinner. She's little and cute and clinging. She bats her eyes at Jeff and makes he's m-ore big and strong." And Jeff, the goon, positively drools."

Tom snorted, and Roger jumped. I'll bet she'd even be afraid of you, Roger. She'd scream and fling herself into Jeff's arms."

Roger stared at her astonishingly and Tom stared back. "Roger!" she exclaimed.

She then held her entranced, and Roger nodded his head gravely.

You'll have to help," she admonished. "You never come out when anyone's here, but tomorrow night I'll lure Jeff in for a late snack." She shook her finger at Roger.

See that you put in an appearance hear."

Roger flicked his tail and stalked to his hole. Tom clicked off the kitchen light and went to bed, but her dreams were persistent. Jeff, holding her tenderly in his arms . . . Jeff, murmuring, "Darling. I adore you!"

Luring Jeff to the kitchen was a simple matter. It merely meant dangling a baked ham sandwich under his nose. Jeff agreed it was a good night for baked ham. Tom put on a frivolling be-ruffled apron and puttered wisely, keeping an eye out for Roger. He was late, the ungrate-ful wretch!

Hurry up, woman, I'm starved!" Jeff pounded the table and Tom groaned inwardly. Roger would never show up with all this noise!

At that moment Roger bravely scrutinized a twitching nose. Tom let out a screech and clambered to a chair.

Jeff stared. "What's eating you? he demanded.

Tom pointed at the quivering Roger. "A mouse!" she wailed. "Oh, Jeff, get him!"

Jeff's mouth fell open and he fathered her finger. It was a brilliant hunge, but Roger whisked into the pantry.

"Missed him," Jeff muttered and turned to Tom. She stood high above him, holding her skirt around her

Are you going to stand up there all night?" he demanded.

Do you think he'll be back?"

Jeff grunted. "After that screech of yours?" He looked up at her. Imagine you're afraid of mice! Here get down."

He held out his arms and Tom climbed straight into them. She clung both her arms around his neck and hung on. Jeff slowly closed his arms around her.

Tom looked at him a long moment, and her lips were very close. Jeff had a hypnotized expression on his face. He couldn't help it, he kissed her. For several seconds, the world whirled delightfully.

Well," Jeff said at last.

Little Tease: all grown up! I've been waiting for this day. It's about time"

Tom grinned. The words were different from the dream, but the scene was the same. That's all that counted.

Roger!" she said softly.

Curb Joy-Riding In Official Cars

VICTORIA BC The British Columbia Government has cracked down on joy-riding in government cars.

After a checkup indicated many such vehicles were being used by civil servants for pleasure driving, the province equipped all cars in its fleet with special red and white license plates, which will make them easily recognizable if driven after business hours.

If this step does not bring results, the province is considering keeping all its cars in a central pool, from which they may only be issued for specified trips.

The first woman to sit on the Polish Supreme Court is Mrs. Zofia Gawronska.

Prairie Farmers Use Latest Machines To Bring In Their Crops

Last word in harvesting efficiency is the "pusher" or self-propelled combine, capable of cutting 40 acres in an ordinary working day. Equipped with powerful headlights, these monsters are cutting around prairie fields day and night on the Regina, Sask., plains area, to take oil a crop that will yield, in some places, 40 bushels to the acre. The combine has ended the need for horsed curiosities from Eastern Canada, since one man on a combine is able to replace a whole threshing crew. The machine shown at bottom was one of the earlier types of harvester combines, tractor-drawn, and capable of doing almost as much work in a day as a threshing crew of ten men. The outfit is straight combining a crop of oats. Unevenly ripened fields are usually "swathed" and the swath picked up after a week or more of curing and ripening.—Central Press Canadian.

Plump, Better Turkeys Aim Of Inspectors

WINNIPEG —The main course of your Christmas dinner is about to get a careful scrutiny out in the country

Several thousand turkeys scattered around the prairie provinces-their life expectancy only a couple of months-are to undergo government inspection. The object: To provide plump birds with straight drumsticks and well-shaped washboons for Canadian tables come Dec. 25.

Manitoba, along with Saskatchewan and Alberta, the month will commence its annual inspection of turkey flocks—a voluntary procedure designed to improve the province's methods of breeding, feeding, disease control and management.

Birds to be government-apprais-ed and what bird would want to be otherwise—must be purebred stock. They don't seem to from evidence of disease or parasites and must show a strong constitutional vigor.

The gobbler you'll eye with relish on Christmas Day breed to a well-designed and constructed house" A home which had to be kept clean and disinfected.

Even the turkey's love-life has to be up to government standards. Approved females were mated only with "AAA", "AA", or "A" grade males.

The inspections last for about a month. Last year 3,800 birds were inspected in Manitoba alone.

The government supervisor has made for a better type of bird, agriculture officials say.

"A few years ago turkeys were thin and rangy. Now it's a heavier, more plump and thoroughly improved bird.

Pass the gravy, please.

GOOD RULE COUNTRY

VANCOUVER.—The sad estate of British Columbia appears to offer exceptional possibilities for an expanding nails industry, Baron von Hacenstein said here. He said many young Dutch farmers would like to come over to Canada to farm. The baron is a director of the Nu-Trad and Aeronautical Institute and Museum, Rotterdam.

INDIANS UNDERGO CHANGE OF HEART

CHURCHILL, Man. — Indians of the North River Reservation may have undergone a change of heart. In July, they would have nothing to do with a visiting Treaty Party, complaining that they wanted the Government to provide a new uniform for their chief. The Indians would not accept their annual treaty money and shunned the party.

But a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer who visited the reservation recently to bring out a sick Indian reported he received a friendly reception. The Chief shook his hand and expressed the hope of seeing him next summer.

Officials hope it seems the tribe will soon be ready to smoke the peace pipe over the treaty money.

Natural Gas Wells Located In Peace River District

VANCOUVER.—Natural gas wells in the Peace River block on both the British Columbia and Alberta side of the boundary have been located by a Vancouver firm which is contemplating construction of a gas pipe line to the coast.

Latest find is on the Alberta side, where a well which was drilled by Pacific Petroleum Company of Vancouver about 20 miles northeast of Dawson Creek, is reported to have returned a flow of nearly 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily

Norman R. Whittall, a member of the group which formed the Peace River Natural Gas Co. Ltd., and a director of Pacific Petroleum, reports that his firm has found gas in several wells in B.C.

One of the wells, near Hells, B.C., shows very favourable results, he said.

Distilleries are following a trend in the district and although shortages are good it might be some time yet before a field large enough to supply Vancouver with natural gas might be found.

Gas from Alberta wells is still under control of that province and no indication has been given yet if export will be allowed.

The Peace River company intends to build a line through B.C. to the coast to bring gas here.

The principal families of plants are distributed world-wide.

Hardisty Happenings

Mrs. Severson has been on the sick list for the past week. We wish her a speedy recovery

Barry Thorp spent last Tuesday in the city of Edmonton.

Mac Gibson and Calvin Gilbert were home for the week end.

Doug Harrison is the proud owner of a new shot gun. It will surely be murder for the ducks now.

Jeanette Murray spent the holiday week end at her home here.

Mrs. Jack Thorp spent a day or two in Edmonton recently.

Bobbie Robbins spent the week end with his parents here.

Colleen Moody, Maxine Brunson, Irene Terry and Helen Manning were all home for the week end.

The Rebekah Lodges of District No. 6 held their annual meeting in the IOOF hall on Sept. 30th. With the District Deputy Pres., Mrs. B. Matthews presiding, the meeting was a most successful one. Members from Longheed, Killam, Provost, Alliance and Hardisty were present.

The line party held last Friday turned out very nicely. High students from Czar to Camrose and from the south line attended.

Don't forget the Alan Rossel Sale on October 15th.

Mr. W. J. Thompson left recently for Port Nelson.

The annual Thanksgiving Service was held on Oct. 10th in the United Church with a good attendance.

Ray Veeder has returned to Hardisty. He had been working with the "Gayland Shows".

Mr. Warren Hoefs was a visitor in town over the week end.

Jack Norfolk and family are receiving congratulations here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Green are proud parents of a baby daughter.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. S. Fagin, a baby boy.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion held their monthly meeting in the IOOF hall on October 5th.

A whist drive was held in the I O O F hall last week. Everybody reported a good time. Doug Harrison won the angel food cake which was raffled off during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Krell accompanied by Mr. Paige, motored to the city.

Oscar Severson has been receiving congratulations to beam.

Mr. Gadd is redecorating the Bee store.

Bobby Morgan of Camrose visited with the Erkhands.

Herb Bricker and family visited at Lavoy last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Erkland and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Olson were visitors at Vegreville on Sunday.

Interesting news items are always welcome for this column. Just hand them in at the Post Office and we will do the rest.

A. J. Terry, R. J. Harrison, Cpl Brandon and J. G. Crouch spent a few days in the Vermilion district on a goose hunt. They all claim that in spite of five a.m. rising, lots of sleep and a few misses on the big birds, the lugging of 50 of the wily birds is not a result to be sneezed at. We agree that's good going.

Mrs. Mary Wilson had the misfortune to break an arm recently when she fell from the bed of her barn.

Mrs. J French returned last week from Calgary where she had been visiting. While she was away John Jr. and the Mrs. kept the house.

Roy Tiroler, proprietor of the Hardisty Cafe has been a business visitor to the city

A new sidewalk has been laid in front of the Hardisty Hardware. The observer came to the conclusion that Hardisty is no different to any town along the line, in that dogs and cows seem to have to walk on wet cement.

Mr. Allen Lindquist has been appointed as lawyer for the Hudson Straits Co. here, replacing Mr. Johnstone who has resigned.

Several of the teaching staff were away Monday and Tuesday of last week attending the convention.

Mr. Geo. Smoke was a business visitor to the city last week where he sold some cattle.

Fr. McDonald left recently for Montreal, enroute to Japan where he will be doing Missionary work along with others of a group.

Your local beat and shoe mender says he was a cooper, and he means a cooper, notwithstanding all and any contrary opinions.

Poppies will be on sale by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion, for Armistice Day. You are invited to buy a poppy and help the disabled veterans.

The unusual happens now and again This time it is the fact that F. C. Mattson and Sons have received two Ferguson tractors in a week.

Marvin Stewart and K. Quinlan have had their homes insulated by Mr. John French.

Mr. Fred Zakewski is visiting at Andrew where he is supervising the harvesting of his crop there.

Every day hundreds of customers may be in and out of the bank which serves you.

Yet you know nothing about their transactions, they know nothing about yours.

You may be depositing or borrowing. The amount may be a dollar, or thousands. That's your business . . . nobody else's.

You take for granted this private, personal relationship between you and your bank.

All banks see to it that your transactions—and those of about 7,000,000 other Canadians—are kept safe from prying eyes.

A Letter From You...

By JANE DALE

A letter from you, though you live
Is just like a handclasp, vivid and true
A bond which brings your heart closer to mine;
A salute which makes the sun
brighter shine.
No petulant misery the pages you mail
But friendships and love shines forth like a star.
Just a glimpse of your presence each letter is nerve
To add to the memories of you to

RECIPES

HOME-MADE SOUPS CONSOMME

1 or 2 pounds marrow bones, chicked
2 pounds shin beef cut in small pieces
1½ cups carrots, cut knuckle
3 quarts cold water
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup diced carrots
½ cup chopped onion
1½ cup diced white turnips
2 sprigs parsley, chopped
3 whole cloves
8 to 10 peppercorns
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon thyme
1 tablespoon salt

Scrape marrow from bones, melt in kettle over moderate heat. Brown half beef and veal in marrow fat; add remaining meat, marrow bones and cold water, cover and bring slowly to boil; remove scum. Add vegetables and seasonings (or added flavor, vegetables may be simmered in 2 tablespoons butter for 10 minutes before adding to soup), cover and simmer gently about 4 hours; remove scum occasionally. Strain chill, remove fat and strain again as desired

CREAM OF TOMATO

2 cups tomatoes
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart milk
1 slice onion
4 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup butter

Scald milk with onion, remove onion and thicken milk with flour which has been mixed to thin paste with cold water; bring careful that the mixture is free from lumps. Cook 20 minutes in double boiler, stirring constantly at first. Cook tomatoes with sugar 15 minutes, add soda, and rub through sieve; add to milk. Add butter, salt and pepper. Serves six to eight persons.

Predicts Total Of 100,000 Immigrants

OTTAWA An optimistic forecast that by this time next year Canada will have taken in a total of 100,000 European refugees as immigrants was made here by Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, Deputy Minister of Mines and Resources who has jurisdiction over the immigration branch.

Commenting on a report from Germany that it would take the next few years to reach this figure, the Deputy Minister said that it would not take that long and that he thought the 100,000 mark could be reached by this time next year.

Dr. Keenleyside pointed out that Canada's expanding immigration policy was producing highly satisfactory results as the shipping situation steadily improved, and that already, during the first eight months of this year up to the end of August, over 50,000 new settlers had arrived, including refugees.

This is well ahead of any other year since 1930 when 60,000 immigrants came into the country, and it is expected that this figure will be well passed by the end of December

HARDBOARD MADE FROM WASTE CHIPS

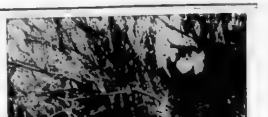
VANCOUVER. — A new building material, made from waste woodchips and bonding chemicals, plywood, is in quantity production at the Canadian Forest Products plant at New Westminster.

Called "hardboard", this, new product will be turned out at the rate of 60,000 square feet a day.

It will be shipped throughout B.C. to eastern Canada and all over the world by the Pacific Vessel and Plywood Division

The hardboard process, which makes waste chips into a high-quality building material, is something new in Canada. It was first developed by an Oregon lumber company, and adopted by Canadian Forest Products to make use of the large volume of waste material resulting from its main operations.



About replacing a swarm of bees in the bush. The undertaking wasn't any less profitable because there was very little honey — just four pounds of wax, and four pounds of wax. For the job, John Kelly of Flettler, Alta., sets

B.C. Lumber Production Up

VICTORIA Lumber production in British Columbia during 1947 showed an increase in value of more than $68,000,000 from $87,015,502 in 1946 to $110,761,222 in 1947, according to the annual report of the British Columbia Forest Service.

Total value of all products was $282,286,388 as compared with $173,271,270 in 1946.

The average stumpage price had also risen from $2.80 per thousand board feet, an increase of 41 cents per thousand or 17 per cent over 1946.

Total timber cut, including all species, was 4,167,816,198 feet, board measure, an increase of one billion feet, an all-time record and an increase of more than 20 per cent, over the cut in 1946.

The world's surface is 71 per cent. ocean, 29 per cent. land.

SEAL WILL NEVER BE USED AGAIN

TORONTO Exhibited for the first time out of Britain the Great Seal of England was on display at the Canadian National Exhibition

The historical relic was used by King George VI from the time of his accession to the throne until King Edward VIII, left for exile, to sign his last decree. The seal is the last one which the words "Dei Imp" — signifying that The King was Indian emperor — appear

The first warrant of the Grand National in 1939 was named Lottery.

Hints On How To Remove — Spots From Clothes —

Some of us occasionally leave the dining table with a slight reminder of the menu splattered over our particular fancies. Others have the unhappy facility of squatting on large wads of sticky chewing gum. Most of these unfortunates run terribly to the fact that there are any number of well-intentioned characters on the loose, each with a sure fire panacea for removing spots from clothing.

Some of these prescribed methods are completely ineffective, others are moderately successful, and there are some that will remove the fabric along with the spot.

Staining is but one method of ruining good clothes Another and equally efficient system is to neglect them. It is surprising to discover how few men know the correct way to care for their clothes. And not knowing, they are often heard complaining about the rapidity with which their suits become shabby and lose their shape.

As the result of considerable research on the subject, Men's Wear magazine has come up with many rather pertinent facts on the cleaning and care of clothes. We pass them along for what use you can make of them, but remember not to smoke near the benzene can

Grease or Oil. Wet soiled part of fabric; place blotting paper under stained portion; run with sponge or cloth dipped in benzine or turpentine. When stain is removed, cover with blotter and press with hot iron. Then sponge with warm soapy water containing a little ammonia

Paint or Varnish. First clean with turpentine or other and then follow directions for removing grease or oil stains.

Coffee or Tea. Remove with a mixture of 30-c. benzene and 50% amiar, or a 5% solution of acetic acid. Do sure stain is completely removed with the benzine and amiar before pressing or heat of iron may "set" it.

Milk Stains. Wash, if cotton. Woolen fabric may require treatment with carbon tetrachloride, followed by ammonia or soap and water

Fruit Stains. Remove from cotton fabrics by washing, and from wool by sponging with warm parts of hydrogen peroxide and water after testing for color fastness on some inconspicuous part of garment

Scorch. Apply a mixture of hydrogen peroxide and water, equal parts, or expose to sunlight. if color is fast

Ink. Neckwear, first at the knot may be removed with benzine or one of the patented cleaning fluids

Hot Silhouette. Remove and wash in soapy lake warm water, then rinse and press. Any spots remaining may be removed with benzine

Remember that in removing stains from clothing, it is necessary to use not only an effective chemical but also one that will not damage the fabric. The properties the treatment the easier the task. When in doubt about the best method, take the garment to a professional dry cleaner. Every well garment should be cleaned and spotted that is checked to see if all spots are removed by an expert before storing at the end of a season. When moths attack, they attack soiled spots first

The National Film Board

THE WORK OF THE NATIONAL FILM BOARD is known to most Canadians, who have seen documentary and educational films produced by this organization. These pictures have contributed extensively toward the spreading of education and culture in Canada and have played an important part in familiarizing people with the beauties of the country as well as with its cultural and industrial progress. While such pictures are seen by many Canadians each year, it is perhaps not generally known that pictures made by the National Film Board also reach large audiences outside of Canada and do much not only to acquaint people of other countries with the Dominion, but play an important part in advertising Canadian products abroad and increasing foreign trade

Show Products Canada Sells

It is estimated that 70,000,000 people in 80 countries each year see films made by the National Film Board showing products which Canada has to sell. These films are made in co-operation with various government departments and with industries, and have proved to be of great value in advertising Canadian products abroad. Such films as "The Canadian Wheat Story", "Lumberman's Timber" and "The Fur Trade" have advertised the products of these primary Canadian industries to people of many countries, as have "Red Rums the River" which tells of salmon fishing in British Columbia and "Fashions by Canada" which brought many orders for clothes made in Canada. These films not only help to sell Canadian goods, but they attract people from other countries to come here as tourists and as permanent settlers.

Great Progress Made in Britain

The documentary film is a branch of motion picture production which has proved very popular and which has assumed importance in recording the cultural, social and industrial progress of a nation for the benefit of its own people as well as those of other countries. Reality and honesty are essential features of such films and a high degree of skill and experience are required to make them successful. Great progress has been made in this field and credit is given to producers there for contributing a great deal to this branch of film production. The work of Canada's National Film Board therefore is known for its high standards and is instrumental in building up a broader and more authentic knowledge of Canada and the Canadian way of life both here and in the many foreign countries to which Canadian films are sent.

Farmers' Cash Income Advance

OTTAWA — Farmers' cash income from the sale of their produce advanced steadily to a total of $2,913,000,000 in the first half of 1948 from $723,106,000 in the corresponding period last year and $630,193,000 in 1946, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

Aiding in the supplementary cash payments under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, the Wheat Acreage Reduction Act and the Prairie Farm Income Act, the total cash receipts for the first half of the year were $909,372,000 against $742,630,000 in 1947 and $626,344,000 in 1946.

A large share of the increase was attributed to substantial sums paid out in western Canada by the Canadian Wheat Board in connection with adjusting participation and final equalization payments on wheat, flaxseed and oats.

HUMAN BEINGS COULD USE THIS HANDY KIT

According to the Calgary Albertan a museum expedition has brought back from Africa a fly whose eyes are placed at the ends of long stalks that flare sharply to the right and left. They permit the insect to stand still and see around corners.

Life on our planet might be a good deal safer and happier if nature had seen fit to graft stalk eyes on human sapiens instead of a member of the musidae family. Think what a handy little auxiliary arrangement would have been for pedestrians, motorists and diplomats.

YOU WOMEN WHO SUFFER HOT FLASHES then FEEL CHILLY—

Here's Good News!

Are you between the ages of 38 and 52 and going through that trying functional middle-age period peculiar to women? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel chummy, or nervous, irritable, weak? Then try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms! It's famous for this!

Many wise "middle-age" women take Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against this distress.

Pinkham's Compound contains no opiates—no habit-forming drugs.

It helps nature (you know what we mean). This great medicine also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect.

Forecast 1948 Wheat Crop At 391,000,000 Bu.

OTTAWA A 1948 wheat crop of 391,000,000 bushels—more than 50,000,000 bushels over the harvest of 1947—has been forecast by the Bureau of Statistics.

The forecast was made in the bureau's second estimate of Canada's field crops. The first estimate, made Aug. 17, placed the wheat crop at 372,000,000 and the bureau attributed the larger prospects to generally good maturing and harvest weather during August.

The wheat estimate includes 362,661,000 bushels of spring wheat, produced mainly on the three prairie provinces, and 28,331,000 bushels of winter wheat which comes mostly from Ontario.

The enhanced crop prospects, the bureau said, mean money in the pockets of Canadian farmers, including estimated cash the sale crop would total 361,728,000 bushels compared with 1,982,714,000 last year, barley 320,000,000 bushels against 161,451,000, rye 36,000,000 against 13,317,000 and flaxseed 14,748,000 against 12,240,000

Other estimate rye crop included 29,451,000 bushels of fall rye and 6,857,000 from spring seeding.

Production of the five leading grains on the prairies follows, with the 1947 figures in brackets:

Wheat 16.2 (16.0); oats 22.3 (25.2), barley 12.2 (11.7); rye 12.7 (11.6); dry peas 19.0 (14.0); dry beans 15.7 (15.0); soy beans 21.0 (19.3); buckwheat 23.1 (17.8); mixed grains 40.0 (30.4); flaxseed 9.9 (7.8); shelled corn 51.9 (47.9).

Average yields per acre, in bushels, are estimated as follows with the 1947 figures in brackets:

Canvass For X-Ray

KILLAM, Oct. 16.— Starting today, Killam and district, under auspices of the Hospital Aid, will be canvassed and all residents will be visited. This X-Ray is a special machine and serves a purpose which only the best machines in the largest hospitals offer. We are very fortunate to have a machine like this in the district, so open your purse strings and let's help pay for this $1000 machine. Your generosity will be appreciated

Canvassers are: G. Vandervoort and F. Hardit; K. W. Killam, Sidney James and C. Morris; S. E. Killam, Jack Kisser and A. Saunders; M. E. Killam G. MacLachlan and J. Grant R W Killam H Kisser, Fay Hunt G. Vandervoort and K. Morris; Town: H. Cumberland; Leo Hannan, Alfred Knutson, for Sedgewick.

FAREWELL HELD AT FAIRGROVE SCHOOL

SEDGEWICK, Oct. 16.—A large and friendly crowd gathered at the Fairgrove school last Saturday night to bid farewell to Mr and Mrs. Arthur Leslie and Ron, and Mr. Case, who are leaving the district after some 25 years residence.

A varied program was enjoyed under the chairmanship of Mr. E. Weber, as follows: Vocal Solo, Mrs Harry Perrier; Reading, Mrs. F W Weber; Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Peterson; Duet, Vic Exstly and Mrs A Smith, Duet, Mrs. Jim Baker and Mrs Clarke; Solo, Jackie Matthews; Duet, Audrey and Mary Innis

Mr Muirhead, in a few well chosen remarks, expressed the regret of the district was suffering and presented each guest with a parting gift from the gathering

Suitable replies were given by M and Mrs. Leslie. The family leaves shortly for B. C. to reside.

DIVISIONAL TRUSTEES HOLD REGULAR MEETING

A regular meeting of the trustees of Killam School Division No. 22 was held at Killam on Oct. 5th, with all trustees present.

Tenders were accepted for the sale of the barn at Treasy Hill School and also the furnace. A motion was passed to authorize the loan of a piano in the Killam School, where children from two districts in the Division are being educated.

The convention of the Alberta School Trustees Assn. was discussed carefully. The Board decided to support a motion requesting the provincial government to forego the tax on gasoline used by school division buses. Official delegates to the convention are to be the Chairman, Mr. Omar Vale, and Mr. J.W. Bateman. As in former years, the board has authorized the payment of expenses to the convention for the other trustees, the secretary, and the superintendent.

The board decided to advertise for the Dayland area for tenders for the sale of the garage at Gravel.

The most serious problem dealt with at the meeting concerned the over-crowding at the St. Leo school caused by the closing of one room there. It was decided I transfer some pupils, mostly resident in the Grade 8, 9, to Heisler School, and to replace the present home-drawn van serving Grade 9 to 12 with a bus. After the meeting the trustees journeyed to Hardisty to inspect a vehicle offered for sale by the Provost School Division. This was a Superior bus body, 35-passenger capacity, mounted on a 3-ton Ford chassis. After the inspection, the Killam board decided to purchase it, placing it on the Barbeler-Willow-Hollow run out of Killam, and moving the Reo from there to the Grove route.

Next meeting of the Board with be held in Killam on November 8th.

DORMITORY NEWS

Here's a little poetry to start the week off with:

THE HUMBLE SEAT BIRK

The car was doing thirty,
The road was getting rough.
His clothes were getting dirty
He jumped, sure enough.
He made a three-point landing.
His pants were worn thin
He came to school next morning
A patch upon his shin
The teachers asked the reason
He groaned so when he bent.
And all that he could answer
Was "I had an accident".

The girls will be interested to know that the boy's wing has a population of 21 now. The new arrival is Ronald Mayor.

A number of the fella's took in the Hardisty Lion Party. A really good time was reported by all.

Betty Gibson left on Wednesday afternoon to attend a wedding, in answer to the many queries no it wasn't her own.

A lot of girls were absent Wednesday night for one reason or another But they were just trying to miss the fire drill.

Wednesday night was when all the excitement happened this week. We had a short study period in order to see a show Sierra Sand which the Cadets were showing. It was really good. Because it was late we

AND STILL THEY COME!

Not having a potato to compete with a three-pounder, the committee to prove that Sedgewick too can produce, Mrs Alfred Knutson has on display at the Press Office a huge turnip which weighs 10 pounds and is 21 inches around. This specimen was grown by Mrs. Knutson.

Editor's Note: We now have seven pounds of potatoes, 10 pounds of Alberta turnip, and an appetite. Anyone wishing to display a case of ripe tomatoes or any fresh fruit at our office, please feel free to do so.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

MARKED BY TAG

By JOHN T. KIERAN

Be Stuck To His Sensations Like Glue Stuck To Him.

YES, Sergeant Flypaper Haley was saying, that job was pulled by Jo Labee all right. There hasn't been a murder like it in Smith Falls for a year. Seems like he hits him him with a lead-filled sock while sitting there eating supper at home. It's a hack. You know he hasn't that girl.

Yes. And it's too bad for her. If not for her husband," said Shiv and family, she'd be sore. I can say that. And he appears her by getting in all over the city within a week after he gets out.

He has me in deeper n ever. I don't guess he figured on losing old Hi girl but thought he'd reach the safe and have a lot of money to get away on. Hi no doubt knew the chief had a big sale that day.

Well I'm sorry for her, commanded the other. After all the dough-nut and her sticking by him the two years he was in stir. It kinda looks like he'd get it for good this time.

He and Flypaper who had passed by in a hurry by his persistency on the threshold of a maid went down to Tabor's cell. The young fellow was sitting disconsolately on his bunk. He showed a decent appearing average looking fellow. The face he turned to the men was not at all furtive or sly. The girl was there with the visitors standing outside the cell. Traces of tears were on her face she looked at the sergeant half in fear half in appeal, trusting a limp handkerchief between her fingers.

Well Tabor, you certainly got yourself in good this time, didn't you?" asked the sergeant.

Tabor didn't answer at first. Two years in prison had taught him territorial and caution. Then finally he answered. Sergeant, I admit I had it coming to me two years ago even if I wasn't in on the job. But I'm blowing. I got in with that gang through the girl and before I knew it I was in up tone for the whole lunch They deserted me, just let me take. But when I saw her she stuck to me. I'd avoid even the appearance of evil after I got out."

Tabor had couldn't have stuck to your condition like she stuck to you."

Tabor had nothing more to say, so in a minute more Flypaper and the sergeant left. The last thing the latter saw was the girl trying to hold back more tears. "It's a shame, a shame" he muttered. "An attractive girl like oughta get more out of life than this."

The safe in The Central Clothing Store had been broken into Saturday night. Old Hagan, the merchant policeman hearing the explosion, had opened the door with his skeleton key and rushed in. A bullet had ended his life. Earlier in the evening Flypaper Haley had seen Tabor prying off a fender, and that was evidence enough for him who did it. And to add what further proof was necessary Andrews manager of the clothing store, had quickly identified Tabor as the man who had peered into the window late that night when all but he had left the place.

The sergeant walked down to The Central just as Andrews was unlocking the door. "Hard luck," he greeted the slender, pleasant young man.

But we might still be able to get that money back for you."

"I hope so!" Andrews replied fervently. "Also it'll probably be the gals for me as manager. I had no business to leave that much money in the safe. But we were so busy with the sale about three o'clock that I forgot to go to the bank."

"About what time did it happen?"

"Oh—well, it was after midnight, anyhow."

That would have given Tabor plenty of time to have done it after he let town."

"Yes. It wasn't done any earlier than that. And Tabor's the man I saw peering into the window. I recognized him again the minute Haley took me to see him."

"I take it that you were here until about twelve, then?"

"Yes. And the lateness was why Tabor took so little pains to conceal himself when he looked in, I guess. Probably thought everyone was gone." He paused. "But I hope-ed to have quite a bit of work to do, getting ready for Monday's trade, taking the sale tags off of everything left from the sale, and all that."

They went over to the shattered safe. The sergeant examined some of the charred pieces of clothing that had been piled over and in front of the safe to muffle the explosion. "Sol smouldering when the soup went off, I see." He paused. "It was bad enough for him to do this without nailing Old Hagan."

He straightened up. "Let's go over to the jail. Maybe two of us can make him talk. I've got something here that may throw some light on the affair."

In a few minutes they were in his office. Flypaper had his feet cocked on the desk, and the sergeant sat down, putting his up on the other side. Holding a cigar carefully in his mouth he regarded his fellow officer with a triumphant eye. Andrews took the one extra chair

"Andrews," the sergeant asked, "do you stay on the store until after quitting time to take the sale tags off the bet-ers, or is it before?"

"Why, I—I stay on after to take off the tags and put the bet-ers on. Then I stay around to straighten up a bit. Why?"

"Because I'm wondering if you didn't leave the safe open when you left the store, and that Tabor, seeing the light on, thought you were still there and waited until you left before he broke in."

"Yes, I suppose that's possible. But I'm sure I left the safe closed. I remember distinctly that I was thinking that I forgot to go to the bank."

"Then you're sure you closed the safe?" the sergeant asked. "Positive?"

"Why, I—I think so—"

"Well," the officer broke in irrelevantly, "I lied to you just a little. I wanted to get you to jail peaceful like."

"What do you mean?" Andrews rose in anger from his chair

"Careful now! Next time you try to shirt robbery and murde, onto an innocent man, be sure you don't tell a false story why you hung around the scene of crime. You hadn't meant to say anything about that. But you had to when I asked how you happened to be there late enough to see Tabor. But listen! You your self blew the safe so's the robbery would look like an outside job. And all those pieces of clothing you piled around it still had safe tags on 'em!

PRINCESS FIRST, QUEEN SECOND JULIANA—Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her consort, Prince Bernhardt, caught in an informal pose trying to coax the youngest member of the family to put on her best behavior for the camera. The children are Princesses Beatrix, Irene, Margriet (who was born in Ottawa) and Maria Christina. The queen has already made it clear that even the responsibility of becoming the ruler of the Netherlands will not be allowed to interfere in the way her home is run or in her care of her four daughters. —N.E.A. photo.

PLASTICS INDUSTRY GROWING AT FAST RATE IN CANADA

OTTAWA. — The manufacture of plastics is shown as climbing into position as a prominent and fast-growing industry, according to the latest figures released here by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The Bureau states that the gross factory value of plastics and plastic products turned out by the Dominion in 1946 showed an increase of 20 per cent over the previous year's total. Plastic manufacturers in 1946 were valued at $21,260,000 as compared with $15,804,000 in 1945.

The year also saw the number of plants engaged in this industry rise from 66 in 1945 to 79 in 1946.

Donate Apples To Hospitals

KENTVILLE, N.S. — The Dominion Government is going to donate $3 million worth of processed apples now in Annapolis Valley storage plants, to Canadian hospitals and charitable institutions.

The government owns the apples, part of last year's surplus crop.

With the loss of the United Kingdom fresh and processed apple markets, the marketing agreement between the government and the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association contained a government guarantee for processing.

A new improved highway now links Paraguay and Argentina.

Claim Staking in Saskatchewan Now High Record

REGINA. — A record 721 quarts mining claims have been recorded in the Precambrian areas of Saskatchewan so far this year, according to a statement by Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank. Saskatchewan's most active staking year before was 1936 when the Lake Athabasca gold rush was on when 651 claims were staked.

Farmers To Get $14,000,000 Aid

REGINA — The Federally-operated Prairie Farm Assistance Act will pay 60,000 farmers in the three Prairie provinces $14,000,000 for the crop years 1938-45

K. F. McGregor, P.F.A.A. director, in making the announcement, said cheques covering 60 per cent. of the total will be mailed in December. The balance will be mailed in March, 1948.

Some 2,000 townships in the three provinces might benefit from the act.

Mr. McGregor said crop loss this year was due mainly to drought, although grasshoppers caused damage in some areas.

Saskatchewan's slice of the total will be $13,000,000 to be distributed to 1,200 townships. Alberta draws $1,500,000 for 500 townships and Manitoba the remaining $500,000 for 300 townships.

Europe's Harvest Reported Good

LONDON — Most of Europe's harvest is in, and it's the biggest since before the war.

In almost every country reporting in an Associated Press survey, there is very heavy yields of grains and vegetables — heavy enough, probably to permit relaxation of at least some food rationing orders.

Last year, when Europe was in direst need, drouth ruined many crops. This year rainfall has been ample and increased acreage is under cultivation.

In the opinion of some experts, the big crops come in the nick of time and should help to ease political and social tensions.

No over-all statistics on the finds harvest are available, but everything indicates it is good.

Canada To Get Dried Fruit From Australia

OTTAWA. — Canada will receive one-fifth of Australia's 1948 production of dried vine fruits, principally sultanas and currants, Australian high commissioner's office said.

Canada's share will be 18,126 tons out of a total of 81,000 tons.

Canadian imports of fruit from Australia will include 300,000 cases of tinned pineapples, half of which have already arrived.

Australia will also ship 71,000 cases of canned fruits — apricots, peaches and pears—to this country.

Report New Breed Of "Giant" Cattle

LONDON Moscow radio reported that a new breed of "giants" cattle has been developed in the Ukraine.

Quoting a Tass press agency dispatch from Kharkov, the radio said that two Ukrainian experts had spent years in crossing local breeds with "Ayrsyr" (possibly Swiss) cattle. The result has been a breed notable for high milk yield, rich fat content of milk, and great weight.

Some cows of the new breed are yielding 2,320 to 2,640 gallons of milk a year, equivalent to 1,323 pounds of high-grade butter, the radio said. It said ordinary cows of local breeds yield only about one-tenth as much.

Father Has No Control Of Drinking, Poker-Playing Sons

VANCOUVER. — Report that an many as 15 boys, ten-ags and younger, gather at a city home for poker games and drinking was made to police.

Police checked complaint of R. A. Wall, that neighbors' children were destroying his fence and other property

Several residents told of the poker gatherings at a nearby house where two boys, 16 and 11, lived.

Father of the two boys said he had "no control" over them.

Police are investigating.

CONTAINS NAMES OF CANADIAN WAR DEAD

OTTAWA. — A golden book containing the names of all Canadian soldiers buried in the cemetery at Adegem, near Ghent, Belgium, has been placed in the Public Archives of Canada Prime Minister Mackenzie-King's office said in a statement that Mr. King received the book from Madame Le Clement Dessint-Marcq of Ghent shortly before his departure for Europe recently.

Columbine' son brought the first settlers to Jamaica in 1509.

MANITOBA CROPS AVERAGE $4,000

WINNIPEG — Average net return for each Manitoba farm during the 1948 crop year likely will approximate a record $4,000, the provincial department of agriculture reported. The 1947 figure, on the basis of 82,300 farms in the province recorded up to that time.

The department added that in no year in the province's history has as big a percentage of the crop gone into storage with so little loss by weather deterioration.

RED CROSS OPENS CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

ARBORFIELD, Sask. — An outpost hospital at Arborfield, 35 miles northeast of Tisdale has been opened by the Red Cross to serve emergency and maternity cases. A home in the village was renovated during the summer, and now contains six beds, a nursery, X-ray facilities, a laundry, and quarters for the staff. Miss Marie Kilden is nurse in charge

SELECTED RECIPES

ANGEL CAKE

7 egg whites
1 cup fine granulated sugar
¾ cup pastry flour
Few grains salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Place egg whites on a platter and beat with a wire beater until foaming, add cream of tartar and continue beating until they are stiff. Add sugar gradually by sifting into egg mixture with a spatula or cake spoon, then fold in dry materials, four at a time. Lastly, add vanilla. Bake in a greased tube pan from 45 minutes to 1 hour in a slow oven at a temperature of 300 deg. to 325 deg. F.

SPONGE CAKE

6 eggs
1 cup sugar
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt

Beat egg whites until very stiff and add ¼ sugar. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored, add remaining sugar and lemon juice and rind. Fold into egg yolks; sift flour and salt together, fold into egg mixture. Bake in ungreased pan 1 hour, first at 300 deg. F. for 15 minutes, increasing heat gradually to 350 deg. F. for last 45 minutes.

WILD DUCKS AND GEESE INCREASE IN CANADA

WASHINGTON — Northern nesting grounds are producing more wild ducks and geese this year than last, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service said.

"Compared to the favorable years of the past, the breeding grounds are still seriously under-populated," Albert Day, director of the service, said.

Day's summary of reports from waterfowl breeding areas in Canada:

Manitoba — Verses from no change to very slight improvement. Early floods caused nesting losses in the large marshes and the river delta areas.

Saskatchewan — Noticeable but small improvement over 1947, especially in the south in short-grass plains. Some losses may be expected in the rapidly drying area southwest and west of Regina.

Alberta — A definite increase. Prospects for "a fair production" seem good but drought conditions may reduce the gains in eastern Alberta.

Northern Canada — Improved production expected in the Lake Claire marshes and the Garden Lake area. Breeding populations appear about the same as last year with the possibility of a moderate increase.

British Columbia — Production value still in doubt due to severe floods. Curlew district apparently has a reduced duck population.

Predicts Death Rate Increase

NEW YORK — An increase in the death rate during the next 25 years is predicted by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company here.

By 1975 we shall have at least one and maybe four more deaths per 1,000 population each year than the 10 per 1,000 that we have now.

But the average Americans will be living several years longer than he does now, the statisticians figure. It is this increased life span, they expect, that will increase the death rate.

An increase in the average length of life means that there will be a larger proportion of older people in the population. This in turn will lead to a larger number of deaths per 1,000 population.

If the present death rate of about 10 per 1,000 continued," the statisticians point out, "it would ultimately result in an average lifetime of 100 years. In the present state of our knowledge, to expect that the average person will live that long would be to indulge in wishful thinking.

"Actually the average length of life in the United States is now close to 67 years. In a stationary population, the death rate corresponding to this figure would be about 15 per 1,000 — a figure half again that currently to be experienced.

The reason for the much more favorable death rate which now prevails lies in the high proportion of people at the childhood and early adult ages, the periods of life when mortality is lowest.

A DOOR
By JANE DALE

Suddenly a door opens and through its shining portal a loved one steps. Gently the door closes and we are left behind to carry on the work allotted to us.

When our tears fall no more we know that beyond that door are our treasures, far richer than silver or gold—our treasures in Heaven.

Humbly and lovingly we labor on making this world a little better for us having lived in it, until the shining door opens and we too step through.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

COOKING SAFEGUARDS HEALTH OF HUMANITY

The Human race may has gradually developed from food-borne diseases by making over the prohibitive methods used in the past.

Today most foods usually are safely consumed, even if any bacteria or disease-producing germs that may be present are killed. Some food-borne poisons still a long way from perfection are steadily decreasing.

There are new foods on the world's market which cause shock to state products but caused more disease, suspense and death than all other foods combined. Thickened in cooking, the cereals best all-round cooking item of diet.

And despite the fact that it is universally known that cooking kills harmful germs most of the world's milk remains practically drunk uncooked unpasteurized milk.

In Canada the situation is slowly changing for the better. One province, Ontario, has a milk pasteurization law which is 90 per cent effective as far as sale of milk for human consumption is concerned. Many municipalities in the other provinces have enacted pasteurization laws and the list is growing steadily.

However milk consumed in Canada today is unpasteurized and the Health League of Canada the Dominion's leading voluntary health education association — currently is campaigning for public to demand pasteurization and summer resort operators throughout the nation that pasteurized milk is safe milk that unpasteurized milk is dangerous.

Science has proven that unpasteurized or raw milk can carry germs which cause such dread diseases as tuberculosis typhoid paratyphoid, septic sore throat and undulant fever. Pasteurization kills such disease-ordered bacteria and makes milk safe for human consumption and does NO harm to its nutritive value.

Queen Wilhelmina Ready to Retire at 68 Adds New Look to Line of Royalty

By L. W. PHELPS-ORSON

QUEENS and queens usually abdicate only under the jackboot pressure of political or emotional crisis. They cling to their throne like leeches and relish a place back from exile at the earliest possible moment. Yet today the world's longest reigning royalty — Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands — is staging a clean break with tradition. Methodically calmly she is preparing for retirement at 68 with the businesslike air of a resigning company director.

On August 31st, all Holland celebration her golden jubilee. Then, in less than a week, she expects to abdicate in favor of her only daughter, Princess Juliana. Characteristically, the throne itself is having new cushions made for the occasion. In 50 years Queen Wilhelmina has twice worn out the velvet.

Weary of the ordeal of queenship, she has in reality been Queen of Holland for 32 years. No other woman in history has established such a record. Though her jubilee dates from her inauguration at Amsterdam as a lovely girl of 16, she came to the throne when only 10 years old.

"You Belong To Them"

Children were younger then than now. Her father died and her mother took her onto the balcony to show her to the people. "Do all these people belong to me?" she asked. Her mother replied, "No, my child. You belong to them."

It was the first step of a lonely human odyssey. Playing with her kids amid the lonely grandeur of her drab Calvinist palace, Wilie Wilhelmina used to threaten to make them queens. "Then," she'd chide, "You'll know what it is like not to have anyone to play with." Her chief companion was her English governess, Miss Jane-Winter. Sometimes, after being punished, the yellow-haired prim child would announce, "I shan't be let out on the balcony and promise to the Dutch people how badly I am treated."

As she grew older, there came what one biographer has called the "Victorian vision." A meeting with old Queen Victoria at Windsor enabled in her the desire to become a queen-mother to her 40,000,000 subjects in the Netherlands and overseas. When her inauguration drew near, her Ministers presented a speech they had drawn up for her. But the Queen tore it up. "This will never do," she exclaimed, "I alone know what I am going to say to my people and it isn't this rigmarole."

Comes 1940, and the dream is frustrated. The Dutch empire is a sitting duck for the automobile United States of Indonesia, spreading Chinese influence between Dutch and Japanese troops and the future is anyone's guess. Instead, the Queen Wilhelmina books back through 68 years and must rest content that she has done her best.

She has been hooked by Communist despatches and given the Nazis inside her inviolate Dutch fascists. When he was born, direct great-grandaughter to the William of Orange who assumed the Crown after the epoch-one wars, the people "frowned on to cheer" for fear of waking the royal baby. There came the time when the Nazi paralyzers landed in the garden of the royal palace in their abortive kidnapping attempt. Next year the Queen refused to live in the Royal Palace, with its old-fashioned heating system and threat of fuel scarcity. Through the twists and turns of this troubled century she has always ruled with wisdom and dignity.

Modernism

Before a destroyer brought her through an air-raid to England she had always avoided the microphone. Then, to bring on a quarterly family Christmas broadcasts over Radio Orange, the Dutch transferred control of the BBC which counted so much on the Resistance of the Dutch underground front. It was a symptom of her ever-increasing modernism. The younger Dutch generation had formerly criticized her for being too austere, too set and elderly. When she returned to Holland the Queen showed a new mood by appointing two young people as her private secretaries. One, Miss Julie Grooss, was a young working woman, the other, a school-teacher's son. Recently had her subjects got over this surprise than the Queen appointed another young woman, Miss A. Tellegen, to be Director of the Cabinet, a post usually filled by a man.

In middle-age, in fact, Wilhelmina has proved herself the same perfectly strong character as at 21, when she attended a review of her troops at 4 a.m. and instantly dismissed the General Officer Commanding for being two seconds late. Years ago, before the House of Orange gained its present popularity, rioting occurred at the Hague and ministers advised her to seek the seclusion of her country estate.

PRINCESS JULIANA

QUEEN WILHELMINA

Instead, Wilhelmina rode out in an open carriage, practically unattended, through the crowds and greeted by the very heart of the rioting centre. Her gesture was recognized, and the students who had been defying law and order a moment before cheered up themselves hoarse. Then they unharnessed the horses and pulled the Queen back to the palace in triumph.

Or again, as a similar instance of her wilfulness that mingles with sternness in her character, there was the time when her cousin carriage waited to take her to a somewhat grand reception. After 30 minutes of waiting and anxious searching, when the Queen could not be found, the carriage went on empty without her. Yet it turned out that Wilhelmina was there first. At the last moment she had decided to enjoy a run on her bicycle.

But what sort of woman is she behind the scenes, this publicized queen who has endured for so long the full light of the throne? In retirement she proposes to forego her State income of 1,650,000 yearly (already voluntarily reduced to help Holland's way of recovery). Actually, in cash value as well as power, the Queen is one of the richest women in Europe, thanks to shrewd investments in such enterprises as Royal Dutch Petroleum, the Zeeland Steamship Company and the Netherlands Trading Company. Her total fortune has been estimated at $21,000,000. In addition, a large income is derived from the rents of tenancels on the Royal estates.

Rich, she is also generous. The flower-girls of the Hague have sometimes been asked to empty their baskets at the Palace gates for top market prices. "Queen Willy" has cleared the walls of her home of the works of Rembrandt. "They are dead," she says, "and do not need my help."

The old masters were replaced with paintings by modern Dutch artists which the Queen herself had discreetly collected. Even the curtains themselves sometimes remained

New Appointments In Green Cross Insecticides

With the further expansion of its personnel and research staff, Mr. A. M. Carter, General Manager, Green Cross Insecticides, announces two new appointments.

Mr. Herbert A. Pass has been promoted to the position of Director of Research and Head of the Technical Department. Chief Entomologist at Green Cross since the inception in 1945, Mr. Pass is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and was formerly with the Dominion Department of Agriculture as Insect Pest Investigator and as a Senior Forest Protection Officer in the Yukon Territories. During the war, he was in charge of the Agriculture Department's insect control programmes in storage grain bosks and has had extensive experience with stored product insects in grain elevators and dehydration plants. He has had wide experience in insect and disease regulatory work and was also engaged in various insect surveys and investigations. He assisted in the first trials of DDT in Canada.

Mr. Pass is the author of "Modern Pest Control for Farm and Home", of which more than a quarter-million copies have been published to date. For the past three years he has directed an extensive program of field demonstrations which have farmers across Canada and supervised the laboratory and greenhouse testing work of the Green Cross organization. In his new post, Mr. Pass will have charge of the work of the specialists in entomology, plant pathology and chemistry employed by Green Cross Insecticides in laboratories and field stations in Aylmer, Rougemont and Winnipeg.

Mr. W. Sterling McLeod has resigned as Assistant Professor of Entomology at the University of Alberta to become Chief Entomologist of Green Cross Insecticides.

Mr. McLeod is a graduate of the University of Alberta, MacDonald College and McGill University. He has conducted intensive research studies on the boating of cereal insecticides, and results for this project with the Imperial Parasite Service in the Eastern United States during the five years in which he served on the staff of the Department of Entomology at the University of Manitoba, he carried out studies in morphology, economic entomology and agriculture.

For the past two years, Mr. McLeod occupied the post of Dean of Men at the University of Manitoba. He is the author of many agricultural bulletins and articles published in Canadian agricultural journals. While in Winnipeg, he was secretary-treasurer of the Entomological Society of Manitoba and a Director of the Manitoba Beekeepers Association.

In his new position, Mr. McLeod's headquarters will be in Montreal.

In announcing these two appointments, Mr. Carter stated that the expanding research program included the synthesis of new chemicals now under test at Green Cross stations.

Studying Polio

Survey Shows Infantile Paralysis More Numerous Among Adults

NEW YORK.—Infantile Paralysis is striking down more teen agers and adults and few infants, a world-wide survey of the disease showed. The report came from Dr. Albert S. Bakin, Professor of Research Pediatrics, University of Cincinnati, at the first International Poliomyelitis Conference here. He disclosed that the trend toward the older groups is strongest in such cities as Copenhagen, Berlin and London, but that the age group affected by the disease also is on the increase in the United States.

The fact that 82 per cent. of the 1938 paralytic cases in Copenhagen in 1944 occurred in individuals over 15 years of age is perhaps an indication of what may be expected elsewhere in due time," he told the conference.

The conference, sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, is being attended by 200 delegates from many foreign countries.

Bakin reported that in 1944, 3.7 per cent. of the polio victims in officials in the United States were over 15. Today, 35 per cent. are over 15, he said.

"The inescapable fact is that, regardless of how you analyze it, poliomyelitis is becoming less and less a disease of infants in many parts of the world," he said.

Tracing a pattern of polio epidemics, notably in Europe and the United States, Dr. Bakin showed that the trends of the diseases noted years ago, and in many outbreaks today, may be the future trends in the United States.

Bakin said there were several theories why the age group was rising.

One he said, may be the result of the latest immunity which has caused some mild, unnoticed contact with the disease in early life. Another theory, he said, might be the rising of hygienic standards in certain countries. It has been known that polio strikes mostly in communities where children live better and live free a more hygienic life. Science has been unable to explain the phenomenon

He cited another theory to account for changes that have occurred in the incidence, age selection and severity of polio in certain areas in the past 50 years. It suggests, he said, that the changes may be due to some subtle influence—water, soil, the dirt which resulted in differences in constitutional resistance among people of various regions with different environmental and ways of life.

NEW YORK.—How to keep your children away from infantile paralysis as far as this can be done, was explained at the first international Polio Conference.

Some is the most dangerous place. If anyone in a home gets the disease, or becomes a carrier, the infantile association spreads polio faster than other more known way. From a polio home the disease

Havens For The Displaced

ONE OF THE GREATEST and most grave of the human problems arising from the war is that of the hundreds of thousands of displaced persons left in the areas of Germany, Austria and Italy now occupied by the Western powers. Accommodated in camps, these people have awaited the fulfilment of the promise that they would some day be given the opportunity of finding new homes and making their living in lands where their freedom and independence would be assured. Although this intention has not been altered in any way, and havens have been found for many, a great many more are still waiting to be placed, after more than forty months in "D P" camps.

Some Returned To Native Land

In spite of the fact that the International Refugee Organization reduced the number of people in its care by 214,000 during the first year it was in operation, 808,000 remained to be placed at the end of 1946. Of the 344,000 removed from the camps, 77,000 were repatriated and 167,000 emigrated overseas and to various parts of Europe. It was intended that homes should be found for all displaced persons in the Western-occupied areas inside of three years, and it is apparent that the work will have to be considerably accelerated if this time limit is to be met. Lack of shipping space and the fact that many of the 21 countries which had participated in the formation of the Refugee Organization were willing to accept, for the most part, only able-bodied workers for specific tasks, have made the problem loom

* * * *

More Progess Now Expected

It is now expected that there will be greater progress in the undertaking as shipping space becomes more secure and more countries are willingness to accept displaced persons and it is now hoped that 200,000 will be placed during the next year. Twenty per cent. of these are physically go to Northern America where the demand is the greatest. An equal number are expected to go to Latin America, while the United States will absorb 100,000 during the next two years. Australia plans to receive the same number eventually, and has provided for the arrival of 20,000 next year. Canada has expressed the intention of opening her doors to 50,000 such people, and to 10,000 in succeeding years, to meet the need remains. Canada has already admitted 40,000 displaced persons and Canadians have reason to be proud of the part their country is playing in solving this great world problem.

Saskatchewan Men Buy Alberta Coal Mine

EDMONTON. — A group of businessmen headed by M. J. Coldwell, Regina have bought the Lakeside Cmda Ltd. mine at Robb, Alta., 35 miles north of Edson, Alta., for about $300,000, it was learned here.

A contract for the purchase was signed four years ago and it is estimated it will cost about $250,000 to put it in operation again. The mine has developed a hard type of coal.

Other Saskatchewan men concerned in the purchase are Ray D. Tremble, James Matheson and Hugh Swift Current, Alvin Booker, Lorne Kerr and J. A. Matheson, all of Gull Lake.

HELENE WILES CLEARED WITHOUT EXAMINATION

LONDON.— Nearly 900,000 elderly persons in Britain who own glasses have never had their sight tested, Sir William Douglas, secretary to the ministry of health, said.

He said that during a medical survey in Wolverhampton a few days of those questioned said their glasses were unsatisfactory, while one-sixth were glasses bought from a general store.

BLAME CHICKEN HAWK FOR CHILD'S DEATH — A marauding chicken hawk was blamed by grandmother Mrs. Jessie Nesbitt as she pointed to the death of five-months-old Jeanne Nesbitt as she lay in a cot in the corridor of the Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, B.C. Quebec. While the child's mother, Mrs. Jean Nesbitt, was busy with her housework, police believe the hawk, which already has killed 40 of the chickens in the district, darted in the baby's cot. Mrs. Nesbitt found the child dead when she went to bring it in. Parts of the baby's face had been torn away and the eyes partially clawed

Church In Need Of Ministers

VANCOUVER United Church of Canada is 685 ministers short and finds it hard to find men for its expanding work.

Low pay causes the pulpit shortage, some ministers suggested at the church's general council here.

Rev. Allan H. Perry of Toronto said the meagre pension is "preventing the young men from joining the ministry."

Said another Toronto minister Rev. H. O. Fallis: "Too many of our ministers, particularly younger men are leaving the ranks, some for other fields of service and others to minister in our sister church across the international boundary."

Butter Supply Assured For Winter Months

OTTAWA — Assuring Canada's consumers of an adequate butter supply throughout the winter months, the Canadian Government has reached arrangements for the purchase from Denmark and Australia of a substantial 6,000,000 pounds of butter bringing the total amount to be imported to approximately 11,000,000 pounds, it was announced here

In making the announcement R. Mc. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce said he thought the importation of butter would take care of the monetary requirements during the seasonal shortage in the country

Wedding Bells

St. Paul's United Church, Hardisty was the scene of an autumn double wedding, when two sisters, Jayne Doreen Bebee and Helena Maxine Bebee, were united to the holy bonds of matrimony. Miss Doreen became the bride of Mr. John Sawchyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sawchyn of Tofamedium, and Miss Helena was united to Mr. Arne Hans Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bush of Forrydth. The Rev. J. P. Sutliff officiated.

The church was decorated with floral and baby mums, candles and autumn leaves. The brides were given in marriage by their father, Mr. Doreen, entering the church on the arm of her father, wore a light blue suit with brown accessories and a corsage of pink and yellow rose buds. Miss Helena, entering the church with her brother, chose a navy gabardine suit with grey accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds.

Others were Mr. Joseph Bebee and Mr. Bert Hill. The music was played by Miss Jean Chopay, who, during the signing of the register, played, "O Perfect Love".

After the ceremony a reception was held at the brides home, where a buffet luncheon was served. The brides' table was decorated with a lace cloth and two wedding cakes. For the occasion Mrs. Bebee wore a pink grey afternoon dress with a corsage of wine mums and yellow rose buds. Mrs. Bush wore a light grey dress with corsage of red carnations. Toast to the brides was proposed by Mr. Fred Lang.

The wedding couples left later by car for a short honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Sawchyn will reside in Edmonton and Mr. and Mrs. Bush will live at Forrydth.

DORMITORY NEWS

We have sure got some very good sports in the Dorm, so there is no question day. Harry Cranston was seen wearing a lovely print dress with all the trimmings and Chard in his new look shirt and Sam Mayne in his black one, really made pretty looking girls. And you should have seen the girls! Some of them were unrecognizable under a deluge of make-up. It looked as if Blanche had contracted smallpox, and Irene was some relation to a Zebra. Those good down grade losers not only carried the load of initiation at school, but had to perform stunts in the Dorm. At supper time they served the grade eleven and twelves, and then had to eat by themselves. They got ice cream that night, and I think they deserved it. Yes, all in all we've got a lot of fine sentiments in these grade losers.

Say "Bim" what are you doing all that evening for? Women!

The kids have been treated to some pretty smart music this week. The Dorm Dodgers have organized a lovely orchestra. Honest they are real lovely.

It seemed as though most of us spent most of our spare time down effecting this week. Maybe we couldn't let all that music go astray.

Seen: Ralph back from an extended holiday. Or was it a holiday?

It seems as if Don had contracted a "Shiner". No claims that 6 fellows jumped him in a dark alley, and before he knocked out the guy somebody stuck his toe in Don's eye. Believe it or not.

The girls lived it up at another new dorm all week. If it is to judge by the great array of homemade that were assembled every night.

Central's first party will be held in the K.P. Hall on Tues. Oct. 26th.

We were all happy to see Bob Prichard back in our midst for a day last week.

Seen: The kids from Strome standing around for some time after school. What's wrong kids, do you like school that well?

A number of the girls of the Dorm and Sedgewick are taking up shooting under Mr. McGee.

Miss Haynes has organized a troop of Rangers. They are seven strong.

Maxine is out to find and crucify the character who fixed her bed. I wonder who did?

School Orchestra: Dave Gibson, Clarinet; Jack Cumberland, Trombone Bill Keith, Banjo; Geoff Martin (Mgr.), Drums; Pat Stuart, Piano; Mr. C. Harris (Inst); Joan Hendrie and Jane Marlow (Pianos).

Central Hi-Lights

By Student Union Press Reporter

The big event of the week was the initiation which was held on Tuesday. The boys look quite charming in their shirts, while many of them looked as if an epidemic of measles had broken out. The high light of the day was the parade down town we were. We consider all the grade 10'ers very good sports and we take our hats off to you kids.

EDUCATION CLUB MEETS AT FORESTBURG

On October 16th some twenty-five members from various parts of the inspectorate journeyed to Forestburg for a regular meeting of the Killam Inspectorate Education Club. Schools represented included, Central High School, Daysland, Holden, Round Hand Creek, Forestburg and Killam. The last was the Gold Star delegation for the evening as all members of the Killam staff were on hand.

Considerable discussion was devoted to school festivals. Plans were made to circularize all teachers in the inspectorate to ascertain which schools would be interested in holding one or more festivals next year, and what type of numbers should be included in the program. Other topics to receive the attention of the teachers included the high school testing program, play-downs for the Inspectorate Track Meet, and the promotion of inter-school debating competitions, and the Blue Cross Plan for hospitalization.

A new rule was unanimously adopted by the meeting; that hereafter no adjournment would be automatic at 11 p.m.

An enjoyable lunch was provided by courtesy of the Forestburg teachers. The next meeting of the Club will be held in Sedgewick on November 15th when the home economics history and is "social arts" shop will be open to the visitors.

FARMERSUN U. F. W. A.

Plans were made to sponsor a dance at Fairgrove on Nov. 2nd with the Hunt Orchestra.

The November meeting will be at home of Mrs. S. Galletly.

WHEAT POOL CELEBRATES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-five years ago on October 29, 1923, the Alberta Wheat Pool started in business. On that date an office was opened in the Lougheed building in Calgary with a staff of about 15 people. From that small beginning this farmer-owned co-operative handling organization has developed into the largest Alberta business. Its assets include 437 country elevators, a 3,150,000 bushel terminal at Vancouver and a two million bushel terminal at Port Arthur. It has handled so much as 53 million bushels of grain in a single year, and has paid a yearly turnover in excess of 60 million dollars. It has branch offices in Edmonton, Vancouver, and also in Winnipeg, and the average number of employees is around 770.

The formation of the Alberta Pool in 1923 grew out of the experiment of Western farmers with the federal government's participation in wheat marketing during and after World War I. The Canadian Wheat Board was dropped in 1920 and shortly afterwards a price decline set in which continued until Dec. 1923, when the wheat reached a low of 81½c a bu.

The farmers tried to get the government to re-establish a Wheat Board. Failing in that effort, they turned their energies towards the building up of a voluntary Wheat Pool. Alberta was the first province to complete a Wheat Pool organization. On September, 1923, over 30,000 farmers had signed contracts to deliver their wheat to the Alberta Wheat Pool.

One of the principle objectives of the Wheat Pool was to secure greater security for the farmers. In this regard, in preference to the open market system with its boome and depressions, the men who organized the Pool sought to obtain, over the years, an average price for wheat which would have a reasonable relationship to cost of production.

"It has been our policy to operate this enterprise along the lines of pure co-operation", says R. D. Purdy, Manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool. "We believe sincerely in principle of co-operation and in its effective power on behalf of the grain growers, nothing can take its place in the protection of security and preservation of hard-won rights and privileges."

PERSONAL STUFF

— By A. W. B —

The dispute in the communist dominated B. C. division of the International Woodworkers of America has aroused attention again on communist activities in Canada. Too many Canadians are prone to view lightly the dangers of communism here. Apparently one hundred thousand dollars of union funds is not accounted for and it is charged that this was spent by the Labor Progressive (or communist) leader in B. C.

* * * *

All across Canada the campaign of the communists, under the guise of the labor progressive political party and under other names and in other ways, seeks to confuse the people of Canada on every question related to the defence of our land. With almost unbelievable hypocrisy they speak the language of the pacifists in opposing preparations for military defence. They try in every way to discredit the European recovery plan because a starving Europe would assist communism there. They seek to create suspicion between Canadians and our good neighbors to the south.

* * * *

Perhaps rightly, many believe that their campaign will have little effect on Canadians of Anglo-saxon or of French descent. What we might be inclined to overlook is that over one quarter of our Canadians are of continental European origin. Many of them do not read our English and French newspapers and hear only the communist propaganda which fills a great deal of the newspapers put out in other languages.

* * * *

While there is now an increasing awareness of the communist attempt to undermine the moral of Canadians there is no general agreement on how to combat them. It would appear that only a small minority of others here believe that this could be accomplished by outlawing the party. It is often when underground, they believe that a greater degree could be made against their propaganda. Communists give their first allegiance to a foreign country, Russia, and therefore forfeit every right to Canadian citizenship.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

RESPONSIBILITY

Every human being has a work to carry on within, duties to perform abroad, influences to exert which are peculiarly his own and which no one else can fulfill. Channing

Much discussion and bitterness are spared to him who thinks naturally upon what he owes to others rather than what he ought to expect from them - Madame Guizot

The vast majority of persons of our race have a natural tendency to shrink from the responsibility of standing and acting alone. Francis Galton.

Sin with the multitude, and your responsibility and guilt are as great and as truly personal as if you alone had done the wrong. — Tryon Edwards.

The most important thought I ever had was that of my individual responsibility to God. Daniel Webster.

If being in disobedience to him we ought to feel no security although God is good. Mary Baker Eddy.

EPIDEMIC DISEASE

Plague, a rat-borne disease, can be traced through history as far back as 1226 B.C. according to the historian, Wu Lien-teh. It was first known in Pakistan, in lower Egypt. The epidemic disease mentioned in the Bible is now believed to have been plague.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU FOUND $500? — PENSIONER HAS ANSWER

VANCOUVER. - Fred Allen, 70-year-old retired C.N.R. locomotive engineer, walked out of his suite and into a hitch on the sidewalk.

He figured it was another of these practical jokes, so kicked the wallet into the gutter.

As it flew through the air he thought he glimpsed a bit of money in it. So he picked up the wallet, put it in his overcoat pocket and went on his way.

A bit earlier, at the same spot, Thomas Hawley had dashed in his pocket for pennies for his grandaughter. In the process he lost his wallet containing $500

It was a good job Fred Allen was the finder. Not everybody has the same feeling toward a rich find like that. And with pensioners pennies count.

When he had a good look at its contents of the wallet, this is the way Fred Allen felt:

"I don't feel crooked."

Then my McDavid, mother and my conscience took hold and I figured it was somebody's life savings."

It was just about The Hawley's planned to use the money as a downpayment on a house.

Today the reluctant-to-talk rail-roader made firm of his honesty.

"I didn't know I had it in me," he blushed. "If you knew how tough it was to part with that roll—more money than I've seen at one time for 20 years.

He retired five years ago after a 50-year career as fireman and at the age of 70 he receives from one end of the country to the other.

Mrs. Allen died two years ago, so now he "batches" with a retired custom man in similar circumstances. They have a lot in common—including "lousy hands of crib".

Back to the Allen philosophy he also said—with a twinkle in his eye: "I'd steal in a poker game too."

The Hawley's gave Fred Allen a present in appreciation.

"They were a fine man," Mr Hawley said.

Fred Allen won't agree— but then he's an old railroader and he likes to think he's pretty hard-boiled.— Vancouver Province.

Living Costs Much Lower in Far North

VANCOUVER. — Housewives that is!

Doc McDonald, of Toronto, said he food ball for a six-month period at Coppermine in Canada's far north was only $70.

And the 24-year-old prospector added: "It would be less if I didn't like coffee and tobacco so much."

Stopping over here on his way home to Toronto McDonald said people don't believe his food-bill story. And they laugh when I tell them Eskimos smoke popular brands of cigarettes."

Sirious steaks in the northern region cost half the price paid by the Canadian housewife.

Indians Find Pemmican Edible After Being Buried 100 Years

ALBERTA'S Indians still make pemmican, from the meat of deer, moose and elk, but they don't make it last as long as the "loaves" of pemmican buried on the hilltops of Alberta more than a hundred years ago.

The summer farmers near Bath found several chunks of the old pemmican on fresh breaking, and its description tallies identically with that of pemmican we found on fresh breaking in the Paddle Valley, about 160 miles northwest of Edmonton, some 30 years ago. The pieces we

CANADA NEEDS LARGER POPULATION

WETBURN. — After travelling throughout the western provinces, Fyerson Christie, Rotary district governor of Cardston, Alta., said they must have need for a much larger population in Canada. Mr Christie was speaking to the Weyburn Rotary club on his official visit to the city.

Mr. Christie said if there were 25,000,000 in the 10,000,000 people here the people here would be assured a better living than at present. He said there would be an improvement on the health of the people, in education, in roads and many directions. He said there are many possibilities here and we have the opportunity developing them.

Mr. Christie said the only thing we lack is the ability to live together in peace.

RECIPES

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE

1 cup sugar
1 cup sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ tablespoons hot milk

Sift and measure sugar. Sift and measure flour and sift three times more with baking powder. Beat the whole eggs until very thick and lemon colored. Add salt and sugar slowly, beating steadily. Add the lemon juice, then fold in the hot milk and flour alternately, mixing only until the batter is smooth.

Pour into unprepared tube pan and bake at 1325 deg. F.) for 60 to 65 minutes; when baked, invert pan carefully on cake rack and let the cake hang until absolutely cold.

POTATO BREAD

½ cup boiling water
1½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon fat
2 cups mashed potato
1 cake compressed yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water
6 cups flour (about) sifted once medium dough
Add salt, sugar and fat to boiling water, cool to lukewarm and add softened yeast and mix well.

Stir flour and knead thoroughly until it no longer sticks to the hand. Place in greased bowl and brush top of dough with melted shortening and cover well. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk (1½ hours). Punch dough down and let rise again until double in bulk as for first rising.

Shape into loaves and let rise again until double in bulk.

Place in oven and bake at 1375 deg. F.) for 20 minutes, reduce heat to 1200 deg. F.) and bake for 60 minutes.

GROWS DOUBLE ORCHID

EDMONTON Edmonton's rugged climate doesn't seem to be the best place for orchids to thrive, but Mrs. D. Widens of the city's east-end Highlands district has produced two full-grown plants in her own parlor. The 2700 one with a rare double blossom

Greek Princess Plans To Farm In West

MONTREAL. — Princess Bourbon, member of the Greek royalty, is a woman who hopes to start life anew in Canada and is off to join her son, Prince Constantin, in Hungary.

The princess, a gracious, middle-aged woman who escaped from the mania last March after the abdications of King Michael, reached Montreal en route to the Empress of Canada.

She told reporters she and her son hope to farm in the West.

"My son is a good farmer," the princess said. "He used to manage the big estates of Rumania and was classed as about growing."

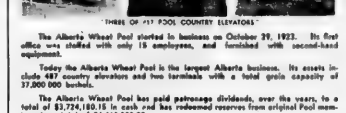
Silver Anniversary



"THREE OF 417 POOL COUNTRY ELEVATORS"

The Alberta Wheat Pool started in business on October 30, 1923. Its first office was shelled with only 15 employees, and furnished with second-hand equipment.

Today the Alberta Wheat Pool is the largest Alberta business. Its assets include 487 country elevators and two terminals with a total grain capacity of 37,000,000 bushels.

The Alberta Wheat Pool has paid patronage dividends, over the years, to a total of $3,724,180.15 in cash and has redeemed reserves from original Pool members to a total of $4,468,893.86.

Alberta Pool Elevators has provided excellent service to patrons and has gained a high reputation for fair dealing. The system has handled as much as 82,000,000 bushels of grain in a single year.

All those, and many other accomplishments, have been achieved by the Wheat Pool members, who have rendered such loyal and devoted service to their own organization over a quarter of a century.

Nothing can take the place of this farmer-owned co-operative in providing security and the preservation of hard-won rights and privileges for the grain producers of this province.

"Make this year a Pool elevator year."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE SPECIAL ROOM

By BASCOM BIGGERS III

Secret The Outside World Did Not Share.

Now, she said, laughing and hugging him. "They're coming from there! They're coming for the anniversary. I can tell!"

Yes and bringing their news here," he said, bending her the letters, "read them for yourself."

When she finished the letters, she looked away the tears that had collected in the corners of her brown eyes and hurried to set lunch on the table. She still had the characteristic little nervousness that remained from the first meal she had cooked for him. They were very appealing then when she was happy as she was now.

"Now," she said, pacing him the bread, "we've got to figure out where we're going to put them."

"Why, that's no problem. Besides the sleeping porch, we've got the bathroom now. The boys can room and the special guest room."

"That special guest room is just the trouble," she said, frowning over the bread knife. "Which one will we put in it?"

The special guest room had always been kind of a secret joke with them and the boys. One in which the entire male world did not share. Wherever there were several guests in the house, they always put the favorites or special ones in the guest room. The elders got up on the sleeping porch. The sleeping porch was nice enough, but it just wasn't the same as having the guest room which had the best of everything in the house. Norma had brought the idea from her family absent a special guest room. It was almost a tradition. It was considered an honor to find a piece of furniture or an article worthy of being put in there.

"I see what you mean," said Sam. "We don't want to show favoritism."

"No," said Norma, shaking her head. "No, we certainly don't.

Oh, Sam," she said, laughing and hugging him. "They're coming from there! They're coming for the anniversary. I can tell!"

Yes and bringing their news here," he said, handing her the letters, "read them for yourself."

"I see what you mean," said Sam. "We don't want to show favoritism."

"No," said Norma, shaking her head. "No, we certainly don't.

She was remembering the terrible time they had when Bobby got it into his head that Harold was the favorite because he was older and had been first. It had started when Harold took a trip with Sam and Bobby wasn't well enough to go.

She had talked to Bobby at great length about it, and they had done many tears over it. She tried to explain, and it wasn't easy to do with a thirteen-year-old that parents couldn't show their children in different ways without loving one more than the other. She tried to show him how it was like with friends, you loved them for different reasons, but that didn't make you love one less than the other. If she had twenty sons, she told him, she would love the last just as much as the first.

But she had never been certain that he understood. As if from that day to this there was always just a portion of fear in the back of her mind that made her wonder what she had done or omitted that she did for the other. No, she couldn't risk it with the special guest room.

"We could just not use it at all," said Sam.

"No," said Norma, "that won't meet suspicions." And then a smile dawned her face and she threw supply what they would do.

"Why, I think the most appeal people in the house but the special guest room. We'll use it. We'll use it with the special guest room. We never have. It will be one anniversary gift for the books."

"Of course," said Sam, getting up and hugging her. "Norma, you're a genius. The boys will love it. And so will I. After twenty-five lonely fall years together, a man and his wife deserve a special room together.

Norma smiled happily, thinking that any room with Sam was a special room.

Arctic Baby Bonus.... How Best To Spend It

It has been names but diehards pro-ling the Eskimos with health instruction, and a visit by the nurse, an depicted dairy. In an altogether too infrequent occurrence. Where the Family Allowance pockets find their way into the igloos of the Arctic, health information and fare of proper prevention will help to mould and feeling.

(Written Specially for the Newspaper Critical Press Combine)

To catch the eye of Eskimo mothers, a unique system is devised in Eskimo syllabics and telling how best to spend family allowance money in the land of ice and snow, is now being distributed throughout the Canadian Arctic regions.

Issued by the department of national health and welfare, this poster, first of its kind in the world, gives evidence of the far-reaching humanitarian benefits of Canada's social security program. For not only does the Canadian government give every mother in Canada, rich or poor, a monthly cheque to help buy food and clothing for her children, but the government also provides mothers with information on how best to spend their allowance to the best advantage. Even the Eskimo mother in the frozen north has the supply ship makes her rounds of the north.

With its dramatic photo of an Eskimo mother and her papoose the big card tells Canadian Eskimos the items they may purchase with their family allowance money. Translated from the Eskimo tongue, the items listed on this history-making poster appear as:

Cereal or evaporated milk; baby cereal; flour, Canada approved vitamin B early; rolled oats, oatmeal, and hospital; sugar, corn syrup molasses, marmalade, jam; fresh or powdered eggs; peanut butter, cheese, margarine or fresh meat; fresh or dried fruit, fruit juices, canned tomatoes; ground or dehydrated vegetables, rice, beans, salt, baking powder.

Other items listed for the Eskimos are: Clothing materials and baby clothes, footwear, shirts, caps, mitts, woollen underwear; yarn, thread, needles, soap, baby powder, baby oil, sun glasses, feeding bottles, nipples, rare milk whippers.

There are close to 8,000 Eskimos living in Canada's northland, according to the last Dominion census. Their general health and living standards are reported to be low. Family allowances are already relieving and preventing much suffering in the lonely igloos

Clothing Items which the Canadian Eskimos may purchase with their family allowance money are listed on the history-making poster. The mother of this little youngster can be sure that he would not relish a stiff, as he cheerfully takes his very first step.

Love For Farm Cow Kills Wild Moose

BARRIE, Ont. — A wild bull moose died from electrocution after the lungs — lovesick for a red cow in a farmer's barnyard.

His struggles were brought on by struggles with men who waded in lake him away from the farmyard and back to his natural habitat.

The 1,200-pound moose wandered out of the bush, struck up a friendship with the red cow on Lawrence Gilmore's farm near Port Carling, died 20 miles north of here on Georgian Bay.

Lands Department officials discovered a wire had been looped around the animal in a settled area with the hunting season long over.

They loosened and trucked him away to a province ad park.

But the park pens weren't strong enough to hold him so he was taken to a barn on another nearby farm where he died.

Standards Of Health

IT IS ENCOURAGING TO LEARN of the progress which has been made by medical science in conquering disease and prolonging life. While we hear a great deal about that battle against disease, concrete facts concerning the results which are achieved are not always so well known. Recent statistics published in Canada, show that the average life span here has been increased since the beginning of the century from 44 years to 60 years. In the United States, life expectancy is at present 67 years, almost a year more than the figure for 1941, and nearly two years longer than in 1939 one of the reasons for the rise in the average life span in both countries is believed to be the decrease in infant and maternal mortality rates which have taken place during the past few years.

* * * * *

While the normal life expectancy has been lengthened considerably, there are still a number of diseases which take a high toll of people in later life and there is still much to be done to improve present standards of health. According to one subject, published by the Royal Bank of Canada. It was pointed out that there should be no complacency over our present records, but that unremitting efforts should be made to further decrease mortality rates and lengthen the number of years which the average person may expect to live. It suggests that what is now needed is a general realization of "the possibilities of healthful living rather than complacency over reduction of death rates," and that the schools are the best places in which to introduce programmes of healthful living to our people.

* * * * *

Much is Done in Schools

A survey commenced in 1943 by the Canadian Education Association and the Canadian Association and the Canadian Association resulted in the conclusion that greater interest should be shown by the school and the community in the physical welfare of the children as well as in their mental and emotional problems. It is now agreed that good physical health is necessary to a child if he is to progress satisfactorily in school and that a healthier child is a better child. The benefits of our children will undoubtedly have far reaching results in laying the foundations for a generation of healthier and more mentally alert adults. Especially in the province has been taken by the schools in the welfare of the pupils in matters of nutrition, dental care, mental and emotional problems and physical defects. While there are still many aspects in the question which require study, and many people to be educated to higher standards, it is apparent that the school is one place in which much can be accomplished in building healthier communities and eventually further reducing mortality rates and increasing the average life span of the people

Still Take High Toll

In a recent article published by the Financial Post, it was pointed out that there should be no complacency over our present records, but that unremitting efforts should be made to further decrease mortality rates and lengthen the number of years which the average person may expect to live. It suggests that what is now needed is a general realization of "the possibilities of healthful living rather than complacency over reduction of death rates," and that the schools are the best places in which to introduce programmes of healthful living to our people.

HONEY CROP

The Canadian honey crop in 1946 is currently estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 43,388,000 pounds or 14.5 per cent more than was harvested in 1947. This is a preliminary figure as the crop was not all harvested at the time the estimate was made. A revised estimate will be released in December

Fire Losses In Canada Show Increase

Although five of Canada's nine provinces showed lower per capita fire losses in 1947 than in 1946, the Dominion as a whole recorded an increase from $4.01 to $4.33 per capita.

The five provinces where increases occurred were British Columbia from $3.81 to $6.01, Manitoba from $3.69 to $3.14, Nova Scotia from $4.11 to $5.46, Ontario from $3.96 to $4.55.

The number of fires generally was down in the Dominion, but a substantial proportion of the larger monetary loss was due to the increased number of large fires where the loss exceeded $50,000.

These large fires numbered 180 with an aggregate financial loss of $20.2 millions. In 1946 there were 135 such fires with a total loss of $13.6 millions.

Lowest per capita loss on usual was shown by Saskatchewan at $1.75.

Second to Saskatchewan came Alberta with a per capita loss of $2.50. conditions in Alberta being somewhat similar to those in Saskatchewan, although Alberta is more highly industrialized.

Highest per capita loss was shown by British Columbia at $6.01, against $5.41 in 1946. Total losses in British Columbia at over $13 millions were proven substantially by a number of large fires, one at Port Alberni amounting to $2 millions, another in Yale County to $200,000 and one in Victoria County of $371,000. In addition there were a number of other fires with losses of over $100 000

Prevention Of Future Floods To Be Costly

WINNIPEG — Prevention of future floods will be costly, engineers surrounding the Red River —which sweeps up through the Dakotas to its Lake Winnipeg home in mid-central Manitoba—will cost approximately $17,000,000

City Engineer W. D. Hurst made that report following an extended survey of the river in company with engineers from the Provincial, Dominion and United States governments.

The survey was prompted by flood conditions last spring, when millions of dollars worth of damage was caused when the river went on its yearly rampage within the memory of old-timers.

Approximately $1,500,000 already has been spent on flood control work by the United States Government in the valley, and $2,500,000 more is being utilized and authorization has been granted for another $12,500,000 worth of work.

KILLAM SCHOOL DIV. CO-OPERATES WITH OTHER SCHOOL GROUPS

(By Dr. J. W. Chalmers)

From the time the Killam School Division was first formed, it has been school board policy to accept students in rural schools who live in near-by districts but in other directions. This is a courtesy that has been extended to and reciprocated by those divisions without payment of tuition fees on either side.

With the closing of most rural schools this custom has almost fallen into disuse, to be replaced by more formal agreements with other school authorities. Thus Alsask Public School operates with children from Green View and Meadow View districts in Custer Division. This division provides transportation and pays as tuition fee per day per pupil. Killam Division pays the same fee for children from Camrose and Plesiantan districts attending the Galahad Consolidated School, and in addition operates a van into Galahad. The same rate applies for children from Bellshill, Woodrow, and Mirror districts, who attend the Forthesburg Consolidated School. An additional amount is paid to the Forthesburg board to transport the divisional pupils into Forresburg.

A three-way agreement involving Killam, Edgerton Division and Provost S. D. is especially interesting. The three divisions concerned in the Hardisty board the exact cost of operating two of the six rooms in its school, Lucknow and Pine Lake, and the janitor's salaries, fuel, supplies etc. During the school year 1947-8 about 20 pupils attended from Killam Division and about 60 from Provost Division. At the end of the two rooms was shared on a pro rata basis, Killam Division was able to take care of the education of the children from two districts, Velva and Strome, for half the cost of operating one room and the cost of the bus service. This agreement continues in force during the current school year.

Discussions last spring between the trustees and other officials of the Killam and Provost Division Lave resulted in an agreement for the rural education at the high school level. An Provost Division has no dormitory, students from that area are accepted by the Divisional Board at Sedgewick on the same basis as students from Killam Division. Provost Division is charged an tuition, the same fee as is charged for those attending the Central High School in Sedgewick — the amount to be determined as the total school enrollment. Under this agreement, students from centres such as Hardisty, Amisk, Hughenden, and Provost are attending Central High School.

Outside students attend other schools operated by the Killam Division. Holden Division regularly has its quota taking Grade 11 or high school at Daysland; and this year there are two from that division taking Grade 11 at Sedgewick.

BAKER — CARMICHAEL

The Sedgewick United Church, decorated with flowers, potted plants and burning tapers, was the scene on a pretty 2:00 p.m. wedding on Friday October 29th, when Mary Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Absalom Carmichael Sedgewick was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Reginald Chandler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Baker and the late Mrs. Baker, also of Sedgewick. The Rev. M. M. Mackenzie officiated.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Wilson, was becomingly attired in a one-length white nylon net-over-satin with matching veil, adorned with a double strand string of pearls, a gift of her fiance, and her eight month birthday, and carrying a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Sheila, daughter of the bride and Miss Joan Vielhaber, dressed alike in blue nylon net floor-length dresses, over satin, ages of pink roses. Best man was Mr. Duncan McGregor and ushers were Grant Charron and Fred Allen.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket and in the bridesmaids' rings. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Howard Smith rendered beautifully the well known selection, "Bernese."

Following the ceremony, reception rooms were held at the home of the bride's parents at 7:00 and 12 00 p m., to which approximately a hundred relatives and friends were present to a sumptuous banquet.

M. C. at 7:00 p.m. was Mac MacLean. Toast to the bride and groom was proposed by C. E. Blakeney and responded to by the groom; toast to the bridesmaids was given by H. B. Hay and replied to by Damon Bengoger; Rev. MacLean gave a toast to the bride's mother, to which the bride's father replied; a special toast was proposed by Rev. MacLean to Mrs. A. D. Carmichael, the bride's grandmother, to which Miss Annie Carmichael responded. At the 12 o p.m. reception the toast to the bride's parents was given by Mr. Hay and responded to by the groom.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. A. D Carmichael, Mrs. and Miss Annie and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Tallboth, all of Edmonton; Mrs. W. Victorson and Kathryn and Gilda; Mr. and Mrs Harry Baker of Indiana and Mr. Lyle Baker of Jasper.

After a short honeymoon in Edmonton, the young couple will on at home to their friends in Sedgewick.

PERSONAL STUFF
— By A. W. B. —

To the uninitiated in public affairs, and the unprogressive amongst the ever-changing ways of daily things, has a saddening effect; to those who are visibly alive to the changing world conditions, these new methods now perhaps received with more enthusiasm. In my own mind two particular things have been wrought in recent years, both of which have caused considerable pro and con by those who seek to maintain the status quo in our civilization.

• • • •

The first is the changes that have been brought about in the marriage vows. Now, when I get married (and only I differently remember that my intended will add "I do" when queried if she would take me) I definitely remember that I ever made such a promise, but that's besides the point. The point is that we find that the word OBEY has been deleted, and we now find ourselves in the position of not knowing who is boss in the house (and that ain't good). We, who are old hands in the marriage game are always say, "remember?" when P. W. (friend wife) gets out of hand and tries to change the established status today finds himself on the same level with his spouse (that ain't good either). We have, handed down from from unscient and honorable ancestors, the well observed theory that there can only be one boss in the house, and that's the guy who wears the pants (the ankle variety that is)

When the white man took over this country it was inhabited by a race of aspersion who knew how and who should rule the teepee. Women folk (the word brought home the bacon, while the old man gained his honor in scalping and generally rubbing skin with his neighbors. He went south in the fall and north in the spring doing census the while apparently he can improve on a system like that.

• • • •

The second change is in our system of education (once more I say that when I was a boy things were different When the first of September rolled around, we bought a new slate, an arithmetic book, a speller and a scribbler or two and a pencil). We assembled unwillingly to school, were given a seat and from that time on we attended to the three R's (more strictly to the page of book and rules laid down by the teacher. We never left our desks nor laid down our work until the bell gave us proper permission. We had to pass each and every subject each year or else the entire grade all over again. We got liberal applications of the strap on various sections of the anatomy (ears have almost a knot with modern vocabularies). We sat away with plenty though. Don't think we dumb

Today, we find students purchasing books of every kind and color (and even forever-leaving pens and wondering about the classroom and the school board. They have hammers, wrenches saws files, electric ranges, stoves, hot and cold running water and the even cook stuff, and worst of all they have to eat it.

Yes, education has undergone a big change since the days when WE suffered through our X plus Y's but I still think the change is for the better. The work is easier, passing is easier, and this all fits in with Mr. Hitler's statement that the west ern civilization is going 'soft'.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

"GOODNIGHT SWEETHEART"

Reminiscing Scenes Of An Almost Forgotten Past

By JOHNNY ROWLEY

CHARLEY PERRIN had always had a Goodnight sweetheart for the last thing before going to bed, but they were first matured. He had continued the practice when he married Sally, but when her own boys and now that he was seventy-three he saw no reason for giving it up.

Goodnight sweetheart he murmured standing in the dusk of the upstairs room in his daughter's home.

He didn't get into bed immediately but stood and stood by the window overlooking the garden. It was hot with the heat of late summer after a scorching day and was only now at long last beginning to cool off. He could hear already drinking in of the warm glow of the moon scarcely thinking when he caught the moonlit waves from the rumpus of green grass around the small summer house.

He didn't mean to eavesdrop but the voices drifted up to him on the evening breeze every now and then. It was a pair of lovers who were there and listened.

His granddaughter Dorothy. Dot as he was to the family was almost the image of his wife when they were first married. For that reason he had always thought more of Dot than other grandchildren and only today he had heard that she and Dick Albright were on the verge of making up. The news had bothered him, but he thought a lot of Dick, both and had been looking forward to the day when they would be man and wife. Indeed to marry and settle down.

All forms of help had been offered. But nothing you could do to trust each other. He shook his head. He'd just have to wait and see what it was.

It had to be confided with that he'd have to wait for some time. The voices had now sunk to a mere hum and

It is said Dick was earnestly trying to make this thing work out for good to trust each other. Dick's gift was based on the fact that he did not have had written to him.

Dot had gone back almost for a week. Dot you hear that Nancy" he asked. He says they've got to trust each other. He thinks he's in love that time I had to get to Chicago and was a day late in getting back." That was bad enough but when you found the photo

He shook his head to get rid of the image and looked again into the garden. Dick had hold of both her hands and was talking earnestly. She was looking up into his eyes and in the dim light of the moon he thought he could see a smile on her face.

They stood like that talking for some time and then they could see that Dick was about to leave. The fear he had forgotten in his own reminiscing returned with a rush, a deadening suspect. It seemed that everything must be right, but he couldn't be sure. He strained to catch what they were saying but their tones were never non

Then he heard Dot say Quick-ly, the old man thought. He turned to go and paused when he reached the gate which led around in front of the house. He turned for an instant and for that brief moment the old man could see his face clearly in the moonlight. "Goodnight, sweetheart" he called softly. The moon made silvery ripples on the grass.

Charley Perrin straightened up, a smile on his lips. The fear he had felt all along was gone and in its place an exultation he had felt only once before the night he had proposed to his wife.

"Did you hear that, Nancy?" he demanded. "Everything's all right. The trouble is all patched up." He turned from the window, leaving the room and in his own part. He paused but an instant before he got in long enough to switch on the light and look at the picture of a dark-haired laughing girl in a high-collared long-sleeved dress which stood on his bureau.

"Goodnight, sweetheart, he whispered and then turned off the light and sank back against the pillow with a contented sigh.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," he murmured once again before his eyes fell shut.

Redwater Well Big Producer

EDMONTON — Imperial Oil Redwater No. 1, discovery well 200 miles northwest of Edmonton and 50 miles northeast of Leduc, has demonstrated a flow open flow potential of over 1,700 bbls. a day, may prove even larger when further acidization is complete

Initial testing before acidization of the 3,364-ft well with an 140 ft of oil-bearing Devonian formation perforated only 30 feet of oil on a 24-hour period. After acid treatment with 1000 gallons of 15-mil, however the well returned an average of 72 bbls. of oil an hour on a no-hour open flow test. This represented a potential production rate of 1,728 bbls. Further treatment by acidization is being carried on with good hopes that open flow potential may prove still higher.

Lalite gas has accompanied the oil production. Significance of this is now being studied by officials. Apparently there is considerable pressure present for the well to produce the way it has. This could come from either a gas or water drive. A second test well is to be completed five miles north of Redwater No. 1 The oil runs about 35 deg API.

HYDRAULIC RAMS DO THE WORK

HYDRAULIC RAMS are an excellent method of getting a good water supply for those who have water in such a location that they can use it.

We are publishing herewith drawings of three ways of installing a hydraulic ram. The important thing in the installation of a ram is to have the drive pipe of the correct length for the installation in question. In the upper drawing all the three installations pictured, the slope between the spring and the ram is sufficiently short that the drive pipe can be connected directly to the water supply. In the second and third pictures it is necessary to construct a stand pipe or a supply tank to feed the ram and the spring is relied to secure the correct length of drive pipe for the installation in question.

There are definite rules to commence with the length of the drive pipe of a hydraulic ram which must be followed if the installation is to be a success. The upper pipe of a hydraulic ram must be not less than 5 to 10 times the vertical height between the level of the water in the supply and the level at which the drive pipe enters the ram. This height may also be described as the working head or fall of the drive-pipe. The minimum head or fall under which a hydraulic ram will operate is about 2½ feet, but satisfactorily is about 2½ feet more head than this is necessary to lift

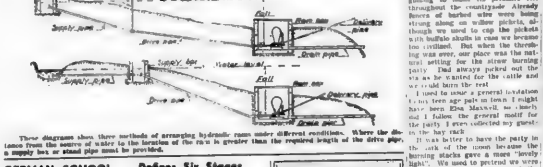
Where the vertical height to which the water from the ram has to be delivered is more than 5 to 10 times the working head of the ram, the drive-pipe should be made equal to the height of the vertical lift in the drive-pipe. These are the rules governing the length of the drive-pipe of a ram.

It is possible to take water from a river at a point upstream and conduct it through a pipe along the bank to a point where sufficient fall will be secured to operate a ram (when however such a pipe will be much longer than the permissible length of the drive-pipe. In such cases a stand-pipe is installed in the pipeline and the height of the drive-pipe measured from the stand-pipe to the ram. This is illustrated in the centre diagram. If the accompanying drawing. If waste of course be necessary to protect the delivery pipe along the bank by laying it at the ground but this is usually possible.

It is important that you secure the right size of ram for your installation. The rams have selling hydraulic rams will send you on request a circular giving the sizes of the rams they make, the size of the drive pipe required to operate each size and the number of gallons the ram will deliver on different heights of vertical lift. It is also good economy to buy the higher the vertical lift the less water can be delivered per minute. It is always advisable to install a ram small enough to operate when the water level is at its lowest point during the year. This is necessary in order to have a surplus of water at all times.

Household rams should be installed on a pitch steep enough to protect them from frost and there must be a waste valve from the jet to a ditch or other low ground into which the water will always have an outlet. Sometimes a small heading is put up over the jet, which of course makes the ram necessary at all times particularly in winter.

When properly installed and the pipes water tight, the only drawback to a ram is a leap and very dependable method of supplying water. It can be used to pump water into elevated tanks from which the water is piped to faucets in house and barn as in any gravity operated water system. It can also be used to pump against an air pressure tank. Though in this case an escape valve is necessary to permit water to escape when the tank is full. The most convenient installation for hydraulic rams is always the gravity tank system if it is necessary of course, to have an overflow pipe running from near the top of the storage tank to some dependable waste drain which will carry away the water before where it can be used.



These diagrams show three methods of arranging hydraulic rams under different conditions. Where the delivery from the source of water is the location of the ram is greater than the required length of the drive pipe a supply box or stand pipe must be provided.

GERMAN SCHOOL CHILDREN TO STUDY IN BRITAIN

Last week a party of 18 girls and 22 boys left the British Zone of Germany for a six months visit to Britain. These German children, who are all between 16 and 18 will spend the autumn term, Christmas holidays and spring term as the guests and pupils of various State and public schools in Britain. The scheme is sponsored by the Education Branch of the British Control Commission for Germany and is carried out with the co-operation of Britain's Education Interchange Council. Seventy German secondary school children have already been brought over this year to study in Britain for periods of up to six months.

Defines Six Stages Of Drunkenness

TORONTO. — Alcohol is a "brain poison", not a stimulant, Dr. C. W. Moehlenbrock, Lansing, Mich., long-coughed, said.

In an address to legal, medical and police experts he outlined six stages of drunkenness. Dry and decent, decent and orderly, dizzy and dopey, lighted and orderly, dizzy and dopey, larious, dazed and dejected, dead drunk and dead.

He spoke in a series sponsored by the Accident Prevention Association of Ontario.

He said cochon nematode poisoning, a bacteria and worm infection disease sometimes produced the same symptoms as drunkenness.

Prairie Fiesta And A Hayride

(By Grace Lockhart in Vancouver Province)

WONDER if they still burn the straw stacks on the prairie? When threshing in all over and the grain has been sold or stored? And if they do, do they make a sort of fiesta of it as we used to do?

I of course with our modern methods of making this sort of that I may be wearing last year's straw stack on my back for all I know. Or in my mitts!

I may not have been to years but I used to think that "all you got" Thanksgiving stage call to eat mostly of it in the wheat belt. Thanksgiving dinner was Thanksgiving. Or they could find shelter in the lee of the big stacks they had gouged out spaces big enough to hold them.

Then the fun began. Not to be confused with the stock that were confortably fed and housed all winter. Mr. Cows and fancy heifers and horses pets generally, of course, and small that couldn't take it. But the biggest part of the herd stayed out all winter. They lived on the fat of the land all summer in the rich grasses and the rolling hills that were the Moose Mountains.

Then the first blizzard had swept the stubble land and the summer fallow drifting the snow into big cornices and wiping out the trails, those cattle knew where to find shelter.

They could burrow out caves in the straw stacks and crawl in there, almost out of sight. When they were out in the open drifts, they might not be on even scratching terms but certainly brought them together. They got along.

We lived a couple of miles from the new little town, which was beginning to make its presence felt throughout the countryside. Already lovers of barbed wire were being strung along on willow pickets, although we used to cap the pickets with buffalo skulls in case we became too civilized. But when the threshing was over, our place was the natural setting for the straw burning party. Dad always parked out there as he wanted for the cattle and we could burn the rest.

I used to issue a general invitation to ten boys in town. I seem to have been Miss Maxwell so closely and I follow the general model for the party. I even ordered my guests by the hay rack.

It was fun to have the party in the dark of the moon because the burning stacks gave a most lovely light". We used to pretend we were Indians and our wore around the house but the stubble hampered our dancing somewhat.

Some-times we had our party in a deserted house. Usually because the bleached fields we could see the faint outlines of the Moose Mountains and the tiny, glimmering pinpoints of lights in the town. Of course there was always the great canopy of stars. Nature used indeed to make our burning seem pony on such a night, but it was fun anyway.

When the last stack was burned we would go home and have a good feed. Dad and dogs—we had never heard of them. It was more likely to be sandwiches and cake and tea-for-two with fresh cottonwalls on the stove. Sometimes we even had a barrel of apples, if any shipments had come in from Ontario.

When the party was over, we'd drive our guests back to town. The stars would have burned low and the stars come back into their own. Down where the trail dipped down in the coulee it would be cold with the first hint of frost.

Fire Chief Gives Advice To Cut Down Chimney Fires

NEW WESTMINSTER B.C. — Don't cut the stuff on your furnace as soon as the fire burns freely. Let flames go up the chimney and warm the flues.

That advice to furnace stokers is given by Fire Chief C. J. Highsted, who told members of the Rotary Club the total loss by fire for the year in the province was $6,350,981. In a warm flue, he said there is almost no condensation, and no formation of creosote, the deposit that burns to make "chimney fires", there would be almost no chimney fires, the chief said, if householders would handle drafts as he advises.

He blamed careless smokers for 2,196 of the 5,000 fires in B.C., and for property loss of $2,525,195.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

Hallowe'en!

By JANE BALL

Quite by accident, I ran upon the following:

Don't you know its Hallowe'en
Aren't you scared at all"

Witches on their broomsticks flying through the sky
Aren't you scared at Hallowe'en
When ghosts go flitting by?

Mother says the witches ghosts and everything
Are a lot of fairy tales
That Hallowe'en will bring.

Apples to a long row; games and lots of fun.
Jack-o-lantern grinning
When the lights are gone.

So we see not so scary, and I love them all.
But I like owls and witches
And black cats on the wall

Though they make me very, make me scream with fright,
I would hate to miss them
On this Hallowe'en night

Central Hi-Lights

By Student Union Press Reporter

The first party was held in the K. P. Hall on Tuesday night. A large crowd of Centralites and ex-Centralites attended. Gail Probst and Ann Cranston, and Stan Johnson and Muriel Stark won the spot dances. John Golden and Peg Riley won the elimination dance. Good work kids.

It seems Mr. Blakeney was soon reaching Home Economics papers. How did it taste?

The Student Union held a free supper Tuesday night to enable the kids travelling on buses to attend the party and Red Cross meeting which was held after school.

The school orchestra seems to be progressing favorably judging by the sounds coming from Mr. Horta's room at noon hours.

Heard at the Party: One of Central's students talking to Miss Haynes— Helen!: I suppose this is your first school party since you started teaching her it?

Miss Haynes: Why no, it isn't my first.

Helen!: I must have underestimated your age I guess.

You weren't just trying to make the top of the class then?

At noon on Wednesday, "Golden Slippers" was shown in the school theatre for all those wishing to go.

DORMITORY NEWS

This was the big week for the new girls' home of the Dorm. Sunday, we had our second view of the institution the hall. Of the boys we saw, Neil Cameron was all dressed up with the best of female finery and grease paint. And as for the girls, I think Miss Hicks deserves a place in the books for her make-up. Those participating also, were, Gertie Bain, Jenny Cobach, Donna Cobach and Lorna Lalonde.

[—]

All this happened Wednesday also, but Tuesday the High students had their night out and they went to the party in the hall.

[—]

Seven of the girls hiked out to the Lake Wednesday evening as a Ramsay Group. The girls all say that the Rangers is a wonderful group, and an much fun. Miss Haynes is Captain of the group.

[—]

Was that Bill Korth we saw talking someone home from the dance? Well, well.

oxOxo

One of the girls is loudly proclaiming the fact that the magnificent thing that happened to her on Tuesday night was at supper time, when a fly got in her coffee.

oxOxo

Harry and Ann Cranston took off for Stranso Thursday night to attend a chicken supper.

oxOxo

Any of you girls want to make a bet? I will lay odds of 5to 1 that our own Letty Donaldson makes the very neatest bed in the Dorm.

UEFB MOBILIZES TO GIVE BRITAIN STRENGTH

. . . IN COLD WAR TO WIN THE PEACE

REASONS FOR UEFB

By centralizing buying and transportation, including delivery at destination, substantial savings can be effected. The concerted efforts of many can be channelled into an effective single stream of relief, without a loss of individuality as to persons, groups or organizations.

MORE AID PER DOLLAR

For example: the cost of placing a ready packaged 10-lb. parcel in the hands of a recipient in Britain, exclusive of customs purchase price, is approximately $3.50 at present, whereas through UEFB concessions the comparable cost would be 57c to 70c. This economy does not include the very substantial saving which bulk purchasing effects.

The gallant people of Britain are suffering today because they are determined so win the cold war. They are the only nation in Europe fighting with body and mind to vanquish the spectre that haunts the Old World.

Their health is being weakened, their efficiency impaired, by the tremendous restrictions they have imposed upon themselves. They stand in danger of being defeated by undernourishment.

Why? Because Britain imports four-fifths less goods than before the war, yet exports more than half as much again as in 1939.

Says the British Ministry of Food:

". . . we are living on marginal nutritional standards, and show to cause for anxiety but this should be borne, adverse effects on physique and health . . . Everything you can send us is wanted, and urgently wanted."

If the British people go under, YOU and all of us, will feel the effects. We need a strong Britain to help fight the cold war. Give generously to UEFB—TODAY.

ALBERTA'S NEEDS ARE GOING TO BE MET . . .

I've got two main concerns right now, and both of them are with the people of Alberta. First, I'm determined to see that the homes and industries I'm now serving are assured of continuous unbroken service, and secondly, I want to expand my present power lines to as many more rural areas as I can.

Naturally, that means plant capacity must be kept ahead of the demand and that is why I'm going ahead as fast as possible with the Spray Lakes project because it will add 100,000 h.p. to present capacity.

Other places on this continent are having to ration power because of insufficient capacity. That has not become necessary in Alberta, nor will it, if our present expansion plans can be kept to schedule.

British Agriculture

IN BRITAIN'S STRUGGLE FOR economic recovery emphasis has been placed on the urgent need for increasing the production of food and manufactured goods, with the object of exporting as much as possible, and decreasing imports. In a report presented a short time ago to the British House of Commons by the Minister of Agriculture, Mr Williams, some interesting facts were made public regarding recent advances in food production in that country. It was estimated that nearly 500,000 more acres of land were devoted to food production this year than in 1947, and that next year it is hoped that more than 18,250,000 acres will be under cultivation, for this acreage it is expected that 2,340,000 will be used for wheat, 1,800,000 for potatoes 392,000 for sugar beets and 200,000 for linseed.

Standards For Poultry Raised

It is also hoped that during the next year livestock production will be considerably increased. Poultry production, the report showed, had expanded rapidly, with an increase of 90 per cent., during the past five years. Official poultry returns issued this summer showed that there were at that time over 41,378,000 hens which were expected to increase egg production by 6,000,000 during the present year. The British Ministry of Agriculture has recently intruduced new methods of increasing egg production by improving breeds and assisting farmers in various ways to maintain high standards of health among their flocks and to obtain maximum egg production throughout the year.

Help To Bring About Recovery

Milk production has also been increased. It is hoped that 950,000 more calves will be produced next year and that there will be improvement in the quality of dairy herds. By improving breeds it is estimated that there would be a yearly increase of from 50 to 100 gallons of milk from each cow, and also an increase in the amount of butter fat contained in the milk. All these facts indicate the part which agriculture is playing in the strong efforts which are being made to recover. Sir Stafford Cripps Chancellor of the Exchequer who visited Canada recently, expressed optimism over the progress which is being made in this effort, and stated that the British people have every hopeful of its success. It is apparent that the British farmers are doing their part in increasing the output of food and other agricultural products to meet the needs of the country during this critical period.

May Stockpile Strategic Metals

OTTAWA —Canada's defence authorities are considering stockpiling half a dozen strategic metals which would be about in this country in event of war.

That would include such metals as tin and manganese. While the stock piling programme would be relatively small it would be vitally important in any precautionary moves to provide supplies of all materials for the use of Canadian armed forces and the production of war time industry.

This country is in the fortunate position because of being the world's largest producer of base metals, of nickel, and of asbestos and because of this situation doesn't find it necessary to launch a stockpiling program in these defence materials.

"In fact we'll be able to trade a lot of base metals and materials like that for the strategic metals we need," one official said.

Blackberries Blamed For Polio Contact

VICTORIA - Blackberries growing on a vacant lot, and eaten by the sufferers, may be the contact for two Oak Bay Elementary School deputies suffering from poliomyelitis, municipal council has been informed.

The lot was burned off immediately and the whole area sprayed with DDT.

In Vancouver, Dr Stewart Murray, city medical health officer, said such a contact was a possibility, but only a remote one

The disease might be transmitted by flies he said, but is much more likely to be transmitted direct from a polio carrier.

BRAZE RIVER HYDRO PLANT SURPASSING YELLOWKNIFE

EDMONTON - Power now is surging over 90-mile transmission lines of the Smoky River hydro plant to Yellowknife supplying 8,000 additional horsepower to Giant Yellowknife and the northern mining town

The unit which has taken about two years to construct, is the first of several generating plants the government plans to install, eventually for a total output of 35,000 h.p.

The power from the new plants will serve the gold mines in Yellowknife and also residents of the town.

Wife — Women are not very strong physically."

Hubby — "Perhaps not; but they can put the fear of God in a fruit jar so that it takes a man 20 minutes to take it off."

The village milkman bought a beer for the morning round. It was not exactly a thoroughbred, but it had legs.

One day he took his bargain to the blacksmith to have him shod. The smith regarded the newly-bought animal critically, paying particular attention to his hind body and splendid legs. "You ought to have a horse there some day," he said at last. "I see you've got the scaffolding up."

"There was a crowd at the town hall last night," said the oldest inhabitant to the wife.

"Something upsetcal on?" asked his better half.

"Oh, yes! It was burned down," was the reply.

A visitor at the Capitol was accompanied by his small son. The little boy watched from the gallery when the Deputy came to order.

"Why did the minister pray for all those men, Pop?"

"My child," he told them ever and prayed for the country."

We like the story about the fisherman who was a man of few words. He quarreled with his wife one morning, left the house and did not return for 12 years. When he came back, he walked in quite calmly as though nothing unusual had happened.

"And where might you have been, Hezekiah Macpherson?" asked his wife.

"Fishin'," came the reply.

Wife to husband: You'd better get up and go see why the baby is not crying.

He was one of those fathers who believed in trying to answer any questions put by his son. So he did his best when the youngster asked:

"What are earwigs, daddy?"

"Well, my boy," he replied, "I'm one of your ancestors, and your grandfather is another."

A puzzled frown marred the childish brow.

"How, daddy, why do people brag about them?" 2780

PUNISHMENT

The object of punishment is threefold: for just retribution, for the protection of society, for the reformation of the offender Tryon Edwards

Men are not hanged for stealing horses, but that horses may not be stolen - Lord Halifax

Crime and punishment grow out of one stem. Punishment is a fruit that unsuspected ripens within the flower of the pleasure which concealed it. Emerson.

Escape from punishment is not in accordance with God's government, where justice is the handmaid of mercy - Mary Baker Eddy.

Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein: and he that rolleth a stone, it will return upon him Proverbs 26 27.

Penalties may be delayed, but they are sure to come.—H. W. Beecher.

Bird Changed Sex, Reaches Ripe Age

VANCOUVER — Gon-Gon a bi-sexual mallard that waited to ... how the other half lived ... has raised a centennial.

At the ripe old age of 13, the pet of Mr. and Mrs. William Lamontaine is the equivalent of a human well past the century mark

Around 10 years ago Gon-Gon eschewed the mandarin female life of egg-laying, at which she was no amateur, and began to change to a quacking, gaily-plumaged drake Mrs. Lamontaine's suspicions of the chameleon process were confirmed by a game warden.

The bird had achieved a complete change of sex.

Now slightly lame and too heavy to fly Gon-Gon leads a quiet retired life but still looks and acts like any well-dressed drake

Fuel Briquettes Made From Straw And Sawdust

WINNIPEG —Fuel briquettes can now be made out of straw and sawdust without the use of a "binder", R. A. Bark, managing secretary of the industrial development board, told a meeting of the Manitoba Electrical association here

Exhibiting samples of the straw and sawdust briquettes, he said they had the same heat value per pound as lignite coal.

"A machine has been patented," he told the meeting "that compresses loose straw and sawdust into briquettes with the aid of heat, and the portable machine will be capable of processing 3 to 12 tons of straw every eight hours, depending on the size of briquettes

Speaking on new edible and inedible uses of farm products, Mr. Bark told of the growing importance of the oil seed processing industry in Canada

Canada has 13 oil extraction plants of which three are in Manitoba, Mr Bark said, and predicted the rapid expansion of these plants to a position where Canada's annual import of 170,000,000 pounds of vegetable oils will be greatly reduced.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE, THERE'S NOT ALWAYS FIRE

CARMAN, Man. — Where there's smoke, there's not always fire, Mrs. Percy McCaffe has discovered. She could be sixteen Leaving her kitchen for a few minutes, Mrs. McCaffe returned to find smoke billowing out of the door and windows of her home She rushed inside, expecting to find the oven had set fire to the whole Then, unable to find any trace of damage, she looked up, and saw one of her turkeys perched calmly atop the chimney The smoke and the hard were cleared away by a barrage of sticks, one of which broke a kitchen window.

SCHOOL DIVISION ENROLMENT IS UP SLIGHTLY

(By Dr. J. W. Chalmers)

Latest figures on enrolment in the divisional schools, released by the office of the Killam School Division, indicate a slightly higher pupil registration than a year ago. Total present enrolment in all grades is 1764, as compared with 1716 on the first term of 1947. Figures for the respective grades are as follows: Grade I, 191; Grade II 209; Grade III 168; Grade IV, 194; Grade V, 179; Grade VI, 166; Grade VII, 169; Grade VIII, 132; Grade IX, 125; Grade X, 93; Grade XI, 73; Grade XII, 70.

None of the above figures includes correspondence students working at home, of whom there were fourteen last year and three or four this year. Fifty-five of the pupils included in the figures above are attending non-divisional schools in Hardisty, Oakland, and Killam. On the other hand, these figures include about 25 pupils not resident in the Killam Division. Nine of these are from Custer Division in attendance at Alliance. The remainder are Grade I to III school pupils at Sedgewick or Daysland from Provost or Holden Div.

Majority In Graded Schools

An analysis of the enrolment figures by schools reveals that 1281 pupils now attend schools of more than one room. This figure is 74 p. c. of the total. Of the 1764 pupils in grades 1 to 9, 963, or 69 percent are in graded schools. Of the 23 schools operated in Killam Division, 10 are of one room, two of 2 rooms; one of three rooms and six of 4 or more.

Attendance Is Up Slightly

The above figures reveal that, although the enrolment per grade is thirty-thirteen in Grade 7, where this level there is a sharp decline in the school population as children reach the school leaving age of 15 years. Whereas our schools show 436 pupils in Grades 7, 8 and 9, there are only 256 in the three high school grades. Probably not half of the boys and girls of high school age are in attending school.

Enrolment Expected to Increase

The two lowest grades show the heaviest enrolment. That the Grade 2 figure is slightly the higher is no doubt due to the fact that last year's beginners were admitted at the age of five years and eight months. The 1947 beginning class, therefore, had children ranging in age from 5½ to 6½ months. Whereas previously the age range had been from 7½ to 8½ months. This year's big enrolment of beginners reflects the rolling birth-rate of the war years. As the birth rate has been rising steadily since 1942, Killam Division may henceforth have beginning classes of 200 or more children each year. This steadily increased school population is already necessitating the opening of additional rooms, and more will be required. Unless more rural schools are closed, and teachers transferred to graded schools, a larger teaching staff will be needed. More pupil and teaching supplies, more pupil desks, more and larger school buses will be other results of this increase in school population, and will inevitably be reflected in increased costs of providing school services in the Killam School Division.

LOUGHEED COMMUNITY SOC. TO SPONSOR FILMS

The Lougheed Community Society in co-operation with the National Film Board, is sponsoring a series of educational and entertainment films. The first of these series will be shown in the hall on Mon. Nov 15th at 8-30 p.m. Under present arrangements a different program is to be shown every five weeks. Why not make plans to attend. Bring your family because many of these films cover topics your children are now studying at school. There is no charge, but a silver collection will be taken to defray expenses.

The ultimate success of this undertaking depends on you taking part.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. B.—

Once again it is my duty to remind readers that the columns of the Community Press are open to anyone who cares to see them in connection with any subject they desire, providing of course that they follow the obvious rules of journalism. I think all my readers know this, but it is apparent that some do not yet know that any article submitted must bear the signature of the writer. Not that the signature must appear in print if the writer desires otherwise, but it must know, for the most obvious reasons, who needs in the article. Last week I received an article intended for publication, which lacked this signature. It was a delight to me that the article was well written, well punctuated and well phrased. I would like very much to publish it, but must refrain from doing so unless the writer drops in to see me and affixes the proper signature.

A Need For Action

FROM THE FOOD AND AGRICULTURE Organization of the United Nations there has recently come another warning in regard to the need for immediate action in increasing world food production. It is pointed out that unless effective planning is done, within the next twenty years half of the people in the world will be subject to diseases associated with diet deficiencies, and tend to premature death. While the population of the world has increased by 150,000,000 during the past ten years, during the same period food production has decreased by eight per cent. If food production has increased in proportion to the growth in population, it should have increased by more than sixteen per cent. Sir John Boyd Orr, formerly the head of the Food and Agriculture Organization, and a foremost authority on world food problems has described the present situation in regard to this matter as the death march of our civilization.

* * * *

Canada Also Has Problem

While the prospect of a serious shortage of food within the next two decades is alarming when it concerns the world as a whole, it can be equally serious in the rain St where present productive areas are deteriorating due to soil erosion and other forms of farming. Roads, posts and other forces which destroy crops by the United States, more than three billion tons of top soil are believed to be lost each year and as Canada it is well known that we have a serious problem in retaining the fertility of the great farming areas which now contribute so much to world food supplies. In China, the Yellow River annually carries away more than 300,000 acres of farm land while in Africa progress are said to be spreading, and in South America and Australia desert areas are increasing in extent.

* * * *

Should Farm More Land

The obvious answer to the problem of a serious food shortage is to increase production. In order to do this it will be necessary not only to preserve and protect farm lands, but to bring more and more acreage under cultivation. This would mean the spending of large sums of money, and a great co-operative effort among all food-producing countries. Prevention of soil erosion, reclamation of desert lands, irrigation, insect control, reforestation and other problems of this kind would have to be studied, and effective measures planned to deal with them. At this time when there are so many grave and complex problems facing all the nations the leaders of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations that too little attention is being given to the vital question of food production. They have given warning that it is of the utmost importance for the world at this time that there should be no delay in recognizing this fact and taking constructive action.

HEART DISEASES, CANCER TOOK BIGGEST TOLL

OTTAWA — Of the 41 specified causes of death, heart diseases and cancer took the biggest toll in 1947, The Dominion Statistics reported.

The Bureau said 117,868 persons died in Canada last year, of that number heart diseases took 32,032 and cancer another 15,866.

FIFTY PER CENT. MORE SPENT ON FARM MACHINERY

OTTAWA - Canadian farmers last year paid out about 50 per cent. more for new farm machinery than they did in 1945.

The bureau of statistics reported that farmers spent $10,143,000 more in 1947 than in 1946 to mechanize farms.

Estimated grand total of expenditures on new farm machinery at the retail level was $745,000,000 compared with $598,645,000 the previous year. An estimated additional $30,041,000 was spent for repair parts compared with $27,429,000 in 1946.

Domestic sales of new equipment mainly at wholesale prices amounted to $561,000,000, an increase of 48 per cent. over the revised estimate of $341,600,000 for 1946. Sales of repair parts at wholesale prices totalled $22,800,000 against $20,827,000 in 1946.

The prairie provinces accounted for 61.1 per cent. of the 1947 all-Canada sales compared with 56.1 per cent. in 1946 and 60.6 per cent. in 1945. Dollar value of sales in Manitoba was up 53 per cent., Saskatchewan, 65 per cent., Alberta, 66 per cent. An increase of 27 per cent was recorded for Ontario, 26 per cent. for Quebec and British Columbia, and 16 per cent. for the Maritimes.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

FLIGHT OF THE RAILBIRD

By ERNIE RYDBERG

WHEN the missus and I get over to Swartz's, Rudy isn't home. Molly Rudy's frau, doesn't say where he is, but I got a good idea. She looks kind of worried, and as I figure Rudy's out seeing a guy about a horse.

I sit down and brews through the evening paper while Molly and Hazel go out to the kitchen. I can hear them talking.

"Molly," says Hazel coming right to the point as Hazel is inclined to do, "Does Rudy make lots of money at the races?"

No," says Molly slowly. Then she quickly adds, "But he doesn't lose much. In fact, I think he's a couple of hundred dollars ahead this season."

"My goodness is that all," snifs Hazel. "Fred and I were talking the other night

That's enough for me. I don't like Hazel sticking her nose in other people's business. I get over in that far end of the room so I can't hear.

Rudy's a swell guy Hazel shouldn't pick on him. My gosh, if it hadn't been for Rudy, I'd probably still be running short fifty a week. We're partners. Got the swellest little job printing set-up you ever saw.

He's a go-getter Rudy is. Like the ticket deal Rudy can peddle tickets to anybody. I bet if you buy anywhere within five thousand miles of Jerico, and you buy a ticket to the picture or the fights or a play come to that, you'll be using one of our chairs

Naturally, when the Jerico Track opened up we got their business. Millions of those little cardboards we've printed. Rudy landed that contract, I bet he practically had to live on them. He started getting interested in the horses. And how! Pretty soon he was talking of little else.

Not that Rudy is one of those guys who goes around with a racing sheet in his hip pocket all the time. He doesn't. He got quite a reputation for himself when he bet some smart-set sucker. Rumor has it that Rudy has a system all his own. Anyway, guys are always asking up to him for hot tips. I'd figured he was cashing money, and I am pretty surprised when I hear Molly say he is only a couple of hundred ahead.

I sit there for a few minutes, kind of dejected. I don't like Hazel talking to Molly about it. I know Molly's plenty sensitive about Rudy not bringing up his end down at the petrol pump. I'm complaining.

Pretty soon I saunter out to the kitchen. The girls are discussing whooping cough.

I park myself on a stool and start twirling a fly swatter. Molly stops over to look at a couple of apple pies that she's made, and I pass over, like sweeches, and Hazel says, "Freddie," in a very scandalized tone.

"Now, will you tell me what the big surprise is?" I say.

"I will not" says Molly. "You'll have to wait," and just then Rudy comes in, and we sit down to supper

I am pleasantly surprised to find everybody in very good humor. Even Hazel keeps her nose out of other people's business. From the soup, through the roast, over to the last bite of apple pie with the piece of cheese I've saved for it, I'm tryer to figure it out. Only one thing I can figure. Rudy's lost a long shot for a pile of dough.

While the girls are doing the dishes Rudy and I go into the study

Right out of the blue sky he says, "Name a horse."

I'm surprised. He'd never discussed horses with me.

"Name a horse Any horse"

Now, I'm not a betting man, but once in a weak moment I put fifty bucks on a nag at Santa Anita. So I say "Alsie."

He pulls out the first drawer of a green filing cabinet. Sips through the cards, pulls out one marked "Alsie". I look at it. Everything's there but pedigree. Seems every race he ever ran, best time, present value, conditions at the track, trainer, jockeys owner's name, trainer, transfers of ownership. The works. "Look on the other side." he says.

I turn the card over. It's a graph covering five years, and there's an inked-in line that curves up and down

"What's this?" I ask

"The horse's record," says Rudy "Based on the information on the other side of the card. See this curve Shows the horse is running A'down curve means he's passed his peak Except for occasional flukes, all charts'll run this way and he pulls out half a dozen other cards to prove it

But I don't pay much attention I'm figuring out when it was I lost my fifty bucks. Sure enough. Alsa's curve is just starting down

"My gosh," I grunt. "This is like money in the bank"

"Well, not exactly," chuckles Rudy "I have to work out when to buy the curve is going to go before the race. Not after it . . . Come on out back," and he switches on the light in the patio.

He takes me over to a little building Inside there's enough stuff to start a weather bureau

"Weather conditions make a lot of difference," says Rudy, squinting at the thermometer. "Say, there's something else," and we walk over to the corner of the lot where there is a square plot of bare ground.

"I had the soil tested at the Jerico Track," says Rudy thoughtfully. "This is almost identical to it."

I begin to get the drift. I'm amazed, but I shouldn't have been. It's just like Rudy. When he does anything, he does it thorough

"The idea is," says Rudy, "I know before I get to the track just what to expect I know the weather conditions Well, with the dope on track cards I can make my selections right after lunch and get out the track in plenty of time for the first race.

We see the light in the kitchen go off, and so we saunter inside Right away Hazel suggests bridge Only nobody makes a move. We sit around and talk about this and that. Hazel picks up some cards and starts dealing them in her lap Personally I'm itching to know what the big surprise is. Finally Molly says—like she'd just suddenly happened to think of it:

"Oh, Rudy, what did the man at the weather bureau say?"

Rudy smiles at her. "Said they'd be tickled to death to have the stuff"

"Then I can plant tomatoes out there on—on your track?"

"You sure can, Honey" Rudy grits up and goes into his study. He comes back, rolling his green filing cabinet. Hazel has to put down the cards.

It's a pretty warm evening, and you can imagine my surprise when Rudy crumples up a lot of newspapers, sticks them on the fire and touches a match to them. He pulls open Drawer A to C; grabs a handful of cards and tosses them on the blaze.

"Good gravy," I snort.

Rudy grins. The loans are cashing out of the corner of Molly's eyes.

"This little paddock business comes to result," grunts Rudy, and he tosses on more cards He pulls out the bottom drawer, finds a card and tosses it to me.

It's "Zero" — everybody's choice this afternoon in the fifth. The fire is burning like anything, and we all move back Rudy comes over and puts his overcoat with me. He takes the card out of my hand; looks at it for a long time.

"Burest thing I ever duped out," he says finally "Usual odds. I decided I'd go whole hog."

"Yeah?" I say.

"Yeah," says Rudy "I started for the hundred-dollar window, and Whitey Morey stopped me. He wanted to know if I had anything in the sixth. Well, I stalled him, and just then the numbers they flashed on it.

I really didn't mind I seldom bet to win. I mentioned over to the girls that I was a great race—liked all the way—then Zera is sussed out in the streets. I was dumbfounded!" Everything showed Zero should have won. I knew it was an honest race I stood there thinking where I could have missed. It might have been the wind. Pretty gusty that afternoon Anyway, I'd missed. I tore up my ticket and tossed it away."

"Uh huh." I grunt, waiting for him to go on. All of a sudden I think of something "Hey," I say, "I thought you said you didn't buy a ticket."

"I didn't," grinned Rudy. "Profiter, for years I've been playing around with little square pieces of cardboard That was my bunnyed-dollar ticket to Zero. You should have seen the weird take it biting"

Rudy got up and threw some more cards on the fire, went over and sat down beside Molly. They make a pretty picture.

It was kind of quiet in the room for a few short things

"Let's play bridge," she said. (Concluded on page 8)

Plenty Of Meat For Christmas

OTTAWA — No matter what trends they might have getting into their diets, Canadians' bosses never "certainly won't find it hard to get meat" this Christmas, L. W Pearsall, chairman of the Canadian meat board, said.

Asked for his impression of how butchers' shelves will look this Yuletide Pearsall said "they'll be loaded."

He said there would be more beef slaughtered every week between now and next spring—barring strikes or other such eventualities — than the Canadian public can eat.

With the Anglo-Canadian beef contract cancelled last August and 172 federal government's export quotas to the United States being removed the same time, said the governor's house, first government's house in Manitoba, Baldwinson levelling off the earth at the site of the old fort uncovered fragments of china and clay pipes, a tooth brush and oak planks used to make drains

Cattle, Hog Population Down

OTTAWA — Canada's livestock population is down

The bureau of statistics reported recently that a survey it carried out in June indicated decreases in each of the main branches of farm animals Cattle are 9 675 300 were 2.6 per cent below the June 1947. figure of 9 714 000.

Hogs at 4 462,100 were 18.5 per cent below 1947's figure of 5 473 000.

Sheep and lambs were down to 2 251 000 from 2 797 000 and the number of horses dropped from 1 432 000 to 1 305 000

Exact figures did not start his census of training until he was 18

Western Briefs

CRANBERRY PORTAGE, Man — Professor John Albright and Dr C. E. Simon have returned to Chicago, after what they describe as very successful visit to Northern Manitoba. Shooting with a camera they report getting some excellent rarities plus the usual, and

Asked for his impression of how butchers' shelves will look this Yuletide Pearsall said "they'll be loaded."

He said there would be more beef slaughtered every week between now and next spring—barring strikes or other such eventualities — than the Canadian public can eat.

With the Anglo-Canadian beef contract cancelled last August and 172 federal government's export quotas to the United States being removed the same time, he said, there will be a "fairly heavy" movement below the border but "that will still leave a lot right here in Canada."

Fashions

FILES OF BAILED STRAW are frequently seen on Manitoba farms this fall where in former years blazing straws marked the end of the harvest season. Straw for feed and bedding is highly valued by livestock farmers and it also represents a definite amount of soil fertility which goes back to bend via the manure spreader.

Canada Has Large Surplus Of Potatoes

OTTAWA — Canada's expected bumper potato crop, a vexatious problem for agricultural economists today may help the housewife a grocery bill

A government source says the large surplus of potatoes this year is making for lower prices on the domestic market "Canadian housewives should be happy," he said. "They might otherwise have been paying a lot more for potatoes than they are today"

But the problem remains that some part of the 30,000,000 bushels of potatoes expected this year may go unmarketed unless the government can find a new solution to that age-old problem of supply and demand.

Currently, the United States has allowed imports of 2,500,000 bushels a year of table and seed potatoes from Canada at a reduced tariff rate.

But even at the normal higher tariff rate, it has been found that the Canadian product can undersell American potatoes, supported at $2 a bushel.

A government official estimates that the Canadian potato crop will be the U.S. at $1.25 a bushel at the reduced tariff rate a hundredweight tariff and slightly less than $2 a bushel at the normal rate of 75 cents a hundredweight.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT HEMORRHAGIC SEPTICEMIA:

This disease is often called "Shipping Fever" but it may occur in the farmyard or feed lots. In cattle, the disease is usually associated with a lowered resistance of the animals due to shipment, weather changes, irregular feeding or a deficient diet.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES HAVE BUSY WEEK

(By Dr. J. W Chalmers)

A regular meeting of the board of Killam School Division No. 33 was held at Killam on November 8th, all members being present Fairly light agenda permitted the trustees to pay a visit to the Divisional Dormitory, where they were entertained at lunch. During the afternoon the board returned to Central High to inspect the installations in the industrial arts shop and the home economics laboratory, where they complied with approved the culinary masterpieces of some of the students. After visiting the new dining room, the board decided to ask the Divisions' Union to hold a Visitors' Day on the afternoon of December 8th, and to invite parents and others interested to visit the High School and the Dormitory. This Visitors' Day would be instead of a Formal Opening, for which school facilities are not available.

The Secretary was instructed to ask the permission of the Minister to hold one annual meeting instead of five sub-divisional meetings as heretofore. It was felt that by such the meeting will be held at Killam the afternoon of December 16th.

Purchase of a school bus for Centre District was ratified. No tender for the garage at Quarrel School was accepted, and the matter will be called for sale of this building.

Closing date for the fall term was set at Dec. 23. Schools will re-open after Christmas, on January 3rd.

A delegation from the A. T. A. met the board to open negotiations for a salary schedule for 1949. Proposed amendments to the present schedule were presented for consideration of the board and for future discussion.

Trustees Attend Convention

The day after the school board meeting all trustees, with the Secretary and the Superintendent, left for Edmonton to attend the annual convention of the Alberta School Trustees' Assn., which was held on Nov. 10, 11 and 12. The convention addresses dealt with such topics as Provincial Salary Schedule, Tax Inquiry Commission, School Trustees, Union Insurance and Liability of School Boards, and Highway Traffic Board's Regulation of School Buses. Mr. H. L. Campbell, Asst. Supt. of Education in B. C. spoke on "Some Educational Trends of Interest to School Trustees."

On November 10th the trustees attended a dinner and program at the Faculty of Education, U. of A., where they were also given the opportunity of visiting University High School rooms devoted to home economics, industrial arts, arts, audio-visual aids, physical training and make-up.

WILD DEER ATTACKS MAN

It is well established that when a man gets a wild deer down, he better do it on the Q. T. or the guys who "get their man" will be hot on his trail, but what is the position when a wild deer gets a man down?

Yes, strange as it may seem, this was the experience of Mr. Albert Whitford, who lives north of Sedgewick only last week. Mr. Whitford came upon his two dogs engaged in a life and death struggle with a wild deer and on disarming from his horse and attempting to pull the animal from his dogs (he had them both down) was turned upon by the enraged animal. Mr. Whitford was quite severely mauled about before his two hounds returned to the battle and finally managed to beat off the deer, which made a sudden retreat to nearby brush.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS REMEMBRANCE SERVICE

A large and appreciative congregation attended the annual Remembrance Day Service at Sedgewick on the morning of November 11th.

The service was conducted by the Legion Chaplain, Rev. M MacLean who delivered an appropriate and inspiring address. Mrs. H Smith Mrs. A. Smith, Mr. J. Smith and M V. B. Hardy rendered a quartette.

At the conclusion a short service was held at the Cenotaph.

SEDGEWICK W. I. NOTES

The November meeting of the W I. was held at home of Mrs. T. Carbary on November 3rd. Mrs. Horace Beairsto welcomed three visitors from Chauvin, among whom was the district convenor, Mrs. Peterson.

Mrs. Petersen gave an interesting pep talk. Mrs. Weber reported that the October project, that of sending food parcels overseas, had been carried out. Mrs. H. Beairsto reported on the bed linen project which she took and had sent two cards.

Misses Haines and Steadman visited the meeting during the afternoon requesting the W. I. to sponsor a Girl Guide group. recently organized at the school. A discussion on this purpose was made and passed. It was decided to have a dance in the near future to raise the necessary funds for the above project. The project for November is to send a shower from old linen, or used clothing for overseas.

Mr. Weber, in charge of the program, gave a very interesting talk on the Crown Derby China Wo ks showing several rare and beauti ul pieces of chinaware.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. S.—

Those mostly came to my desk lately from the Press Bureau of the Church of England, containing a statement issued by the Primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury (The Most Rev Geoffrey F. Fisher, D.D.), regarding some of the utterances of the "Dean" of Canterbury who is currently touring the Dominion. Says the Archbishop, "The Dean's Office and jurisdiction in this country does not extend beyond the precincts of the Cathedral Body of which he is head. Outside those limits he speaks and acts only for himself. I have neither the responsibility for what the Dean may say, nor have I power to control it."

The above is a very fair, powerful and broad-minded statement, coming from an individual who obviously is not in sympathy with some of the statements being made by the Dean. Such a statement is typical of the British mind, for nowhere in the world is freedom of speech held so much respected as in England. Such a statement is as well, much more welcome to the intelligent mind that those of her ministers of the gospel in this country, which have recently been appearing in daily papers.

In reading some of these publishments in condemnation of the Dean's Communistic leanings, I am led to ask the question, "What is happening to freedom of speech in Canada?" Now, on that you will not be led to arrive at a conclusion that is wrong, I may say, that it should be a well established fact by now that I loathe communistic tactics, ideals and philosophy. Since I have not yet you straight on that matter, I shall return to Freedom of Speech. While I do not agree with some of the utterances and predictions of the Dean, nor find myself in accord with his 'Red' leanings, I for one shall continue to defend his right to voice his opinion. In the world today, there is too much of the "what the man up if his utterances fail to agree with popular opinion." We more or less expect this attitude or condemnation from the athiest, the irreligious heathen and the godless tempered, but it ill behooves our ministers of the gospel who have been entrusted with the bitterly condemning the Dean's actions. Do those men forget passages in the Volume of Sacred Writings such as "Refrain from these men and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought, but if it be of God ye cannot overthrow it."

* * * *

It is far better, it seems to me to have men with such commanding beanings socialistic ideals and undemocratic principles, to get up in public and speak their minds. Far better that way than to forbid them

DORMITORY NEWS

Dormitory happenings were out short this week because of the Nov. 11th holiday Most of the kids went home to spend the long holiday.

There were various interesting things doing for those who stayed over the holiday though. Sim Peddi ford and John Rotherfield played with Mr Mertz's orchestra in Killam that night Some excitement. Several of the other boys went up to attend the dance too.

Have you ever heard a real honest-to-goodness clean-o' Well you must drop by the boys' wing sometime as they are singing "You Are My Sun Shine."

Have you heard Richard (Mouse) Thomas playing, "Five Minutes More" yet? It seems as if Richard takes his playing seriously. He starts his own warm up session at 6:30 a.m.

Percy has been showing no sense of his blood in the field of poetry, and here is a commence from one of our critics:

Hark ye of the Dorm for a poet has come,
And the poetry flies like a deadly 3 bomb.
Oh, if only the poet his frailties would cease
Quick! Lock up old Percy and let us have peace.

There is another way of saying it, but there is no room in the paper. It goes like this: Percy, Have Mercy.

SEDGEWICK ACTIONS

Whist Drive and Pie Social at the Sedgewick Scouts on Nov. 26. Sponsored by the A. P. U.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Innis were visitors to Edmonton.

Mrs. Campbell of Edmonton and Mrs. Dickson of Lodge spent a day or two with Mrs. Gus Probst.

Mrs. Strome has returned from a visit to Medicine Hat.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father Richard Octavius Thomas who passed away on November 30th, 1947.

Time your has passed since that sad day

The one we loved was called away
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts he lives still.
Ever remembered by his loving wife and family 6719

and drive them underground where we hear them not and know not what they do. Are we so utterly unintelligent that we cannot listen to these men and still form our own opinions of what we want, and distinguish between right and wrong?

HARDISTY TO HAVE NEW FIRE TRUCK

At a special meeting of the Town of Hardisty Council on Nov 9th the members decided to purchase a truck which will be converted into a modern fire fighting unit.

This will be a greatly added asset to the town, and the unit will be made ready for use as soon as it is found possible.

SEDGEWICK AND LOUGHEED CALF CLUB ORGANIZED

The Sedgewick-Lougheed Beef Calf Club held a very successful organization meeting in the Anglican Memorial Hall on Wed. November 10th. An interesting talk was given by Mr. Larry Williams District Asst. after which lunch was served by the Board of Trade.

Officers elected for the following year were President, Miss Beatrice Roggeveen, Sedgewick, Vice-Pres. Paul Kenny, Lougheed and Secretary Alice Short Sedgewick.

New members will be accepted up to December 1st.

CREW AT SEDGEWICK NO. 9 DRILLING STEADILY

At the week end the Community Press was informed that drilling operations at Sedgewick Well No. 1 was progressing favorably, with a depth of just over 2000 feet having been reached.

It is the opinion of those who are in close touch with operations, that the next week or ten days should see the well's prospects

The well is situated 10 miles due south of Sedgewick and present quite a sight to village and district residents at night with all the lights on the tower glowing brightly.

WEDDINGS

BUCKLEITNER — BURDEN

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon November 10th at the United Church Manse in Alliance, when the Rev. B. MacGregor performed the ceremony uniting Miss Myrtle Burden of Lougheed and Mr. Art Buckleitner of Strome in the bonds of holy matrimony.

The bride was charming in a burgundy wine gabardine suit with black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. T. Kenny of Lougheed were attendants.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenny, after which the happy couple left by car on a short honeymoon. They will make their home at Strome. Alliance Enterprise

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

Sweet peas sweetened high have been grown by R. Grimshaw in Montmorency east end. The flowers were four inches in a local show.

Telegrams sent in the United Kingdom in 1947 totalled 47,000,000—and only three in every 100 carried bad news, says the Post Office.

A former fish dealer near Lorient, France, when his daughter told him police had arrested an inquiry about butter which he had allegedly sold above the fixed price.

Igor Gouzenko, the former Russian cipher clerk who tipped the Canadian Government off to a Soviet directed espionage ring in Canada has become a Canadian citizen.

About 1,000,000 flea-bye salmon are reported spawning in Chilco lake area in the Quesnel, believed to be the largest in history and triple that of 1946, last cycle year for the fish.

Authorities in Margate, England, suspected that local burglars were doing their Christmas shopping early when hundred Christmas cards were stolen from a printing plant.

BERNE, Switzerland — The Swiss parliament approved Switzerland's participation in the European economic co-operation organization by a vote of 136 to 7. The seven negative votes were those of Communist deputies.

During the last 30 years, Canadians have paid out more than $11,000,000,000 in tax. Of this amount $6,000,000,000 was in the form of income tax about $3,000,000,000 in excess profits tax and $120,257,371 in succession duties.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

Bless The Work...
By JANE DALE

Bless the work my hands must do
As the hours speed quickly by.
Much of it so commonplace—
Much which does not testify.
Bless the burdens I shall prize,
Sacrifice them every day.

Bless the need that I must speak
As a mother neighbor friend.
Much is without eloquence
Much forgotten at day's end.
Bless the weeds and may they find
Beauty in another's mind.

Bless the moments set aside
From my daily work and care;
For a quiet walk with Thee;
For a quiet word of prayer.
Bless these moments, grant that they
May grow richer day by day.

B.C. Hydro-Electric Plant In Motion

BRIDGE RIVER, B.C.—The 36-year-old dream of a retired surveyor has come true. Geoffrey M. Downton recently pushed a button button that set the British Columbia Electric Company's new $12,000,000 hydro-electric plant in motion.

The plant, which produces 62,000 horsepower, is largely the result of Downton's dream.

Situated about 120 miles northeast of Vancouver, the unit is one of 10 which will eventually produce 620,000 horsepower for industry in the B.C. coastal area. It is part of a $50,000,000 expansion program designed to lure industry and business into the west.

The actual planning of the scheme is almost fantastic.

Mission Mountain divides Bridge River, a relatively small body, from Seton Lake, the source of the power. To the casual eye the two appear to be on the same level.

Downton discovered there was in reality a drop of 1,300 feet from the lake to the river. He envisaged a decapitated mountain, allowing the lake's waters to roar down the slope and a power plant at the head of the river. That was in 1912.

Now the vision is complete.

Blended in the heart of rugged mountain country, the development required 142 miles of road to establish tower location. Long hauls over dangerous curves took a toll in human lives, 20 being listed in the ravines.

Only one life was lost in the construction

Boards Of Trade, Chambers of Commerce Triples Strength

The Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce movement has tripled its strength across Canada in three years, according to an announcement by The Canadian Chamber of Commerce. There are today 564 community organizations of business men serving their communities and their country through The Canadian Chamber.

The national organization which co-ordinates the work of these community organizations on matters of national policy held its 19th annual meeting in Vancouver recently.

Of particular interest to advertisers is the information included in the announcement that out of the 564 community organizations making up the membership of The Canadian Chamber, the national organization, 278 are served by their own weekly newspapers, and 73 per cent. of the 564-member Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Canada affiliated with The Canadian Chamber are in communities with 5,000 people or less

The announcement from The Canadian Chamber of Commerce states that it is a community or grass roots organization comprising over 73,000 business men and men who give leadership to community provincial and national development through the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce movement.

Among the aims and objects of the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce movement, are (1) to promote the progressive development of Canada's private enterprise system and to oppose vigorously communistic and other subversive influences. (2) To improve community welfare through the efficient work of a Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce in every Canadian community, and (3) to stimulate and maintain a strong and united Nation

WILSON APPOINTED TO MELFORT, SASK.

Announcement is made by the Dominion Department of Agriculture of the appointment of Harold E. Wilson, B.S.A., as Superintendent of the Melfort Experimental Station, Sask.

Though born in Prospect, Ont., Mr. Wilson is a westerner by upbringing, for his family soon moved to western Canada to a farm near Bastneon, Sask.

Mr. Wilson is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, where he specialized in animal husbandry. During the summers while attending University he lectured on animal husbandry and judged various breeds of livestock at summer fairs and exhibitions for the Extension Department of the University.

Joining the staff of the Dominion Experimental Station at Rosthern Sask., on graduation in 1923, Mr. Wilson remained there until 1929, when he was transferred to the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alta., as Assistant Superintendent in charge of Animal and Poultry Husbandry

Inferiority Feeling Causes Canadians' Fault

HALIFAX — A Halifax born university professor Dr John H. Hardie, has diagnosed Canada's chief ailment as a national inferiority complex.

"Canadians are extremely by a shocking sense of their own inferiority," he told Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island delegates to the annual reunion of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rites here.

Dr. Hardie is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, where he specialized in animal husbandry. During the summers while attending University he lectured on animal husbandry and judged various breeds of livestock at summer fairs and exhibitions for the Extension Department of the University.

Joining the staff of the Dominion Experimental Station at Rosthern Sask., on graduation in 1923, Mr. Wilson remained there until 1929, when he was transferred to the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, Alta., as Assistant Superintendent in charge of Animal and Poultry Husbandry

FUN ON LAND

Only about 17 per cent of the working area in Holland is on land. The rest are in commerce and industry in the towns.

Canada Geese Battle With Man For Control Of Lake

CAIRO, Ill — The Battle for Horseshoe Lake between Cairo citizen invaders and United States Government forces is developing into a major fight.

The United States Government represented by Federal conservation forces aided by aerial bombers, gendarmbikers and assorted noise-makers is trying to stand off the onslaught of the migrating Canada geese.

As far back as records go the Canada geese have made Horseshoe Lake their winter home. Until the price of corn reached present levels farmers did not object too much. What were a few bushels of the corn fields when geese hunters were willing to pay inflation prices for a goose.

But corn is becoming very dear these days and farmers jealous of every ear, regardless of acreage lost to the other noise-makers.

Conservationist V. O. Conover said the battle need not be bitter as firecrackers and sirens not damage a goose if a direct hit were made. Other he said the geese react to the noise by flying toward it.

The first phase of the battle has gone to the invaders. But the conservationists haven't given up. They think that when the later flights come in they will be wiser than the early arrivals and that the gear treatment will work

Announces New Training Program For Aircrew Members

Announcement of a one year training programme for selected aircrew members of the R.C.A.F.'s Auxiliary Squadrons was made by Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa, following a two-day conference of Auxiliary Squadron Officers from across Canada. The meeting was the first such gathering of senior Auxiliary officers since the post-war reorganization of the Air Force, and was attended by officers representing squadrons in Montreal, Toronto, London, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver

Under the new training plan selected Auxiliary Squadron members will be given a year's instruction at the R.C.A.F.'s Flying Training School Centralia, Ont., and will receive pilot's wages and other benefits during this training. On the completion of the course They will then return to civilian life but in the capacity of Auxiliary Squadron aircrew they will proceed with further training on their operational aircraft available at each squadron

GARLIC LANGUAGE

Gaelic reached height of perfection as a language in the 17th and 18th Centuries, when it declined. As a result a law against its use made now a law against its use made now is the official language of Eire

A Successful Year

AT THE CONCLUSION OF ANOTHER tourist season the Dominion Travel Bureau has reported a very successful year in this growing and important branch of Canadian industry. Because of our close proximity to the United States the number of Americans who visit Canada are always an indication of the volume of tourist traffic. This year it is estimated that 4,500,000 Americans entered Canada which was considerably more than the number who entered in the same period in 1947. The amount of United States currency spent by tourists here this season has not yet been made known but it is hoped that it will exceed by at least ten per cent the 225 million American dollars which were brought into Canada during the holiday season last year. This aspect of the tourist business was considered especially important this year because of Canada's low reserve of United States funds.

Increases in Most Provinces

Drought conditions, which swept British Columbia in the early summer, and extensive forest fires in Northern Quebec and Ontario were believed to have been responsible for a considerable decrease in the tourist business in those areas, which normally attract many thousands of visitors. At a Dominion-Provincial tourist conference held in Ottawa in October it was reported that there was an increase in tourist trade this year of from one to twelve per cent over 1947. British Columbia was the only province to report a decrease, the figure for the season being five per cent less than in the previous year. The Dominion Tourist Bureau reported that as far back as 4,200 registers were received in one day regarding holiday resorts. Canada and more than three million pounds of literature was mailed out by the bureau this season.

Land Of Great Natural Beauty

Roads are continually being improved and extended with the object of encouraging tourist traffic. In the past there has been considerable criticism of the facilities provided in some parts of Canada but the Travel Bureau reports that this year there were few complaints and a great number of letters of appreciation in this connection. Great progress has been made in improving highways and in raising standards of tourist accommodation, but there is need for further effort in building up this business which has proved to be a most profitable one for the country. The matter of completing the trans-Canada highway is still unsettled, and such a road would be a great asset both in attracting tourist traffic and for the country generally. It is to be hoped that the progress which is now being made in building up the tourist industry will continue and for few countries have greater natural beauty than Canada and it is fitting that it should be enjoyed by visitors from other lands as well as by Canadians themselves.

Hundreds Of Geese Land On Airport

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. Hundreds of Canadian snow geese recently dropped in Springfield's multi-million dollar airport, landed without instructions from the tower, and refused to leave.

Commercial airliners were able to land only when trucks shooed the big geese off the glistening runways. The geese apparently believed the cement strips were rivers. They waddled and honked around the municipal field moving out of the way only on threat of being flattened by truck wheels. Some made it most of the way.

Airline pilot, said the geese, which weigh from seven to 10 pounds, could break a propeller or even damage a wing.

Everybody was worried except the geese. They rested on their federal immunity from gunfire. It is against the law to shoot the big birds at the rate of more than one a day per hunter, and only in season.

Alaska Road As Channel For Tourist Trade

VANCOUVER — Now the U.S. Army's corps of engineers built the Alaska Military Highway through Canada, far-sighted leaders of Western Canada and United States have been stressing the needs and benefits of improved land transportation facilities to Alaska.

William Warne, U.S. assistant secretary of the interior, believes that if the Alaska Highway were properly developed it might channel a tourist trade of almost $100 million yearly into Alaska.

The Alberta provincial highway system joins up with the Alaska Highway via the Edmonton-Dawson Creek link which Premier Manning has announced his government plans to put in shape relocating some sections gravelling them all rapidly as possible.

British Columbia will tie in with the Alaska Highway at Dawson Creek when the John Hart Highway from there to Prince George is completed.

TYRRELL EXPRESS: "IN A GOLD MINE IN THESE DAYS OF SCARCITY" Holidays in the Yukon are still more than a dream. Travel is becoming noticeably absent from the public's table. The teacher wanted to impress on her class that history was nothing a man could do if he put his mind to it. Antony Jones hopped to differ.

EXPERT OPINION ON WOMEN'S FOOTWEAR

TORONTO — Dr. J. H. Smith Hamilton, chiropodist, says that shoes with two-piece heels are ruining the feet of Canadian women.

"If you can hire him as Indian, the can't work in the reservation," he said. "But if you have to live in the city, make it shoes or sandals. No woman should wear a heel higher than one and three quarter inches. If she does, her whole foot structure will be wrecked."

Chicken Confuses Manitoba Farmer

WINNIPEG: Man. — Anne Vince of Ashern, Man., is very confused.

The cause of his confusion is a chicken that can't make up its mind whether it wants to be a male or a female.

In a letter to the Manitoba Agriculture Department Vince said that he had recently received 12 Leghorn cockerels from the hatchery. However, one of the cockerels started laying eggs. After laying about a dozen eggs the pullet decided that there was no future in eggs and proceeded to do a turn-about.

In less than three days the bird blossomed into a full-fledged crowing cockerel.

Manitoba poultry experts say that the occurence is rare but has happened before. They say that to their knowledge a male has never become a female but females can become males.

Town Reverts Back To Village

EASTEND — Mortgage of some-what more than one and one-half million dollars on the town of Eastend, Sask., has been burned and the town is now a village.

The mortgage was held by the Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Eastend's population has resulted in the town council making application to the provincial government for permission to revert to the status of a village.

And so after Jan 1, 1949, the town of Eastend will officially become the village of Eastend.

Eastend's population in 1946, according to the enumeration census, was given at 350. The population is down from that figure now.

Oil To Ensure Prairie Future

OTTAWA. — Dr. G. S. Hume, Chief of the Geological Survey, Resources Department, said that new discovery of oil in Alberta will make the Prairie Provinces self-sufficient in a short time.

"It is certain that the Prairie Provinces will be self-sufficient and yield a surplus as a result of the discoveries of the Leduc and Redwater fields near Edmonton," he told the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Currently the Leduc field is producing more than 500,000 barrels of oil a month. In June the Leduc field surpassed the famed Turner Valley in production.

Dr. Hume said the Redwater field has not started production yet but it contains great potentiality.

He warned that the time is approaching when the west coast will not be able to get sufficient oil by exporting from California, Costa Rica or the island area wearing production.

All of our western oil comes from California, so the ultimate effect of the prairies may be of interest to the coast," he added.

He doubted if oil from the new Alberta fields will be transported east.

CANNIBALS AMONG FISH

Canada Not To Change Christmas

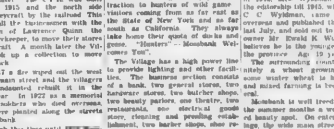
OTTAWA. They aren't going to shift Christmas anywhere in Canada this year or any other year.

Government officials said Canada would not follow the lead of New Zealand, which has decided that Christmas, which falls on a Saturday this year, will be celebrated three officially on Monday, Dec. 27.



Moosbank's community hall, recreation and dance hall. It has a balcony on three sides of the building.

station in the fall of 1912 with Lawrence Quinn as first storekeeper. Mr. Quinn owned the land on which the townsite of Moosbank was built.

The postoffice records laid out in 1913 and the buildings were put up a year later. The CPR. was built through 1915 and the north side called Heronry. Moosbank was the scene of all the businessmen with the exception of Lawrence Quinn the first storekeeper to move there was to Deverall. A month later the Village took up a residence on the north side.

In 1917 a fire wiped out the west side of main street and the villagers being awakened result it in the same year. In 1922 as a memorial to the soldiers who died overseas trees were planted along the streets of Moosbank.

Through the time until 1930 there was a steady growth in population to about 500. Surviving the hungry thirties its population in 1939 was considered 450. In 1940 Moosbank received an unexpected boost when No. 2 Bombing and Gunnery School, RCAF was opened 4½ miles east of Moosbank bringing with it a personnel of 2,200 men when it was operating at full capacity. Moosbank catered to them and every available room and home was rented out. By the end of that time till 1945 the population had at about 1,150. Business men were started again, progress was resumed and we are pleased to say has been moving rapidly forward ever since.

The region surrounding Moosbank, especially Lake Johnston, four miles north of the village, is a popular attraction to hunters of wild game. Visitors coming from as far east as the State of New York and as far south as California. They always take home their quota of ducks and geese. "Hunters" — Moosbank Welcomes You!

The Village has a high power line to provide lighting for homes and factories. The business section consists of a bank, two general stores, two hardware stores, two butcher shops, two beauty parlors, one theatre, two restaurants, one electrical goods store, cleaning and pressing establishment, two barber shops, one repair shop, drug store, men's ready-to-wear shop, four with forward premises and splendid accommodation. Masonic Hall, painting and interior decorating shop, six automobile dealerships and three wholesale and retail oil depots, two station and two service, two railroads. Post Office, public and high school, the high school was taken by the Lanyon School Unit from the airport, a building 360 feet long, and was used last year by the Lanyon School Unit are employed.

Moosbank has had large community hall and recreation centre, building is 100 feet with full size basement used for banquet hall and special occasions. Village also boasts a skating and curling rink, six elevators, flour mill.

A new modern 20 bed hospital valued at $70 000, now opened with a staff of two doctors and three nurses.

The telephone office has just been moved into new premises on Main Street. Ground plans are in operation to amalgamate to rural No. 102 and Union 103 with the object to provide 24 hour service to Moosbank. Married, Kingdon, Mailing, Ardill, Mitchellton, Empress and Bishopric.

The Lake Johnston Star which covers a large district with its circulation, was originally printed at Empress. Sask. by Mr Alfred Wyldman, and in 1939 moved it to Moosbank. After Mr Wyldman's passing in 1941 Mrs Wyldman carried on the editorship till 1945, when her son C. C. Wyldman, came back from overseas and published the paper till last July, and sold out to the present owner Mr. Harold R. Wonder, who believes he is the youngest editor in the province. Age 19 years.

The surrounding districts is dotted with a wheat growing country some mighty wheat is being grown and mixed farming is becoming general.

Moosbank is well treed and during the summer months a well prepared and beauty spot. On entering the village the wide main street, well kept boulevards, yards and gardens will be a abundance of flowers and vegetables attract the eyes and has brought well deserved comments from visitors. Our slogan is "The Biggest Little Village In The South Country".

HARDISTY LEGION NOV. 11TH BANQUET

The annual Remembrance Day banquet of the Hardisty Legion was held at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 11th in the IOOF hall. All guests were present when the Rev. Buttly offered the invocation.

Immediately following the banquet Mayor Allan Johnstone proposed a toast to the King and the company observed a two minute silence which was followed by a sing-song led by Cmrd. H. Perkins at the piano. The toastmaster, Claude May proposed three toasts: The Legion, the Sweethearts and the Ladies, which were ably responded to by Cmrd. Perkins, Cmrd. Wm Pedlar and Mrs. Barney Matthews. An address was given by President Reg Johnson on the work of the Legion. This was followed by a talk by Cmrd. Jim Crunch and one by Cmrd. F. Pearce on the first and second grant wars respectively.

After a second sing-song, Cmrd. A. Keegan gave instructions for the grand march to Klofer's Hall for the dance of the year to music by the Hardisty Merrymakers.

Miss Dorothy Macinski was the winner of the door prize, $15 credit at any Hardisty store.

The committee in charge wishes to thank the members of the United Church Aid and those who helped with the serving at the fine banquet. They also wish to thank the members of the orchestra and those who helped decorate the hall.

LOUGHEED CURLING CLUB LOOKS FOR ACTIVE SEASON

Last Saturday night the Lougheed curling enthusiasts gathered in the office of Mr Duffy's Store to discuss plans for the curling season and from all reports a good season is in prospect.

The curling season will open with a mixed spiel which will be followed by the Farmers' Bonspiel.

Although the fine weather has interrupted fully, the curlers wish it would turn rubber so they could begin the season's winter sport.

WEDDING

SCOTT — WRIGHT

A pretty double-ring ceremony was solemnized in the First Baptist Manse in Edmonton on Nov. 10th at 4:30 p.m., when Etta Lorraine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Wright of Lougheed exchanged the marriage vows with John Brent, son of Mr. Alexander Scott of Edmonton. Rev. E. J. Bailey officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely wearing a white wool dress with burgundy accessories and corsage of red roses. Her only jewellry was a string of pearls, gift of the groom. The bride was attended by Mrs. Lloyd Wrickle, sister of the groom. She chose a rose wool dress with dark green accessories, and Johanna Hill, in corsage. Mr. Wm. Wright attended the groom. A reception was held in the King Edward Hotel, the bride's table being decorated with mauve and white mums, and centred with a tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Wright received with the bridal party, wearing a plum colored silk dress with black accessories and a corsage of red roses and yellow carnations. Mrs. Scott chose a grey silk dress with black accessories and pink roses on corsage. Mr. Alfred Bennie was toast master. After a short honeymoon the happy couple will take up residence in Edmonton.

Out of town guests included Rev. Walker Wright of Plum Coulee, Man.

SOS ROBERTSON FETED AT GROVELAND SCHOOL

A number of friends gathered at the Groveland School last Wed. eve. to bid farewell to Bob Robertson. The evening was spent in playing cards and dancing, after which the crowd enjoyed lunch. Mr. T. Jones presented Bob with a brush set on behalf of the community.

Bob is an old timer in the district and will be greatly missed by his many friends. He left for Edmonton last Saturday, where he spent a few days before leaving for Ontario. We wish him the best of luck.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT

HEMORRHAGIC SEPTICEMIA:

This disease is often called 'Shipping Fever' but it may occur in the farmyard or feed lots. In cattle, the disease is usually associated with a lowered resistance of the animals due to shipment, weather changes, irregular feeding or a deficient diet.

DEATH

The community was saddended by the death of Nels Toppe. He passed away at the Killam hospital on the evening of November 17th, after a protracted illness, just short of his 76th Birthday. Nels was born in Norway, and emigrated to North Dakota in early 1900. In 1906 he removed to Alberta, homesteading on the land he continued to occupy until he retired a couple years ago. In 1946 he returned to Norway for his first visit since emigrating, and remained for a year. He was stricken while there and after an operation recovered sufficiently to return to Alberta.

When Mr. Toppe stood for public office a few years ago the Editor of the Connect paper, who had known him, commented on the fact that Nels evidently had always displayed to Alberta, those fine qualities of character that he had noted in his early days in North Dakota. Nels Toppe was a man of the highest character, honest, not merely in the sense that he paid his bills, but honest in that frank sincerity that he shown him fair and truthful to speech, above cheating or misrepresentation. He was ever backing in courage to strive and work for those ideals he believed in. He was a good friend to have behind you in the word, without undue emphasis on money making meant, though he accumulated an adequate return.

He was a good storksman with some ex responsibility to see that his stock was well cared for. Mr. Toppe served the district in the early school Boards and on the large school divisional board. He served on the old Municipal Council for many years and on the larger M.D. Council later. He never refused at any time to accept a responsibility that his neighbors felt he could do. He always got a great deal out of life because he gave a great deal to it. He was widely known, widely honored and widely loved. He never married but was ready in the presence of children long without assisting them to him.

His funeral service was held on Saturday, November 20th at the United Church, Sedgewick. Rev. M. M. MacLeod conducted the service which was simple and dignified in keeping with the character of the deceased. The Pallbearers were: Allan Baker, Jas. Baker, Nels Eide, Donald Mackenzie, Ronald Mackenzie, Hugh Gibbs. Honorary Pallbearers, J. V. Johnson, Chas. Simons, Kenny McFarlane and Louis Nelson.

Interment was made in the Sedgewick cemetery.

The Sunday morning service was held in the United Church with the Rev. John Morris as guest speaker. This was followed by a luncheon in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. The tasty lunch prepared by the United Church Guild and the Presbyterian Ladies Aid, was very greatly enjoyed by all.

Sunday afternoon was spent in a sing-song, films and the election of officers for 1949-50. The closing ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Gray Rivers of Camrose.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Ray Michel who died November 19th, 1947.

The sun went down on his short life
The darkness shadows fell.
But down the years we remember him
Without a last farewell.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died—
To think that you could not say goodbye
Before you closed your eyes.

LEST WE FORGET

(By Phyllis Terry — Hardisty)

In the great city of Paris, in front of the famous Hotel des Invalides, stands a big railway car. Across its front side are the words. "The car in which the Armistice was signed, November 11th, 1918." This car is the most historic railway car in the world for in that car around a big table, eighty-two years ago, was born, and holding the happiness of humanity in their hands signed that magnificent and memorable compact. This document had ended the most terrific conflict known to the civilized world. (WAR) recorded in the history of mankind.

After the first world war Armistice Day was marked, for it was "all the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month" that "cease fire" sounded. Today we mark that day in remembrance of the fallen in two world wars. The willing sons and daughters of Canada, who served against Hitler and Hirohito have joined their veteran fathers of Flanders fields and Picardy in this annual tribute of remembrance. It is now a Canadian tradition and a beautiful one, too.

In Flander's fields the poppies blow,
Between the crosses row on row,
That mark the place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

The wearing of a red poppy on Remembrance Day is indeed a very beautiful tradition. Let us not forget, either, that the red poppies mean remembrance of the living as well as the dead. In the fields of many so virginal overseas one thought predominated They wanted to finish the job and return home. Some came to be glorified. The rest was overshadowed by the good. Canada was their home and the best country in the world. 'Canada an' home' thought of as the place where one could have true happiness and only good times. Home was the place where love and the finer affections flourished. Home meant so much more than that; it meant a job prosperity.

Let us not forget the boys who died that we might live in peace and freedom. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, but who will never be the same again. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget.

Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget. Let us not forget the boys who returned to us, and who are trying to forget.

Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

A large number of relatives, close friends and neighbors, visited the W. G. Simons home, Sedgewick, during the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, November 23rd, when the couple held open house on the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

The front rooms were tastefully decorated with red flowers, with the dining room table centered with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked by burning tapers.

William Glenn Simons and Lydia Hamilton Fawcett were united in the bonds of matrimony at New Virginia, Iowa, on November 23rd, 1898. In 1901 they emigrated to Camrose and filled on a homestead. In 1910, along with their family, they removed to the Sedgewick district, where they built roads. Mr. and Mrs. Simons have lived in the district since that time with the exception of for years which they spent in California.

During the early days the Simons home was a mile north of town and was the gathering place for large numbers of friends from a wide area to enjoy the hospitality of the family. The couple has enjoyed the friendship of a large circle of people who, on November 23rd wished them many more happy years together.

Mr. and Mrs. Simons have four surviving sons, Mr. Carmander (Wilma) of Los Angeles, Mr. Elmer Billow (Clara), Mr. A. T. Eastly (Helen), bonds of matrimony of Mr. Sedgewick, ten grand children and four great grand children.

The community presented Mr and Mrs. Simons with a purse of money and they responded and expressed with a gold trimmed table lamp

The couple plans to leave Dec. 2nd to spend the winter in California

Professor Stresses Importance Of Preserving Canadian Farm Home

By JEAN LOVE SALLOWAY
Central Press Canadian

OTTAWA — "If we are content to leave our own boys and girls drift into town and replace them by the peoples of other lands we betray the future of our Anglo-Saxon and French Canadian race," declared H. S. Arkell in an address to farm women at the 31st convention Eastern Ontario Women's Institute held in the Chateau Laurier here.

Mr. Arkell is a former professor at the Ontario Agricultural college, Guelph, and before his retirement a Rhodes Scholar.

He pointed out that "only one in eight has farmed Canada to start a farm for true and steel equipment to establish a farm home and keep it going."

Nevertheless are two reasons why Prof. Arkell says young people should settle on the land. Saint Martin and Gertrude

Canada To Seek Iron, Scrap Steel

OTTAWA — P. N. Ashbaugh steel controller, says a critical steel shortage has forced Canada to start a search for iron and steel scrap in the Dominion's northern frontiers and Labrador.

Negotiations are being made to build a pulp and paper plant at Knob Lake, Ungava, on the Quebec-Labrador border.

Mr. Ashbaugh said the plant would be built to supply Canada's needs for pulp and paper.

Canada's steel industry is operating at full capacity and is unable to meet the demand.

Search For Oil Near Stettler

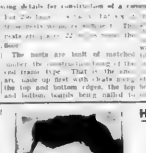
CALGARY — The search for oil is on again, about ago a crew Stettler Alberta to start drilling for oil. Tuesday the Pacific Petroleums Limited of Montreal, backing all under the control of Imperial Oil Limited, the parent company, announced that the drilling of a second test will be started for the week-end about eight or the south-east of Stettler.

Every day here adds to the story of a village of man help part the way towards discovery. With that the oil boom of the new drilling rig now has between two 12-man apart farmers drilled the past two months up for Dr. Evans in the area, gained from those holes two fairly gusher-bearer flowed pressure a show of oil and lots of gas, equivalent of before a 70-per.

Now comes Pyramids-Hotel Lethbridge to be drilled nearby in the hope that a pay-bearing of 102 persons will yield oil, and that 143 will be found at a high enough level to yield production.

Backers of the new well about 10 miles southeast of Stettler have are Pyramids-Purpogas Gold Mines of Toronto and the Interlebur Syndicate, in which Interlebur oils holds 70 per cent and British Dominion Oil, Mid-continent Oil and Gas and others 30 per cent. The well is on some 10,000 acres of Canadian Gulf Oil Company rights and that company will share in any production obtained.



RESIGNS FROM ATTLEE PARTY

HEALTH
VD Blood Tests Said Worthwhile

I the belief that routine blood testing for syphilis on all hospital patients would prove to be a worth while effort the dental Surgeon Committee of the Health League of Canada suggests it might be advisable to ask the provincial and municipal governments to have the dramatic tests required as such routine testing.

A survey recently completed by the Health League reveals that only 29.97 per cent of Canadian hospitals receiving in a quest-estimate dealing with blood testing as routine tests — all patients admitted to hospital that of 553 hospitals replied 452 received no such tests.

Twenty-three hospitals reported they said routine on all patients only — 52 tested obstetric patients only — 33 did routine card Wassermann.

Eighty-seven of the 85 which reported routine tests on all patients also revealed the percentage of positive tests to be found up as a result. For instance 27 reported positive were below one per cent 20 stated that ranged between one and ten per cent 12 revealed two to three per cent were positive while 13 reported their positives were over three per cent. One of Canada's largest hospitals reported positives ranged around 7 per cent.

In view of these reports, the Health League of Canada is strongly of the opinion that blood tests for syphilis should become routine in all hospitals and that public health officials will be discovered to make any financial outlay worthwhile.

Would Require Much Money

State Should Provide Lawyer

Effective prison reform, however, requires large expenditures of public money for buildings, equipment, and the training of skilled personnel, and consequently rapid progress in this sphere is not made. The task of rehabilitation is one of our greatest social problems, and every encouragement should be given to efforts which are made to improve the present system. Another matter which we consider should be brought to the attention of the public at the recent meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. It was pointed out at this meeting that there is now no means of providing counsel for indigent prisoners or others who for various reasons are unable to retain the services of a lawyer when they are brought to trial. The state has recently assumed the responsibility of providing attorneys as well as prosecutors, and that it should have the same interest in defending the innocent as in convicting the guilty. Some form of legal aid for indigent persons is now in force in England, and judges or lawyers have the power to remedy this situation, it is apparent that this is another matter in which there is need for reform, and for the attention of public bodies in the interests of indigent citizens who come in contact with the law.

Members of the Bar Association expressed the view that although judges are usually compassionate in cases where a prisoner has no counsel, and frequently lawyers give their services free of charge to those who cannot afford to pay, there are frequent cases in which counsel should be available to all who are needed if the law is to be properly administered. It has been suggested that the state should retain defending attorneys as well as prosecutors, and that it should have the same interest in defending the innocent as in convicting the guilty. Some form of legal aid for indigent persons is now in force in England, and judges or lawyers have the power to remedy this situation, it is apparent that this is another matter in which there is need for reform, and for the attention of public bodies in the interests of indigent citizens who come in contact with the law.

A Need For Reform

ONE OF THE GREAT SOCIAL PROBLEMS which have got to be completely solved is that of dealing justly and effectively with those who run foul of the law. The administration of justice in British courts is known to be unsurpassed in fairness and efficiency. Canada's judiciary system is patterned after it and in this respect criminals and all those who come in contact with the law are assured of fair and just treatment by the courts. There is, however, still need for reform in many matters connected with the handling of prisoners in jails and penitentiaries, the treatment of youthful criminals and first offenders, and the problem of rehabilitating those who are discharged from our penal institutions. The new well-known Archambault report on prison conditions in Canada contained recommendations for dealing with those problems and already steps have been taken to carry out some of the recommendations.

Labor Survey Shows Canada At High Peak

OTTAWA — Canadian employment has hit yet another peak.

In its 12th quarterly survey of the country's labor force, the Bureau of Statistics estimated that 5,042,800 persons were working in the first week of September.

That's the biggest number ever to hold jobs in Canada. It was a boost of 34,800 from a year previously.

And at the same time the Bureau estimated the number of unemployed had dropped to 67,000, representing decrease of 5,000 from last year and the 10-year below.

Of those employed the Bureau established 3,932,000 were men and 1,110,000 were women.

The figures are based on a cross-section survey of about 30,000 households. The labor force is made up of persons of 14 and over who have jobs or are looking for work.

Lake Okanagan Dropping For First Time Since Spring Flood

KELOWNA BC Government engineers are keeping their fingers crossed as the Okanagan Lake dropped another three feet during the week-end.

The lake has dropped below the agreed maximum of 102.5 feet for the first time since Mission Creek and other valley streams flooded last June.

The drop came after 117 days of flood control.

Engineers have removed the top of Okanagan Falls and straightened the Okanagan River channel south of Penticton to release flood conditions. They will try to lower Kalamalka Lake a foot to increase the reserve and also store water for dry years for use.

Action on the special flood control measures was promised by R. B. Bruce-Clayton, Coalition candidate in the Nov. 20 by-election.

The Okanagan fruit grower told voters he would be for the implementation of the report.

Many Farmers To Sow New Strain Of Wheat Next Spring

OTTAWA — Thousands of western Canada farmers will seed the rich, prairie wheatlands next spring with a new bread grain variety which promises to yield bigger and better crops and increasing wealth for the grower. The variety is Saunders wheat, a new strain developed at the central experimental farm here, which matures earlier than other varieties, produces a larger yield per acre and is resistant to many common wheat diseases as well. It also has fine milling and bread-making qualities.

It came ... first from Saunders ... famous ... the experimental farm Canada's major wheat-producing services ... Dr. William Saunders ... pre- ... pending compilation ... data from tests in northern areas of the Dominion. The seed will not be sold in quantities of more than six bushels to a grower.

First Developed in 1926

Bred back in the chain of development leading to the new variety took place in 1926, when experts crossed Thatcher ... one of the most-used grades on the prairies, with an early ripening variety known as Brandon in the spring of 1947, there were 225 members of Saunders seed. There were carefully grown under central ... at experimental stations at Beaverlodge ... and Lacombe in Alberta and Melfort in Saskatchewan as well as at the central experimental farm in Ottawa.

From the original 225 bushels, a harvest of 5,700 bushels of seed was reaped and distributed to 827 wheat growers for seeding last spring. Now, there are more than 100,000 bushels available and these will be distributed again next year.

— Ripens Earlier

In maturity Saunders ripens four to five days earlier than Thatcher. This is important to northern areas, where there is danger of early frost. In yield it returns 12 to 87 bushels an acre against 10 to 50 for Thatcher, and is even better when compared with Red Bobs, another of the more ... northern rust resistant varieties.

In addition Saunders is resistant to stem rust and leaf rust and is moderately resistant to bunt black ... and root rot.

Farmers who planted Saunders this year reported surprisingly good crops were harvested despite poor spring seeding conditions and dry weather this summer. In Alberta's Peace River country it outyielded Thatcher three out of four times and Red Bobs three out of five.

Other reports indicated Saunders weathered Alberta frosts in some areas better than Red Bobs.

Dr. Cassidy said that the labor shortage is not due to the fact that there are not enough people in the country, but to the fact that there are not enough people in the right places.

He said that the shortage is due to the fact that there are not enough people in the right places.

Mr. Dave Murray has been out of school and confined to hospital due to infection in his nose.

Robert Thorp attended a banquet in Camrose, sponsored by the Edmonton Bulletin. Carriers from various points attended.

It is nice to see Mrs. MacDonald back in Hardisty again.

A host of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Elmquist on Sunday, the 14th to celebrate Albert's 58th birthday. Congratulations Albert. They say the first 50 years is the hardest.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Matthews were from visitors last Wednesday.

Anne Swenson was a Hardisty visitor last week end. On Saturday he motored to Edmonton, accompanied by Gertie Cooper and son Darrell.

Messrs Everett Goodrich, Gren Whitebeck, Oxford and Mr and Mrs Henry Rembrandt returned recently from a hunting trip at Edson.

Mr. Everett Goodrich has purchased the Wallace Quillen farm and has in turn, sold his own to Emil Johnson.

Mrs S Bang was an Edmonton visitor again this week. Come o Sophie, tell us what's the idea?

Mrs. Jimmy Brandon spent most of the week in Edmonton.

DEATH

The Hardisty district was saddened to learn of the sudden passing of Mrs. Florence Brutall Martin, who died on November 16th at Edmonton. She leaves to mourn her loss, 4 sisters, Mrs. L. Jackson of Hardisty, Mrs. Helen Horgan of Bentley, Mrs. H. Hunt of Edmonton, Mrs. A. G. Fletcher of Edmonton, 2 brothers, Clarence and Frank of Edmonton.

Funeral services were held from Fonte and McCarey's Funeral Chapel on Friday, November 19th, and interment was made in the Edmonton cemetery.

HARDISTY GROUPS WORKING ON STAMPEDE

Messrs Reg Jakeson, P Gascard A Keenan and Billy Saville, attended a meeting of the Central Alberta Stampede Assn. at Stettler on Nov. 17th for the purpose of investigating their proposals and the possibilities of staging a Stampede at Hardisty Lake next summer.

If the idea comes over it is anticipated that it will be under the joint sponsorship of the Legion, Chamber of Commerce and Elks Lodge.

It would bring some of the top ranch rodeo performers of Alberta and the U. S. to Hardisty to compete for the liberal prize money and trophies which will be donated by some of the province's largest and most widely known corporations.

First Aid Hints For Miscellaneous Injuries

FOREIGN BODY IN THE EAR CHANNEL

If an insect is in the ear channel, fill the ear with olive oil, when the insect will float and may be removed. Otherwise make no attempt to treat a patient with a foreign body in the ear, but take him to a doctor as soon as possible; attempts to remove the foreign body may lead to fatal consequences. If a child cannot be induced to keep the fingers from the ear, tie his hands down to prevent his pushing the foreign body further. Never syringe or probe the ear.

FOREIGN BODY IN THE NOSE

Instruct the patient to breathe through the mouth. Do not interfere with the foreign body, but take him to a doctor at once.

FOREIGN BODY IN THE STOMACH

Pins, and other small, sharp objects, may be accidentally swallowed. Give nothing by the mouth, but take the patient to a doctor at once. Smooth objects such as coins, buttons need not cause alarm.

FROST BITE

Wind and constricting clothing will make the tissues freeze more readily. Moisture on the skin, and air heavily laden with moisture, will make the tissues freeze more readily, that is — the tissues will stand a much lower temperature in dry air than in moist air, before freezing takes place.

TREATMENT: 1. Slow thawing. 2. No rubbing. 3. No moisture. 4 No snow

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE WINNER?

"A Teacher Must Be Dignified At All Times"

By JESSICA CALLOW

THE Varsities town council had met in session to discuss the problem of the bridge that spanned the creek running between the town proper and Varsities end. Barrowcombe Falls had a definite claim on the bridge as a definite part of the Falls road leading to a highway, however only one board of the eight-foot bridge remained and thus the bridge was not very safe.

The council had been discussing the matter for some time. The main bone of contention was the question of who should pay for the repairs. Should it be the responsibility of the Varsities council or that of the bridge?

Tom began to scribble laboriously on an exercise.

"Never mind it, Tom," drawled Myron, getting up and walking around with his hands in his pockets. "I think we shouldn't decide anything for a day or two at least. Let's talk about by the horse shoe pitch I got a better to post."

"Oh, you and your horse shoes," flared up for a minute Vance, but getting to be as bad as Barrowcombe's Pete Spanking. (this difference is quite a good correction.) Why can't we get this settled." Quite unruffled Myron got out his pipe and blew a cloud of smoke towards the ceiling.

"Sooner than you think, my boy. Just a little patience and chap, and I'll bet you, you I'll bet you a box of cigars to a new pipe that Barrowcombe will fix the bridge."

"Ha, you're on and don't say you didn't remember my brand Barrowcombe will never do it."

"I need a new pipe," said Myron. "So here Wednesday, I'll have something to show you. And say, I want to borrow a few pairs of bedroom slippers. I only got one pair."

"One pair at a time is enough for most folks," said Roy sarcastically. "What in the world do you want all those slippers for?"

"I might want to practice ballet dancing in my spare time."

"Well O.K., if it's to help you reduce I suppose it's in a good cause. My gosh, no wonder the bridge didn't last.

Next-day saw the three men again in Myron's big living room. There other portly gentlemen were also present. Though comfortable and seemingly very happy, the visiting gentlemen sat with reckless feet thrust into borrowed slippers. Just as they had made their tender departing note the hearth whilst their socks hung like a row of kippers on the fire screen.

Later and until after dusk the clang of hoes and a ring from the pile of land down the road. Two huge electric lights pierced the haze out of water no matter as we put up on a dam bridge."

I think," said Roy, still remembering the teacher "that we should bring the teacher "that we should not have to fix the bridge."

"We fixed it the last time it got going to be a habit.

Does know what it'll cost? chimed in Tom (having to be done

Myron cleared the room and told ted you it got to be built up so either end this time. It is a waste of money and money, saving, time, to get a rubbed out again. Bill cast, leaning

Myron looked thoughtful as he methodically stirred the ashes every room upon the fire screen. The following night as the contestants walked in a single upward over his feature. The feet of all the visitors were conspicuously dry. What matter that the challengers lost the match. A game is played for the good it gives to all in the playing.

"Tom never had a pipe like the one, My." It was Roy who spoke as he pulled a package from his pocket. The two stood admiring the new bridge complete with hand rail, over which the winning Barrowcombes had walked dry shod at last.

Prairie Producers Seeking 200,000 B.C. Turkey Eggs

CLOVERDALE, B.C. A survey of turkey breeds is to be made by the Fraser Valley Turkey Producers Association to ascertain if the 200,000 eggs needed on the prairies in the 1948 season can be supplied.

Prairie producers state B.C. eggs are superior to those imported from other sources and the association is making every effort to cultivate this market.

West Farmers Facing Threat Of Drought

WINNIPEG — Western Canadian farmers, facing a threat of scanty markets for their wheat on the one hand, and uncertain growing conditions on the other, are looking to 1949 with a certain degree of anxiety.

A warning that Canada, and other grain-growing countries, may be hard pressed to find adequate markets has come from British quarters. Their prediction is based on the belief that grain will be plentiful next year following large increases in wheat stocks recorded by many countries this year.

Chief Commissioner George McIvor of the Canadian Wheat Board, however is hopeful that Canada will be able to dispose of her wheat next year.

Western farmers, while scanning the market situation with a careful eye are more concerned with crop conditions. They fear that a large-scale drought may be experienced next summer unless heavy winter snowfalls and substantial spring rains bring moisture to dry areas.

Last summer moisture conditions were good throughout the West and farmers reaped a bumper crop. But this fall has been described as the driest within memory of many farmers and they are uncertain what to expect next year.

Moisture for spring-seeded crops is not the only problem worrying farmers. The dry fall has left top soil hard and cracked and curtailed fall crop seeding. In some areas the soil is reported so hard that plows have been unable to do more than dent the surface.

Just Plain Folks

A recent editorial in The Provincetown, Mass., Banner, the following item which truly depicts the rural community life:

"Last Monday, after lunch, we had reasons to call at the office of a well known resident of Provincetown. We were very busy at the time, but as the business was important and could not be transacted over the phone, we took time off and walked down to see him.

He was out but had left a note on his office door courtly stating the reason for his absence. It read:

Mend fix the clothes line Should be finished by 2 o'clock."

Had his door been locked with no explanatory supplied here by natural reason given, we would have been quite annoyed.

And, had the mail He back at a certain time" not been used, we would not have felt such happier either.

Here was a man who still has the common touch. One who knew that his time to would know that a broken clothes line on a Monday was a very grave thing.

That's why we like living in a rural community. Not just because it can look time off to do a house-hold chore, but because in our type of life men are still big enough to be just plain folks."

Chicken Disease And Polio Has No Connection

EDMONTON Dr. J. A. Gilletti, Alberta director of communicable diseases, said there is no indication of any connection between the frequency of poliomyelitis and a type of paralysis which attacks chickens. He said reports that many chickens in the Nov. 10 pike district of the province were dying from a type of paralysis while eight persons recovered from polio were in hospital.

Dr. Gilletti said research of the theory that the two diseases might be connected

MRS. V. EMBERTON GETS SOUVENIR FROM HONOLULU

Mr. and Mrs. V. Emberton are proudly receiving their friends in groups since Orsen Hirst, Let and the other necessary accessories of a Slush Hunt Journey of Islands, which is sent to them by their son Steker Trevor Emberton. Trevor recently visited the southern islands as a member of the crew of MMS Antigonish.

The skirt is made of native grass, about three feet long, dyed in colors of red and green, while the Lei is constructed of paper fashioned into flowers.

Your Editor tried the skirt on but found his curves (what he had) were in the wrong places, so Mrs. Emberton decided to give it to Mr. Howard Smith, who, she said, had better and bigger curves.

KILLAM GIRL WINS GRADE NINE TOP AWARD

Word was received last week that the winner of the 1948 Governor General's Medal for the Killam Inspectorate, awarded on the basis of highest standing in grade nine examinations, is Rosemary Helen Manning. Rosemary took her grade IX at Killam, and is now attending Central High School, Sedgewick. It is understood that formal presentation of this medal will be made very shortly. Present plans call for this ceremony to take place at Central High on Visitor's Day next week.

PERSONAL STUFF

—By A. W. S.—

Ere you read this column, the Gray Cup, sublimenatial of football supremacy in Canada, will be respectively sought in the sports gallery at Calgary. It is with much rejoicing that the west undermines the east and I for one hope that the East will find it as hard to "lift" in the future as the West has found it in the past.

We dod our chapeaux to the Calgary Stampeders. May they repeat again next year.

You verily, some men blunder to "where Angels fear to tread". The latest instance of this boldness was performed in Baghdad recently by a manufacturer of canes. This daring individual had the nerve to visit a school over there to lecture on the merits of physical punishment in the classrooms. But that's not all. He took with him a dozen assorted samples of his art to demonstrate exactly to "fit them for size". What a guy! What could have happened to him in Canada? It happened to him over there too. Yes, the youngsters waylaid him upon his exit and after given him a real "working over" with his own canes. By jove that should teach the old boy a thing or two eh what.

WEDDINGS

HAYS — BANES

A quiet wedding took place at Irma, United Church on Monday the 8th of November, when Loren Lyman youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Banes of Vermilion exchanged marriage vows with Ronnie J. Hays, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hays of Hardisty. Rev. H. W. Ingle officiated. The bride wore an afternoon frock of royal blue suede with lemon accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses and pink roses Ronnie and her only presentry was a good mother — gift of the groom. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Banes. Following the afternoon frock of pointed silk with navy accessories Her corsage was of yellow roses Mr Andy Chick acted as best man. The couple will reside in the city.

OPEN HOUSE AT CENTRAL HS

From 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. on Wed December 8th, Sedgewick Central High School will be open to parents and other visitors. Public interest in this has been displayed especially in the new home economics laboratory and industrial arts shop has resulted in a special invitation being offered to those interested to visit not only these departments but the entire school and the Dormitory. Housewives and mothers will be particularly interested in seeing the modern electric sewing machines, kitchen range, washing machines, refrigerator and other equipment. Also on display will be work the girls are doing as they learn home-making Others will probably be more interested in the gym saws, jointer, drill press, grinder and other tools in the shop. Parents of present and prospective "Dorm" inmates will have an opportunity of learning how their boys and girls live five days out of seven. Staff will be interested in meeting the teachers and discussing the academic program (to represent the work they are doing). The modern movie projection equipment, the science laboratory, the commercial room will also be on display. The modern school buses will be readily accessible. Present plans also call for refreshments to be prepared and served by home economics students

An additional feature will be the presentation of the Governor-General's medal in the year's best grade nine student in Killam Inspectorate

LOCAL TEACHERS PLAN FOR FESTIVALS

A regular meeting of the Edmonton Club of the Killam Inspectorate was held at Sedgewick on December 10th. Thirty-five members of the profession were present. A large part of the evening was devoted to reports on a festival questionnaire, presented by Mr. H. A. Bruder, and on correspondence from different school superintendents dealing with school festivals, presented by Mr. R. W. Sparks. After some discussion it was decided to hold two festivals next spring, one at Killam, the other at Forestburg, and arrangements made for the formation of preliminary committees.

A short film was shown by courtesy of Mr. D. Walmsley, principal of the Sedgewick School. Teachers were also given an opportunity to inspect the home economics laboratory and the industrial arts shop.

The meeting was closed by a lunch provided by the staffs of the Sedgewick schools and their wives, and served under the direction of Mrs. D. Chalmers, home economics teacher at Central High

The next meeting of the Edmonton Club will be held in the Co-op hall at Killam at 8 p.m. on December 16th. All teachers in the Killam Inspectorate are invited to attend

MR. C. MERTA

At Hardisty on December 13th, Mr. Charles Merta, Killam, was elected President of the Conservative Association here and the Provincial Convention. The representatives of Central-East School Divisions included the following divisions: Vegreville, Holden, Camrose, Killam, Provost, Carmangay, Castor, Neutral Hills and Vermilion.

The meeting discussed current problems pertaining to the general work of the A. T. A.

MOULD FOR DOLLS CAN COST $20,000

VANCOUVER — You can have a doll that blows bubbles, drinks water, and burps, or you can have a doll made to order—for about $18,000.

Morley Freeman, executive of a large Toronto toy concern, revealed some vital statistics on his annual pre-Christmas pilgrimage here.

He said the original model for a doll may run as high as $20,000. Mass-production from the mould brings them down to the customer's pocket book.

Everybody wants Canadian dolls," said Freeman, who revealed the Dionne quintuplets with a set of five dolls, and said thousands of copies to visitors.

He created a special doll for Princess Elizabeth when she married and gave Queen Wilhelmina of Holland four dolls for her grandchildren.

No—he hasn't yet developed one to chew bubble-gum.

HEALTH

Dust May Cause Infantile Eczema

The possibility that house dust is an important cause of atopic dermatitis or infantile eczema, is advanced by Jerome Glaser, M.D., of Rochester, N.Y. writing in a recent issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Infantile eczema is an allergy disease which, it is believed, is caused by direct contact of the skin with certain allergens, as well as by allergens which have been inhaled and which reach the skin through the blood stream. An allergen is any substance which is capable of inducing allergy or specific susceptibility.

Among the characteristics of atopic dermatitis are watery sores, scales and crusts, and itching and burning sensations. The affliction is commoner in infants and children because their tender skins are more easily penetrated by allergens than those of adults.

According to Dr. Glaser, "the characteristic distribution of atopic dermatitis, with lesions worse on the face, the area of the arms below the elbows and the area of the legs below the knees, suggests a possible contact origin." In view of this, he says, "it is tempting to consider that such lesions might be caused by a ubiquitous and powerful allergen, house dust, which could act either by contact or inhalation.

As further evidence of the importance of house dust in causing infantile eczema, Dr. Glaser points out that "the often remarkably beneficial results of hospitalization are commonly attributed to avoidance of house dust as well as of other environment allergens," adding that good results in the alleviation of the conditions have also been attained by treating patients with injections of house dust extract.

According to the article, there is no completely satisfactory treatment of infantile eczema and therefore the problem is to do the best one can with a disease which is usually self limited, with a tendency to spontaneous remissions and eventual recovery regardless of therapy."

Prophylactic, or preventive measures such as avoidance of dust or irritating wool clothing, are considered important in the orthodox treatment of the disease. Special baths prepared by adding a cup or two of cornstarch to a tub of tepid water, are also recommended for early stages of the disease.

The local application of paste of resorcinol, made up of one part zinc oxide, one part corn or arrowroot starch, and two parts white petrolatum is highly satisfactory in more advanced or chronic stages. In all cases of atopic dermatitis, the article says, it is well to put the patient on a simple elimination diet, which includes substitutes for cow's milk and the administration of vitamins A, D and C.

GLASS SNAKE SWIFT

The glass snake is often found in some out of dry fields from Illinois to Florida and westward into Mexico. It has no feet, but is able to move swiftly by serpentine movements. Its tail is so loosely articulated and free of muscle that when overtaken and an attempt made to capture it, the tail breaks off like a bit of glass. It is quickly renewed by a new growth and the animal is not injured.

MANUFACTURING PROPANE GAS

CALGARY Manufacture of propane gas in commercial quantities started in Turner Valley at the week-end.

Recently with the official opening of the Western Propane Ltd., of Calgary plant in the Turner Valley oil field.

Bored quantities of propane gas have been manufactured and sold in Canada as a mixer by-product of oil refineries However, the new $200,000 Turner Valley plant is believed to be the first constructed solely for the manufacture of the gas. It uses natural gas but formerly was "flared" or wasted at the well-head.

Propane is the natural gas that is sold in steel tanks. "Chief constituent of the gas is methane. Its natural state, propane is both light and volatile for use in ordinary natural gas transmission, distribution and consumption systems. The new plant processes it and condenses it into a liquid for easy transportation and handling. It changes readily to a gas when used.

No Relaxation In Regulations For Canadians Travelling In United States

OTTAWA—There will be no relaxation in the regulations governing United States dollars for pleasure travel during the coming year, Hon. Douglas Abbott, Minister of Finance, announced.

He stated that present regulations, instituted a year ago as part of Canada's dollar saving program, would continue in force during the period from November 16, 1949, to November 15, 1949.

At the same time he said it was expected that the relaxing of pleasure travel during the past 12 months was expected to show a saving of between $60,000,000 and $80,000,000.

As at present, the maximum amount of United States dollars which any Canadian resident may obtain for pleasure travel will be $150, and in the case of children 11 years and under, $100.

The Minister paid tribute to the Canadian public for its co-operation during the past year in complying with both the spirit and letter of travel regulations. Referring to the saving of $40 000 000 or $50,000 000 he said this substantial sum had been made available for many essential supplies and commodities during this period.

"Decision to continue the pleasure travel ration," said Mr Abbott, "was reached after a most careful assessment of all factors relating to Canada's United States dollar position. It was felt that rationing of pleasure travel was less onerous than many other restrictions made necessary by exchange difficulties. Therefore, to the extent that the exchange situation had improved, it seemed reasonable to relax the more burdensome regulations first. Travel restriction, however, will be removed as soon as conditions warrant."

Form "H" permits will continue to be necessary to take out of Canada more than $50 U.S., or more than $25 in U.S. and Canadian funds combined. As in the past there will be no restriction on the number of pleasure trips taken by Canadians in the United States as long as the annual allotment is not exceeded. Any U.S. dollars obtained for one trip and not used on that trip must be brought back to Canada and exchanged for Canadian dollars.

Applications for U.S. dollars for business, health or educational travel will continue to receive special consideration, it was stated.

SWEDISH WORKERS LIVE IN COMFORTABLE FLATS

The Swedish worker is one of the best-housed in the world today, visitors to Stockholm report. Most workers live in specially built modern flats with every convenience. Each block is centrally heated and flats have modern kitchens to stop stray drafts and are arranged so that the whole block gets adequate light and ventilation. The interior is beautifully finished—kitchens resplendent in white enamel and gleaming wood and labor-saving devices. However, Swedish workers complain at the fact that Stockholmers always seem to have a cold," one commentator remarks.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

HONOR

By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honor, and life.—Proverbs 22 4.

The surest way to live with honor in the world is to be in reality what we appear to be.—Socrates.

Honor and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part: there all the honor lies.

By cordial conduct and artificial means a person may make a sort of name for himself; but if the honor jewel be wanting, all is vanity, and will not last.—Cecil.

Honor is faithful merit is delayed, and always has been; but it is sure to come.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Be noble-minded! Our own heart, and not other men's opinion, forms our true honor.—Schiller.

NICHOLAS WINTERS, M.D.

By FERN AUBLE

The Unexplainable Friendship Top Of Mount Ida Inspired Author of Books.

YOUNG Dr Nick stood staring at the nameplate. He'd just taken it down from the front of the tiny office and the clean paint of the small oblong space where the sign had hung for the past three years was a glaring wound. He remembered the day he'd hung the sign there himself. Fresh from his internership in the big hospital of the city several hundred miles away, he had come to this small village of Andover to take up the practice reluctantly relinquished by old Dr. Powers.

Doc Powers was almost a legend in this small Midwest community. For over fifty years, he had practiced here, and everyone in the entire county knew and trusted him. It had never made any difference to Doc whether you had any money or not. If you needed him, that was enough. But, finally, the overwork—a merciless medical load that's what it happened that young Dr. Nicholas Winters had taken over.

It hadn't all been rosy sledding that first year. People, used to Dr. Powers, were reluctant to transfer that confidence to a stranger. He remembered the pride with which that sign had been hung, he remembered the long wait before his first patient. The people were friendly enough, but they simply reserved judgment.

Dr Powers once his successor was settled in Mrs. Larch's rooming house, left Andover to live with his daughter in California. Dr. Nick had watched him leave with mingled emotions. He was anxious to get started on his own, but Doc Powers had been surely support.

His first patient had been little Jimmy Donovan. Manfully, he had attempted to cut wood and the axe had slipped. Mrs. Donovan had carried Jimmy to Dr. Nick, her face white. It was a nasty gash and Dr. Nick's hands were gentle as he cleaned and bound the left wrist.

By the end of the first year, he was not only the town's doctor but its friend.

Then, without warning, he had received a letter from Dr. Graham, offering him a position on the staff of the hospital where he had interned. It was unthinkable that he refuse.

As word got around of the future, there was consternation in the town.

"Course, he's got a right to do what he wants, but it does seem like a shame to come here just long enough for folks to get used to him and then pick up and leave." This

"Course, he's got a right to do what he wants, but it does seem like a shame to come here just long enough for folks to get used to him and then pick up and leave." This was the general opinion.

He passed the home group of boys playing in the street, and once more he waved to Jimmy Donovan, and held his breath until he received an answering salute from Jimmy.

As he reached the last office once more, he had the feeling of coming home from a dark and lonesome journey. He jumped out of the car and strode up the walk. Half way up the walk, he stopped and stared in amazement. There, covering the bare, bleak spot once more was his own sign—Nicholas Winters, M.D.

He went on up the walk and stood looking at it. He reached out hesitantly and touched the familiar letters.

He looked around to find Andrew Jensen standing at his side, laughing.

"Andrew," Dr. Nick said bewilderedly, "I don't understand."

"Shucks, boy, I knew you'd be back." Andrew's fine eyes were compassionately understanding, as he put his hand on Dr. Nick's shoulder.

"I'm seldom wrong," he continued, "and I wasn't wrong about you. You're just not the kind to desert people who need you. And you know we need you here."

Dr. Nick entered the familiar friendly office, he wondered vaguely what young people would be taking over here some day. (Copyright Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate)

Annual Dog Race Jan. 20

WINNIPEG — With a total of $1,500 in cash prizes at stake, Manitoba trappers and their dog teams will hit the trail from The Pas to Cranberry Portage and back on Jan. 20 in the Canadian championship dog race for the Northern Manitoba Trappers' festival committee of The Pas chamber of commerce announced.

Route of the race will be the new, 5-completed portion of the Flin Flon-The Pas highway between The Pas and Cranberry Portage. First prize will be $1,000, second $500, and third, $300.

The race starts at The Pas on the morning of the 20th. Teams will remain in Cranberry Portage 24 miles north, overnight before beginning the dash back in the morning, having to be back in Flin Flon by noon of the 21st.

Deadline for entries is mid-night, Jan. 15. The race will be open, with any kind of hitch, any kind of sleigh and any number of dogs allowed at a team.

Saskatoon Motorist Carries Organ

SASKATOON. — When former Saskatonian, 57-year-old William Bryden, called into the city to visit old friends, the neighbors were pretty happy.

William had installed an electric organ in his trailer before leaving South Gate, Calif., and he whiled away spare hours here playing the instrument.

It wasn't the first experience in portable music for the Saskatchewan donor. When the family came to Saskatchewan in 1910, they also made much time before acquiring a piano, pulled from function to function in the winter on a sleigh.

Cougar, Deer Battle To Death

KELOWNA, B.C. — Deer versus cougar usually goes by the way of the cougar, but five local hunters came upon a fighting evidence that it doesn't always.

In this case death was the victor. Hunters Geoff Johnson, Charlie Sherman, George Bleeman, Jim McCarthy and John Bach, returning near Carmi, 45 miles southeast of here on the Kettle Valley railway, found the remains of a big buck and a large cougar, side by side, locked in death.

The horns of the buck were nearly ripped from the sockets and the head of the cougar was smashed, with the jaw almost torn off. One of the deer's hoofs was pierced and nearly imbedded in the cougar's jaw.

They believe the fatal struggle must have lasted for hours.

Hardisty Happenings

The Ladies Aid of St. Paul's United Church will hold their annual Bazaar, Tea and Sale of Cooking, in the Church basement on Saturday, Dec. 4th, at 1:00 p.m. Everybody welcome. Advert

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hendricks returned recently from Calgary where they visited Mrs. P. Hendricks and the family in general.

Who says it's only bears that hibernate for the winter? Bernie Headricks left on this week to spend the winter at home with his mother in Calgary. Says he'll see us in April.

Mrs. Hlehan Rose entertained a number of guests at her home last in honor of Miss Jean Chopay, bride elect of Dec. 6th. After a very pleasant social hour Jean opened her many lovely gifts, assisted by her hostess, and very humorously helped along by young Garry. After the contingent Ethel and her mother served a delicious lunch.

The last meeting of the Busy Bees was held at the home of Mrs. D. Dickson, prizes for cards going to Margaret Quinlan and Bob Bricker.

Miss Dorothy Hill of Kevisdorf is a visitor at the Hunter home.

Very hearty congratulations from all of us go out to Mr. and Mrs. W. Sidney who recently celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary.

"It's too good to last," went the remarks in general when the weather stayed so mild, but with the coming of the cold weather, we see Archie with a smile on his face. We can find none and there will be few. Now only that he has rim all ready to go in the first bonspiel to open the season. How about it skips, are with him?

The Whist Drive Thursday night, sponsored by the Rebekah Lodge was well attended and all seemed to have a very enjoyable time. Prizes went to Messrs Pete Hlehan, Red Ivey Fraser, Buster Donnefield, Robt Hanson and Eddie and Kitty Mae Brown, Madame Matthews and Al Keenan. Thanks for coming folks. It is very encouraging to see you turn out and special thanks to those who thought they did not play cards, donated their money, and to the boys who helped to serve lunch. The next whist drive will be Dec. 30th.

Mrs. Paul Zukiwsky's mother spent a few days with her last week.

Miss Pastor from Amisk is now employed at the CNR Sterile Home Widow's Cottage, Hardisty, cordially invites you to attend a free dance in Keefer's Hall on Tues., Dec. 28th. In this way they wish to convey their thanks to one for your patronage, and to wish you a very merry holiday season. Dancing from 9 p.m. Music by a week from Tuesday.

Gerald Brennan, now of Calgary, is visiting this week end.

Of course you know the Calgary Stampeders cropped the Grey Cup on Saturday. Not only that they very all names played the year (16) which is a record. But to some local them congrats! They deserve it for bringing the cup west, and we are proud of them and her.

We are indeed sorry to report the death of Mr. D. Ross, proprietor of the Variety Store in Hardisty. Mr. Ross passed away November 28th. He leaves to mourn his loss, besides his wife, one daughter of Ottawa and one son in Saskatchewan. The funeral will be held in Saskatoon. At time of writing final arrangements were not completed.

Well, last Saturday were brought people out in their winter togs.

A number of Hardisty people attended the dance at Cricklefade in spite of the cold weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnsrud and John and Judy spent Sunday at Consecon.

Arlene Abramsett spent the week end at the Thorpe.

Province Needs Plan

Entomologist Warns Of Creeping Danger Of Rats Invading Alberta

(By Ken Kelly, C.P.)

EDMONTON.—Alberta, one of North America's few rat-free areas, has at the most only five years to go. This warning came from [ H. Brown, provincial entomologist, who said the danger of rat invasion has been creeping on the province since 1936.

Once rats get a foot-hold there is no effective counter-attack against the $10,000,000 to $16,000,000 damage they will do each year.

Mr. Brown, who has kept an eye on rats as they marched across Manitoba, Saskatchewan and thereabouts at the Alberta border this year, is convinced the province needs to plan now to meet the attack.

"While railroads, buses and trucks did bring a few rats into Alberta this method of introduction was not a serious problem previously, because the chances of the rats escaping being seen and killed were very few.

Rats Short Distance Off

"However, now that rats are well-established a short distance east of the Alberta boundary, more and more of them are going to be introduced by railways, buses and trucks with a consequent decline in the chances of their being observed and killed," he said.

Having successfully conquered Manitoba around 1900, crossed the province by 1916 and initiated Regina and Moose Jaw, Sask., about 1935. They spread north, east and south of those centres and reached Prince Albert, Sask., and Saskatoon in 1936.

Struck River Barrier

But by 1938, the rats struck the toughest problem in their westward trek—the South Saskatchewan river. It took them two years before they conquered this wide stretch of water and again pushed westward, this time getting dangerously close to Alberta.

Mr. Brown said the only reason rats have not followed up their gains is that the main body of their army has not yet reached the Alberta boundary. And the reason that the main body hasn't begun streaming west is that the rat population pressure is not yet great enough.

But the day is coming when rats will begin a serious bid to storm Alberta and, like a good general, Mr. Brown has enlisted an army to fight them.

It is a band of manufacturers, farmers, packing house workers, bakers, retailers and millers—in fact any army of the people on whom he is depending to stave off the threat.

Key men in his army are the post office clerks, railroad officials, grain elevator men and newspaper editors to help publicize his anti-rat campaign and act as the advance troops.

The main striking force is every man, woman and child able to wield a stick or a pitchfork whenever they sight the enemy. It's on these "troops" that Mr. Brown is counting to win his campaign.

Bags Are Bags

The popular conception that human beings are of primary importance gets many and shocks. One of those occurred in the dying days of the last session of the United States Congress. Two appropriations were passed. One provided $612,000 to fight the Long Island potato bug. The other provided $500,000 for the fight against heart disease, somehow much trouble and loss the potato bug occasions we do not know. We know the record of heart disease better. It affects one in every 16 persons in the population, causes one out of every three deaths and the loss of 16 or 17 million working days a year. Of course bugs are bugs and, according to some statistics, are one day to inherit the earth. But it does seem that we who provide the money might give ourselves a little better break.—J. L. H.

BULLS NOT KILLED

At Costa Rica bull fights bulls are not killed or injured, and their horns are sawed off to prevent damage to the participants.

Uncovers 300-Year-Old Lovers' Secret

LONDON. — G. W. Anderson uncovered a 300-year-old lovers' secret 14 feet beneath the brick garden of his Fulham home.

It took a bit of digging, but Anderson figured it was worth it. For the secret was a tunnel that ran from the Thames river to his centuries-old home.

"A beautiful Cockney girl lived there 300 years ago and her wealthy lover built a tunnel from the Thames river for private meetings with her," he said.

The lovers were King Charles II and Nell Gwynne."

Helpful Hints

Use perfume very sparingly—it will is much more fascinating than a blast.

* * * *

A small amount of leftover bacon may be put through the meat chopper and used as a middle layer when making scalloped potatoes.

* * * *

Store creamed chipped beef. Savor with a little grated onion, over squares of freshly-hucked hot bread, garnish with chopped parsley and sprig of watercress.

* * * *

That left-over maple syrup won't be left over long if the family finds out how good it is on slightly warm apple pie—try it too, on pumpkin pie, if you like mixtures.

HIGHEST FORM

Synthetic textile manufacturers regard the spider's web as one of the highest forms of filament weaving.

"THUMBS FOR APPLES"—With long evenings at this time of the year children's home parties are quite popular, and there seems no better fun to be had, as shown above by the three young misses, than to play the old pastime game of "bobbing for apples" —N S photo.

Hot Rolls Make An Impression

HOT rolls always make an impression, whether it is the family or important guests who are being served. The housewife who can boast that she has made them best will proudly accept the compliments.

Even the inexperienced cook may astonish her family with home-made rolls if she follows the up-to-date methods recommended by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The basic recipe may be varied in many ways making plain or fancy rolls to suit the occasion.

Variation Of Knife

Soft or Crusty Rolls: Cut off small uniform pieces (1½ sides under until top is smooth and dough is round and free of cracks. Place close together on baking sheet; for crusty rolls place 2 inch apart; for very crusty rolls place in greased muffin tins.

Clover Leaf Rolls: Shape very small pieces of dough into balls, form small pieces, shape into balls with the palm of the hand roll until of desired length taking care to make them smooth.

Cresscents Roll: Roll dough ¼ inch thick and using a sharp knife, cut in 3 inch squares. Brush with melted fat. Starting at one corner, roll to opposite corner, pressing the points firmly down while rolling. Bring the two ends almost together to form the cresscent.

Knots: Roll dough ½ inch thick, cut in narrow strips and roll with palm of hand into 9-inch strips. Tie in a loose knot.

Cinnamon Rolls: Use ½ the recipe. After rising, roll dough in a rectangle ¼ inch thick, brush with melted fat and sprinkle with a mixture of ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ cup raisins. Roll like a jelly roll and cut in 1-inch slices. Place close together in a greased pan cut side down.

Butterscotch Rolls: Use ½ the recipe and follow directions for cinnamon rolls omitting cinnamon and raisins and sprinkling the dough with ¼ cup brown sugar in place of the white sugar. Cream ¼ cup butter with ¼ cup brown sugar, spread on bottom of pan or individual muffin tins and place sliced rolls, cut side down on the mixture.

Stock Market Crash Nineteen Years Ago

WELLESLEY, Mass.—Nineteen years ago, October 29, 1929 to be exact, the stock market crashed. It was "Black Tuesday". The close-donned tickers ran hours behind transactions in Wall Street brokerage offices in New York. In the ensuing days of panic and confusion, men who had been millionaires a week before became paupers.

Filling station attendants, bookkeepers, bouncers, all "experts" on the stock market saw their small investments wiped out overnight.

One of the few men who foresaw the market break was economist Roger Babson. He predicted in September, 1929, that the crash was coming.

Today, Babson took a gloomy look at the world and predicted that another depression and probably another war are on the way.

However, they won't arrive this year or next, the 73-year-old former prohibition party presidential candidate said in an interview.

"Depression is inevitable," said Babson. "War isn't—but it surely will come unless the nations can develop a world government with authority to regulate such things as tariffs and immigration."

Babson said he's preparing for war because he doesn't think an international organization can be created until world's businessmen "stop worrying about profits, the workingmen about wages and the politicians about votes."

"In other words," he said, "a spiritual awakening is the only solution to the problem."

Continued that nearby Boston would be a primary target in World War III. Babson is preparing atomic bomb havens at Nashua, Nashua, Kans., and New Boston, N.H.

He said he was optimistic about war: He figures it's coming but doesn't think it will end civilization or even stop the economic development of the United States.

"Even if they explode atomic bombs in the 12 biggest cities and kill 15,000,000 people—that still leaves us with more than 140,000,000 people and our important resources," he said.

Babson said he approves of the European recovery program on humanitarian principles, but doesn't think it will be much use.

From his viewpoint, he indicated Europe can't make a permanent recovery. He suggested the United States concentrate efforts on the relatively undeveloped sections of the world.

Babson had no doubts about what is in the economic offing.

"Depression," he predicted, indicating a huge chart of the nation's business activity which he has kept up 25 years and $150,000 preparing.

"It's inevitable," he explained, quoting for issue Newton's physical principle of "action and reaction."

"What goes up abnormally must come down," said Babson. "Depression follows every prosperity period—it's a fundamental of nature."

He said the present level of prosperity is due to last at least through 1951, largely as result of the post-up wartime demand for consumers goods and the inflationary effects of European relief spending.

It's still too early to predict exactly when current prosperity will crumble into depression, he said, but added that he already had made a long-range forecast on the subject.

Taking from his desk-top copy of fighting business depressions," a book he wrote in 1932 Babson opened it to the dedication page and read

Dedicated to my grandchildren and their friends whose ages are now such they must face economic struggles of two generations and should be prepared for panics around 1951 and 1982

Baby Giraffe Is Big Springtime Attraction In Sydney

The baby giraffe "Atom", who was six feet two inches and weighed 140 pounds at birth, is getting a lot of attention these days at the zoo in Sydney, Australia. To counter to fun, but, excited there, baby, you don't want to do too much as early in life. These legs look dangerously slim.

(Central Press Canadian)

GLAMOUR girl of Taronga Park, Sydney, Australia, just now is the baby giraffe, born as a gracious springtime attraction. Other new zoo babies haven't received half the notice that the giraffe has. They trumpet and chatter in protest, but the baby giraffe is wise, serene and says nothing. Perhaps because, being a giraffe, she can't answer back. A giraffe's voice-box is undeveloped.

Since the fifth day of her life, when she stepped from the darkness of her cave to face batteries of photographers, she has drawn admirers. She showed them she had rather a bewitching smile, which she turns on to susceptible cameramen.

At first, "Atom" was a bit lottery on her slim legs, but after an hour was cantering happily around in circles. She moved as gracefully as her parents, placing her hoofs on the sandy soil delicately and softly like fine floating-free action," said a beholder.

She made the most of her first day in the zoo. From a timid start at 10.30 she became quite bold at 12.30.

Zoo Superintendent H. A. Patton and Ranger M. Flory mounted the enclosure and tried to tempt Mugsy, mother of Atom, and her child into their house again by handing out handfuls of food. But the Atom was not interested. In her young life things were really looking up at last.

Father of "Atom" is three-year-old Jan Somia, (above), who sticks out his tongue to show relations. "The kid looks pretty good," thinks father, "and it's the same everywhere. The men are always in the background." "Atom" is the first baby giraffe born at Taronga, but the other two did not survive. Zoo officials are hopeful of the Atom's future.

Plant Still Thriving After Twenty Years

Henry Dreyfuss was a stage designer in New York 30 years ago when his rent and became engaged to Doris Mark, daughter of Manhattan's Borough President. He decided that designing stage-sets could not bring him enough to warrant marriage, and therefore decided to try industrial designing. On the day he opened his new office he had only $5e left. His sport if for a little flower plant he sent to his fiancee. One year later he married her. The plant still thrives, writes Leonard Lyons. It's in Dreyfuss' new offices, surrounded by his newest models of the Royal Typewriter, the 20th Century Train, American Export's cruise-ships, Warner & Swasey's turret-lathes, Hoover Cleaner, etc. And the happily married Dreyfuss has a contract with Raleigh to minimize to the 20-year-old. The plant said keep it fresh during his absence.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL AIDS LOCAL PUPILS

(By Dr J. W. Chalmers)

This year Killam Division again finds itself under-staffed, with the result that children in three schools, Stavne, Semmle and Lakefield, are having to pursue their education by correspondence. About fifty children in these schools are registered for church courses, as compared with approximately 175 in sixteen schools less than two years ago. Correspondence education was first established in Alberta about 1920 to provide elementary education for isolated and underprivileged children. By 1939 a staff of five or six teachers was giving instruction in grades 1 to 9 to 1000 or 1200 pupils in Alberta and elsewhere. Most of these were too far from regular schools to attend them. Others were invalid or otherwise handicapped children. In 1939 the Department of Education began to offer high school correspondence courses, and by 1943 was providing a complete program from Grade 1 to 12. During this period the Director of the Correspondence School Branch was J. W. Chalmers, now Supt. of Killam School Division. Miss M. A. Haynes and Miss K. L. Simmerman, now at Central High, have also taught on its staff.

Instructors Highly Qualified

Every teacher in the Correspondence School Branch must have an Alberta teacher's certificate and considerable classroom teaching experience. High school instructors are required to have a university degree. Of former Alberta correspondence teachers, three are now Superintendents of Schools, another an Assistant Professor, still another the Supervisor of Examinations for the Department. Unlike his predecessor, the present Director, M. G. F. Bruce, has come up through the ranks of the correspondence instructors.

Centres Established

The wartime shortage of teachers forced the Dept. of Education with a number of choices, all unsatisfactory. It could close schools, or it could place unqualified persons ("permit teachers") in charge of instruction. Instead, it decided to register as correspondence pupils all children for whom no teacher could be found, and to have them do their studying at school under supervision. Even after the last correspondence supervisor has been replaced by a qualified teacher, the Correspondence School Branch will be still in business, serving isolated and physically handicapped children, and in Killam Division today there is a grade six pupil who has never taken a class in a regular school because of poor roads and the distance to her school. Additional high schools are established registered for correspondence courses in subjects either not offered in school or not available because of some other conflicts. Others are completing courses at home.

Advantages and Disadvantages

These students enjoy many advantages. They can go at their own best speed, often they may complete a grade in six months or in eighteen depending on their own ability. As every assignment is a written one, pupils develop habits of neatness, ability in organization and mastery of written English commonly rare due to those of classroom pupils.

On the other hand they miss the face to face contact with teachers, the daily help and guidance that the classroom pupil enjoys, training in music, speech, and physical education, and practice in adjusting to social situations. Going from correspondence to classroom study, the pupil undergoes a difficult period of adjustment. For these reasons correspondence education will never replace the classroom. However, in its own sphere it provides invaluable opportunities for the underprivileged children and adults.
